SERIOUS BUDGET DIFFICULTIES FACING ONTARIO

100,000 See King Open Empire Glasgow Show

British Monarch, in 7-Minute Address, Lauds Scots; Sees Exposition Bettering World Understanding

GLASGOW, May 3 (CP).—The King opened the Empire Exposition on the banks of the Clyde today with a tribute to the "vitality and initiative" of the Scottish people.

He spoke before 100,000 in the stadium of the great steel and concrete city built over 175 acres of Bellahouston Park.

The Queen was at his side and a thunder of cheers rolled from the stadium as trumpets announced the arrival of Their Majesties in an open carriage.

The King spoke for seven minutes, expressing confidence the exposition would provide the meeting place for many nationalities and thus "help toward a better understanding among the peoples of the world."

Their Majesties arrived at the exhibition grounds a few hours after 500 bus drivers and conductors had walked out in an out-law" strike against the Scottish Motor Traction Co. in a dispute growing out of the discharge of a conductor. The Transport and General Workers Union, to which the strikers belong, declared it would refuse to recognize the walkout.

The King and Queen Elizabeth were escorated to the royal box by Lord Elgin, President of the exposition. In his brief address the sovereign said:

City In 10 Months

"The Queen and I are very happy to be in Scotland once more, we will see today the completion of the great scheme, the inception of which we saw when we were last in Glasgow 10 months ago. At that time the work on the buildings of the Empire Exhibition had scarcely begun; there now stands in Bella-Houston Park, looking out over the River Clyde, a whole town of more than 100 palaces and pavilions.

ONTARIO CARRYING MORE THAN SHARE OF FINANCIAL LOAD

TORONTO, May 3.—(CP).—The people of Ontario have carried more than their share of the financial burden of confederation, in the opinion of the Ontario government.

They have carried an increasing proportion of the Dominion tax load in recent years, so that the province now contributes 45 per cent. of all Dominion tax collections while receiving 30 per cent. of Dominion expenditures, Chester Walters, deputy provincial treasurer of Ontario, said today before the Rowell Commission.

The province recognized that transfers of revenues from one part of the country to another were "inevitable and just" in a federal state, he said. "Ontario has never shirked its fair share of responsibilities in carrying the burdens of confederation. But the figures show that the suggestions put forward by certain other provinces and in other briefs that Ontario does not pay its fair share of taxation are both inaccurate and ungenerous."

The percentage of the Dominion tax load falling on Ontario had increased steadily from 40.4 in 1928-29 to 45.3 in 1936-37, he said, while that on the Prairies had fallen steadily from 21.5 per cent in 1928-29 to 15.3 per cent. in 1936-37. Percentages of total Dominion revenue coming from the Maritimes, Quebec and British Columbia had remained fairly constant.

Most Heavily Taxed

Totalling Dominion, provincial and municipal taxation, he found Ontario and British Columbia were the most heavily taxed areas in Canada, with per capita rates of $104 and $109 respectively. Quebec was $67, the Prairies $61 and Maritimes $48.

"It is admitted of course that the real burden of taxation is a function of income and that during the past eight years per capita income has probably been higher in Ontario and British Columbia than in other parts of Canada," he said. "Income on the prairies probably compares favorably with that in Ontario in prosperous years. Unquestioned it has been depressed in the years since 1930."

As far as Ontaro provincial finance was concerned, he noted the total cost of government in 1920 was

Cottage Burned

Despite fast work by the Peterborough Fire Department, who had water playing on the blaze at Chemong Park eighteen minutes after leaving headquarters in this city, a cottage was burned to the ground on Monday afternoon with a loss of about $1,500. A pump carried water from Lake Chemong up a 40-foot embankment and through 550 feet of hose to the cottage. The pump is seen in one of these pictures being operated by Fireman Vergil Carr. In the other firemen are playing a hose on the remains of the cottage, standing in what might have been the dining room. (Examiner Staff Photos.)

Jap Line Breaks In Shantung

Chinese Drive Through Seven Miles in First Thrust; With 800,000 of An Army Ready to Smash Invaders

SHANGHAI May 3 (AP).—Chinese despatches tonight reported a seven-mile advance on the southern Shantung front, focal point of the war, and declared Japanese lines had buckled completely under the Chinese onslaught.

The advance was said to be the first thrust of a general Chinese offensive, in which 800,000 men were declared ready to participate.

The reports said the advance was made between Taier-Hchwang, scene of a major Japanese defeat early last month, and Pihsien, 15 miles to the southeast, in Kiangsu province.

In this sector the Japanese had been making most intense efforts of their recent drive to wipe the stain of Taierchwang and reach the vital Lunghai railway.

Now, however, said dispatches from the front to Hankow, these Japanese forces are retreating rapidly northward.

3 Attacks Repulsed

SHANGHAI, May 2 (AP).—Chinese infantrymen repulsed 10 Japanese assaults on three fortless-like villages today and then advanced their own lines a mile, in counter-attacks drawing their net tighter about Tancheng.

General Chiang Kai-Shek's veterans were fighting to set the Japanese back on their heels for a second time in South Shantung province, despite the fact Japanese have been reinforced for a supreme effort to atone for the defeat administered at Taierhchwang almost a month ago.

BRITISH EMPIRE IS NOT THREE-MILE LIMIT PROPOSITION

"The British Empire is not a three-mile limit proposition but a world proposition," declared G. G. McGeer, former Mayor of Vancouver and member for Vancouver-Burrard in the Dominion Parliament in a stirring address delivered at the annual dinner meeting of the Peterborough Automobile Club at the Empress Hotel Monday night. "You cannot be of the Empire and not in it," declared Mr. McGeer as he eloquently paid tribute to the patient, tolerant and wise leadership of British statesmen in preventing world war and to Canada's responsibility as a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The dynamic member from the coast really delivered two speeches last night, for he followed his exposition of what Canada's duty was to the Empire with an effective plea for a greater development of tourist trade in Canada, emphasizing the fact that such a development was necessary if only for the economic defence of this country.

Mr. McGeer was introduced by Alex. Elliott, M.L.A., who sketched briefly the successful career of the guest speaker, and paid a warm tribute to his robust independence of thought, a characteristic that Mr. Elliott declared to be much needed in the legislative assemblies and the Federal parliament.

After a graceful expression of thanks at being given another opportunity to address a local aud-

A "SALESMAN" ROBBER

WINDSOR, Ont., May 3.—(CP).—Posing as a salesman, a young man entered the home of Mrs. Frank Kolmanic here last night and made off with her purse. Mrs. Kolmanic told police the young man was standing inside the door of the house when she returned from a shopping trip. He asked her to buy an attachment "for saving gas." He left when Mrs. Kolmanic said she was not interested. Mrs. Kolmanic later discovered her purse, containing about $23, was missing.

OTTAWA MAY USE ITS FISCAL POLICY TO REDUCE TAXES

OTTAWA, May 3.—(CP).—A hint that the Government may employ its fiscal policy to lower tariff and taxataion, and explore credit control possibilities in dealing with the unemployment problem, was given in the House of Commons yesterday by Labor Minister Rogers. But the move in that direction would have to be slow.

In a welter of suggestions, bitter criticisms and goadings from Co-operative Commonwealth Federation members for definite expression of policy on relief problems, Mr. Rogers gave a brief inkling of what was in his mind but repeated his declaration that only when the supplementary estimates were introduced would the government's detailed plans be disclosed.

Outstanding among the fresh suggestions were those of George Wood (Lib. Brant) who urged a $100,000,000 subsidy for industry and a social security scheme to be embarked upon once employment was more nearly normal.

A whole day was devoted to debate of the unemployment and farm relief bill and the House heard charges of corruption in public expenditures. Opposition Leader Bennett charged public monies were being used in patronage at Long Branch in Ontario and Harry J. Barber (Cons. Fraser Valley) declared he had recently witnesed the "rankest" form of patronage in that British Columbia riding.

Peace River Outlet.

For more than two hours the House turned aside from the actual relief discussions to debate the needs of the Peace River district for a highway outlet to the Pacific Coast. This project was first raised by Rene Pelletier, youngest member of the House, who represents Peace River as a Social Credit member.

J. G. Turgeon (Lib. Cariboo) found himself in agreement with Mr. Pelletier as to the needs for an outlet but they battled bitterly as to what was being done by the present government and as to routes. Mr. Bennett also urged the need for a highway outlet to the Pacific coast and said it would have been built had his party remained in office.

Death Duty Gold Can't Last Walters Admits

Treasurer Backs Premier in Fight to Retain Sources of Revenue for Province as Strain Grows

TORONTO, May 3 (CP).—Even though Ontario is enjoying temporary surpluses, largely because of collection of substantial succession duty "arrears," the province is facing serious future budgetary difficulties, Chester Walters, provincial controller of finance, told the Rowell Commission today.

Taxation was already at a high rate and there was the prospect of declining revenues from succession duties, simultaneous with increasing demands for expenditure, he said. The municipalities were requiring increased relief from their heavy responsibilities.

"The province of Ontario does not believe that it is practicable or efficient to transfer many of the most expensive services to the Dominion," he said. "The province of Ontario, therfore, cannot give up any present source of substantial revenue and must, in fact, insist on a more strict recognition of its clearly established legal and moral rights in the field of direct taxation and natural resources."

The province was proud of its record of development and social expenditures, but it was convinced these had to go further along a number of lines, Mr. Walters said.

"The province of Ontario is convinced that the development and administration of agricultural policies, roads, education, health, mothers' allowance and other public welfare activities can be more efficiently trusted to the province than to the Dominion," he stated.

Leadership in Ottawa

"In some instances inter-provincial collaboration is very desirable and at times the Dominion can provide useful leadership and on occasion financial assistance in such collaboration and integration of provincial schemes."

The government was convinced there was serious housing problem which would become more serious unless efforts were made to solve it. Slum-clearance schemes and government-supervised housing programs had an important place but an indirect attack on the problem had even more chance of permanent success.

"Lower real estate taxes and low interest rates together with greater economic security are probably in the long run more useful lines of attack on the housing problem than often spectacular programs of mass demolition and rebuilding," Mr. Walters submitted.

There were situations where extensive reconstructoin was the proper solution, which required some government support but low real estate taxes, low interest and sound city planning were the main requisites for all of prevention and much of the cure of housing problems.

"Cheap money involves among other things the maintenance of sound public credit. Lower real estate taxes mean improvement in the

MRS. J. R. STRATTON DIES IN TORONTO, ILL ONLY FEW DAYS

Social leader in Peterborough for many years, Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Ormond Stratton, Provincial Secretary in the Liberal government of which Hon. G. H. Ross was Premier died in Wellesley Hospital, Toronto, Monday, after an illness of only a few days.

Mrs. Stratton was born here, daughter of J. R. Ormond, a jeweller who had been long prominent in local business. Since the death of her husband in 1916 she had lived in Victoria, B.C., and Toronto. During the time when the late J. R. Stratton was a member of the Ontario Legislature and subsequently of the House of Commons representing the old riding of West Peterborough, Mrs. Stratton was prominent not only in society of this city but also in Ottawa and Toronto. She was essentially a home lover, and in many unobtrusive ways had been of great help to her husband. In the same quiet disposition she had helped many persons out of a natural sense of charity was characteristic of her kindly nature.

Older residents recall the Stratton residence at Aylmer and Dalhousie streets now occupied by Alderman E. R. Wilson, and later at Strathormond, 751 George street, the present home of Mrs. R. Sheehy.

Mrs. Stratton is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Emma Gooding of Toronto, and Mrs. Louise McDonald, Victoria, B.C., two brothers, Albert and Oliver Ormond of Victoria, and her niece Mrs. Harris Ardiel of Windsor who spent her girlhood at the Stratton home and was married from Strathormond.

The death of Mrs. J. R. Stratton severs another of the personal ties between the Peterborough of 40 and 50 years ago and today, and seems to have the effect of giving finality to a period of social, political and business memories that are retained only by the residents of that time.

Alderman R. M. Glover informed the Examiner today that the funeral of Mrs. Stratton will take place Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from Belleghem's funeral home to the Little Lake Cemetery, the body arriving here on the noon C.P.R. train from Toronto. The service will be conducted by the Rev. George S. Easton of Trinity United Church. Older friends of Mrs. Stratton will recall her interest in the old Charlotte Street Methodist Church of which she and her husband were members.

MINISTERS ASK BAN BE PLACED UPON PIN GAMES

Question Is Referred To Finance Committee

Condemned as gambling machines by a deputation from the Ministerial Association, and declared by Alderman Gordon to be illegal, pin games were given a temporary lease of life and play by the City Council last night by the expedient of being referred to the Finance Committee for consideration guided by the advice of City Solicitor Huycke.

Rev. M. C. Parr, Rev. Dr. Barr and Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt were the members of the deputation armed with information about the instances of money lost in trying to beat the game which, they said, stacked up heavy odds against the player and in favor of "the house."

After a discussion of the request presented in behalf of the Ministerial Association, Alderman Gordon moved, "to clear the air," that Chief Newhall be asked to prosecute all persons who have pin games on their premises and in operation. Alderman Wilson seconded the motion.

"It might give the lawyers a chance to defend some of them," Alderman Gordon remarked, and he added that a decision by the Court of Appeal in a Kingston case had found pin games to be contrary to the Criminal Code.

Before taking that immediately drastic step, which would require the police to obtain evidence to support any charges that might be brought in court, Alderman Glover expressed a wish to have the question of pin games considered by the Finance Committee, "and let us have the City Solicitor give us his opinion as to the legality of these machines."

His suggestion developed into an amendment which Alderman Stocker seconded. When Mayor Hamilton called for the vote of the Council the division was 8-2 in favor of the amendment which was supported by Aldermen Gordon and Wilson.

"It means only that they will have another month or two to go," Alderman Gordon remarked.

"If pin games are not legal I wouldn't give them a licence," was Alderman Glover's expression, and Alderman McIntyre's opinion was of the same import although in different phrasing.

"I don't believe pin games should

JAILED RELIEFER WILL STAND TRIAL

TORONTO, May 3.— (CP).—George William Kellett, arrested when he appeared before Premier Mitchel Hepburn last week with a delegation of Toronto township relief strikers, was committed for trial to-day on a charge of theft of $310.65 from the Province of Ontario. Bail was set at $2,000.

By an amendment requested by C. L. Snyder of the Attorney-General's Department, the information regarding the alleged thefts was altered to include the years 1935 and 1936, instead of a period in 1936. Kellett pleaded not guilty through his counsel.

"Who is the treasurer of Ontario?" Mr. Snyder asked.

"The Prime Minister," Fraser replied.

"Was accused employed by the Government?"

"Yes, for about one year during 1935 and 1936," the official said. "His last position was assistant cashier for the Agricultural Development Board."

Three other men who are on strike from relief jobs in protest against the township's action in cutting relief allowances are to appear in court, as are three women, on charges of creating a disturbance. They were arrested last week in Premer Hepburn's office after the 14-mile march to the Parliament Buildings from Lakeview, where the strike is centred.

FOUR DIE IN RIOTS AT SUGAR FIELDS

KINGSTON, Jamaica, May 3 (C. P.-Cable).—Labor war that reared its head on this British West Indian island sugar estates had brought death of four workers and sent more than fifty to hospital.

Extra police, armed with rifles and bayonets, were rushed from Kingston to the Westmoreland district where sugar estate employees struck Saturday for higher pay. Troops were held in readiness here in case the situation should get beyond the control of the island's constabulary.

Officers who battle a mob armed with clubs, stones and machettes said they arrested 73 of the strikers.

Workers on the British West Indies Sugar Company and the Tate and Lyle estates, nearly all natives, struck Saturday for $1 a day instead of the two shillings they were receiving and for dismissal of a native pay clerk to whom they objected.

One canefield was burned and an estate manager's residence was slightly damaged before police restored order. Yesterday the disturbances spread until they embraced 1,600 workers.

Reports reaching Kingston said most of the wounded received their injuries when police were forced to fire on a mob.

Dictator Rises Early As Train Reaches Border, To Greet Italian Envoys

ROME, May 3—(AP).—Chancellor Hitler's special train speeding toward Rome nosed through the Brenner Pass and into Italy to-day.

Bands played the German and Italian national anthems as the train pulled into the railway station at Brennero, lavishly decorated with flowers and bunting.

The Fuehrer was up to receive the emissaries of the King Vittorio Emanuele and Premier Mussolini, sent to welcome him to Italian soil. They were the Duke of Pistoia, for the King, and Achille Starace, Fascist party secretary, for the Duce. Guiseppe Bastianini, under-secretary for foreign affairs, represented the government.

There were small crowds and many soldiers. The 18th Regiment of infantry was on the platform at Brennero, along with squadrons of artillery, Alpine troops, Blackshirt militia and Fascist youths.

A German Population?

The Fuehrer travelled through a region peopled by 250,000 folk of Tuetonic blood, Austrians ceded to Italy after the Great War.

Ironically Hitler, who stands for the union of all Germans in one great Germany, has assured Mussolini he never will seek to extend his frontiers beyond the Brenner.

Mayor Vetoes Vote For St. Catharines To Hold Victoria Day May 23

St. Catharines, Ont., May 3 (CP).

MAYOR J. D. Wright announced today he had vetoed a motion which called for observance of Victoria Day, May 24th, on Monday, May 23, in St. Catharines. The motion was passed at last night's meeting of the St. Catharines city council on a 5-4 vote.

Mayor Wright ruled the motion out of order.

The mayor said the step was introduced without notice of motion and without presence of a full council.

Mayor Wright said he favored a Monday holiday but that St. Catharines could not act alone by trying to override a Dominion statute.

The by-law read in part:

"Public holidays observed on any day but Monday cause considerable inconvenience, and if all public holidays were observed on Monday in the week in which they fall considerable public benefit would ensue by virtue of the fact the holiday weekend would be lengthened."

Nazis To Run Salzburg Festival For German Workers

Jews To Be Banned, Foreigners Curbed At Once International Social Function

By A. D. Stefferud
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

VIENNA, May 3 (AP).—Salzburg Festival, as the world has known it for the last 10 years, is no more. But Austria's new Nazi masters say: "Long live the German festival in Salzburg!"

Arturo Toscanini, Bruno Walter, Max Reinhardt and the Austrian Tourist Bureau built the six weeks of music each year into a glittering international social function.

The Nazi purge of Jews has eliminated Walter and Reinhardt. Toscanini gave notice he would not participate in the 1938 festival.

The Nazis have hung a "No Jews wanted!" sign on the festival. They want to make it an affair for the average, Aryan German. It is to revolve about the works of Mozart, who lived in Salzburg.

The German hiker is to be at home in the rebuilt Festspielhaus, for which Toscanini raised funds and which he was to dedicate this summer. The audience will munch sandwiches which they have brought from home during the intermissions, instead of ordering caviar and champagne.

Run By Jews.

On this the Vienna newspaper "Echo" wrote:

"Who used to be in the audience? Who stood at the director's podium? Foreign Jews! Who staged Goethe, conducted Mozart, played the roles of German heroes? Jewish emigrants!

"Remember we German Austrians were wallflowers at our own Salzburg Festival. We arrived there afoot, on bicycles, or third-class on railroads, and they stuck the sign 'Sold out!' before our noses."

After a diatribe on "half-naked Parisiennes, Viennese, Jewesses and flaxen-yellow Englishwomen" in former Salzburg audiences, "Each' continued:

"Let us rejoice over the new Salzburg. It will—for the first time—belong to us Germans alone. And if we invite foreigners, let them regard themselves as guests, not as masters of the house."

Toronto, May 3. (CP).

DRIVERS LESS than 18 years old were involved in more accidents and in more fatalities, proportionately, than those of any other age group in Ontario last year, provincial highways department officials announced today. The second worst record is against drivers of from 18 to 24 years.

On the basis of fatalities in accidents, drivers rated as follows in age groups last year:

1.—Drivers between 41 and 54
2.—Drivers between 55 and 64.
3.—Drivers 65 and over.
4.—Drivers between 24 and 40.
5.—Drivers between 18 and 24.

HOUSE PASSES ITS APPROVAL ON ROME PACT

Liberal, Labor Attack Is Defeated by 322-110

LONDON, May 3—(CP)—Approved by the House of Commons by overwhelming vote after bitter opposition criticism, Prime Minister Chamberlain's friendship pact with Premier Mussolini today was an important step nearer its going into effect.

The accord, expected to be approved in the House of Lords shortly, becomes effective upon Italian withdrawal of her soldier from Spain and is intended to clear up friction in the Mediterranean, North Africa and the near east.

Mr. Chamberlain, defending the accord yesterday in the face of Liberal and Labor attacks—featured by a fiery speech from David Lloyd George—told the House the treaty signed in Rome April 16 was a great step toward avoiding European war.

He left the impression he would attempt to form a similar pact with Germany as soon as possible, as he said "The purpose of our general foreign policy is not only to establish peace but, if possible to restore such general confidence that peace can and will be maintained."

The House gave him a large majority. It defeated 322-110 a Labor motion to renounce the accord. Then it approved the treaty 316-108.

Labor and Liberals flayed the Prime Minister because he praised Fascist Italy warmly as "a new Italy which under stimulus of the personality of Signor Mussolini is showing new vigor in which there is apparent new vision and new efficiency in administration."

Opposition benches laughed when A. V. Alexander, Labor, interjected: "and new horrors."

Old Friendship Renewed?

In the old days, the Prime Minister said, Britain had a close friendship with the old Italy—"the Italy which, with our warm approval and sympathy, had won her independence and unity under such leaders as Mazzini and Garibaldi, I

HASTINGS COUNCIL FAVOR OF HOLIDAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 3.—Local merchants are in a quandry over the Wednesday afternoon half-holiday bylaw. Last year some merchants including ex-reeve Fairman sought to have the bylaw repealed but the majority of the council were in favor of letting it stand.

A few merchants were alleged to to have been selling goods on Wednesday afternoon last year, contrary to the bylaw. As a result, Constable W. Wellman was instructed not to enforce it. Following this some stores remained open and some closed.

It is expected that the matter will be brought up again before the municipal council for consideration at their regular monthly session Friday night.

SEYMOUR SOCIETY PLANS SPORTS DAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3. — Members of the Seymour Agricultural Society will hold a Sports Day and street dance on June 1 it was reported from their meeting held in the township council chambers at which committees were appointed to take charge of the arrangements.

John Olliver was made an honorary director and on motion will receive an annual salary of $5 to act as overseer of the grounds and buildings.

It was the motion of P. Morgan and R. McCulloch which changed the proposed date of the event from June 3 to June 1 which was thought would be a better day.

Messrs. W. W. Archer, D. Rutherford, Jas. Waters and W. J. Duncan were appointed to the committee in charge of the dance which will be held during the evening. The matter of expenses was discussed at considerable length and it was felt advisable to limit the amount to $400 of which one hundred dollars should be raised by private subscription.

A truck is being engaged to draw dirt and make necessary repairs to the track and Messrs. T. J. Horkins, P. A. Morgan and E. Stanbury were elected to the committee in charge of races, while Messrs. E. A. McCook, P. A. Morgan and T. J. Horkins were placed on the publicity committee. The meeting was adjourned till May 5th.

MRS. WM. CLARKE.

BALLYDUFF, May 3.—The death of Mrs. Willam Clarke occurred on Thursday morning with stunning suddenness at her farm residence near Ballyduff. Although Mrs. Clarke had not enjoyed the best of health for some years past, she had been able to perform alone her many household tasks and extend the hearty hand of hospitality to many friends who beat a pathway to her door. Her fatal illness was brief, her death being the result of a heart attack which overtook her three days previous to her passing.

Before her marriage she was Louise Bannan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bannan, of Pontypool, where she spent her girlhood days. Thirty-six years ago she was united in marriage to William Clarke of Ballyduff at the home of her parents by the Rev. E. P. Oswald. To this union were born two sons, Murray and Lloyd Clarke, the former a teacher and the latter a farmer with his father at the homestead.

The Clarge family were members of the United church at Yelverton, and the late Mrs. Clarke wa sever ready to assist in church and community work.

The funeral on Saturday afternoon was attended by a wide circle of friends and relatives from far and near. Rev. C. H. Ferguson was in charge of the service at the home and later of the funeral. servce at Ballduff Presbyterian cemetery. The pallbearers were neighbors, Messrs. Willis Whiteside, Marwood, Lavergne and Charlie Chapman, Alvie Mitchell and Murray McCullough.

A profusion of very lovely flowers testified to the high esteem in which Mrs. Clarke was held and were borne to the graveside by a number of youthful flower-bearers residing in the immediate neighborhood.

Among those present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald of Clifford, Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDonald of Toronto, Mr. Will Patton of Toronto, Mr. Montgomery, Mrs. Thursy Clarke, Mrs. Fennel and son, all of Norwood, Dr. and Mrs. Clarke of Peterborough, Miss Bell, Peterborough, Mrs. Wm. Bannon, Kirby, Mr. Thomas Carscadden, Kendal, and many others.

Besides his sorrowing widow he leaves to mourn his loss one brother Charles of St. Catharines, Ont., and four sisters, Mrs. Thorne of Madoc, Mrs. H. McWha of Peterborough Mrs. Walker of Ashtabula, Ohio, and Mrs. Lawrence of Toronto.

FRANCE CALLS MORE MEN UP FOR HER ARMY

Taxes Jump 8 Per Cent. To Cover High Arms Bill

PARIS, May 3 (AP)—Increases in man power for all France's armed forces were ordered today by Premier Edouard Daladier, head of the "national defence" government now ruling the nation by decree.

An edict which became law this morning demands more soldiers, sailors and aviators, along with many new sacrifices from Frenchmen to enable the nation to support the cost of the modern machinery of war.

Decrees in the same series increased France's annual tax bill 4,000,000,000 francs ($120,000,000), levying a flat eight per cent increase in all direct and hidden taxes.

Announcement of the government's intention to enrol additional fighting men was contained in the premier's report to President Albert Lebrun on a decree opening a new credit of 4,712,500,000 francs (about $141,375,000) for national defence. Daladier said this would be used for strengthening the army by incorporating an unstated number of reserve officers into the regular service. Increasing the navy's man power from 69,500 to 72,500 men. Increasing the air force from 44,000 to 52,500 non-commissioned officers and men.

$8.44 per head, or $7.35 with offsetting interest from revenue-producing assets deducted. By 1930 the figure was $18.95, or $15.61 less interest receipts. Between 1930 and 1937 there was another increase of $4.23.

In the last seven years, debt charges had increased $2.23 and public welfare $3.48 per head, while education had been reduced 88 cents, highways 58 cents.

Provincial revenue, per caput, was now made up as follows: Taxation $16.68 liquor control $2.70; interest earnings $2.85; licenses and fees .85; Dominion subsidy .15; all other revenue .60, or a total of $23.83.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn yesterday laid before the commission the general policy of the government regarding Dominion-provincial affairs, taking a firm stand against any increase of the power of the Dominion government.

30 Per Cent. Above Quebec.

Dominion tax revenues in Ontario per head of population were about the same as in British Columbia, $50.37 and $47.57 respectivtly, 30 to 50 per cent. higher than Quebec, and more than double that of the Maritimes. They were 25 to 30 per cent. higher than the Prairies before the depression, and have been about double that of the Prairies for the last six years.

Dominion revenues collected and expenditures made in the five regions last year were as follows, with expenditures in brackets: Maritimes 6.2 per cent. (13 per cent.); Quebec 24.4 per cent. (22.9 per cent.); Ontario 45.3 (36.2); Prairies 15.3 (25.6); British Columbia 8.7 (8.2).

Deficits meant additions to the Government debt, burden of which in the long run was borne by each area in proportion to its contributions, Mr. Walter said. So the net result of Dominion Government finance has been to transfer $75,000,000 or $80,000,000 from Ontario for the benefit of the Maritimes and the Prairies.

In addition there were Dominion loans totalling $131,989,000 outstanding against the Prairies from the past seven years which would probably be written off—with Ontario bearing 45 per cent. of the load.

BUILD ADDITION TO PERCY SCHOOL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, May 3.—Ratepayers of S.S. No. 2 Percy at a meeting on Monday night decided upon building a $10,000 wing to their school and also add a water system at an estimated cost of $2,000. The school which has been teaching secondary school work for some years is making the extra expenditure in order that manual training and household economics may be taught and hence meet the government requirements. The decision to build was unanimous and work will commence as soon as school closes for the midsummer holiday.

so these Tyroleans are not included in Nazi plans for unifying the German race.

From the border to Rome millions of Italians took the day off to crowd into vantage points to watch Hitler pass, or to follow his journey by radio.

It is the third meeting between Mussolini and Hitler, and the Italian press welcomed the German head of state with lavish praise.

Third U.S. Political Party Formed

Greatest Menace To Business Said Class Antagonism

U. S. Leader Asks Two Or Three-Year Breather To Let Government And Industry Get Together

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP).—President George H. Davis of the United States Chamber of Commerce said today that class antagonism is the greatest menace to business.

"Experience is bringing the realization that we can not get very far by penalizing the good in order to restrain the bad," Davis said in a speech prepared for the chamber's annual convention. "Under the American system, organized as it is, held together by a mesh of reciprocal relationships, we all sink or swim together."

He criticized "the reformers, the theorists, the prophets of the new day," on whom he placed the blame for "the serious predicament we are in today." He made no direct comment, however, on governmental measures to regulate business.

Davis' address followed one given by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank of New York, who declared that President Roosevelt's new spending and credit expansion policies amount to "throwing away all safeguards, removing all brakes and heading for disaster."

The speech by Aldrich, one of 16 business leaders who recently pledged the President their aid in bringing government and business closer together, sounded the note of opposition to many government measures which other speakers also struck.

"Nothing is more needed at the present time than a prolonged period of quiet Aldrich said, "Not a three or six months' breathing spell, but a two or three years' breathing spell."

During such a period, he said, "government and business can consolidate, modify and assimilate what has already been done," and can also "study quietly the basis of further reform."

standards of municipal efficiency and the reduction in the burden of municipal administration," he held.

Real Estate Tax Too Heavy.

The government was keenly aware of the problems faced by the municipalities, especially of the inequitable tax burden resting on real estate. It had relieved the municipalities in the last few years of several services and education. Township road grants had been increased.

"In this year's budget, additional educational and tuberculosis grants were provided. The annual value of these additional benefits approximates $13,359,000. The province realizes the importance, almost the necessity, of increasing the scale of these grants."

Much more money would have to be spent on health services to bring adequate hospital service to the population outside the larger cities and in developing preventive work. Increased expenditure on agriculture was essential for improvement of standards of production and marketing.

While it faced these increases, the Province had reduced its per capita general expenditure on governmental overhead and further "modest economies" could be expected in this regard.

The province's present budget position was gratifying since there was a surplus of $9,300,000 in 1936-37 and in 1937-38 approximately $4,000,000. For 1938-39 it had budgeted for a surplus of $300,000.

Largest single source of revenue in the past three years was succession duties, and of the $47,000,000 collected $20,000,000 had been "arrears."

An 8 Million Drop?

"Under the present rates of tax it may be expected that when after another two years or so these arrears have been finally cleared up, the average annual receipts will tend to fall from the present $16,000,000 or $18,000,000 to a figure nearer $10,000,000 a year.

"Moreover the heavy rates of Dominion income tax must in the long run substantially reduce the number of very large estates from which the largest part of the receipts come."

He suggested the Dominion income tax should be reduced in the higher brackets. Canada would require new capital for modernization of its industry and capital would only be attracted into the country if conditions were attractive.

Analyzing the debt, he said investment in Hydro did not cost the government anything. Its return on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway over 23 years had been 1.97 per cent. That investment, however, had made possible a tremendous contribution to the economy of the whole of Canada by opening up Northern Ontario.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 3. — Wheat toppled 1⅝ cents a bushel here yesterday, outdoing previous four-year-low-price records, but rallied in the final dealings and almost overcame losses.

The downward plunge resulted from a transient brisk selling movement by traders nervously attempting to anticipate any surprise in big domestic crop estimates expected to-day. Something of an offset, however, was 3,181,000 bushels decrease of the United States wheat visible supply.

Late announcement was also made that 200,000 bushels of United States new crop winter wheat had been bought for shipment to Antwerp, and that vessel room was chartered yesterday for 260,000 bushels to go from Chicago to Buffalo. At the close Chicago wheat futures were ⅛ to ½ cent lower, compared with Saturday's finish.

Corn, rye, and oats largely followed wheat downturns. Corn receipts here totalled large, 729 cars, with exports only 250,000 bushels.

The Winnipeg Exchange was closed yesterday for Arbor Day.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

Bearish influences were virtually ignored by Winnipeg wheat future trades to-day and values firmed slightly after opening more than a cent down. Final quotations were ⅜ to 1⅛ cent lower, May $1.19¼, July $1.10⅝, and October 87⅜ cents.

Unexpected strength at Chicago caused short-covering which steadied prices, despite dearth in export demand, favorable weather in North American wheat-growing areas and bearish United States winter wheat crop estimates.

Sharp setback in premium for No. 1 Northern wheat and good-sized deliveries on May contracts failed to encourage liquidation.

NAZIS TO BE TOLD BRITAIN WILL AID IN SAVING CZECHS

LONDON, May 3 (C.P.).—Havas News Agency last night said it is understood Great Britain plans to impress upon Germany that she would be virtually constrained to go to the aid of France should the latter undertake to protect Czechoslovakia against flagrant Reich intervention.

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax was believed to have outlined the representation during a conference with Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovak Minister to London, said Havas, and is reported to have told Masaryk that Britain hoped Czechoslovakia would go the limit under its constitution to extend concessions to the Sudeten German minority.

The representations, according to Havas' information, will conform both with the Anglo-French agreement reached last week and with Prime Minister Chamberlain's announced disavowal of any additional British obligations in Central Europe.

It was understood Ambassador Nevile Henderson will await Chancellor Hitler's return from Italy before defining Britain's stand regarding Czechoslovakia, Havas added.

MORE ABOUT—
BRITISH EMPIRE

ience which he said was a compliment from a community that was "as discriminating as Peterborough had the right to be," Mr. McGeer paid an eloquent tribute to the success that had up to the present been scored by British diplomacy in avoiding a world conflagration. In many quarters—some of whom should know better—were heard statements that the sacrifices of the last great war were made in vain. "I wonder," said Mr. McGeer, "as I look upon the world as it is today what the conditions would be now if that determination to conquer the world by military force had not been met successfully then."

I wonder, too, what would be the situation now if the patient, tolerant and wise leadership Britain has been able to offer in recent years had not been available."

Our Greatest Heritage.

"We cannot help but feel a real sense of pride that in our political institutions our light of freedom flows not only from the Magna Carta but from the parliamentary institutions that have developed since that document and bill of personal freedom was written.

Perhaps our greatest heritage is the knowledge that in conducting our public affairs in our councils, our legislative assemblies and our parliament we can dispute together without losing our friendship or our respect for each other's opinions."

Mr. McGeer stressed the tremendous responsibility that had been placed on British statesmanship by the various developments in Europe and throughout the world and pointed out how successful in the main had been that statesmanship in minimizing trouble.

"We sit back here in Canada," said the speaker, "and sometimes appear very little concerned about that great responsibility I wonder what our feelings would be were we to learn that some disaster had happened to take away the power that Great Britain has through her fleet of retaining some respect for international law."

Mr. McGeer referred to the accord between the United States, Great Britain and France, seeing in that relationship something upon which the world could depend for some measure of security.

Canada, he said, had a part and place in the situation greater than many Canadians realized, for Canada was a unique product of the British Empire. The Fathers of Canada had not only established a Dominion but had provided it with a constitution under which the people who had come from France could live in peace and harmony with the folk who came from the British Isles.

What Canada Has Proven.

Canadians had proven that it was possible for two peoples of different races, languages and religions can join together and build a country in the spirit of good-will. "And then," said Mr. McGeer, "we have gone just a little further and extended that spirit to the neighbors to the south of us, proving that two nations can construct a goodwill partnership to build a continent together."

In addition to the sentimental side of our responsibility to the Empire there was a practical side, and in this regard the speaker pointed out that Canada's favorable trade balance over recent years, thanks to the trade that had been done with Empire countries, had been huge. "When we trade with the world," said Mr. McGeer, "we do not trade on a three-mile limit basis. When people talk of defending Canada merely to the three-mile limit, let us remember that the British Empire is not a three-mile limit proposition but a world proposition. We should never forget that we cannot be of the British Empire without being in it."

In the second part of his address Mr. McGeer argued for a greater development of Canada's tourist trade. He prefaced that appeal by attacking the theory so often advanced that invention was responsible for unemployment, pointing out that the harm caused in that respect by labor-saving machinery had been far more than made up by labor-creating machinery, and in that connection he instanced the automobile.

Tourist Trade Essential.

Development of tourist trade was essential to Canada, Mr. McGeer said, as a measure of economic defence because thousands of Canadians were attracted to the south each year by the various attractions the United States had to offer, and it was necessary that at least as many American dollars should be spent by United States visitors in Canada as there were Canadian dollars spent in the United States by Canadians. Mr. McGeer urged the construction of better roads throughout Canada, the providing of proper accommodation for tourists, and the beautifying of Canadian cities. As to the question of where the money was to come from, he read a bank statement to the effect that last year tourists visiting Canada had spent $300,000,000, and he declared that if such a result could be obtained with the existing handicaps of bad roads and inadequate accommodation it should be possible with the improvements outlined to increase that total to at least $500,000,000 a year. At present, he said, Canada was twenty-five years behind the labor-creating opportunities that the automobile had developed and was losing at least twice the value of the Canadian gold production in not taking full advantage of tourist trade possibilities.

Canada Is Just Begun.

"Canada is not finished—she's just begun," said Mr. McGeer as he urged that instead of shipping gold out of the country, it should be retained here as a basis for creating the medium of exchange by which the available men and brains and material in this country could be utilized in building improved road systems that would bring rich dividends in the form of increased tourist trade.

J. J. Duffus, M.P., moved a vote of thanks to Mr. McGeer, pointing out that it was the fourth address the member for Vancouver-Burrard had given in Peterborough recently, and expressing the hope that he might be heard again in the near future.

The motion was seconded by W. R. Morris, who suggested that if he had any influence with Canada's Prime Minister he would recommend that a Ministry of Tourist Trade might be set up and that the portfolio should be assigned to Mr. McGeer.

Hitler To Bid For Adriatic Outlet

Returning Il Duce's visit to Berlin, Chancellor Hitler, with an entourage of high German state dignitaries and military advisers, are en route to Rome. Political observers are of the opinion that when Hitler arrives in Rome he will consult with Mussolini regarding a German outlet to the Adriatic sea. Trieste, which Italy formerly permitted Austria to use, might suit Hitler's purpose but there is considerable doubt that Italy would willingly give the seaport to the Nazis. Fiume is another likely outlet, but through it Italy has a valuable trade connection with Hungary. Both cities are shown on the ABOVE cap.

CITY COUNCIL IS RAPIDLY BECOMING TREE CONSCIOUS

Alderman Stocker is now trademarking his handiwork.

"When you see a young tree supported with a green stake, you know it was planted by the parks committee," said the chairman of the committee at Monday night's meeting of the council.

The whole council is definitely "tree conscious," and on Alderman Gordon's motion, seconded by Alderman Bradburn, a special committee composed of Alderman Stocker, Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Cotton and Dutton and City Engineer Parsons, was authorized to make a thorough survey of Peterborough's street trees.

It wasn't a long or involved discussion, this reference to the city's trees, but it was marked by a compact and eloquent plea by Alderman Dutton to provide now for the future beauty of Peterborough not only by planting a tree for a tree, when removals are necessary, but to go beyond that equalizing and stationary plan with a constructive policy of planting additional trees.

Row On Lansdowne Street

Alderman Stocker informed the council that his committee had just planted a row of strong and well advanced trees from a Bowmanville nursery along the south side of Lansdowne street from Lock to Park street. Each of these trees has a supporting tall green-painted stake, with a broad and deep base of rich soil carried from the Stocker mulch piles. And that is only part of the Parks Committee's tree planting activities. Those planted on Lansdowne street cost $1.25 each, but if bought retail the cost would have been nearer $5, Ald. Stocker said.

Alderman Cotton said he had recently brought 100,000 trees to Peterborough in one truck load, suggesting the immaturity of trees that came from government nurseries. They were broadly scorned by Alderman Stocker, but Mayor Hamilton remarked that with a little patience and protection the smaller trees might develop into successful planting as was shown by the rewarding growth in what is called Hydro Park at the head of Water street, the little park conceived by Roland Denne when he was mayor.

Ald. Stocker assured Ald. McIntyre that the sub-committee would do nothing more at the outset than mark trees which should be removed, and that nothing unnecessary would be done.

STINSON FAMILY RECEIVE GIFTS FAREWELL PARTY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, May 3. — A large gathering of the members of Trinity United Church gathered on Thursday evening to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stinson and little daughter Helen and Mrs. Bradburn prior to their departure to their new home in Warkworth.

The pastor, Rev. F. G. MacTavish, was chairman, and the following program was enjoyed: The High Schol quartette, Misses Jean Laidly, Jean MacTavish, Messrs. Stewart; solo by Mrs. E. Cornell; reading, Mrs. H. McPhee; instrumental by Miss Race; vocal duet by Miss Roberta Deyell and Jean MacTavish.

At this juncture the honored guests of the evening were invited to the platform, and Mrs. H. Lamb read an address.

Mrs. Rea and Mrs. Connell presented Mr. and Mrs. Stinson with a silver relish dish, Mrs. Bradburn a pearl necklace, little Miss Helen a pen and pencil set.

Mr. Stinson replied on behalf of his family, thanking his friends for their many kindnesses and thoughtfulness during his years in Omemee.

Words of appreciation for the splendid help which Mr. and Mrs. Stinson and Mrs. Bradburn have given to their church were voiced by Mrs. S. Connell, president of the W.M.S.; Mrs. Rice, president of the W.A.; Mr. Lamb, superintendent of the Sunday School; Mr. Race on behalf of the Stewards, and Mr. Post for the Session.

Lunch was then served and a social time spent, the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stinson and Mrs. Bradburn wishing them years of health and prosperity in their new home.

be allowed," he said, "but I think the motion is too drastic. I don't want to see anybody prosecuted for having these games in their possession. I think there is a better way than that."

"You can get Mr. Huycke's opinion right now," Alderman Gordon replied. "He knows there was a decision given by the Court of Appeal on a Kingston test case."

A Moral Issue.

Rev. Mr. Parr introduced the deputation and was followed by Rev. Mr. Zufelt, who discussed the moral aspect on the pin and ball devices. Kingston Council had banned them at the request of the Ministerial Association and other citizens.

"I learned this evening there is an age limit to those persons who may use these machines," Rev. Mr. Zufelt said, "and I know the age limit is not strictly observed in this city. One minister complained that boys of his Sunday School spent on such machines the money given to them for Sunday School. This complaint was not because of any sense of loss of church finances, but because he felt that a serious moral question was at stake."

The Church was endeavoring to teach boys the sense of obligation and co-operation with God, but when they wasted on gambling machines that which was entrusted to them it was not to be wondered that the Ministerial Association should protest to the City Fathers. Rev. Mr. Zufelt suggested that the pin games might be doing more harm than the Sunday School might offset. Assuming that the regulation was supposed to exclude children, the fact was that the evil of gambling went beyond adults down to the children. Pay cheques tossed away on pin boards, families deprived of money that was needed in the homes, were instances which were known to the members of the Association.

"We believe that in doing away with these machines the Council will be doing a moral good that far exceeds any worth they may be to the city in the licence money collected from them," Rev. Mr. Zufelt continued. He understood that the machines could be adjusted to increase the improbability of the player winning, and that alone he regarded as a great wrong against persons who might innocently play them. In granting licences for these games the city was making itself a partner in the business.

The Legal Aspect.

Rev. Dr. Barr briefly reviewed the legal aspect of the pin game question. From his inquiries he had learned that there were two types of machines in the city. According to the city's by-law one type was legal, but because there was some small element of skill in that case it was difficult to enforce any by-law applying to the second type. Dr. Barr said that juvenile delinquency was a serious problem. In London it had increased 50 per cent. last year as compared with 1935. The congregation of boys in places where pin games were kept tended to encourage the gang spirit among 'teenage boys. Causes of delinquency were lack of parental control and the accessibility of places, rendezvous, for boys to congregate and play at gambling machines.

A Windsor magistrate said recently that environment was the main factor contributing to juvenile delinquency, and one objectionable environment was the shops and stores and restaurants and such places where gambling machines could be used by boys of the 'teenage group. Rev. Dr. Barr said the Council could abolish the pin games altogether or increase the fee to such an extent that only those who could afford to would play them. Owen Sound had made the fee $1,000 but no licence had been taken out at that figure. It would be in the best interest of the city to-day and of the future if the Council would take a stand to do without these things. A few persons might be getting some reward out of them, "but I believe they, too, would be willing to forego the revenue for the good that would result to the community."

Why The Haste?

Detective James Watson of the Stolen Car division of Toronto Police Force, was instantly killed on a road twelve miles north of Brampton. The detective had been sent to Mt. Forest to recover an automobile stolen in Toronto. On the way back he had gone through Orangeville, where he had picked up one young man from Guelph and another from St. Catharines, and was taking them back to Toronto with him.

The Toronto detective is reported to have been driving his car at between 90 and 92 miles an hour when he came to a turn in the road which he was unable to make. He piled into an iron bridge structure. The driver was instantly killed but the other two in the car escaped. First report said the detective had recognized another stolen car on the road and was trying to overtake it, but word sent out later says this is not so, and that of course leaves one wondering why he was driving at from 90 to 92 miles per hour.

Nor is it made clear whether the two men he had in the car with him were under arrest or detention by the officer. One would take it for granted they were as an officer is not given to the habit of picking up hitch hikers when out on duty. No matter under what circumstances the two men were in the officer's car the driver was showing little regard for their safety or for his own. That particular road on which he was driving, has in many places as many turns as there are between Peterborough and Bewdley. One regrets exceedingly to hear of a good officer being killed in such a way, but it seems there is a good deal which should be told to make it clear just what was taking place. The man who could tell the entire story is dead.

Bumpers And Blossoms

Of course this paper is in favor of people going places to see things. The eye is probably the best teacher we have. There was one gentleman in the office this morning who had gone with his family over the week-end to see the peach blossoms in Niagara district, and he assured us that when he closed his eyes at night to sleep he could see nothing but the rear bumpers of cars ahead of him. He concluded there were too many cars at the same place at the same time.

Reports from Grimsby say there were a great many autos on the roads in that district to see the annual display of fruit blossoms. The traffic was not as heavy as it has been on other occasions. The peak was reached on Labor Day of 1929 when cars were passing at the rate of 2,700 per hour. This year during the blossom-time traffic cars were counted 1,656 per hour, which means about 27 each minute. And of course that means driving in a long parade at a slow rate of speed, and watching always to see what the car ahead is going to do. There would probably be just as many cars passing in the other direction. Other occupants of a car travelling in such surroundings might see blossoms and branches and the beauty of nature in general, but the driver might be pardoned if on returning he felt that he had become somewhat of an expert in keeping a few feet or inches removed from the rear bumper of the car ahead.

Power Of Money

There is power in money. It can attract people to almost any section of the world; it can cause almost any number of people on occasion to claim relationship to the person who has it. When W. J. Wright, a Toronto plumber, died some months ago it was found he had left $12,500 in his will for a child actress he saw in an Indiana theatre more than 20 years ago.

Then the movement started. Relatives are contesting the will and pronouncement will have to be made in Osgoode Hall stating that the will in that particular clause is valid. Already there are five persons who claim to have been the child actress which Mr. Wright had seen in an Indiana theatre 20 years ago. These claimants live in Toronto, Wingham, Ont., Dearbro, Mich., Newark, N.J., and in Toledo, Ohio. Each one is the child actress referred to, and of that each is certain as $12,500 can be.

Each claimant we understand has retained counsel to present claims and sift and strengthen proof of contention and the right to participate. So if the Toronto plumber did nothing else he has thrown a bit of business in the way of the lawyers.

From Texas To Ontario

On March 5 there was a snowfall over a good section of the province, and after the snow was through it was noticed there was a brown color to it. It was particularly so in the district around Huntsville and Ottawa. Then it was that the wise men started making investigation. Bacteriologists from the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa took samples in open country which had previously been covered with clean white snow, and in this brown snow found a count of 4,370,000 organisms in a gram of deposit.

What had happened? A low pressure area over Arizona and Texas on March 3 and 4 reached Michigan and Ontario by March, 5. The dust-laden current travelling at high altitude, encountered cold air moving west. The condensation to snow brought down the particles of dust.

We admit there is much in this we do not understand. Whether 4,370,000 organisms in a gram of deposit is too many or too few we have not determined, but at first glance it seems to be quite sufficient, and probably a trifle crowded for travelling such a distance. Likewise there is something mysterious always about areas of low pressure. But the gist of the whole thing is that in that movement dust from Texas and Arizona was whipped up high in the air and a day or so later made a perfectly peaceful landing around Ottawa and Huntsville, some 2,000 miles distant. That in itself would seem to indicate that the velocity of currents in the upper air must be great indeed.

And there is nothing we can do about it. If the wind cares to blow at a time of low pressure in Texas or Arizona and the organisms from the soil are content to be picked up and go along with it and take up their residence in this desirable province we have not been made a party to it. The travellers in the air did not encounter officers at the international border. They just came along and came down according to rules which we cannot govern. It's interesting though to consider bits of stuff being whipped up in Texas and coming to land in Ontario.

There Is No Other Way

Premier Hepburn in appearing before the Rowell Commission dealt at length with affairs in the Canadian West. He did not care for all the demands which had been previously placed before the Commission by the West because he saw in it a method by which the East was going to be called upon to pay for the misfortunes of the West. It is probably correct enough to say that something of that sort is taking place now. There are millions of dollars going to the West, particularly Saskatchewan; millions for relief and more millions annually for seed and supplies to operate tractors. All that is provided by the Federal government because the provincial credit of the West is not sufficient to raise the money. When the Dominion government furnished the cash then it became a matter for the Dominion government to pay the charges at least. Ontario and Quebec are the largest contributors of taxation to the consolidated revenue fund at Ottawa, and for that reason they are looked upon as being the proper sections to provide most of the required cash. Based on that theory Ontario and Quebec have been doing much to carry the West since crop failures stripped the people there of their ability to live by their own efforts.

There was a time in the history of the West when the factories of the East were glad enough to have the business which was coming from that section. If that same volume of trade were coming today it is not likely there would be much unemployment in Ontario or Quebec. If the drought spell is broken in the West we believe much of that same sort of business will come again and the Eastern section of Canada will reap the benefit.

There is a hard and practical way of looking at the situation which cannot be well ignored. Just this: The people who are on the land in Saskatchewan today and who are hard pressed by reason of the misfortune which has come upon them must continue to live. Whether they have been there a long time or a short time does not alter the fact that they are there. And being where they are they are utterly dependent on outside assistance. Their own government has not funds because it can take nothing from people who have nothing, and for that reason they must depend on the central government at Ottawa which in turn has at its disposal the credit of the Dominion. We do not see any other way out.

Paying Taxes

With the coming of the month of May there is reason why people should be wearing a look of relief if not happiness. The income tax papers have to be forwarded by the last day of April, and we are sure there are few who do not get the matter attended to by that date. When one gazes upon the voluminous sheets on which he has to work it is borne in upon him that he is indeed under the shadow of law and its penalties. There looks straight out at him the warning that if he is not punctual he may be fined; if he is not honest he may be cast into prison.

It is on such an occasion that man must go forth alone to bare the record of the year to the official gaze of those who sit at the receipt of customs. At other times of the year he may move with the crowd or parade with the multitude, but when he faces his income tax form he is as one stripped of human companionship and he must add and subtract and compute and cogitate—and do it alone.

He may find some cold satisfaction in knowing that thousands of others are doing the same thing at the same time. The tithes which he submits may be but a trickle in the great tide of taxation; he may be but a small cog in a great machine, but it is actually a very great machine. Since income tax was first levied in the year of 1919 the people of the Dominion have contributed $1,000,000,000 and more. Spell it out to make it more impressive—over one billion dollars. It all comes under the general heading of war tax, but it hasn't paid for the war at all nor has it reduced our public debt because it is much greater today than it was before the income tax payers started operating in 1919. So if there is any satisfaction at all in a man knowing he has helped donate over a billion dollars to his government then he should make the most of it. But why a war tax of that size has not helped to decrease the war debt is something we do not know. Nor have we ever seen adequate explanation on that point.

The taxpayer in Britains would probably consider we have been dealt with mildly. Since the new taxes became operative there it has been stated that a man with a salary of $2,500, a wife and two children, and with a $4,000 home out in the suburbs, works two full months of the year in order to pay his taxes to the government.

A summary looks like this:

Annual income tax $50; then another $60 on the rated value of his home; local government authorities receive $125., His tea is taxed 16 cents per pound. He pays $2.50 as we do for the fun of owning a wireless set.

If he eats prunes he pays 20 per cent. import duty; on sugar he pays one-twelfth to his government. His loaf of bread carries a 2 cents tax to aid the British farmer. If at noon he desires beer he pays 16 cents for a pint and half that amount goes to the government. If he is minded to indulge in Scotch whiskey at $3.20 a short quart he knows he is paying $2 to the government. If he has a car it is likely one of those small affairs of 10 horse-power, and for the privilege of ownership he hands out $37.50 per year and $1.25 for a license, and for the joy of operation he hands out 18 cents to his government every time he purchases a gallon of petrol. If he smokes a pipe he pays 24 cents for an ounce of tobacco and 14 cents belongs to the government.

No country has a monopoly in tax paying. We seem geared to an odd driving power at the moment and the power which makes us go is fear of what some other nation plans to do.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It looks as if it would be advisable for deputations calling upon Premier Hepburn to take the precaution of equipping themselves with a flag of truce.

Mr. Pouliot wants the Purvis report on unemployment tossed out with the garbage. Possibly he feels that would be better than allowing it to gather dust in a pigeonhole.

It is said Ottawa is preparing to spend $40,000,000 on unemployment relief. Unfortunately there seems to be need for huge expenditures unless the municipalities are all to go bankrupt.

The woman who explained her action in cutting through a funeral cortege on the ground that she was hurrying to attend sick canaries deserved to get off because of the novelty of her excuse.

The Duchess of Athol has resigned as whip of the British Conservative party. The government, as we see it, however, has no intention of following her example.

Other things may fold up in time of recession but the civil service goes gaily marching on. There are 1,000 more government employees in Ottawa now than three years ago.

Relief workers in the United States have been told officially that they are free to vote as they like. There should be no need of making any such statement; it should be taken for granted.

The extent to which Canadians have changed their method of living is shown by figures from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. In 1871 we had 81 per cent. of our population living on the land. The 1931 census showed 31 per cent. of our people actually living on the farm.

DICTATORS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Dictators wear a heavy yoke, because they never laugh or joke, nor grin from ear to ear; when they move out with steady step, the jaw is always firmly set, and they look so severe.

¶ And they must rule with hand of steel, and have some iron within the heel, no matter where they turn; they can't slump down or sit at ease, but stiffen at the joints and knees, and look alarming stern.

¶ Dictators meet a friend some time, but they can't whack him on the spine, like other people do; they always must appear so mad, they can't unlax and seem half glad, they must look black and blue.

¶ I would not want a job like that, dictator with a fancy hat, with braid upon my chest; for strutting forth so mad and straight, would make me chant a hymn of hate, I'd long to sit and rest.

¶ Dictators can't be much afraid, of anything that's ever made, nor can they break and run; I know I'd be afraid of foes, they might turn bitter with their woes—and shoot me with a gun.

On Relief But . . . Owned a Trailer

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. WARREN: Well, let us take Ottawa. How is it that young men from the counties around Ottawa can come right in from the farms and pick up jobs here in the summer? Why is it that girls from the counties around Ottawa can come in and get jobs any time they want, at good pay? Go into the country in the Ottawa valley and look for young men who cannot get a job. I do not know where they are. Our farm boys can get jobs anywhere in the country—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. WARREN: Well, take my own riding. I was elected in the spring of last year, and any time I visited Pembroke after my election I would meet numbers of men supposed to be unemployed looking for jobs. But I could go out through the farming districts and never hear a word of unemployment. Our boys go out and find their own jobs, and our girls do the same. I met two girls on the train a couple of weeks ago, and I knew as soon as I saw them that they must have come from Renfrew county; they do not grow girls like that in the cities. They told me they come in here in the fall after working on the farm in the summer and can choose jobs out of seven or eight offered and go to work immediately at $35 a month with board and lodging. I could take you to one restaurant in the city where three sisters from one of the farms out here in Russell county are working at good pay; at least when they come out of the door you see them dolled up in fine fur coats.

If you want me to I can tell you just why you have so many young people asking for relief in the cities. Here is an example. I mentioned the two girls I met on the train, who were working in the city. One of them had to go home for Christmas. Her mistress was a very fine woman to work for, and she went to a family on relief in the city where there was a girl eighteen or twenty years of age, and offered that girl $1.50 a day to come and stay with her during those two weeks. The girl came. She was no good but the woman wanted her to stay anyway. She would not stay; she went back on relief. These young people from the farms get jobs because they are not only willing to work; they are eager to work. They attack their work with eagerness, and because they have that ambition they can come right in and take jobs from under the noses of people living in cities and towns.

An hon. MEMBER: They must be Liberals.

Mr. WARREN: They are good people, anyway. I think it is a godsend to men or women to have been brought up on a farm where they learned how to work without depending on the government to support them. That is one of the curses of the situation we are drifting into; we are sending out propaganda all over the country getting people to think that the federal government should take charge of all their worries, instead of educating our people to use their own initiative to make a living.

Mr. LANDERYOU: Where can they get work?

Mr. WARREN: How do our boys get work? They just drift away and get jobs anywhere they want them. I can tell you that as far as North Renfrew is concerned there was not an employable unemployed man getting relief for the last six months of last year.

Mr. LANDERYOU: That is a small section of Canada.

Mr. WARREN: Perhaps it is, but when will we ever get rid of relief? The suggestion is that the federal government ought to assume the responsibility, and we had the mayors of the cities getting together and insisting that the federal government take over all this burden of relief. When will we ever get rid of it? Take all the responsibility off the municipalities and you will have relief forever. In the township in which I live, and in most of the townships in North Renfrew, we never went on relief; we were afraid to start it because we thought we might never get it stopped. There were times when we could have put a third of the township on relief if we had wished; they were just as deserving as a great many people on relief, but we did not do it, and we pulled through. If we ran across needy cases we looked after them out of our township funds, rather than have the reputation of going on relief, and I could tell you of villages that did the same thing. I remember one case in particular, where we fought for a year or two to keep a certain family off relief. Finally the man's house was burned down and he flitted away; but before he flitted away he bought a brand new Ford car to go away with. Just recently that man went through our municipality with a trailer behind his car and his wife sitting at the table all dolled up with a nice new permanent, doing fancywork. Just the other day, however, I received the greatest shock of my life when, as reeve of Wilberforce township, I received a bill charging us with $192 for relief for this man, who had drifted into a city or town where he had been able to pull the wool over the eyes of the authorities. He was a young man, able to do any kind of work.

SIR WILFRID SAID.

(A. R. Ford in London Free Press)

WHEN THE writer was a member of the Press Gallery at Ottawa we recall asking Sir Wilfrid Laurier at one time whether it was true that the calibre of the members in the early parliaments were superior to those of that day.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied, "Yes".

We asked him "Why?" Here is his reply:

"In the early days of Canada business was on a small scale. The rewards of commerce were comparatively meagre. The chief ideal of an ambitious youth lay in politics and law. The ablest men of the country sought a political career. Today, on the other hand, with the development of big business the opportunities in commerce and finance are such, the rewards are so great, that few young men want to risk a political career with the uncertainties of public life."

THAT'S RIGHT

"And the boss said to me, 'You'll get on, young lady; you're so full of push.'" —Humorist.

Thinks Little of Democracy.

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR,—WHAT is a Democrat?

When everybody claims to be a Democrat and hastens to fasten this blanket label to all kinds of political revelations, it might be worth our while to estimate the value of the label even before examining the contents of the package.

Demosthenes was the greatest democrat who ever lived—and the world's champion humbug. He seribusly interfered with both Philip and Alexander in their attempts to create a united force. If Alexander had lived a little longer, Demosthenes would have received his just reward, a good dose of castor oil or hemlock, for his mendacious attempts to create discord in a race sorely in need of unity to repel Persian attacks.

Cheer leaders may have their uses in entertaining a stationary crowd bent on amusement, but Cromwell certainly made mincemeat of the northern clans who allowed their cheer leaders, the ministers, to egg them on from the ineffectual aloofness of neighboring hills. Cromwell achieved his success by making the talkers fight, making the fighters effecient propagandists for his cause, and making both obey orders when it came to a scrap. Discipline, not democracy, made Cromwell supreme.

The paralytic, do-nothing democracy, which sits on large quantities of wealth while millions go on short rations, is destructive. America will see a crop curtailment of twenty per cent. next year, while two hundred million Chinese live on millet and cannot afford even rice.

No wonder the Fascist groups thrust forward, when they observe a choice collection of democratic Powers conspiring to retain the status quo which means beefsteak for ever in America and millet for ever for the Chinese. Democracy under these conditions means decadence, and a united front mere effrontery for drifting downhill. Mr. Hoover at least gave his surplus wheat to the Belgians; but today the continent burns and destroys surpluses of cotton, coffee, wheat, etc. because there is no "profit". These same surpluses might strengthen the backbone of the Chinese and help them thrust onward into an industrialized comfort.

A few people have seen through this democratic camouflage of the money god — Mammon. The Germans are willing to discipline themselves towards a given objective. This objective is a new occidentalism. In it, they hope, men will have economic security, and a legal claim on society for a decent standard of living. In return they will have to work. This system will produce a hierarchy, or group of leaders, chosen by merit and accomplishment, who will replace the old hereditary feudal and capitalistic leaders. But the process should be done constructively, not destructively. Russia "bumped off" too many of the intelligenzia technicians and is now paying for it by having a real shortage of men capable of running industry. Germany "bumped off" too many working class leaders of merit, thus making contact between the old feudalism and the new workers still largely a matter of deaf and dumb sign language.

"HOMO".

Fear of Losing Their Jobs.

(From the Chicago Daily News)

THE AMERICAN people are in a mood that would welcome a revival of the old-time religion of work. Millions of them would be willing gladly to trade the chance of a government pension in the remote future for the certainty of a private job in the immediate present. For six years the New Deal has fed them on wind. The longer they have snuffed it up, the emptier they have felt. They have grasped at the boon-doggling shadows in the river of WPA and have been bitterly disillusioned. At the end of six years of hoping for a Roosevelt recovery they have a Roosevelt recession, and no remedy is offered by the White House mahatma but larger doses of the fatal New Deal formulae—mummery without magic.

The American people, if given the chance, are ready to work out their own salvation, and with much less of fear and trembling than they have endured under the bungling paternalism of the Great White Father in Washington. The emphasis must be renewed on the old fundamental of work. With unemployment increasing in commerce and industry, and tax-eating bureaucrats multiplying in political jogs, it is time to center thought and energy on the private job.

In the American mind the shibboleth of social security in a millennial age has lost its lure and luster; the possibility of individual security in a work-a-day world far outshines it as a goal for effort. Two young office women sat on high stools at a lunch counter. There was none of the usual persiflage passing between them. The talk was of the job.

"Suspense is eating me," said one. "The office may close at the end of the month. Where will I be then, or the rest of the gang?"

"Well, nothing is definitely settled with us, either," said her companion. "But the boss is worried. We all know the ax is going to fall somewhere. Say, Roosevelt seems to be just muddled. He's repeating his tricks and going in circles, and we aren't getting anywhere."

That is a typical conversation in any office. Jobs, jobs, jobs — the security of those who have them, the hope of those who lack them, and no assurance of retaining or regaining them in the New Deal, bankrupt itself in ideas, and threatening the financial bankruptcy of the nation.

Commerce and industry and clear-visioned, courageous political leadership must unite their forces to meet this emergency. They must agree on a program for common action to revive the old-time religion of work. They must agree on the essentials required to make the jobs secure for those who hold them, and available for the idle who are eager to work. They must demand emancipation from ideologies and laws that hamper the creation of jobs. They must liberate the energies that the New Deal is strangling; liberate the wealth that its debts and taxes hold in thrall; set America free, once the land of jobs and opportunity, to be itself again—that is all that is necessary. Give us a real revival of the old-time religion of work.

BACK TO SCHOOL.

(Lethbridge Herald)

THERE ARE a lot of school teachers in the Alberta Legislature. In our opinion some of them ought to go back to school for a course in mathematics. Perhaps then they wouldn't be taken in by the astronomical figures of the Social Credit board which says that every Albertan is worth $300,000 in resources and should have an income of $6,000 a year.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics is a fairly conservative organization, used to getting the hard facts and facing them. The Bureau tells us in the Canada Year Book that the capital wealth of the whole of the Dominion of Canada is some $31,000,000,000. But Mr. MacLachlan and his associates on the Alberta Social Credit board tell us that the capital wealth of Alberta is $231,000,000,000.

Evidently the old axiom has been changed to meet the Social Credit ideology, and today the part is greater than the whole by a mere two hundred billions of dollars.

DICTATORSHIP!

(Detroit Free Press)

A PICTURE sent out recently from Italy by a news service and printed in this country tells far more than it was intended to reveal.

It is a snapshot taken while Signor Mussolini was in the act of giving a posthumously awarded medal to the widow of an Italian flier killed in Spain.

The widow, with Heaven knows what sorrow tearing her heart, stands before Il Duce in deep mourning. Her head is enveloped in a black veil, and her shoulders are bent in an attitude of hopelessness.

The dead man is at least quiet in his grave, but she has been dragged out, willy nilly, to be made part of a mock heroic show, and be offered a meaningless bauble in lieu of a husband butchered for the furtherance of a blood thirsty ambition.

The poor woman does not even dare refuse the gift extended to her by the hand of the man responsible for her husband's destruction.

Not even those he leaves behind after paying the final price of slavery are protected from heartless exploitation.

No wonder Patrick Henry said with passion, "As for me, give me liberty or give me death."

PROGRESS.

(New York World-Telegram)

DIGGING INTO an Indian burial mound in western Kentucky, Mrs. Blanche B. King, an ethnologist, has found the skeleton of a prehistoric man surrounded by 625 large beads and five axes of solid copper.

We smile as we think of the simple savage who must have spent most of his lifetime accumulating that store of copper from the distant mines near Lake Superior, in order to have it withdrawn from use and buried with him. Our wisdom is so much greater than his. What we have gathered from all the world and buried under concrete and steel in the Kentucky hills is $12,800,000,000 worth of solid gold.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

WHO HATH believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? For he shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, there is no beauty tht we should desire him. He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. . . . He was taken from prison and from judgment: and who shall declare his generation? for he was cut off out of the land of the living: for the transgression of my people was he stricken. . . . He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities. Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death: and he was numbered with the transgressors: and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.—Isa. 53, 1-5, 8, 11, 12.

To The Editor

RELIEF GARDENS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: It is nothing short of a crime that the Relief Committee consisting of the whole council should not carry on the relief gardens. The late A. B. Cunningham performed a splendid community service by his self-sacrificing and strenuous work in organizing and carrying out the plan of relief gardens. They served both a moral and a material purpose. On the first hand they provided occupation for men who would otherwise have been idle and in which the return was to a great extent proportionate to the work suspended upon them. On the material side they provided for the industrious a substantial addition to a quite inadequate relief food allowance.

The council hands out money grants to more or less unimportant organizations who wish to hold conventions here. If the parties concerned are so anxious to get there conditions—and such honor as accrues to them thereby they should stand on their own feet financially, without asking for — and getting crutches in the form of grants of public money which could be better spent in providing gardens for the unfortunate.

The money granted in this way could have financed the relief gardens and our own citizens could have reaped the benefit, but as usual, it is a case of "Vae Victis."

Yours truly,
A RELIEF GARDENER.

LAKEFIELD WOMAN IS GUEST SPEAKER AT W.A. SERVICE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, May 3.—"If I were to take a text this morning, it would be 'Help those women who labored with me in the gospel,' because there is a word here to the men, giving them a share in this missionary work of the women of the church." These were the introductory remarks of Mrs. W. W. Yale of Lakefield, guest speaker on Sunday morning for the special thankoffering service annually observed at this season by the Auxiliary, Circle and Mission Band of St. Andrew's United Church.

Drawing a picture of the change in the status of womanhood from Old Testament times to those of the New, due to the coming and teaching of Christ, the speaker went on to state that two-thirds of the membership of the Protestant church is made up of women, "and there could be no efficiency in any organization that would gag or bind two-thirds of its members." "Go ye into all the world" is a command we have not yet nearly fulfilled, but nearly all the world has come to us," and after stressing the numbers and location of non-Anglo Saxons in Canada, the speaker urged the folly of the somewhat general superiority-complex assumed by Canadians, and the very fine contribution that these foreign-born have made, and are capable of making to our national life.

Recognizing Human Touch

The 'Community Friendship Department' has replaced what was termed the 'Strangers' Secretary' in the women's missionary organization, recognizing that the human touch is what is needed. Jochebed and Miriam, in their protection of the baby Moses, were used as examples of the co-operation between mothers and daughters, as exemplified by the Auxiliaries and the Circles, and the importance of the instruction being given boys and girls in the mission bands was stressed. In closing, Mrs. Yale suggested "Jesus an ideal in service and daily living.

The thankoffering was taken up by Circle members: Jean Fisher, sus first, others second, myself last," Mary Dawson, Lenora Davis, and Della Mae Sisco; the children of the mission band sang, "When Mothers of Salem," and the choir gave the anthem, "The Ninety and Nine." The service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, who closed with the benediction.

Lodge Attends Church

Millbrook Lodge, No. 308, I.O.O.F. attended divine worship at St. Andrew's Church at 7.30 p.m., with sixty or more Oddfellows marching in the parade, headed by the Community Band, from the Lodge Hall to the place of worship.

Rev. A. L. Sisco, who is himself a member of the Order, delivered a constructive message, relative to the principles of Oddfellowship, on the theme, "On the Jericho Road" and based on the story of the Good Samaritan. The young peoples' choir led in the worship of song, and the visiting brethren were in charge of the Marshal, Brother V. R. Hunter, P.G.

Upon return to the lodge rooms the usual votes of thanks were passed before the Order dispersed. The band, under Lieutenant W. Peryer, gave a concert on the bandstand after the march from the church, and before dismissal.

1,000 Medical Men Meet In Toronto

TORONTO, May 3 (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association's 58th annual convention, explained by Dr. A. D. Kelly, associate secretary, as a meeting "to help the general practitioner," opened here today with more than 1,000 doctors from throughout the province in attendance.

"What it seeks to do is to help the general practitioner, or as he is more generally known, the family doctor, to minister to the health needs of the public, no matter how small or how large the community may be," said Dr. Kelly yesterday, in discussing plans for the five-day convention. "With that aim in view this gathering every year seeks to specialize on the medicine problems that are more or less indigenous to the province."

POLLY AND HER PALS — By Cliff Sterrett

TORIES ARE ASKED TO SUPPORT WOOD

TORONTO, May 3 (C.P.).—Conservatives were called upon to support R. C. Wood and his "Committee for Conservative Action" in their demand that the Provincial Association hold its meeting, as originally planned, on May 28 for free and open discussion of party policy and leadership, by Wilfred Heighington, K.C., in an address to Ward Five Conservative Club last night.

There was nothing to be gained by "squelching expression of opinion" or by resenting criticism, said Mr. Heighington. W. H. Ireland, president of the Ontario Conservative Association, was, he said, his personal friend. But in his letter to the president, Mr. Wood "makes a point which is unanswerable," said Mr. Heighington, and not until the party had "a real platform" could it hope to triumph at the polls.

"It is the duty of all Conservatives to give active support to movements within the party which are calculated to remedy past mistakes," said Mr. Heighington, "it is our duty to plan and reaffirm policy and arrange for the direction and leadership of the party in a way that will have the approval of the entire party."

R. C. Wood, he said, had been "a spokesman for the Tory Party for the last 25 years, and, although he himself was not a member of Mr. Wood's committee, he undersood from the press that his criticism of the management of the party had been stimulated by letters received from all parts of the province."

DEATH ACCIDENTAL IN CADET TRAGEDY

KINGSTON, Ont., May 3 (C.P.). — Gentleman Cadet Ronald D. Smith of Royal Military College died last Saturday night during a friendly dormitory scuffle with fellow-cadets under "purely accidental circumstances," according to the verdict of a coroner's jury.

Death was caused by a brain hemorrhage, the jury which inquired into the circumstances surrounding the death of Smith, son of A. A. Smith, chief engineer in the Ontario Department of Highways, found last night. The findings of a court of inquiry, held yesterday, will be submitted to Minister of National Defence, it was announced.

Dr. James Miller, pathologist at Queen's University, who examined the body, testified there was no external evidence of violence. He said he found small superficial hemorrhages at the base of the brain, sufficient to cause death. "I have done 6,000 post-mortem examinations and I never saw a case like this before," Dr. Miller told the jury.

The scuffle between the Cadets took place in the room of Cadet D. W. Newlands after roll-call at 10 p.m. on Saturday.

Cadet H. G. Campbell, Port Arthur, testified he tried to push Smith on to the bed during a "shirt-ripping affair." The side of his hand struck Smith "below the ear on the right side," Campbell said.

"My only object was to push him on the bed," Campbell continued. "It was all in friendliness." He said the blow did not knock Smith down upon the bed. Smith had sat down himself then suddenly collapsed. "I didn't use force," the witness added. "There was no ill-will. It was just part of the horseplay."

Higher Pensions For U.S. Widows?

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP).—A new pension system for widows and their minor children is receiving study by the United States social security board at the request of President Roosevelt, it was learned today.

Benefits would go to the families of workers who pay social security taxes but who die before reaching the retirement age of 65. Under present law, the heirs of a worker who dies before the retirement age receive only a sum equal to 3.5 per cent of his earnings from January 1, 1937 to the time of his death.

The board, however, is seeking some means of giving more substantial aid to widows and children. Although no one plan has ben accepted, one of those receiving serious consideration would provide monthly payments of between $10 and $20 to children until they reach 18 years of age.

The widow would be pensioned for life when she reaches 60, getting between $20 and $40 a month.

REBELS ATTACK AS RAINS CEASE

HENDAYE, France, May 3—(AP)—General Franco's veteran Castillians were reported today to have carved a deep triangle out of Spanish government lines east and slightly north of Teruel.

Steady reinforcements of men and supplies had been brought up through the mud during the recent lull in fighting caused by heavy rains. As soon as the downpour stopped the insurgents leaped to the attack.

The veterans started their drive along the narrow river valleys and treacherous mountain trails of the Sierra de la Lastra yesterday morning and by nightfall, border despatches said, had shoved their line forward nine miles.

A new front, to include 90 square miles of captured government territory, was established from El Pobo due east to Villarroya De Los Pinares, and from there north to Aliaga. By these operations the insurgents were striving to hammer out the pocket of territory held by the government, curving northeastward from Teruel and southeastward to the coast.

ASSAULT CHARGED TO LINDSAY MAN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, May 3. — Two local young men named Gordon McCabe and George Dobie, were placed under arrest Saturday night by the police on charges of breaking and entering and assault and battery. The accused, it is alleged, entered the home of Dennis Sullivan, an elderly resident of the town, during his absence. When Sullivan returned home about 10.30 on Saturday night he found three men in the house. He made a grab for one of them, and the trio turned on him and pummelled and kicked him in the head. His screams were heard by neighbors, who phoned the police. Dobie and McCabe were arrested in the vicinity. One of the accused had blood on his hands. Sullivan told the police that two bottles of wine had been taken from him home during the night. The arrest of the third man is expected.

The funeral of Bernard Tully, a well-known resident of Ops, took place Monday morning to St. Mary's Cemetery, and was largely attended by friends from all parts of the district. Rev. Father McCarney chanted the requiem mass, and Monsignor Brennan, of Toronto, and Rev. Father Neelon, of Beaverton, were in the sanctuary. Mr. Tully, who was in his eightieth year, is survived by his wife and eight children.

The Lindsay Presbytery Young People's Union met in Beaverton on Saturday, with an attendance of over one hundred. Bob Lillie, of Lindsay, was elected president.

LOST REVENUES

MONTREAL, May 3 (CP).—Income tax as it applies to electricity should be paid to the province rather than to the Federal Government, Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec said yesterday at a press conference.

The Premier was endorsing the suggestion of President John S. Norris of the Monteral Light, Heat and Power Consolidated. There was no doubt, Duplessis said, that for many years the Dominion had been collecting revenues that should go to Quebec.

In drafting the manuscript of "Northwest Passage", his great novel of French and Indian Wars and the gargantuan Major Robert Rogers, KENNETH ROBERTS wrote more than 2,000,000 words with his Parker Vacumatic; then rewrote and altered his rough draft to its final version of 300,000 words. The same unfailing pen helped Mr. Roberts create his famous portraits of Cap Huff and Benedict Arnold in Arundel and Rabble in Arms; of King Dick, Capt. 20-TEAM CIRCUIT LIKELY THIS SEASON IN CHURCH SOFTBALL

CHURCH LEAGUE AFTER GROUNDS AT CENTRAL

At an executive meeting of the Church Softball League last evening in the Y.M.C.A., 17 teams were definitely entered with several more on the prospective list — making a 20-team circuit this season a good possibility. While the record entry of 26 in 1933 will not be touched this season, the officers were enthusiastic over the big showing and stated it was the best in several years.

As definite word has not yet been received regarding use of Central or the Oval for church contests, the executive were unable to draw up any of the four schedules. However, they made a draw for the first game, and it will be played this Thursday either at the Oval or Central, with Knox Seniors meeting All Saints. It may be the only game this week, the rest all getting going next Monday. Player lists must be in then. In the opening ceremony, members of the Ministerial Association, City Softball League, Parks Committee, Board of Education and Church League, will take part.

Finalists Return

In the senior section, Knox and Mark St., finalists for four years, are back with much the same line-ups. No managers are named yet but Bob Sager and Ralph Charlton are likely to be back. Jack Archibald may be lost to Knox owing to an employment transfer. George St. will again field two teams, Lloyd Parnall and Ron Payne doing the coaching. All Saints will field last year's outfit once more with Harold (Wimpy) Charlton the pilot.

St. James with a raft of former juniors are expected into senior, as well as St. Paul's, while Trinity and St. George's are undecided. No word has come from Murray St. This senior setup is attractive, having a short snappy schedule finishing in June and dates not conflicting with Southend Loop contests.

One Junior Entry

Only one junior entry was accepted, All Saints team. George St. might drop back from senior and St. John's move up from juvenile to help fill out a group. The juvenile group is well up this season. St. John's have lost several of the champions but will be tough to take. Vic Coleman is manager. Norm Jobe coaches Park St., with Bill Hogan in charge of St. James. Carl Ferguson's Mark St. team will be back, and All Saints has George Beauclerc as manager.

George St. Bantams will return, managed by Roy Parnall, and St. Paul's finalists last year, have many players and ought to re-enter. The bantam series has five so far. They are, with coaches: St. James, Jack English; St. John's, Nels Hewitt; Knox, Stu Laing; George St., Roy Heard; All Saints, George Beauclerc. Trinity may enter and others are fairly likely yet. Games arranged for the younger sections next week are: Mon., St. John's vs. Mark St. Juveniles at Central, St. James Bantams vs. All Saints at Prince of Wales; Tues., St. John's vs. Knox Bantams at King Edward School.

An added incentive this year is that members of winning teams will receive lettered crests. The executive is scanning player lists closely. Two names were rejected in the senior series, and one held for further investigation. Teams not sending in full playing lists will be liable to lose games by forfeit later on, if some of their players are not passed.

Cricket Notes

The days arranged for practice have been altered this season. The Peterborough Club will have Tuesdays and Fridays and Whitakers Mondays and Wednesdays.

P.C.C. members are specially asked to turn up tonight (Tuesday) to discuss future arrangements. Next Saturday (May 7) Whitakers open the local season with a match against Grove School to be played at Lakefield.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP).—Joe Gould's insistent words he is only a pal (and not the business manager of Joe DiMaggio) are being politely laughed at in joints frequently by both Josephs. . . So don't be surprised at anything that happens before the Yankees leave the stadium again. . . .

From the way they are kicking up their heels in the East, the Giants are determined to stage a May Day parade every day this month. . . . Tommy Farr sails for Lunnon tomorow tipping U.S. pals that if Louis doesn't kayo Schmeling in six rounds. . . Max will win.

The Yanks have been starting their home games at 3.15 p.m., and the Giants at 3 o'clock. . . . President Horace Stoneham of the Giants thought the same starting hour should be observed by both teams and didn't know just what to say when Colonel Ruppert said: "No, we have a different type of customer."

Lack of a starting southpaw now is blamed for the non-winning streak of the Dodgers. . . . Slim Castleman is expected to make his 1938 debut for the Giants on the current western trip.

JACK RYAN HEADS LAKEFIELD CLUB

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, May 3.—Jack Ryan, Lakefield, was elected president of the Lakefield Tennis Club when it held its opening meeting and election of officers last week. A good turnout of members and interested persons pointed toward a live season for the club this year.

In the absence of the former president, J. R. Harvey, Jack Ryan was appointed chairman for the election of officers, who were as follows: Jack Ryan, president; Miss Helen Burgess, vice-president; John Davidson, secretary-treasurer; Miss Billy Mackenzie, ladies' team captain; George Tanner, men's team captain; Misses Mary Mackenzie and Alice Dench, social convenors.

It was decided that the present rates: $2.00 per person, $3.00 for two players in one family, and $5.00 per family, would continue to apply for the coming season. After some discussion regarding the work to be done in order to put the courts in order, C. S. Tanner was appointed to interview a caretaker and Messrs. J. Ryan, F. Munro, and E. H. Brohman were put on a committee to obtain information regarding clay for resurfacing the courts. Work on the courts commenced this week, and it is hoped that they will be ready for play in the near future.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

IT WAS with much regret that we learned in Cobourg on Saturday that Joe Daley had retired as manager of the Kingston Ponies. Felt he had devoted enough time to the game and wanted a rest, so Josephus dropped out. It would be base ingratitude on the part of the C.O.B.L. baseball writers to let the battling skipper of the Ponies in recent years go without a columnistic sendoff. The colorful coach of the Kingstons provided the fans of Kingston, Oshawa, Belleville, Napanee and Peterborough with much to yell about. A real hot-headed ball skipper with ready fists and a vitriolic tongue, Joe was a fighter every minute of every game. His drive resulted in the Ponies pulling many games out of the fire in the late innings when the Petes or some other rival appeared to have the tilt by a big margin.

* * * * * * *

UMPIRES AROUND the circuit suffered muchly from the same fiery Mister Daley, as he would burn the ears off a brass monkey with his language and has been known on frequent occasions to push ye arbiters all over the infield, elbowing 'em and stepping on their corns as he blasted them for a decision he didn't like. Joe was chased from as many games as his long-time pal and rival coach, Knotty Lee. But away from the field of play, Joe was a gruff and friendly fellow. He often said he did not believe in winning games in committee rooms, and he never questioned rival imports who may have arrived a few days too late in a town. A good head, Joe Daley, and he will be missed muchly around the C.O.B.L. this summer. If he stays out.

* * * * * * *

BOB ELLIOTT is the new pilot of the Ponies and will be playing manager. The big third baseman is a fighter, too, but more of the gentlemanly type. Well liked by all. Bob was a star gridder at Queen's not so long back and later played ball in the Eastern Ontario circuit, before a return to Kingston to play in the Central Loop, where earlier he had performed both for Kingston and Deloro. He is a husky, awkward-looking gent with a scrapper's face, a good fielder and steady clouter. Come to think of it, the C.O.B.L. clubs will all have playing managers this summer, provided Tip Miller takes a turn in the Oshawa infield. Eddie Murphy of the Petes expects to be playing second regularly after June 4th.

* * * * * * *

SINCE WE'VE got started on Kingston diamond matters, we might as well run this clipping from the Quinte sheet: "It looks as though Bill Walshe, Kingston sport scribe, is out-Peterboroughing the Liftlock City scrivener right up his own alley. Every spring along about the first of May the Peterborough scribe goes snooping around Dummer Township, north of Peterborough, and usually unearths a couple of ball players, secluded behind the sheaf of last year's corn in a farmer's field. But a week in advance this year, Brother Walshe went snooping into the waste paper baskets around Queen's, and what ball talent Willie discovered around that ancient Presbyterian seat of learning was little less than miraculous. To say nothing of stupendous, colossal or gigantic!"

* * * * * * *

IT IS all too true, and we must hang our noggin in shame this spring whilst mitting the Kingston columnist for his amazing—in fact, well nigh impossible—feat of finding such U.S. players as Zukerman, McIntyre and Patterson at Queen's now, with more to come yet. The best we could locate around the corn fields of the district this season (at least, so far) were a few fellows who had first-based, caught and played the outfield, three in fact, but we dunno how good they are. Mayhap, we will take a stroll through the meadows out around Douro some of these days and run into an outfielder who hit .400 in semi-pro ranks spreading the fertilizer on the newly-ploughed land. Or a good southpaw mending fences, Maybe.

THERE WERE 17 definite entries to the Church Softball League last night and the possibility of three or four more teams before the schedules get going. Official opener will be this Thursday, but most of the teams swing into action next Monday e'en. Looks like no depression or repression in church softball circles, and the officers gleefully predict a biggah and bettah season than in many moons. Only the junior section of all four looks sort of skimpy but it may be padded up a bit to resemble something respectable ere the opening gun goes. This loop is still after Central for games but hasn't heard anything yet. Complete dope on the loop layout to date is in elsewhere tonight, along with some of the scheduled contests.

EFFORTS BY the local lacrossers to get Brampton here for an exhibition game within a week or so have failed, the Bramptonites being unable to make the trip. Orillia may be here later. Nothing new on the proposed senior "B" grouping, the O.L.A. refusing to make any grouping announcements till all prospective clubs are heard from. Should be soon, we imagine. Manager Frank Randle says practises will be Tuesday and Friday nights this week and Saturday afternoon, and players are asked to come fully padded as the workouts are beginning to get somewhat stiff. Owen Hendy, the ex-Campbellford athlete who played hockey in Kirkland Lake for several seasons, is back again and would like to play lacrosse and hockey here. He did his stuff locally with the gutted stick about 1932, we believe. More again on lacrosse before long.

* * * * * * *

THE RIVERVIEW A.C. will run an amateur boxing show in the local lacross arena on George St. within three weeks, May 30th, in fact. Seven boxing bouts and one rasslin' duel. Three Toronto pugs and two grapplers will come down, rest of the card being made up of local fighters. Norm Bowler is matchmaker and promises to give fans an outdoor show that'll make 'em forget the two good Riverview A.C. indoor shows in the winter—and bring them back in biggish numbers again. A new ring will be installed and Toronto matmen will bring down a new mat. Some dope on the mitt card will be available within a few days.

GRAB-BAG: Glad to see the Peterborough Tennis Club revived this year, after threatening to disband; it would have meant a real blow to competitive tennis in the city . . . . Queen Mary and Prince of Wales have a School Baseball League opener tomorrow aft in Riverside . . . . Don't forget that re-organization meeting of the men's City Softball League tonight at eight in Duffus' . . . . C.G.E. shop softball circuit started last night; H. A. Cranfield tossed the first official pitch and 'twas hit for a homer! . . . . The C.G.E. gals softballers have a workout this Wednesday . . . . Ralph's junior ball prospects will practise tonight at 5.30 in the Exhibition Grounds; all welcome . . . . Bun Morgansen says Peterborough may have an artificial ice arena for next winter, and would like a good goalie for hockey and lacrosse . . . . District lacrosse meeting recently in Port Hope fizzled owing to a difference in times; Peterborough, Trenton and Port Hope were represented; another will be called soon . . . . Local swimmers finally defeated those Orillia water stars . . . . All we want to see this summer is Umpire Ken Colling walk out on the diamond just once wearing his glasses—and we will then die happy!

Andy Rutter was elected president of the Peterborough Tennis Club last night at the annual re-organization meeting of the club held in the Y.M.C.A. Work will begin this week on the courts and a membership drive will commence at once.

GOLF FACTS By Alex Morrison

When I first visited the city of Denver, in 1919, I had an experience on the golf course that was quite new to me. Without hitting the ball very hard, I found myself getting much more distance than I expected. My ball would fly beyond its mark almost every time.

I didn't feel particularly strong, so I was at a loss to account for the extra length I was getting. Before long I realized that the atmosphere had something to do with the results. The air was much thinner than I had been accustomed to, and offered less resistance to the flight of the ball. It also made objects appear to be much closer than they actually were.

I am reminded of these things as I think of the United States open to be played in the mountain city next June. The courses around Denver are good and the scenery is beautiful. If the boys can adjust their games to the high altitude and thin air, they should make lower scores than ever and have a lot of fun doing it. Certainly I can't remember when this event has been staged in such surroundings.

If you are among those who never miss an open, I would urge you to stick to your practice of following the big show, for this time it should be very much in favor of the spectators.

HASTINGS TIES HAVELOCK 4-4

HASTINGS, May 3.— Havelock and Hastings played to a 4-4 tie in an exhibition game of softball at the park last night. The game was called at the end of six innings due to darkness.

Hastings' four runs were scored in the first innings when Phillips, Radford, Faux and Puffer crossed the plate in succession.

Havelock opened their scoring in the third innings when Pollock and Kitchen crossed the plate. Bedford's home run in the fourth counted the third. Brunton crossed the plate for the fourth and tieing run.

McCoy on the mound for the locals was very effective for two first innings, but gradually became erratic. Brunton, Havelock mound man, was extremely erratic in the first innings, when he worked five men in succession. He rallied for the rest of the game and was very effective.

Four Teams In Loop

The town softball club had a second meeting last night to prepare for the opening of their schedule May 11. There will be four teams as last year. A list of players of each team was submitted by managers for the approval of the executive.

The following men, two from each team, will form the executive of the league: Elgin, Roy Richardson, Lloyd Fleming; Outlaws, Dit Clapper, "Andy" McKee; Clerks, Gilbert Herrington, Clarence Gillespie; Tanners, Earl Hahn, Alton Thompson.

The executive of the local league will operate the junior team to play in an outside league subject to cancellation.

It was unanimous that the umpire-in-chief (W. Wellman) have full control of the game and he must exercise it whenever necessary.

Landis To Attend Toronto Opener

TORONTO, May 3 (C.P.). — President Donald Ross of the Toronto Baseball Club announced last night Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, would attend Toronto's home opening game in the International League on Thursday against Jersey City Giants.

Arrangements call for Judge Landis to occupy a box with Premier Mitchell Hepburn, Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews of Ontario and Mayor Ralph Day are also to watch the opening game.

Club officials said they expected a crowd of close to 20,000 for the occasion. The Leafs finished their first road trip by winning a double-header from Syracuse Chiefs on Sunday, and are in fifth place. Earl Caldwell, a right-hander, is to pitch the opener for Toronto.

SHIP CRASH SETTLED

MONTREAL, May 3 (CP).—Justice Philippe Demers, judge in admiralty, ruled today the steamer Conisciiffe Hall was responsible for damages to the John Irwin when the two ships collided in Lachine Canal last November.

The Conisciiffe Hall entered the canal at an improper rate of speed, failing to keep a proper lookout just before the accident, the judge said.

S.S. John Irwin, Limited, took action for $10,000 damages and the owners of the Conisciiffe made a counterclaim of $20,000. The amount to be awarded the Irwin's owners will be estimated by the deputy registrar and merchants.

LOCAL 'Y' WINS IN SWIM EVENTS

In an inter-city swim meet at the Y.M.C.A. pool here on Saturday night, the local aquatic crew took a 83 to 61 victory over the Orillia "Y" swimmers, for the first local win in over two years. About 150 fans witnessed some fine splash events, with Peterborough Y.M. and Y.W. swimmers in great form to win a majority of events. Two features of the meet were new tank records hung up by Stan McBride of Peterborough. He did the men's 100-yard free style race in 58 seconds, the old record being 59 4-5, and he did 200 yards in 2.14, the old mark being 2.15.

McBride also copped the men's 40-yard free style and the 40 back stroke. Ted Clark won the junior men's back stroke while Hazel Bradley led in ladies' 40-yard breast stroke. Al Scott of Orillia won the 14 and under 100 free style for boys. Paul Welsh copped the Pioneers' Class 20 yards. Al Marshall took the junior men's 40 breast. Gordon Matthews was first in 12 and under 20 back stroke. Ruth Dalliday copped the ladies 40 free style. The long plunge was captured by Al Scott.

Fred Towns of Orillia sailed through to win the 100 yards junior free style. Ralph Rogow took the 14 and under breast stroke event. Ruth Dalliday grabbed the 40 yards backstroke as Al Marshall took the senior men's 40 breast. Gordon Matthews was best in the 12 and under 40 free style. An Orillia entry, Fred Towns, copped the junior men's 40 free style. T. Yarnold, of Orillia won the 14 and under 40 free style. A medley relay of 120 yards went to the Peterborough team of Clark, Marshall and Joiner, and the locals took another exhibition relay of 200 yards to win the meet by a decisive margin.

FOUR SOCCER TEAMS ENTER LOCAL LEAGUE

Information given at the meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association that the Canadian General, Brinton Carpet Athletics, C.C.F. and Deloro will be represented in the league this season.

New officers, elected last night, were: First vice-president, Jack Roberts; second vice-president, Alex McKinley; executive members, Ernie Abraham, William Downer, Charles Griffin, Vincent Stewart and James Moffat; club representatives, Jack Adams C.C.F., Roland Smelt and other members to be selected.

Personal information was given that the Brinton Carpet will organize on Wednesday evening when officer- bearers will be appointed and the question of the team discussed.

Canada Packers nor the Quaker Oats have replied to the letters of request relative to teams entering the league. Clubs must have their entry officially declared by next Monday evening when the entry money must be placed with the secretary and the forms will be distributed as soon as possible. Guarantee fee must be paid before the first league game.

Write Toronto

Discussion about affiliation with the O.F.A. or the Toronto and District Football Association brought out many advantages but it was left with the president to write Toronto association about the associate membership so as to facilitate arrangements more satisfactorily when a visiting team desires to visit outside points without getting the written privilege for every game.

The question of the groundsman will be discussed at the next meeting and all applications must be in the hands of the secretary.

Many of the fans will regret to hear that William Curtis, Canadian General goal-keeper, has just come out of the hospital after a serious operation and he regrets that he cannot play this year but would like to keep up his continuity of activity of sixteen years in the game. Best of luck, Bill.

On Saturday afternoon, at two o'clock, all players and fans who are interested in the playing field at King Edward Park are reminded to bring along a good strong rake so that they can clean up the park of stones and glass.

The subject of an eastern association with Belleville, Trenton, Oshawa and Kingston came up for discussion but it revealed that no official information had been given to the local board when the meeting would be held.

5 Teams Entered Eastern Circuit

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., May 3 (CP)—Ed Sutherland was elected president of the St. Lawrence Amateur Baseball League last night at a reorganization meeting. W. W. Pollock of Carleton Place, Ont., and G. F. Benson, Cardinal, Ont., were elected vice-presidents.

Brockville, Smith's Falls, Cardinal, Prescott and Carleton Place delegates assured the meeting they were ready to field teams in the loop which had considerable success before the 1936 season when the circuit was declared professional by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

Representatives from Ottawa were also present and will decide this week whether they will enter a team.

New York Giants Confident New Found Batting Strength

Terry Not Worried Over Loss Of Burgess Whitehead On Sick List

NEW YORK, May 3 (AP) — The runaway New York Giants go charging into the western half of their National Baseball League opposition today confident in their new-found batting strength.

Against the eastern half the Giants astonished even Bill Terry by the savagery of their attack, and it takes something special along that line to astonish Bill since he watched the Yankees bat in the last World Series.

It doesn't worry Terry a bit that he'll have to get along quite a while without Burgess Whitehead, his regular second baseman last year. A slow recovery from an appendicitis operation he underwent this spring has kept Whitehead from playing so far and brought on a nervous breakdown that requires a complete rest. He was left behind when the club started west and Terry said he would ask to have him put on the voluntarily retired list.

"I knew we were going to be better, but I'll admit I didn't foresee the way Johnny McCarthy was going to hit the ball," the Giants' pilot confessed as he watched his sluggers take Brooklyn 7-4 for their 11th straight victory yesterday. "I guess it's the best club I've had, all right."

He has no real fear of Cincinnati Reds against whom the Giants start their western invasion today. In fact, he doesn't scare much when any of the western group is named, though he picks Chicago Cubs as the one most likely to prove troublesome.

HARRIS CLUB NO SOFT SPOT FOR OPPONENTS

NEW YORK, May 3 (CP)—While the next couple of weeks of intersectional scrapping may present a different picture, two of the biggest surprises so far in the major league season come from Washington Senators and Detroit Tigers.

Washington opens its first home stand against the western clubs of the American League today in second place and Detroit starts east tied with St. Louis Browns for sixth. That just reverses the way they were picked in The Associated Press spring poll.

The Senators, of course, have profited by the weakness of Philadelphia Athletics, winning four out of five from them, but they're still a half-game ahead of Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees, who have been playing the same kind of opposition.

They gave the Yanks a whale of a tussle yesterday before going down 3-2 and they may make trouble for Cleveland when the league-leading Indians invade the capital today. After the Yanks revised batting order, with Lou Gehrig down in sixth place, had hopped on Jimmy Deshong for a 3-0 lead, the Senators started a comeback that drove Monte Pearson to cover and had the bases full in the eighth before Johnny Murphy checked the threat.

Joe's Homer Counts

Joe DiMaggio's second homer in two days was the big Yankee blow, but it was Joe's error, too, that gave the Nats their second run.

Detroit's main difficulty has been too much Cleveland, as the Tigers have lost five out of six to Oscar Vitt's men. But they haven't been hitting in the clutches and except for Eldon Auker the pitchers haven't been consistent.

Rookie Woodrow Davis was the only one who could check the Tribe's slugging yesterday but he didn't come in until a 10-run uprising in the fourth had ruined any faint hope of victory the Tigers might have had. While Johnny Allen held the Detroiters to seven blows, the Indians pounded Jake Wade, Harry Eisenstat and Al Benton for nine in their one big inning.

Dodgers Fall 7-4

New York Giants, invincible against the eastern clubs of the National League, polished off Brooklyn for the sixth time 7-4 in their last home game before starting west. A combination of six-hit flinging by Cliff Melton and homers by Jimmy Ripple, Hank Leiber and Joe Moore proved too much for the Dodgers.

Cincinnati Reds, who tackle the champions next, tuned up with their third straight triumph over Pittsburgh 8-6. Two homers by Ival Goodman paced the Reds and, incidentally, gave Goodman the big league lead in four-base swatting.

St. Louis Cardinals, with Joe Medwick leading a typical "Gas House" uprising, belted Chicago Cubs 6-3 while Boston's Red Sox routed the Athletics 13-1 in the other big league games. The Bees and Phillies and White Sox and Browns took the day off.

WANDERERS LEAD IN SOCCER RACE

LONDON, May 3 (CP Cable).—Wolverhampton Wanderers edged Arsenal out of the leadership of the English Football League yesterday by defeating West Bromwich Albion 2 to 1. If the Wolves are successful at Sunderland Saturday they will win their first league title.

The Wanderers now have 51 points, one more than the Gunners, who finish the season with a home match against Bolton Wanderers. Huddersfield Town improved its position near the bottom of the table by whipping Stoke 3 to 0.

Tranmere Rovers won a Third Division, Northern Section, encounter at Lincoln 1 to 0 and now need only a draw against Doncaster Rovers at the week-end to make sure of promotion to the Second Division. Doncaster kept in step, two points behind Tranmere, by winning 2 to 1 from York City.

IRISH WANT DECISION

CORK, Ireland—(CP).—In the Munster Women's Hockey (field) final, Wanderers defeated Civil Service after two full games and a double overtime period in two days' play of one game.

JERSEY HOLDS SECOND PLACE DEFEAT ROYALS

JERSEY CITY, May 3 (CP). — Jersey City is in second place, no great honor in the International Baseball League these last two seasons, but things may change—long Tom Winsett is on the way.

If Winsett, released by the Brooklyns to the Little Giants yesterday, can recapture the batting touch that once made him one of the most feared sluggers in the American Association, the Jerseys will have enough batting power to combat the league leading Newark Bears on even terms. Winsett once played for Montreal Royals.

The Bears, led by Charley Keller, pounded out a 12-11 win over Rochester yesterday, while the Giants were drubbing Montreal 9-2. In the only other game of the day Baltimore downed Buffalo 8-3.

Keller Keeps Up Work.

Keller, the league's leading swatsmith last season, went five for four, including two homers and a double, to lead the attack for the Bears, but Merrill May's single in the eighth inning supplied the winning run. The hit climaxed a four-run rally. May also hit a homer in the free-hitting game which also included circuit drives by Jack Sturdy and Sam Narron of the Wings.

George Myatt did most of the hitting for the Giants with a double and a triple, while Tom Ferrick, a rookie righthander, was holding the Royals to six hits. Ferrick grew better as the game progressed, and after the second inning held the Royals to one hit, an infield scratch.

Johnny Wittig, a Baltimore sandlot graduate, stopped Buffalo for the Orioles with six hits, while the Flock was belting out 10, including three homers.

When Frank McGowan was tossed out in the sixth inning of the game it ended a streak in which he had reached first base 20 times out of 21 times at bat.

He is survived by his wife, a son Augustine, and a brother John, both of Cornwall; and three sisters, Mrs P. St. Thomas and Mrs. J. W. Wheeler, also of Cornwall, and Mrs. M. Henchey, Montreal.

Fighting Fox To Challenge Stagehand For Derby Honors

Wise Fox, Canada's Only Hope Among High-Powered Opposition For Event

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 3 (AP).—The 64th running of the Kentucky Derby is shaping up like a real horse race. In recent years one or two horses have stood out but it's different this time. Not more than a dozen three-year-olds are expected to start the mile and a quarter journey at Churchill Downs Saturday. At least five of them, however, figure to be in the thick of the battle, fighting for the major share of the $50,000 added purse, and all the glory that goes with winning the most colorful race in the United States.

A month ago Maxwell Howard's Stagehand was considered unbeatable. He had climaxed a rags to riches campaign on the west coast by whipping the mighty Seabiscuit by a nose in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap.

Developments of the last two weeks have altered the picture. From the east rose Fighting Fox, latest in the line of horses from William Woodward's Belair stud, and Dauber, hard-hitting colt from William Du Pont, Jr.'s Foxcatcher farm, to challenge Stagehand.

Then at the Keeneland race course in the heart of the blue grass, Warren Wright's Bull Lea reeled off two track record-smashing performances, whipping the 1937 juvenile champion, Hal Price Headley's Menow, by only a nose in a mile and an eighth race.

Among opposition to the high-powered combination is Canada's only hope, Wise Fox. The horse, owned by A. G. Tarn of Winnipeg, galloped to victory in the Louisiana Derby.

Standing rubbing his nose on the LEFT is Max Schmeling former world's heavyweight boxing champion. Standing on the RIGHT in a "Peace be with ye" attitude is the referee. And last, and also least, kneeling on the RIGHT is Steve Dudas. This is the last action shot of Schmeling until his fight with Joe Louis in June and it marked the end of his tune-up with Dudas, stopped in the fifth round when the latter's handlers threw in the towel. The fight took place in Hamburg, Germany.

No Quick Cure

Mr. Rogers came as near as he has at any point in the long debate to disclosing the attitude of the government on unemployment and its cure. He agreed that employment was the real answer to the problem but that there was no single, quick panacea.

C.C.F. members advanced their theory of forcing industry to so organize itself that it would support and maintain the workers with the alternative that if it refused the government would take it over.

Germany was held up by Mr. Pelletier as an example of a country that had solved the unemployment problem but he was immediately told that the reason was so many men were in the army.

"I think," Mr. Rogers said, "if we can employ our fiscal policy in this country so as to lighten the burdens on the agricultural industry particularly, that would be a move in the right direction.

"I think something may very usefully be done in the direction of conservation and development works to improve the assets of the country and lead ultimately, one may hope, to greater employment in that direction.

"I think expanding trade, gaining foreign markets through trade agreements, is most certainly a means of providing additional employment. I believe we have something to learn in connection with control of credit. No one I think can reasonably say with respect to that matter we have learned all that there is to be learned.

"But in all these things we must move forward step by step, trying to be sure of our way. I think there is no single panacea." He was convinced that all the suggestions put forward in Canada had been tried in one country or another in all of which unemployment remained a problem.

Social Credit to Expand?

Heckled when he was criticising the present economic system E. J. Poole (S.C. Red Deer) warned the House his party had "made a good start—taking one province in the west — and next year we shall do more."

From R. J. Deachman (Lib. Huron North) came the suggestion that restoring the tariff and taxation levels of 1930 would solve unemployment.

"If we made some effort to reduce taxes so that we could free some of this money which is now spent upon taxation I venture to assert your unemployment would dissolve like an early cloud in the morning dew," he said.

Because of inaction there was a rising tide of Fascism in Canada, said Mr. Pelletier. "It is because those Democratic institutions we would like to see preserved are represented by people who are unable or unwilling to grapple with the problems we have to face."

None Idle In Germany

Mr. Pelletier quoted from Hitler's May Day speech in which he declared there were no idle hands in Germany yet the people of so-called democratic countries which had not solved unemployment had been laughing at them.

"So in Germany to-day, when the youth of that country have bread instead of the announcement of some individual that he is 'watching the situation' they can at least claim they have gone somewhere." He was not advocating a Fascist form of government but was warning the Government of Canada of what might happen here.

Thomas Reid (Lib., New Westminster) brought up the matter of public expenditures, charging that under the Tolmie administration in British Columbia a "padded payroll" was sent to the then Prime Minister Bennett and no action taken. He said there was an amount of $72,000 involved.

Mr. Bennett declared he knew of no specific instance, but that complaints had arisen, had ben referred to the Auditor General, and that recoveries of wrongly disbursed monies were still being made.

"You were not very concerned in those days," Mr. Reid said.

His Eye on The Public Money

"I hurl that back at the honorable member," Mr. Bennett retorted. "No man has ever held public office who has been more concerned about every dollar of public money than I have. If the honorable member were just as zealous in looking after expenditures in his constituency it would be a great deal better for the public interest."

Mr. Reid said he would "go back and hunt up that padded payroll." Mr. Bennett retorted he would be glad to see it. He proposed to bring up a patronage incident nearer Ottawa.

"I have a large volume of correspondence directed to the fact that patronage has become almost an intolerable evil with respect to these (relief) expenditures," Mr. Bennett said. He quoted an allegation that in cleaning up works at Long Branch jobs were being allocated by Liberal Association heads. He said he would give a number of other instances later, and mentioned expenditure at Fort Henry, near Kingston.

Mr. Rogers said the provision in the act to guard against political influence operating in expenditure of relief money was carried out as strictly as possible, and he would wish to be advised of any breach.

HOUSE PASSES

believe we may look forward to a friendship with the new Italy as firmly based as that by which we were bound to the old."

Referring to Mr. Chamberlain's famous father, Mr. Attlee said: "I have been hearing a lot about 'the Chamberlain tradition.' But Mr. Joseph Chamberlain would not have signed so feeble a document as this and I do not believe Mr. Neville Chamberlain would have put his hand to so dishonorable a document."

Resenting the fact Mr. Chamberlain left the House during opposition speeches, Mr. Attlee said he was guilty of "bad manner," because he treated the opposition with "sneering contempt." He added the agreement was trumped up to save the Prime Minister's reputation.

Replying to this attack, Richard Butler, foreign under-secretary, said Mr. Chamberlain was becoming known as a "man of agreements." The Anglo-Italian agreement, the Anglo-Eire agreement, the strengthening of bonds between Great Britain and France, all were to the Prime Minister credit. An Anglo-United States trade agreement was approaching.

No Loan Pledged.

Mr. Butler told Mr. Lloyd George it was impossible to forecast what the government's plan of action would be at Geneva in regard to Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. He assured the House no pledge of a British loan to Italy had been made during negotiation of the pact.

Mr Lloyd George taunted Mr. Chamberlain with the assertion that "the Germans are quite convinced you won't fight, and so am I." He said the Prime Minister's record was one of withdrawal when threatened, and that the only time the government were bellicose was in the House of Commons, where they had such a huge majority at their back.

To Opposition claims that Italy had not yet subdued Ethiopia, Mr. Butler said the government's information led them to believe that except for sporadic resistance to the Italians in the southeast, Italian military authorities were in control of the whole country.

The tenor of Labor and Liberal attacks was that the pact was a "cynical betrayal of Ethiopia and the legitimate Spanish Government," in that it forecast British recognition of the Italian conquest and that while it was negotiated Italians were in the service of the Spanish insurgents. Mr. Chamberlain retorted by asking if the Opposition would drop dealings with all 21 nations which had recognized the conquest.

"This is a remarkable achievement and in recognition of it my first word must be one of praise for the enterprise, enthusiasm and hard work which have made it possible. The task has been shared by many people. Those who have served on the organizing bodies, the Empire governments who are taking part, the directing staff and, last but not least, the workmen.

"It has been performed willingly and wholeheartedly by all and I warmly congratulate them. The exhibition is an Empire undertaking but it is well to remember that it owes its origin, and to a great extent its execution, to the people of Scotland."

The King said it was a significant fact that plans for the exhibition were drafted "at a time when Scotland was still under the cloud of a long industrial depression."

"For this reason," he continued, "too many people would have hesitated to embark on a scheme of so wide and formidable a scope; but in addition the fact had to be faced that this exhibition would inevitably challenge comparison with those held at Wembley, in New Zealand and in South Africa.

No Daunting the Scots.

"Yet Scotland was not daunted, for that has never been her way. She believes that the best means of avoiding trouble is to provide against it and that a new enterprise is the safest insurance against a return of the depression. It is in this spirit that the exhibition has been built and I see in it the symbol of the vitality and initiative upon which the continued prosperity of Scotland must rest.

"I have spoken first of Scotland, but I am well aware that without the help and support of the rest of the Empire this Exhibition would not have been possible. It now stands before us to testify to that willing co-operation which I rejoice to think is the hall mark of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

"Just as men and women have gone out of Scotland in the past to found new homes in the countries overseas, so I hope that this Exhibition built by their descendants will attract to Scotland many visitors of those distant lands.

"To those who come from foreign countries, I can promise a cordial welcome, and I am sure they will not be disappointed in what they find."

De Valera More Conciliatory Than General Attitude Would Lead One To Believe

Rev. W. J. H. Smyth Of Port Perry Addresses Peterborough Rotary Club

President De Valera of the Irish Free State was much more conciliatory when negotiating with British statesman than his general attitude would lead one to believe, members of the Peterborough Rotary club were told at their weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel on Monday when Rev. W. J. H. Smyth, M.A., B.D., pastor of the Port Perry United Church addressed them on the subject "My Rediscovery of the Emerald Isle". The flashing wit and apt descriptive powers of the speaker held the Rotarians in close attention as Mr. Smyth eloquently described his experiences on a trip to the land of his birth after more than thirty years absence from Ireland.

Rotarian E. L. Sackville introducing the speaker referred to the fact that Mr. Smyth had come to canada as a young immigrant and by his industry and determination had secured for himself two degrees, a college education and a place in the ministry of the United Church.

In this address the speaker expressed his gratitude to Canada for the opportunities it had given him. He had difficulty he said, in finding sympathy for the ne'er-do-wells who could not get along in this country.

Then Mr. Smyth proceeded to take his hearers on a mental trip to the Emerald Isle and the color and warmth with which he embued his series of word pictures ow the people, the places and the history of Ireland made his address one of the most interesting that local Rotarians have heard in a long time. Rapidly he described his visit to Blarney Castle, to the lakes of Killarney, to Dublin, and then to Belfast and as he spoke his audience were able to catch the beauty of the scenery, the charm of the historic places in old Ireland and the warmheartedness of the people.

Mr. Smyth did not mince words in referring to the mistakes that had been made by both sides in the controversy that had long gone on between the people of Southern Island and Britain. The bribery by which the old Irish parliament was abolished over a century and a quarter ago was referred to as a dark blot upon a British history and a mistake for which the people of both countries had been paying ever since. The speaker was hopeful however that eventually the peoples of Southern Ireland and Ulster would be able to unite and live peaceably together as do the French and British in Canada or as Canadians live in respect to their neighbors in the United States.

Mr. Smyth said that before he had made his return trip to the land of his birth he had looked upon himself as a 100 per cent. Canadian but since his experiences there he had found that he was a person of dual patriotism with a love in his heart for the country of his birth as well as for the land of his adoption.

Rotarian George A. Gillespie voiced the thanks of the members of the Rotary Club to Rev. Mr. Smyth for his most entertaining address.

Discuss Naval Co-operation

Shortly after this meeting, French and British statesmen met in London and announced specific plans, involving pooling of military and economic resources, in case of war, as an answer to the threat of the "isms" in Europe.

CITY TRUST ASKED TO OBTAIN OPTIONS ON PARKING LOTS

Vacant Lots Also Suggested As Suitable Place For Proposed New Market

Bylaw Passed By Council Authorizing Mayor to Proclaim Daylight Saving

Alderman Malcolm McIntyre returned to the city council last night, resuming his former seat which he vacated by resignation last fall.

Recently appointed by the council virtually as successor to himself, to conclude the second year of the term too which he was elected, Alderman McIntyre restored the council to its normal strength. His declaration of office was announced by City Clerk Armstrong.

The City Trust Commission will be requested to obtain options on lots between Charlotte and King streets and west of the creek as a prospective site for a market, and also to provide a large central area for the parking of automobiles.

Need Parking Space

Alderman Glover as chairman of the special commitete on parking informed the council that no progress had been made with this problem. Lack of convenient space was an obstacle that was proving as difficult to overcome as it was last year. He said it was neither consistent or advisable to try to control parking on the main streets if no place was made available to which cars could be directed.

Alderman Dutton said he could see no reason why the City Trust Commission should not be asked to consider buying the properties comprising the Charlotte street area. It was essentially desirable as a new location for a market for the future growth and needs of the city, and it would be an ideal location as a parking space for cars. "I think we are going to miss a real opportunity to acquire that property if we let it go another year without doing anything," Alderman Dutton said. He moved the resolution, seconded by Alderman Glover, appealing to the City Trust to consider the possibility of assisting the council in dealing with this problem.

Alderman Gordon pointed out that the present statutes did not permit a council to buy land for parking purposes, but there was no prohibition against purchasing a market site.

Alderman Glover said he was confident that if the City Trust Commission would get options, they would also consult the council about the amount of money that would be involved in the suggested purchase. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

$10,976 Relief Bill

Peterborough's relief account for April was $10,976.12, City Clerk Armstrong reported to the council last night. The items were: provisions, $6,439.01; milk, $864.40; fuel, $710.91; clothing, $524.78; medicine, $6.55; rent, $1,758.27; doctors, $562.20.

Fire loss for the month was $125. Chief Gimblett reported 87 alarms and five roof fires.

A bylaw authorized Mayor Hamilton to proclaim the beginning of the daylight saving period here at midnight on June 11 and extending until midnight of September 5.

Purchase of 1,000 cords of body hardwood from Ralph McQuade at $6.75 a cord was authorized by bylaw.

Alderman Dutton explained that the relief committee originally intended to buy 1500 cords. Two tenders of $7.50 and $7 were received, but when one of the bidders found it difficult to proceed with a contract, the committee revised its plans on the more economical basis of Mr. McQuade's agreement to supply 1,000 cords at $6.75. Ald. Dutton said the committee might "pick up" off lots of wood to provide the supply estimated as necessary for next winter.

The Canadian Legion was granted permission to use the vacant lot at the corner of Rink and George streets for a week's engagement of Wallace Brothers' carnival show on Alderman McCannan's motion, seconded by Alderman Stocker. Wallace Brothers were here for a week last year under the same auspices and paid to the city a license of $280.

Beset by demands from Nazi elements, both inside and outside the country, it is feared Czechslovakia may be the next country to come under the rule of Chancellor Hitler.

CUMMING COTTAGE BURNED TO GROUND IN CHEMONG PARK

One of the oldest cottage at Chemong Park was burned to the ground in a spectacular blaze on Monday afternoon that sent the Peterborough Fire Department racing seven miles to the scene. The cottage was completely demolished, only a few smouldering ashes remaining. Fire Chief George Gimblett estimated loss at nearly $1,500. Owner was Miss Robena Cumming, 351 Park street north.

Giving prompt response to a number of alarms and permission from Mayor Hamilton, the Peterborough Fire Department rushed to the scene. Leaving the city at 4.34 o'clock, they had water playing on the blaze at 4.51 o'clock, Chief Gimblett reported. Although unable to save the cottage, they prevented the blaze from spreading to several adjoining cottages, threatened because the summer resort has no fire department of any kind.

The blaze started when a grass fire got out of control of an elderly cottager, according to Chief Gimblett. He said the man had been burning pine needles and dried grass over a fairly extensive area, and that the fire had crept under the house before he noticed it. "There shouldn't be any grass fires allowed in that park," the Chief commented. All grass and needles should be raked up into small piles in open spaces some distance from homes and there burned, he said. The Chief praised the work of the department's pump which forced water from Lake Chemong up a 40-foot incline and through 550 fet of hose to the blaze.

CONSENT GIVEN TO ERECT SIGNS

Officers of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association point out in answer to Warden E. N. McDonald's complaint about the signs placed along the Little Ouse stream in Dummer that the policy that is now being carried out is the result of an agreement that was entered into with the farmers who own the property through which the stream runs and has the approval of the Department of Game and Fisheries.

As a matter of fact the Little Ouse proposition is in accordance with the policy carried on successfully by the Department in Western Ontario and was suggested to the Local Fish and Game Association by the department two years ago, the Peterborough organization being asked to name a stream that could be shut off to fishermen for a period of several years in order that restocking could be successfully undertaken.

The Little Ouse was chosen and the property owners along that trout brook consented to allow the stream to be closed for two years and to assist in policing it during that period. The Department put in thousands of adult trout and yearlings into the waters of the Little Ouse and the understanding was that when the ban against fishing was finally removed, the farmers would have the right to charge a rod license not to exceed $1.00 per day. This is being done and the whole program has been carried out in accordance with an agreement entered into by the property-owners affected and with the approval of the Department of Game and Fisheries.

NEVER STRUCK HER.

Mrs. Ray Mulligan of Western Avenue, whose husband appeared in police court recently on an assault charge, declared to The Examiner that her husband has never at any time struck her and that the charge was laid through her unfamiliarity of the law.

ALEX. SOLLITT IS RE-ELECTED HEAD AUTOMOBILE CLUB

Alex. Sollitt was re-elected president of the Peterborough Automobile Club when the report of the nominating committee was adopted unanimously at the annual dinner meeting of that body held in the Empress Hotel on Monday night. The gathering, featured by the presence as guest speaker of G. G. McGeer, M.P. of Vancouver whose eloquent address is reported in another column, was a most successful affair, with a large attendance and a particularly noteworthy representation of ladies. Delegations from the Oshawa and Belleville clubs were in attendance and among the other guests were W. G. Robertson, general manager of the Ontario Motor League and Warren Hastings, editor of "Canadian Motorist.'

Enjoyable numbers were provided by Peterborough's juvenile radio winners, Vincent Cremasco, who sang "Little Old Lady" and "Little Man You've Had A Busy Day" in splendid voice and with fine expression and by Shirley Garner and Kenneth Simmons whose singing and dancing numbers earned them an enthusiastic encore.

President Sollitt, who was chairman stated in his annual report that the membership of the club was 50 per cent greater than it was a year ago and he thanked the members for the co-operation that had been given. The directors in looking about for additional service work to be done had decided to establish a first aid post in association with the St. John Ambulance Brigade and the Red Cross and it was likely that the post would be established somewhere in the vicinity of Bailieboro. Mr. Sollitt referred to the grant of $100 that had been made by the club to the milk fund in connection with the public and separate schools, to the Christmas cheer for the inmates of Anson House and the House of Providence and to the treat given the children in connection with the visit of Santa Claus. The president expressed thanks to the staff for their excellent work, to the Examiner, Lillico Motors, Foley and Wilson and J. J. Duffus for the assistance they had rendered.

Balance Is Shown

The report of the auditors' read by Secretary J. J. Dorris showed receipts of $2,358.36 and expenditures of $1,870.66, leaving a favorable balance of $487.70.

President Hartt of the Oshawa Motor Club and Past President Captain Rushton of the Belleville Club congratulated the Peterborough organization upon the successful year reported and introduced the members of their delegations.

W. G. Robertson, general manager of the Ontario Motor League also extended his congratulations to the local club especially on its increase of membership. He referred to the fine attendance of ladies. "I am glad to see," said the speaker "that the ladies have been changed from the role of back seat drivers to that of front seat drivers". The Ontario organization, he reported, had had an excellent year; membership had increased and with greater membership had come increased accomplishment.

The Accident Record

Mr. Robertson discussed briefly the accident record and welcomed the new legislation that had been passed by the Ontario Legislature and the changes that were to be made in the laws regarding more serious cases by the Federal Parliament.

"Safety is an individual problem" said the general manager of the Motor League. "Every person who drives a car—and there are nearly a million of them in this province—every person who walks is a factor in the situation. Each person must learn to control himself, and to walk or drive or ride a bicycle in accordance with the dictates of common sense if accidents are to be avoided."

In conclusion the speaker endorsed the $35,000,000 road program mapped out for Ontario this year and pledged the support and backing of the League for such constructive work. In paying tribute to the old-timers in the work of the Motor League, Mr. Robertson introduced one of the first presidents, now a resident of Peterborough, in the person of L. B. Howland.

The New Officers.

J. J. Dorris presented the report of the nominating committee recommending the following slate of officers for the next year:

Past president, James Juby.
President, Alex Sollitt.
Vice president, J. A. McKone.
Secretary-treasurer, J. J. Dorris.
Executive, J. H. Jamison, H. G. Walker, B. W. Harvey, Vic. Hamilton and Ivan Lillico.

The report was adopted unanimously on motion of E. F. Mason and George H. Hewitt.

A PEACE GUARANTEE

NEW YORK, May 3. (CP).—An alliance between Great Britain and the United States "literally could impose peace upon the world," Sir Henry Braddon, Australia's first high commissioner to the United States, said in address last night.

"These two great nations," Sir Henry said, "have power enough, economic and other, to localize any war which might break out and prevent its expansion into another devastating world clash."

Build Bird Houses

Girl pupils at Immaculate Conception school have proved themselves ingenious this year in building bird houses, far outclassing most of the boys in their originality and mechanical perfection. Caroline McCabe, 11, is seen with a house she built. James O'Brien, 12, helped retrieve the boys' position as masters of carpentry when he built two houses. He is seen holding both of them up for inspection. Pupils have learned many of the habits of the birds, many of their likes and dislikes in the style of houses. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

A number of liquor cases were heard before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning. The first citizen to meet that charge pleaded not guilty and the second one admitted the coin. "I am going to give you a prize," said the Magistrate. "For coming out like a man I am going to make the costs 75 cents and the fine $10. The recipient of this magisterial generosity merely smiled a little derisively. Customer No. 1 was convicted of the charge on the evidence of Sergt. GRIST OF DEBT CASES

Twenty-four judgment summonses were issued by Judge Smoke in his chambers Monday morning. Six other cases involving sums of more than $100 were also dealt with, two being settled and another was postponed until May 10th. It was reported that this was an unusually large number of cases involving non-payment of debts, and a further comment was to the effect that an increasingly large number of persons incur debts with slight concern of how or when they are to be paid.

ALD. GORDON'S PROTEST

"Why should a girl who is an A.T.C.M. be appointed to a position as clerk at the city hall?" Alderman Gordon queried the council Monday night in a spirit of protest that the council was never consulted when a lot of civic appointments were being made. He also asked why such positions should not be advertised in order that girls of the city who had prepared themselves for positions at a sacrifice to their families should have an opportunity of applying. Mayor Hamilton said nothing much could be done about it now, but the finance committee might consider it.

Speckled Trout

"Who says the trout aren't biting yet?" hilligerently ask Lorne Bateman and Herb Brooks. They returned from a visit over the week-end to Dickey Lake in the Maynooth district with a catch of ten trout, with which they are seen here. The little fellow in the centre should give some idea of the size of th rst for he is more than the legal size, measuring eight inches. Biggest trout caught weighed more than a pound and a half, measured sixteen inches. The other eight varied from about 11 inches to 15 inches. The two fishermen refused to divulge the exact location of their catch, hinted they might for a large policy.

COUNCIL ADOPTS INSURANCE REPORT

By a decision of 5-4, with Alderman Bradburn not voting, the council Monday night confirmed the recommendation of the finance committee renewing with A. E. Wilson & Company of Toronto for $2,750 the city's public liability insurance. A letter from V. M. Eastwood protested that he had submitted a tender that was $100 lower for exactly the same "coverage" as that of the Wilson Company, that he had his bid in first and that at the time of the first meeting of the legal committee it was the only bid.

Discussing the letter, Aldermen Glover, McCannan, Dutton, Juby and others said there had been a misunderstanding at the committee meeting about the extent of Mr. Eastwood's policy. Members also spoke of the satisfaction given by A. E. Wilson & Company, of certain losses they had incurred here, and of the wish to renew the insurance with them "to give them a break". Adoption of the committee's report was supported by Aldermen Cotton, Stocker, Wilson, Dutton and Gordon and opposed by Aldermen Glover, McCannan, Juby and McIntyre.

DISTRICT GOVERNOR VISITS LIONS' CLUB

Members of the Peterborough Lions Club, their wives and guests, welcomed Dist. Governor Peterson of Windsor to this city on Monday evening when the club held its annual Governor's Banquet and Ladies' Night at the Hotel Champlain. Nearly 75 people were present, enjoyed the banquet and dancing afterwards.

Introduced by Deputy District Governor J. J. Brown of Bowmanville, Mr. Peterson told of the strides made by the club in Ontario, where 14 new clubs have been formed this year. He lauded the Peterborough club for its achievements during the past year, cited the club as one of the most progressive in the province.

A musical program was provided by Frances Wells, who played a piano solo; Walter Farr, vocal solo; Alex Robertson, violin solo; Rose Puddick, vocal solo; Victor Cremasco, vocal solo.

POLICE CHECK UP ON CAR BRAKES

Stopping a motorist on George street last night to tell him one headlight was out, Constable John Rogers found the brakes of the car in such a condition that he did not regard it as safe to allow the owner to continue driving it until his equipment was repaired. Accordingly the car was taken to the police station and held there.

The police department has an idea that there are many more cars being driven around Peterborough's streets in much the same condition as this particular machine and that is why it is proposed to start in next Monday to test brakes.

Owners are warned that they must see to it this week that their brake equipment is satisfactory because when the tests start the owners of defective cars will be prosecuted. It is important therefore that before next Monday any defects in brakes should be corrected because it will be cheaper to have the work done now than later on when the amount of a fine will have to be tacked on to the overhead.

SEYMOUR COUNCIL HEARS REQUESTS FOR ROAD REPAIRS

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3.—Seymour Township Council met in their regular monthly session on Monday afternoon, when two delegations requesting that road repairs be made in different sections of the township, one from the Hydro employees asking for that portion of the township road, east of Clarke's Corners. The second delegation requested that the hill between Lots 21 and 22, in concessions 10 and 11, be cut down. Council agreed to look into the matter in both cases. The matter of placing street lights on Highway 30 at Trent River was discussed at considerable length. Councillor M. Wright revealed that considerable pressure was being brought to bear from members of the Women's Institute, who have for several years been endeavoring to have this matter brought to a head. It was suggested that if seven lights were placed in this area at a cost of about $16.00 each, it would mean a levy of not more than 50c to 125 cottagers. Councillor Wight was given a petition to have signed by residents, and a special meeting of the ratepayers was suggested to consider the matter.

On motion is was decided the Council would meet early next month to go over the township roads.

School Attendance Officer George S. Anderson presented his regular monthly report which was received and filed, and the following accounts were passed:

County Treasurer (charity), $40.76; T. P. O'Rourke, relief account, $2.48; Thos. Dunham, relief account, $2.00; Geo. O'Sullivan, relief account, $15.00; Hendrick's Grocery, relief account, $13.00; M. T. Lean, relief account, $1.98; Mrs. S. Runciman, relief account, $15.54; Dunk's Grocery, relief account, $12.50; W. J. Armstrong, relief account, $1.50; Don Keir, relief account, $10.00; H. D. Atkinson, relief account, $6.00; J. Irwin, relief account, $5.10; W. W. Clark & Son, relief account, $3.80; T. J. Horkins, relief account, $15.00; Receiver General of Canada, rent, $1.00; T. J. Ketcheson, salary and expenses, $179.00; Power Oil Co., gas and oil, $42.63; Lewis Little, labor, $1.80; John Bennett, labor, 50c; Douglas Rutherford, labor, $1.35; Earl Brunton, labor, 11.25; John Dewey, labor, $2.65; Wilbur Whitton, labor, 60c; Ernest Haig, labor, $58.00; Ted Iliffe, labor, $28.00; D. C. Petherick, labor, $9.80; W. H. Little, sheep killed, $22.00; George Anderson, school attendance officer, $4.60.

PERMIT CANCELLED FOR TWO MONTHS

Fines aggregating $30 and costs to the amount of $12.75, with the alternative of a total term of 25 days in jail were imposed upon Ross McCall by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning on charges of being drunk, driving an automobile without having a chauffeur's license or operator's permit, and reckless driving.

The accused was convicited on the first charge on the evidence of Constables W. A. Clark and Gordon Puffer and pleaded guilty to the other two.

Magistrate Langley cancelled the driving license which McColl did not possess—in other words his ruling means that the accused will not be able to secure a permit for at least two months.

On the liquor charge which arose out of his arrest on Simcoe street on April 17, McColl pleaded not guilty but the testimony of two police officers, uncontradicted by him in the box, resulted in his conviction and he was fined $10 and $6.50 costs, the latter item being unusually high because a stenographer had been called for the case, or 10 days in jail.

Pleading guilty to driving without a permit on a later date the accused said that he had been unable to pay for one.

"This does not allow you to drive without one," said the Magistrate imposing a fine of $10 and 3.75 costs and in default of payment a ten day jail sentence, to commence at the conclusion of the first sentence of ten days if the fine for drunkenness was not paid.

On the reckless driving charge the fine was $10 and $2.50 costs and Magistrate Langley would not agree to a suggestion that the jail sentence in the cause of failure to pay should run concurrently with the other two. He made it five days to start at the conclusion of the others.

ASK ENGINEERS TO MAKE SURVEY BRIDGE PROJECT

First step in the projected establishment of a permanent bridge across Lake Chemong was taken Monday, when an enlarged committee moved to have Dominion and Provincial government engineers make a report on the most suitable type of structure that could be built, and its cost. An independent survey will be made by County Engineer A. E. Chalmers and City Engineer R. H. Parsons.

An enlarged committee was appointed at Monday's meeting in the Chamber of Commerce. J. J. Duffus, M.P., explained that the original committee set up at Ennismore was too small and that it should have among its members representative citizens from other parts. Added to the committee were A. B. Mann, reeve of Smith; A. E. Chalmers, county engineer; Wallace Shearer, reeve of Harvey; W. A. Anderson, reeve of Otonabee; Melville Johnston, deputy reeve of North Monaghan; R. H. Parsons, city engineer; Ald. E. R. Wilson, Ald. R. M. Glover; Milton Clark, George Hewett, James Geraghty. They will act with the original committee, whose members are J. J. Duffus, M.P.; A. L. Elliott, M.P.P.; Warden E. N. McDonald, Mayor James Hamilton, Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore.

Reeve James Gifford was elected permanent chairman and J. J. Dorris, permanent secretary, on motion of Ald. R. M. Glover and E. N. McDonald. "I can assure you I am deeply interested in this project," declared Reeve Gifford. "If we can get this permanent bridge every municipality in this district will benefit from it." A. L. Elliott and J. J. Duffus told the committee that the Department of Highways and the Department of Transport had given assurance their engineers will make surveys of the projected route without delay.

ADJOURN CHARGE OF NON-SUPPORT

Wilbert Reid of Lakefield was charged before Magistrate Langley, K.C. this morning with failure to provide for the support of his infant son, a charge to which he pleaded not guilty.

He was defended by W. J. A. Fair.

Reid's wife was the only witness called today for the prosecution and most of her evidence was of a hearsay nature so that Magistrate Langley ordered an adjournment of the case to permit the wife's mother to testify.

Mr. Fair charged that Mrs. Reid was merely trying to use the police court to collect a bill for her mother and that there was nothing that resembled a case against his client.

In cross examination Mrs. Reid had admitted that after entering into a separation agreement with her husband she had gone to the United States with another man.

"Who was that man?" asked Mr. Fair.

"I am not going to order her to answer that question," said the Magistrate.

Mrs. Reid said that her husband's income when they were living together was only $2.50 or $3.00 a week.

"You were not living very luxuriously", commented the court.

In ordering an adjournment Magistrate Langley said that under present conditions if every man were to be called into court to answer charges of not supporting their children, every father on relief might be arraigned and hundreds of magistrates would be required to hear the cases.

CHAPTER

"NATALIE, you wouldn't make me go through with this!" Barbara reproved the woman who had invited her to a house party at which Garry Page and Wenda Ayer were to be fellow guests. "You wouldn't?"

"Yes, I would. Listen, nitwit, if you see those two together a few times you'll get adjusted to it, and you might as well make up your mind it is something that has to be faced. Clean wounds heal. I know. I stubbed my toe once."

Half a dozen times that week Barbara made up her mind that she would not go to the lodge. She telephoned Natalie, only to be laughed into a receptive mood. She wrote Natalie a note one night. But in the end she relented.

It was a few nights before the week-end of the house party that Julia came to see her. She was thinner than ever, so thin that she frightened Barbara who was sturdy, though slim.

"We can help each other," Julia said when she had slipped out of her coat, revealing a trim black dress. "If you'll be sensible, we'll both get what we want."

"Meaning . . .?" queried Barbara, and wished that she had started a fire tonight. The living room seemed cold and not friendly.

"Meaning this! Wenda Ayer set out to get the man you wanted, or she got him anyway. And now she's after the one I'm wanting. You guessed it — Jimmy Minton. He's giving her a chase, but he's keeping still about it. Maybe afraid I'll sue for breach of promise. And Wenda isn't telling it about, either. But I followed him one evening. Then I hired a detective and learned a thing or two."

Against her better judgment Barbara was listening. She loathed Julia's tactics and her confidence. But this converned Garry, and therefore it concerned her. Garry must not be caught up in a Broadway brawl that would drag through the heart-balm courts. It would ruin his career—then, with a sickening sense of loss, she healized that it might increase box-office receipts.

But Garry was splendid and fine and it would hurt him, internally, so deeply that he would never be quite well again. Garry trusted Wenda with her golden bang of hair and her dark, liquid eyes. If he lost faith in women, he would not trust again.

Something that was old and maternal stirred in Barbara's heart, and she flung her head up proudly to meet Julia's sharp eyes.

"I'll help you get Jimmy back, if that is what you want, and if I can do anything," she said steadily.

"You aren't just doing it for me. It's for yourself, as well," Julia's drawling voice went on. "Everyone knows you want Garry."

"I don't want anything!"

"Yes, you do. You want Garry Page. Put him wise to this Ayer person and he'll come crying back to you. Men are that way. They want somebody to bandage their hurts—somebody sweet and gullible who wouldn't think of so much as scolding them for playing with matches. And Jimmy won't want the lady, when she isn't being sought by the brilliant young playwright, I know the lad fairly well. Well, what about it?"

"No, Julia, I think you're contemp-tible!" The green eyes were flashing angrily.

"You're not very appreciative." Julia flushed, though.

"You want me to do the — the dirty work. And you think I'd accept a man who came to me because he couldn't have the girl he wanted —because she failed him? Get this straight, Julia"—she stood up and looked down at her cousin—"I am not in love with Garry Page. I haven't the slightest intention of marrying him. I wouldn't accept him if he were the last man on the North American continent—and you can tell it to the world!"

"Suit yourself." Julia stood up. Women are strange. You love a man and you won't move to save him from the wrong woman, and I only want an interest in the pocketbook of another and it makes me green-eyed if he lunches with her. All of which shows that money is more important than love. But mark this, Barbara Kingsley! Jimmy Minton will never marry her! He'll marry me or nobody!"

When Julia had gone, Barbara set a match to the log. Then she turned out all the lamps except one which shed a good reading light, picked up a new book and settled down for a comfortable hour. Her mind did not follow the story. It kept wandering down a by-path—suppose Wenda proved unworthy of Garry?—suppose she really married Jimmy Minton? That would leave Garry free. If he should turn again to her—

But that was a shabby way to reason! Second best was never good enough. She threw her head higher, and the curls loosened and tumbled around her slim white neck, and shone in the firelight. She would not wait on a bargain counter, marked down to any price that Garry wished to pay! He could not come back to her, even if he tried. He had gone from her once. He might do it again. But that was not important. That which mattered was that she must stand first with the one she loved.

She talked out loud as she stared at the fire. "Garry isn't to blame. He's honest in his love for Wenda. It's real and he's real. She mustn't hurt him, she mustn't! If I could help him I would, but I can't. Anybody else could do it easier."

A bright, rough-edged head of hair came floating through her mind and blue eyes, merry and frank, smiled down at her. No, Garry would not come back to her if the girl he loved failed him. He, too, must have the one he loved or no one. Maybe, knowing that, she might help him!

The idea brought color to her cheeks and a sparkle to her eye. She would not help Julia, though, nod would she hurt Wenda. She would stand by if Garry had need —that was all.

During the past few weeks she had become calmer—calm enough to think her way through the confusion of her hurt to Garry's reason for falling in love with Wenda. Garry, now that success had come, needed someone before whom to spread his wings, someone who had not known him in the cocoon state as she had done. Wenda solved Garry's problem. Maybe all men were this way, Barbara reflected again. One woman mended the mail, pitched the armor, so a man could clank it for someone who had not seen it broken or in the making. Natalie had said that a woman must not be too reliable. Maybe Natalie was right. Even heaven would grow tiresome if the weather nevr changed.

Anyway, the week-end party would help her understand the situation. Julia might be overly worried.

Barbara had a night and a day in the frosty air in which to prepare for the encounter with Wenda and Garry. She reached the lodge Friday evening and was met by the station wagon. Only a few guests had come out on the Friday night train so the evening was very quiet.

Walking through the snow paths, under sky as blue as a little girl's ribbon, that Saturday Barbara regained her composure of heart and mind. She felt curiously winged and free. Her heart and her soul, her eyes and her lips and her nose all flew upward gallantly. The wide wind blew away the confusion of the last weeks.

"Oh, it's good to be alive!" she greeted Natalie as she came into the lodge late in the afternoon. "I'm so glad I came."

"So am I." Natalie looked at her glowing face. "Honey, is there a young man you would like to ask? I just got a call and somebody has disappointed us. We need an equal number for games and things. Anyway, some people are superstitious. Thirteen makes them drop silver and upset glasses."

"Thirteen." She was not superstitious but a little tremor seized her heart with a foreboding of trouble. "Why, yes, Ray Lipton is a nice boy who would adore a healthy week-end. He skis and skates. It was glorious on the pond, Natalie. I skated for an hour."

She got Ray on the telephone. He was busy that night but he would come out the next afternoon late and stay over Monday if he might. He could drive Barbara back then, he said, and he had some news, some perfectly glorious, tremendous, colossal, stupendous news!

When the siren of Garry's car finally sounded down the valley Saturday night, the guests, assembled by now, were lounging around thet immense fireplace in the long cavern of the living room. Barbara moved nearer the blaze.

She felt an odd tension in the air. Her eyes moved slowly to Jimmy Minton's face. She wondered if she imagined the cunning in his face or if it was there. And while she wondered, she remembered something. She should not have forgotten!

Do Bad Table Manners Make You Conspicuous?

See Yourself As Others See You

For example, fork and finger foods. Bread, thin sandwiches, plain cake are taken with the fingers. But use your fork for three-decker and club sandwiches, frosted cakes, French pastries, that piece of cheese that goes with apple pie.

When are finger bowls necessary? How are two couples seated at a restaurant table? Who orders? How much do you tip? Our 32-page booklet answers your etiquette questions about formal and informal meals, buffets, teas, clubs.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—What qualities should a girl in her middle teens cultivate in order to get along with other people successfully? Just how far will her personality take her?—JOY.

Answer:

Personality will take you farther than any other thing in the world, my dear. It is the real gift of the gods. It is the magic card of admission to wherever you want to go, that opens shut doors to you, that assures you of a welcome, that makes friends for you, that pushes your fortune.

Girls always think that the best luck they can have is good looks, and they spend their time and effort in trying to improve their personal appearance; but, in reality, personality is twice as good a bet as beauty is, and if they would make half as much effort to develop individuality and charm as they do to putting a finger wave in their hair they would get far better results.

Now, of course, in its higher brackets personality is something that comes by nature. It is made up in part of what we call personal magnetism, that undefinable quality that attracts us to people and that makes them seem different and interesting. Lucky are those who possess this priceless attribute, but even if we are not so fortunate as to be so endowed, we can cultivate a very good quality of synthetic personality if we are willing to take the trouble, and if we are wise enough to begin to do so when we are young.

The first bit of advice that I would give to you then is to be yourself. The temptation to all young girls is to copycat some other girl who is popular. They ape her methods and tricks. They see a girl who is loud and blatant but who has dates to burn, so they begin screaming at the top of their voices, though they be of the shy, demure, quiet type. Or they see a tiny girl who curls up like a kitten on a sofa and looks cute, and forthwith they begin sitting on their feet and acting cunning, though they are big girls who look like performing elephants when they try it.

Don't make this mistake. Stick to your own type and develop that. No imitation is as good as the real thing. All of us, and especially men, are attracted by sincerity. So make the most of what you are yourself and don't pattern yourself after any one else.

Then cultivate good manners which are rare enough in these days to be a novelty. Be courteous and considerate. Answer letters. Write notes of thanks. Show appreciation of attentions that people have shown you. Go out of your way to try to make yourself agreeable to all you meet. That will be bread cast upon the waters that will come back to you in angels' food, and you will soon get a reputation of being that "nice little Jones girl" to whom everybody wants to give a hand up.

Learn how to make the most of whatever looks the Lord gave you. No girl need be as ugly as Nature made her in these days of plastic surgeons and beauty shops and stylists. If you have mad teeth, get them straightened. If you have an ugly nose, have it shaped to your heart's desire. Don't buy a hat or gown just because it is the newest thing. Get some one who has made a profession of clothes to tell you what to wear so as to bring out your best points, and how to do your hair.

Take up the study of sports in a serious way. Learn how to play a good game of bridge and to be a fine dancer. They are two accomplishments that are just as necessary to a girl now as it is to know how to read. You will never sit in a dark corner sucking your thumb if you can float over a ballroom floor like thistledown or your contract is beyond criticism. The more things you know how to do well, the better you will fit into every picture and the more certain you will be to be on everybody's "must" list for parties.

Make yourself good company. Read. Keep up with what is going on in the world. Be familiar with the new books. But don't wisecrack. Don't be sarcastic. Don't talk about yourself. And never forget that the real trick in conversation is to get the other person talking about himself. Great is the reward of the patient listener. Try these rules for making yourself popular out on your piano. They all work.

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband is a travelling salesman and comes home only once in two weeks. We have a 3-year-old daughter who begins crying the minute her father sets foot inside the house. At first he is patient with her, then it irritates him because she cries so much and won't have anything to do with him, and he punishes her. I love my husband and he is really the kindest of men, but when he punishes the child it is worse to me than if he punished me. I would rather he would strike me than to strike her. My whole being revolts against it until I actually hate him and wish him dead while he is punishing her. What shall I do? Shall I leave him and take the child with me? I am nearly frantic—S.M.

Answer:

Certainly not. You would be wrong and foolish to break up your home for so small a thing as a baby's crying because she is afraid of a father she sees so seldom that she doesn't know him. Many a child screams as if it were being murdered if a stranger attempts to touch it.

The thing for you to do is first to try to understand the situation and to realize that the reason your husband is impatient with the child is because he is hurt and mortified by her not being willing to have anything to do with him. He loves her. He longs to hold her in his arms and have her snuggle up against his breast and make a fuss over her daddy. On his long, hard trips he dreams of the little face watching at the window for him and little feet running to meet him, and when instead he finds a little fury who screams her head off at sight of him, in his anger and resentment and jealousy he punishes her.

He is wrong, of course, in doing so, for that only makes a bad matter worse. What he should do is not even to speak to her until she forgets her grievance against him, and he should woo her with as much tact and as many gifts as he would bestow in courting a Lady Love.

And your cue is to build up the father in the child's mind as a sort of Fairy Prince, some one who loves her and is good to her and gives her all the pretty clothes she has. Children take their opinions of their fathers from their mothers, and you can teach you little girl to adore her father if you will. Keep talking to the child about her daddy. Familiarize her with him and you can cure her of her fear of him.—DOROTHY DIX.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S DRINK

"Oh, Unkie Wig, I'm all over wet!" said Baby Bunty as she arose from the ground. In one paw she held some early Spring blue violets.

"And I had some in my other paw, too," said the little orphan rabbit. "But when I tumbled in the spring of water I dropped 'em."

"Well, I'm all wet, aren't I?" asked the orphan rabbit. "Lookit my dress!" Bunty was so excited she was talking in a way the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Tree School would not have permitted had Miss Mouse been there. But she wasn't.

"Yes, Bunty, you are wet," admitted Mr. Longears who had hopped to the woods with the orphan rabbit to gather May blossoms. "And as I told you, it happened because you fell into a bed of flowers."

"You mean these violets?" asked Bunty.

Rainwater

"No, those pitcher blossoms," said the rabbit gentleman pointing to some oddly shaped, purple blossoms, something like the Jackin-the-Pulpit flower. "Pitcher plants grow in many parts of the country."

"And they hold water," said Bunty ruefully, squirming around to look at her wet dress. "Where do they get it?"

"Some of it rains in. Some may be the juice of the plant."

"And so I fell into a cluster of pitcher plants, did I?" asked Baby Bunty.

"You ought to know," laughed Mr. Longears.

"I do," said the orphan rabbit, also laughing. "I broke and emptied a lot of the pitchers I guess."

"You couldn't help it," said Uncle Wiggily. "Anyhow, we have found some May flowers — violets and pitcher plants."

"And I have lots to write about for my school nature composition," spoke Bunty. "But since I'm all wet, let's go out where the sun shines brighter to dry me out."

"That's a good idea," said Uncle Wiggily.

He and Bunty gathered more violets and then the orphan rabbit looked more closely at the pitcher plants. Truly they resembled tiny pitchers and each one had more than a spoon full of water in it.

"Nature surely is wonderful," said Baby Bunty, twinkling her pink nose. "And the sun is wonderful," she went on as the warm rays, in a woodland clearing, began to dry her damp dress. "You didn't finish telling me why the sun stays longer on the middle of the earth, to warm it and make flowers, than it does up here."

"It's because the earth tilts to one side, moves about and gets in such positions as sometimes to have more sun on one spot than another," said Mr. Longears. "The Lady Mouse Teacher will tell you about that."

"Oh, goodness! Does our earth tilt and move?" asked Bunty.

"Why, yes, of course."

"Oh, hold me, I might fall off!" cried the orphan rabbit as she grabbed hold of Uncle Wiggily. "I always thought it was the sun moving."

"You'll learn more about that when you get older," said Mr. Longears. "But you are in no danger of falling off our earth. Your teacher will tell you why. And now, as your dress is dry and as I am thirsty I am going to get a drink."

"I'm thirsty, too," said Bunty. "But where can we get a drink?"

"From the Huntsman's Cup," said Uncle Wiggily. "Come, I'll show you where it is. We can each have a drink."

Uncle Wiggily led the way back into the woods toward the place where Bunty had fallen into the pitcher plants. But before they reached there something happened. You shall hear of it in the next story — Uncle Wiggily's big push. And please ask the wind not to blow the electric light out of the window into the dark.

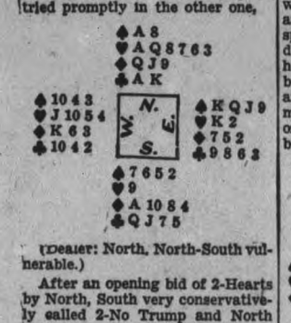
"The Authority on Authorities"

FINESSES NOT EQUAL

FINESSES are not always of equal value. One may be utterly essential to the declarer's hopes, even if it loses, especially when it sets up a string of cards of adjacent value. Another may be mainly an extra hazard which produces an extra trick if it works, but loses the contract if it does not. In such cases, it may be best to come right up with the ace in one suit, so that the vital finesse may be tried promptly in the other one.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

After an opening bid of 2-Hearts by North, South very conservatively called 2-No Trump and North bid 3-No Trump, which South passed.

When the heart 4 was led, declarer played the Q from dummy. After winning with the K, East switched to the spade K. The A in dummy won this trick and the diamond Q finesse lost to West's K. The spade 10 was returned to East, who cashed three spade tricks, so that the contract was set one trick.

South had a safer way to handle the situation. When the heart was led, the danger of a switch to spades was immediately apparent, so before losing control, he should have tried his diamond finesse. By going up with the heart A on the first lead he could have tried the diamond, and when that lost West would have continued hearts. As West led from a four-card suit, this would have been ducked by North and won by East. A switch to a spade at this point would have done no harm. The spade A would have won, the heart Q would have been cashed, followed by clubs A and K, the diamond J, and a diamond to the South hand. Instead of being set, four odd would have been made by South.

The astral interventions seem to point to a day of drastic action, with suddenly-precipitated change, travel or adventure of quite unpredictable importance. Radical, possibly devastating situations may have to be dealt with. These may be precipitated by a death, bereavement or other sudden separation.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of major happenings, with much suddenly developing which my have a bearing on the future destinies and fortunes. Employment, business, private affiliations and secret ambitions are in the balance, to be manipulated with sagacity for ultimate gratification.

A child born on this day may be restless, unsettled and subject to peculiar fears and mental anxieties. It may be well equipped for success in employment or in rather unorthodox occupations.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I would like to get the recipe and directions for making cake pie. Also how do you make meringue that will stand up stiff after it gets cold? Mine always falls. Also how do you make vegetable marrow marmalade not too sweet? Miss I. S.

ANSWER: Thank you for you letter.

Lemon Cake Pie

One cup sugar, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 eggs—yolks and whites separated, juice and grated rind of 1 lemon, 2 cups milk. Mix the sugar and flour, add slightly softened butter. Mix and add egg yolk, then lemon-juice and rind, and when well mixed add milk and beat until smooth. Fold in the beaten whites and pour into unbaked rich crust and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes. This will make two small pies or one large. (This filling may be baked in individual custard cups and served as a delicate pudding.)

Meringue

Into cold bowl put the whites from three cold eggs, and beat until they are frothy with rotary beater, then add ½ cup granulated sugar and beat until stiff enough to stand up in points. (This method takes longer than adding sugar after whites are stiff but makes a firmer meringue.) Add 1 teaspoon vanilla, put on filled pie while filling is warm, and return pie to oven at 275 deg. Fahr. and let bake slowly for 40 minutes. Do not store in ice box or meringue will "sweat."

Vegetable Marrow Jam

Cut peeled and seeded vegetable marrows in ½-inch dice. Weigh the marrow and allow ¾ lb. sugar to every lb. of marrow. Put sugar and marrow together and add enough cold water to cover—stir well and put over low heat and bring to simmering point and add 2 oz. root ginger for each 6 lbs. of marrow. To bring out the flavor of the ginger root bruise it—to remove it easily tie it in muslin bag. Add the grated rind or very finely sliced rind of four lemons (to each 6 lbs. marrow) and boil gently with asbestos pad under it for about 1 hour—or until of right consistency to spread and transparent. Add juice of 4 lemons and pour into clean hot jam pars and seal at once with paraffin.

We hope these recipes please you and that we can help you again.

QUESTION: I want to thank you very much for your delicious recipe for "Almond Rings." Do you have any more of such delicious cookies? If so I would appreciate them. R. G.

ANSWER: I hope the few I have selected please you as well as the Almond Rings.

Pecan Macaroons

Beat the whites and yolks of 2 eggs separately. The yolks should be beaten until they are very light and lemon colored and about double in bulk—the whites until stiff. Add 1 cup sugar to the whites and beat until well mixed. Add 6 tablespoons flour to the yolks by sifting and 1 cup finely chopped pecans — then sift in 4 more tablespoons flour. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheet and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. (very slowly) until golden. These may be baked faster when they will be crisper, but will collapse.

Cocoanut Crisps

Two eggs, ½ cup butter, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup white sugar, ½ cup cocoanut, 2½ cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Beat the eggs, add the butter which has been melted, sugar, cocoanut and flour, which has been sifted with the baking powder. Make dough into roll and chill wrapped in wax paper. When cold slice very thinly with very sharp knife and bake on buttered sheet at 450 deg. Fahr. This is very hot and they must be watched and removed as soon as they are tinged with gold.

QUESTION: I have received much help from reading your cookery department, and now venture to come with a problem.

Please give me some simple recipe for making (homemade) ice cream sufficient for 6 or 8-quart freezer—also some sauces that may be used with it.

I have made it quite often but although it freezes good and in spite of the fact that it is packed in ice, yet in about an hour it begins to soften. Would making custard out of the eggs, some milk and cornstarch help? I would appreciate your advice very much. N. H.

ANSWER: I think the recipe for what is called Rural Ice Cream would suit you perfectly.

Rural Ice Cream

Five quarts whole milk 2 quarts cream, 1 cup cornstarch, 6 eggs, 5 cups sugar, 4 teaspoons true vanilla. Moisten the cornstarch with 1 cup milk from one of the quarts—use a little more if necessary to make a paste. Heat the remainder of this quart in top of double boiler and when quite warm stir in the cornstarch paste until thick—then cover and let cook 30 minutes stirring frequently. Mix the beaten yolks with the sugar, and pour some of the cornstarch mixture over it when done, then return the yolk mixture to the double boiler and cook two minutes more. Cool somewhat, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites, then the remaining milk and cream and vanilla. Cool thoroughly, then pour into freezer and cover.

Use three parts ice to one part salt for freezing, adding in alternate layers — this proportion makes a compact and rapidly frozen cream. Always turn slowly.

To repack after freezing draw off all the salt water, punch down the ice, and add additional salt and ice and cover well.

Butterscotch Cream Sauce

Put in saucepan 1¼ cups brown sugar, 2-3 cup corn syrup, and 4 tablespoons butter. Boil to 230 deg. Fahr. and add ¾ cup cream. Serve on ice cream and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Melba Sauce

Mix 1 cup red raspberry juice, 1 cup sugar, and juice 1 lemon. Let stand in warm place then add 1 cup powdered sugar. Chill before using and beat with beater before serving.

14 DIE IN SMASH AS WEDDING PARTY PLANE HITS PEAK

WARSAW, May 3.—There was a disaster in the history of Italian civil aviation, costing the lives of 14 airplane passengers and five aviators, was investigated to-day by the Italian government. General Aldo Pellegrini, chief of Italy's commercial aviation, went to Formia to conduct the inquiry.

The giant airliner of the Ala Littoria Company, en route from Tirana, Albania, to Rome, ran into dense clouds Saturday and hit a moutain-side near Formia, 70 miles south-east of Rome on the Tyrrhenian coast.

Among the known victims was the Albanian Minister to Rome, Djafer Villa. He and other passengers attended the wedding in Tirana of King Zog to the former Countess Geraldine Apponyi of Hungary.

Albanian authorities at Tirana said jewelry valued at 12,000,000 French francs (about $370,000) was aboard the plane.

The jewelry was part of a collection sent to King Zog and from which he selected wedding gifts for his bride.

Lost Mission Boat Found Frozen In

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., May 3—(CP Cable) — Government postal-telegraph authorities were notified today the United Church mission boat Pioneer with 13 persons aboard, unreported since it left Englee on a 60-mile voyage to St. Anthony, April 23, was icebound at Fishot Island, about 15 miles from its destination. All members of the party were reported safe as were persons aboard two other icebound boats.

Aboard the Pioneer were a Rev. Rogers, United Church missionary, Nurse Curran of the Grenfell hospital at St. Anthony, four patients bound there, and seven other persons.

Both Englee and St. Anthony are far up Newfoundland's bleak northeastern coast, near the Strait of Belle Isle.

Number of persons on the other icebound boats was unknown.

POWER INQUIRY DELAYED 2 WEEKS

TORONTO, May 3 (CP).—Inquiry of a provincial legislature committee into Ontario government hydro-Electric power contracts will open May 30 and sit continuously thereafter, the committee decided Monday despite protests of Conservative members against so long a delay.

Today's scheduled opening was laid over to allow cabinet members to attend sittings of the Rowell Commission of Dominion-Provincial affairs, now receiving Ontario submission.

Hon. Leopold MacAulay, Conservative house leader, pressed for a start May 16, suggesting further postponment was designed to delay sittings until bondholders of the Beauharnois Corporation had met to approve new contracts.

The contracts will be signed and all the doors will be locked and there will be no use of our meeting at all," he declared.

When J. H. Clark (Lib.-Windsor-Sandwich), who is government counsel on the committee and Labor Minister MacBride indicated that contracts with Dominion Power and Transmission and with the Abitibi Corporation would be investigated too, Mr. MacAulay shot back: "Bring out all your clubs and your shillelaghs, but I demanded this inquiry into those new contracts and I am going ahead with it. All your threats are not going to deter me from it."

CZECH NAZI HEAD CALLS FOR A VOTE

PROHA, Czechslovakia, May 3 (A.P.). — The Nazi leader, Konrad Henlein, has demanded a plebiscite so that the 3,500,000 German residents of Czechoslovakia may determine their wishes for government.

Using May Day as a springboard, Henlein and his colleagues renewed their demands for political concessions in a burst of oratory in towns through the German sector of the nation.

There was only one report of disorder, at Troppau near the frontier with Germany, where three men were injured in fighting.

Anti-Nazi Germans in some places promised to support the Czechs. At Podmokly, near the German border, Major Josef Kessler—a Social Democrat—asserted "German Democrats in the border region will defend the state, together with the Czechs, with their blood."

Henlein, speaking in five towns, was welcomed with cries of "We greet our Fuehrer" and Nazi salutes. He was, however, less fiery than some of his lieutenants, such as George Wollner, who declared that "National Socialism knows no boundaries" and demanded that Germans be substituted for Czechs on the police force.

Another Nazi speaker, Franz Oberlik, said at Gablonz that the Nazis hoped "by next fall we shall have achieved our freedom."

Henlein, demanding a plebiscite on the minority issue, said demands he made a week ago represented "not the maximum but the minimum of what is necessary to solve our national problems."

(The demands, made at a congress of the Sudeten German Party, included revision of the nation's foreign policy and self-government with Nazi principles for the German minority.)

Sculptor Dead

Dr. Robert Tait McKenzie, distinguished Canadian-born sculptor and physician, died suddenly at his Philadelphia home. Dr. Tait executed the memorial to commemorate 60 years of confederation which now stands in the House of Commons at Ottawa. He was medical director of physical training in McGill University more than 30 years ago and later won fame as director of physical education at the University of Pennsylvania.

$10 DONATION TO WARSAW W.A.

ROME, May 3—(AP).—The worst fair attendance at the United W. A. on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Arthur Payne presided. The treasurer reported a nice balance on hand, a small amount was received from the flower convenors. It was voted to pay $10 toward the church lighting fund, making $25 which was promised.

Mrs. Robert Moore offered to supply flowers for May, and as she would be unable to go to arrange, Mrs. Latta offered to do so. As the janitor is unable to do so, the ladies volunteered to meet on Tuesday afternoon, May 3, and clean the church.

Mrs. George Taylor sang "Building for Eternity." Mrs. Robert Matthews, a valued member who was very ill for a time and laid up nearly all winter, was present and gladly welcomed. She read the story of mother love and a wayward boy, which was well received. Miss Clara McCracken read a psalm. Mrs. David Tucker read "We've always been provided for," which fitted in nicely after a discussion of ways and means re parsonage lighting.

Lighting the parsonage with electricity was discussed and decided it should be, and the W. A. would endeavor to do its part. However, Bethel, Zion and Carmel are interested in that, and before anything really can be done there must be a meeting of the Board of the whole charge.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson closed with prayer. Lunch was served by Mrs. Arthur Edwards, Mrs. Digweed and Mrs. Harold Payne.

Presbyterian W.M.S.

The Presbyterian W.M.S. April meeting was held at Mrs. W. H. Clement's home on Wednesday and opened with hymn "Blest Morning Whose First Dawning Rays." Mrs. Allan Douglas read the Scripture. Mrs. J. Clifford read the Glad Tidings message. Eva Clifford gave a missionary reading and Mrs. R. Tedford led in prayer. 'Rejoice the Lord is King" was sung and Mrs. James Greystock gave the Easter Tidings. Marjorie Clements sang very sweetly. After the Mizpah benediction lunch was served and the usual happy social half hour was spent.

BAER CABLES DUCE

LOS ANGELES, May 3—(AP). — Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, cabled Premier Mussolini of Italy last night asking that he intercede with Chancellor Hitler of Germany at their Rome meeting to-day in behalf of Jewish residents of Germany and Austria. Baer appealed to Mussolini as a lover of sports. He sent the cable at the request of Guido Orlando, chairman of a national movement of prominent Italian-Amerians to promote such messages.

Looking Back On This Date

MAY 3.

A coincidence of this date is that May 3 saw the deaths, 10 years apart, of two men who had been notable Speakers of the House of Commons. The first was Hon. Timothy Warren Anglin, who died at Toronto in 1896; the second, Hon. Peter White, who passed at Pembroke, 1906.

It is difficult to imagine two men of greater contrast. Mr. Anglin was a fiery, eloquent Irishman ever ready to defend what he thought the interests of the Roman Catholic people of his province, New Brunswick, and of all Canada, especially the Irish sections, he was born in Erin and never forgot the fact. Both as politician and as editor of The Canadian Freeman, he was a great factor in New Brunswick, both before and after Confederation, which he opposed. An original M.P. in 1867, he sat for Gloucester, but lived in Saint John and was in every sense the Irish Catholic leader. Elected to the Speaker's chair in 1874, he was, in 1877, accused of having drawn money from the Government through his printing office. But of this he was absolved by the courts and was vindicated by his constituents who sent him back to the Commons and the Speaker's chair. He was the father of Chief Justice Frank Anglin and Margaret Anglin the great actress.

Fred Williams

Peter White was in great contrast to T. W. Anglin. Always cheerful, ever ready to play a joke on his fellow-members, he represented Renfrew North, where he had large lumber interests, in 1867-96, and again from 1904 to his death. He was Speaker, 1891-96, the last of the Conservative Speakers until 1911. Peter White was not an orator like "Tim" Anglin, but he was most effective on the stump, his sallies of wit and his plain speaking having as much value as the torrents of Celtic eloquence which flowed from the Anglin lips. Both were typical of their time, representing types which are not now to be found in the Commons or on the hustings.

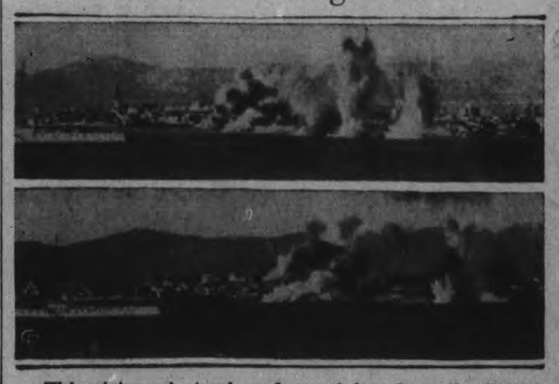
REUNION AFTER 30 YEARS

CARO, Mich., May 33 (CP).—Twin brothers who had not seen each other for 30 years held a joyful reunion during the weekend, when Lorenzo Denton of Tillsonburg, Ont., visited Alonzo Denton, who has lived here since 1905. The two will celebrate their 74th birthday in August.

They were born in Elgin County, Ont., and were inseparable until they reached the 40-year mark, when Lorenzo moved to Western Canada and Alonzo became a travelling salesman. Lorenzo is here for an indefinite stay.

A memorial to "Jem" Roche, the Irish boxing champion who died in 1934, was unveiled in Wexford, Ireland.

Air Raid On Insurgent Island



This picture, just released, was taken from the British cruiser Despatch, as the Spanish Loyalist airforce bombed Palma, chief city of insurgent held Mallorca island, off the east coast of Spain. Geysers of water were raised as the government bombs struck at the centre from which Insurgent raids were made on Eastern Spain.

Chinese Advance Buckles Lines Of Japanese Army

Vigorous Chinese Army Is Said to Be Reinforced To 800,000 Men for Counter-Assault in Shantung

SHANGHAI, May 4 (AP).—A general Chinese offensive along the south Shantung front was declared by the Chinese command to have smashed through the centre of the Japanese lines at Taierhchwang today and to have advanced 12 miles. Japanese army spokesmen were silent.

Chinese advance fought forward five miles in a night battle, adding these gains to the seven miles they rolled back and buckled up the Japanese lines in the first assault yesterday.

The Field Commanders of General Chiang Kai-Shek said the tide of war was turning in their favor. His high command, hopefully awaiting bulletins from the front, said they expected an epochal Japanese defeat similar to that which humbled the divisions of Nippon at Taierhchwang a month ago.

Chinese sources estimated the weary, outnumbered Japanese army had lost 34,000 men, killed in fighting in recent days about Tancheng and Phsien on the south and east sides of the salient of which Taierhchwang formed the west side. There was no way, however, of verifying these estimates from neutral sources.

A vigorous Chinese army believed to have been reinforced to 800,000 men for the counter-assault in Shantung Province, sought to put an end once and for all to this phase of the Japanese offensive which had for its major objective the linking of conquests in North Chinese and the Japanese-occupied areas about Shanghai and Nanking.

Japan struck back with a ferocious air raid upon Suchow, Chinese base and junction of the east-west Lunghai line and the north-south Tientsin-Pukow Railway. Chinese reported 70 killed and wounded and 200 houses burned and destroyed in the raid.

DR. DOUGLAS HYDE PRESIDENT OF EIRE

The nomination ceremony took place at the Government Buildings before the representatives of all the political parties of the former Irish Free State. No last-minute candidate appeared and Dr. Hyde was declared the new President.

Later, Prime Minister Eamon de Valera gave a luncheon honoring the new 78-year-old Protestant head of this Catholic state. The return of Dr. Hyde resulted from his acceptance of an invitation from Eire's two largest political parties—Mr. de Valera's Fianna Fail and the Opposition Fine Gael—to become the first Chief of State under the new constitution. King George remains recognized as Sovereign of Eire in external affairs, however. Dr. Hyde will take office on June 1.

Trade Advantages Are Given Canada

DUBLIN, May 4.—(CP Cable).—All trade advantages given the United Kingdom in the Eire market under the recent agreement are extended to Canada, according to the text of the "agreement with the United Kingdom" issued here last night.

Canada is the only member of the British Commonwealth of Nations that is mentioned in the bill apart from the signatories.

Under Article One of the Irish Free State agreement with Canada executed at the Ottawa Economic Conference of 1932, the Free State (now Eire) undertook to give Canadian goods the same treatment as United Kingdom goods.

NO ATTENTION PAID EMPLOYER'S CASE G.M.C. HEAD SAYS

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP)—William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation, told the United States Chamber of Commerce today that the Wagner Labor Act is "the largest drawback to good industrial relations."

Discussing the strikes that have tied up his company's plants at various times in recent months, Knudsen said in a prepared address:

"The National Labor Relations Board set up to administer the Act made no pretense even of paying any attention to the employer's side of the case.

Not the Ghost of a Show

"He can only be heard when he is summoned, and he knows before he goes that there is no record of a single decision where he has a ghost of a show, so what!"

The automobile manufacturer's speech renewed an attack on the Labor Board that started yesterday when Senator Burke (Dem.-Nebraska), addressing the labor section of the Chamber of Commerce convention, demanded that the members of the Labor Board resign. He proposed that a new board be appointed to represent the viewpoints of labor, management and the public.

The labor section, after hearing Burke, adopted a resolution asking an investigation by Congress of the "effects" and administration of the Wagner Act, which created the Board as a means of assuring workers of the right of collective bargaining.

The resolution probably will be presented to the main body of the convention Thursday.

Knusden expressed the belief business is not discouraged "despite all that is said" against it.

Committee Room Crowded As Probe is Opened

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP)—A large crowd of parliamentarians and the general public filled the senate railway committee rooms today when the long-heralded inquiry into Canada's railway problem got under way. Not since the Beauharnois probe of several years ago was there such a manifestation of public interest in the doing of the upper house.

Charts and tables prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for the committee were explained by Col. O. M. Biggar, committee counsel. They showed railway revenues rose steadily from 1876 to a high of $563,732,000 in 1928 and then began to fall until 1933 after which they recovered slightly and stood at $354,768,000 in 1936. From 1906 the number of registered motor vehicles rose rapidly and commercial motor vehicle numbers appeared first on the charts in 1916 and also rose rapidly to 1930, remaining fairly steady since that time at 186,952.

Not True Picture

Col. Biggar said the number of motor vehicles was not a true picture of the volume of motor traffic because the total commercial vehicles included trucks and buses of all sizes and there was no segregation.

Road mileage operated rose from 35,263 in 1923 to 39,117 for the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways, exclusive of lines in the United States. The C.N.R. today had 21,894 miles of road in this country and the C.P.R. 17,223.

Freight tonnage carried in 1923 was 47,267,000 for the C.N.R. and 32,939,000 for the C.P.R. In both systems a high peak was attained in 1928. The 1923 combined total of 80,206,000 tons rose in that year to 98,206,000 tons. However freight tonnage on both roads dropped steeply until last year the Canadian lines of the C.R.N. carried 36,121,000 tons —a decline of 23 per cent from the 1923 figure. The decline of the C.P.R. was to 29,843,000 tons, or a decrease of nine per cent.

More Drastic Decline

Passenger traffic showed a more drastic decline, from 22,225,000 on the C.N.R. Canadian lines in 1923 to 10,203,000 in 1937, or a drop of 46 per cent. The C.P.R. decline was 42 per cent. from 16,224,000 in 1923 to 7,821,000 last year.

Col. Biggar said that although freight traffic had risen to a peak in 1928 the same was not true of passenger traffic. From 1923 carriage of passengers by both roads had steadily declined.

A curious thing shown on the chart indicating passenger miles, said Col. Biggar, was that passenger miles on the C.P.R. dropped 41 per cent from 1930 to 1933 and the C. N.R. passenger miles dropped 35 per cent.

G.B.S. Receives Deeds

The deeds of the site of England's National theatre which adjoins the South Kensington Station here, were handed over to George Bernard Shaw, world famous playwright, in a ceremony on the occasion of the 374th anniversary of Shakespeare's birthday. The deeds were handed over by Sir Robert Vansittart, together with a twig and piece of earth, thereby maintaining an old custom of the days of the Immortal Bard. Beer Referendum Sought By Synod

By Vote of 120 to 50 Anglican Synod Calls Upon Government to Hold Referendum

TORONTO, May 4 (CP).—By a vote of 120 to 50, Toronto synod of the Church of England today adopted a resolution calling on the Ontario government to grant a referendum allowing the people of the province to say "whether they are in favor of continuance of beverage rooms or not in favor of them."

Debate on the subject, lasting all morning, finally was halted by Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen, who presided.

"We could go on talking like this for a week," the Archbishop said.

The resolution was an amendment to a resolution introduced by the executive, stating "we commend to the attention of members of our own church, also to the government authorities, the grave dangers inherent in the situation" and "we consider the lure of private profit and public revenue has a great bearing on the situation," referring to sale of liquor and beer.

More True Temperance

Another amendment, which was defeated, asked that the Synod, "realizing the value of temperance, request the Ontario government to give more consideration to true temperance and that efforts of the government to enforce existing laws be not relaxed."

The fight to have the amendment urging "true temperance" was led by A. Layman, F. G. Venables, who urged co-operation with the government "in a friendly spirit." Only delegates voted for it.

D. H. Church, Orillia layman, denounced liquor.

"The cursed stuff is sending a trail of people on the way to hell," he said. "I am a prohibitionist, out and out. I have seen what the cursed stuff will do. And all this goes on because some people have money invested in the business. Since the beverage rooms came in the city of Toronto has become a white slavery centre. It is time this church made itself clear."

Urging the original motion, Canon F. J. Sawers declared: "Prohibition is not under discussion here. We do we ask in this motion for the abolition of the beverage rooms."

Canons Revised

The synod revised its canons to enable the Archdiocese of Toronto in the future to enter a general pension fund of the church. The fund,

ROWE CONTINUING AS TORY LEADER

TORONTO, May 4.—(CP)—Determination to remain leader of the Conservative party in Ontario until he has "shaken from the ship the barnacles and leeches of the past 40 years," was expressed last night by Hon. Earl Rowe before the Eglinton Riding Women's Conservative Association.

"I am still leader of this party," Mr. Rowe said, "and I intend to complete,, with your help, the reorganization of the party that I announced after the last election."

Leader of the party though a member of the Federal parliament, Mr. Rowe insisted progress had been made in reorganization in the past six months. He said he would support the Ontario Conservative Association executive in the face of criticism from "someone who was conspicuous by his inactivity in the last provincial election."

Mr. Rowe said he would not "criticize those who think the party is not making the progress that it should—they are over-zealous and our party is bigger than their criticisms or the objects of those criticisms.

"It is not yet two years since I was chosen leader. It is scarecly six months since the last election and a lot of things have happened since then.

Destroy the Party.

"We know that there were deep-laid schemes at that election to end the party system in Ontario," he said. "Powerful interests set out to misrepresent our position so that they could destroy our party. It is common knowledge throughout the province that had I surrendered as your leader I would have ended the Conservative Party in Ontario and have embarrassed it in the Dominion for the next quarter of a century."

ONTARIO OPPOSES DOMINION TAKING SUCCESSION DUTIES

TORONTO, May 4.—(CP).—The Ontario government "takes the strongest possible exception" to suggestions that the Dominion should take over succession duties "or that the Dominion should interfere in any manner in the levying or collection of these taxes by the provinces," Chester Walters, provincial controller of finance, declared today.

Ontario had always been willing to enter into reasonable reciprocal agreements with other provinces in order to avoid unfair double taxation, he told the Rowell Commission.

"In all its aspects the Ontario succession duty act falls clearly within the constitutional limits alloted to the province under the British North America Act, he contended.

"Is that contested?" asked Commissioner Dr. Joseph Sirois.

Mr. Walters agreed it had not been, but there were those who had "looked hungrily" at Ontario's succession duties.

Chairman N. W. Rowell said the point which had been made by some before the Commission was that succession duties should be collected by the Dominion because the funds of large estates were accumulated from al lover the Dominion, so should be distributed for public purposes over the whole country.

One had to examine how fortunes were gathered to determine whether that presumption was correct, Mr. Walters submitted.

Must Be Granted Prior Right Income Tax Field

On Both Moral and Equitable Grounds Provinces Have First Claim, Rowell Commission Is Told

TORONTO, May 4 (CP).—As he pressed Ontario's argument for priority in the personal income tax field, Chester Walters, provincial controller of finance, today declined to suggest an alternative source from which the Dominion could obtain the amount now obtained from income taxes.

Chairman N. W. Rowell, of the Royal Commission on Dominion - provincial relations, asked him to suggest another possible source for the Dominion to collect a quarter of its entire revenue.

"That's for them to discover," Mr. Walters said.

Mr. Rowell said the commission had to consider all angles of the problem. There was no point in their recommending something impractical.

"It is not for Czechslovakia to tell Herr Hitler where he can get another outlet," Mr. Walters contended.

Trusts Relations Not Similar

"I trust the relations between Ontario and the Dominion are not similar to those between Germany and Czechslovakia," Mr. Rowell commented.

Mr. Walters said he doubted that the Dominion had ever deliberately considered the justness of returning the income tax field to the provinces. If it had, it must have considered it in a one-side way, he submitted. The growth of provincial responsibilities was obvious, as was the fact the municipalities were being "crushed and driven into bankruptcy" by the load placed on them. The income tax operated as a compensating force to ease the burden of poore individuals.

Commissioner H. F. Angus asked what compensating force there would be between the provinces if income tax was made provincial.

That would be done through the corporation income tax which should be retained by the Dominion, Mr. Walters said.

Mr. Rowell suggested an Ontario income tax would not help the west and Maritimes to carry the relief load. It would not help uniformity across the Dominion.

Mr. Walters argued there was little uniformity now. Subsidies were not uniform, Ontario getting 80 cents a head and some provinces several dollars.

Not Ontario's Business.

"This government does not consider it any of its business how the Dominion spends the money it properly collects," he said. "For that reason we are making no complaint against inequality in subsidies, nor do we intend to make any. Old Mother Ontario wants the country to go on and prosper and does not object to help being given the other provinces."

Commissnoner R. A. MacKay said some uniformity had been attempted in 1867 although more lip service had probably been given the

SENATE ENLARGES DESERTION PERIOD TO GET DIVORCE

OTTAWA, May 4—(CP)—Persons petitioning for divorce in Canada on grounds of desertion must have been deserted for six years before making that petition, the Senate divorce committee decided today as it enlarged the desertion period in the divorce bill of Senator Lendrum McMeans (Con. Winnipeg).

Originally passed by committee, the bill was returned to it when the Senate objected to the provision allowing a divorce petition after desertion for three years. It also objected to the cruelty clause. The committee today passed the bill in modified form, after defining cruelty, and sent it to the Senate for third reading.

An amendment was passed providing cruelty should mean legal cruelty "as interpreted and construed by the High Court of England in divorce and matrimonial causes."

Widen Grounds

The bill as it now stands would widen the grounds for divorce to include desertion for six years, cruelty, insanity for five years and exceptional moral depravity on the part of the husband. Only ground for divorce at present is adultery.

Senator A. C. Hardy (Lib. Brockville) doubted whether the bill would pass the House of Commons. It might, however, after one or two attempts. If wide concessions in the matter of desertion were made it might delay the measure because the final compromise might provide a longer desertion period.

Senator Hardy contended that the stiffer Canada made its divorce laws the greater would be the tendency to seek swift United States divorces which are not recognized here.

Down To Six Days

In Nevada people are getting a divorce in six weeks and I suppose it will go down to six days in time," said Senator Hardy. "We have in this city people who went over there and got a divorce on flimsy pretences."

He could mention six or seven "prominent people in this city" who got such a divorce. They married shortly after and when they came to Canada it was "a bigamous marriage."

"The stiffer our divorce laws the greater the abuse will be," he added. "I believe the bill should go to the Senate as it is. It is better to go down with our flags flying."

Canada Is $20 Millions Short Of Balancing Her Budget

Britain Is Now Ready To Mobilize Vehicles

London, May 4 (CP-Havas).

GREAT Britain now is ready to mobilize all vehicles at a moment's notice to meet any "extraordinary circumstances" that may arise, the Ministry of Transport announced Tuesday.

The announcement followed completion of a census of all vehicles in the United Kingdom, undertaken by a special Defence Committee working in the Transport Ministry.

Canadian National System Failed By $42,867,000 To Pay Interest Charges

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP).—Canada will be short of balancing its budget for the fiscal year which ended on March 31 by about $20,000,000 if calculations by a usually well-informed source, based on published revenue and expenditure returns, are correct. The exact deficit will not be known until Finance Minister Dunning makes his budget speech, possibly later this month.

In his budget address a year ago Mr. Dunning—after announcing an over-all deficit for 1936-37 of $87,395,000—told the House if expenditures could be kept to $520,000,000 in the next fiscal year he expected the deficit for 1937-38 would not exceed $35,000,000.

On that occasion he added: "Stating my expectations in another way I shall be greatly disappointed if we cannot keep our total deficit for 1937-38 within the limits represented by the net cash deficit of the Canadian National Railway system"

Canadian National deficits are made up by parliamentary votes and therefore have to be budgeted for like other government expenditures. In the calendar year 1937, while the C.N.R. system more than paid its operating expenses, it failed by $42,867,000 to pay its interest charges.

Bounding Dominion revenues during the earlier part of last fiscal year would have enabled the Finance Minister to present almost a balanced budget, including the C.N.R. deficit, had it not been for the drought which hit Saskatchewan so grievously and extended into Alberta, an informed source here stated. A $20,000,000 deficit would represent about the same amount as the drought cost the Dominion Treasury last year.

Sharp Trade Practices By Japanese In Exporting Shirts Cause Laugh

London, May 4

THE House of Commons to-day had one of its best laughs in months when a member charged Japanese exporters with "sharp trade practices."

Major Henry Proctor, Conservative, said Japanese traders in order to circumvent the quota restriction on imports of cotton-piece goods into the Malay States, were "sending in cotton shirts with tails several yards long so that although the shirts are designed as one garment the tails can be cut off and used as piece goods."

Major Proctor wanted to know what the Government was doing about it. William Ormsby-Gore, Secretary for the Colonies, replied:—

"There have been some reports to this effect in the press. The local authorities are taking steps to deal with the matter."

Compulsory Health Insurance Killed By Medical Council

All Unable To Provide Medical Care Be Compelled To Belong To Scheme

TORONTO, May 4.—(CP)—Council of the Ontario Medical Association rejected today a committee report urging compulsory health insurance for all unable to provide medical care for themselves. The old committee or a new one to be named Thursday, will be asked to report to the 1939 association convention.

Dr. A. D. Kellyn, association secretary, announced the council decision and said the report likely would not be discussed by delegates, the 400 physicians and surgeons here for the three-day convention.

Drawn up by a committee of nine doctors, the report urged: "All persons unable to provide adequate medical care for themselves should be compelled to belong to the insurance scheme. In other words, it should include those of the low-income group and the indigents."

Accept Cancer Report

Council members, engaged for two days in pre-convention deliberations, accepted with aproval a report of its advisory committee on cancer and approved federation of the association as a provincial branch of the Canadian Medical Association. Provincial associations in Quebec and Alberta several months ago aligned themselves with the Dominion body.

The council was told a 60,000-word book on cancer, prepared by cancer specialists and revised by each of the Canadian Medical schools, would be distributed to the

KAISER BREAKS HIS LONELY EXILE

DOORN, The Netherlands, May 4. —(AP)—The loneliness of exile was broken for the former German kaiser today as his favorite grandson led the Russian Grand Duchess Kira before him for marriage into the House of Hohenzollern.

Th quiet Prince Louis Ferdinand, son of the former German Crown Prince, and Grand Duchess Kira, daughter of the claimant to the vanished Russian crown, already had gone through two marriage ceremonies.

But the two houses, their monarchies toppled with the great war in which they were on opposing sides, were not considered formally united until today's ceremony before the head of the Hohenzollerns himself.

The palace at the outskirts of Doorn, to which the kaiser fled after the war, was crowded with nobility and royalty for the protestant ceremony in charge of the former ruler's private chaplain, Rev. Herr Doehring.

8,000-Mile Canoe Trip Is Planned Cost Only $750 And Take Six Months

New York, May 4.

A WRITER, an artist, and a school teached stepped forward to-day with an answer to the recession—an 8,000-mile canoe trip from New York to Alaska.

That's probably the longest canoe trip ever attempted.

They plan to shove off from here tomorrow, paddle up the Hudson River, through the Great Lakes, and up and down various rivers across Canada, winding up in Nome.

It will take six months and cost only $750 they hope. The adventurers are Mark Richelsen, 30, of Lewiston, N.Y., who has dabbled in newspaper work, anthropology, and politics; Robert Fuller, 26, an artist from San Diego, Calif.; and Richard Slobodin, 23, New York High School instructor and graduate anthropology student at Columbia.

Fuller thinks the climate up there (sometimes 70 below) may be good for his dandruff. Slobodin heard that the Indians in the Mackenzie River section still indulge in cannibalism occasionally, and he thinks that ought to be investigated.

Millbrook Woman Observes 90th Birthday Anniversary

Mrs. Eliza Johnston Residing With Her Daughter, Mrs. John Rowland

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, May 4.—Mrs. Eliza Johnston, who on Monday quietly celebrated her ninetieth birthday, with only a few of her immediate family present, at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Rowland, Millbrook.

Mrs. Johnston was born in Darlington Township, a short distance north of Ennisliilen, and of a family of nine children only two others, a half-brother, William Montgomery of Fordwich, and a sister, Mrs. Henry Gibson, of Stayner, still survive.

One never associates the idea of age with Mrs. Johnston, even though she has actually entered upon the last decade of her life's century, because she retains her hearing, eyesight, and other faculties to a remarkable degree, and is so constantly active as the days come and go. Her busy fingers are never idle, sewing, knitting and especially crocheting in which she excells, being always on hand, and even the finest work done with skill, accuracy and despatch. This is but carrying over into later life habits begun in youth, for in her girlhood days, when there was a large and busy family, the homestead was known as "The House of Industry" among the neighbors and friends.

Mrs. Johnston has seen many changes in the manner of living, travelling, etc., as the years have rolled by, and readily recalls the first coal-oil lamp brought into her home, and the ill-smelling, crudely-refined kerosene, which was the only kind available in that day; the making of candles was an ordinary matter in the homestead; as was also the carding and weaving of wool, fresh from the sheep's back, into blankets and clothing, and the growing and preparing of the flax, by a tedious process, to be made up into linen sheets and other articles of use and apparel. The big fire-place with its crane and other facilities for cooking, is also a memory of quite early years.

After her marriage, Mrs. Johnston lived in Cartwright Township, but since her husband's death and in more recent years, she has spent her time with her children, and latterly has, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Agnes Johnston, made her home with Mrs. Rowland at Millbrook.

Mr. Melville Johnston, of Springville, is a son, and each year, at the Johnston family reunion, an annual and most enjoyable event, very largely attended, this remarkable lady, while probably the oldest guest at the party, is also active and interested and enjoying the warm welcome accorded her by the big circle of children, grandchildren, and other relatives who come from widely separated points.

principle than actual effort. He wondered what scheme Mr. Walters would suggest to achieve more uniformity.

"I don't think it is up to me to propose a new scheme of Confederation—as far as subsidies are concerned,' 'Mr. Walter said.

"Unfortunately the commission must deal with the whole situation," Mr. MacKay said. "But Ontario has no objection to the provinces receiving varying treatment?"

Mr. Walters said it had not, although equal treatment was originally intended.

The executive had found it necessary to postpone the general Ontario meeting scheduled for May 28, 1938.

(Con. Winnipeg South Centre) objected he had not received a copy of the tables and did not know what the discussion was about.

"With all due respect to the Senator form Brockville (Senator A. C. Hardy) I am a member of this committee," he said.

"I object to any such reference," said Senator Hardy.

"Well you can take it," retorted Senator Haig. "You stopped me from speaking in another committee but you can't stop me here."

Senator Arthur Meighen said a chart showing the average freight haul was "the mos significant of the lot because it shows the railways have pretty well held their long-haul traffic."

Journey Increases.

Another chart on the average passenger journey showed that the average length of passenger journeys on the C.P.R. increased 23 per cent from 1931 to 1936 and the average length on the C.N.R. increased 46 per cent.

The charts showed that Dominion cash assistance to the C.N.R. had risen from $72,496,000 in 1923 to $532,029,000 in 1937. This figure was distributed among deficits, construction and other accounts.

Operating difficulties and expense involved in establishing connections between the C.N.R. and C.P.R. stations at Winnipeg made it impracticable to pool the passenger services of the two railway lines east of Winnipeg, the committee was told in a memorandum on railway co-operation.

The memorandum was prepared by the joint Co-operative Committee of the two railways which was appointed to work out plans for economizing by co-operation pursuant to the directions of Parliament in the Canadian National-Canadian Pacific Act of 1933.

62 Measures Studied

The memorandum listed 62 projected measures of co-operation which it had studied since 1933. Of these 12 had been placed in effect resulting in an estimated joint annual saving of $1,134,857. For two projects agreements had been completed but not yet placed in effect and on these the estimated saving would be $45,179.

On 14 projects the committee had reported favorably, but agreements had not been completed. The estimated annual joint saving on these was $591,617.

Two projects had been returned for further consideration, 24 had been reported upon unfavorably and on eight working but not final reports had been made.

Pooling of Trains.

"A proposal for the pooling of passenger trains east of Sudbury," the memorandum said, "while found capable of effecting a substantial saving so far as concerned physical conditions, had to be rejected partly because the prospective saving would have entirely disappeared if the gross traffic increased by no more than 10 per cent. over its thin density."

Scores of officers and employees of both railways were engaged in co-operative studies as the joint committee required the assistance of officials in charge of operation and local committees had to be set up on particular projects, the memorandum said. The 62 reports actually made represented only a fraction of the work devoted to co-operation.

The largest saving effected on an individual project was on the pooling of passenger train services between Ottawa and Toronto and Montreal and Toronto, $495,000 a year. An extension of this pooling arrangement to include services between Montreal and Quebec effected a joint saving of $477,000.

RELIEF BILL FAILS TO MAKE PROGRESS BLOCK CONTINUES

OTTAWA, May 4 (C.P.).—Opposition members of the House of Commons continue to block any progress with the unemployment and farm relief measure which has been before the House of Commons almost constantly since Parliament resumed after the Easter recess, with Government supporters frequently contributing to the long drawn out debate.

Charges of patronage in expenditures of relief moneys, arguments for and against unemployment insurance, demands for more expenditures on roads and housing, and political recriminations featured yesterday's debate on this subject.

And through all the debate ran the steady urgings of the Social Credit Group to end unemployment at once by the "proper use of credit" and the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation argument that industry must be organized to support its workers.

Opposition Leader Bennett largely dominated yesterday's debate. He reminded the Liberal ministers they had, while in opposition, condemned the very methods they were now adopting in dealing with unemployment.

Only a Palliative.

Mr. Bennett warned the Government they were applying nothing more than a palliative to the unemployment disease and urged a long range policy that would provide employment.

Norman Jacques (S.C.-Wetaskiwin) declared he had heard nothing suggested that offered a better remedy than Social Credit theories. Of unemployment insurance he said: "If the people want it let them have it, but we might just as well take a smallpox case to a beauty parlor."

Paul Martin (Lib. Essex East) and A. A. Heaps (C.C.F. Winnipeg North) urged the Government to proceed at once with unemployment insurance regardless of the attitude of the provinces.

During the hour devoted to Private Bills the Niagara Falls Bridge measure was talked out for the eighth time this session with Mr. Bennett and Hon. H. A. Stewart (Con. Leeds) offering the main arguments against its passage.

The Province of Ontario is making a direct attempt to destroy the vested rights of the International Railway Company, owners of the Falls View Bridge which collapsed last January, it was charged by Mr. Bennett.

The Conservative Leader read a letter, written by T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways, to Transport Minister Howe which set out the determination of the province to build a bridge "at or near" the site of the Falls View Bridge This, said Mr. Bennett, was an admission the province desired to destroy the vested rights of the company.

No Limit Specified

The committee on health insurance said in its report on the scheme: "No definite income limit was specified. This would vary according to the number of dependent sand living costs. Everyone with an income, however small, should make some contribution to the plan."

Contributions should be made by the state, the employer of the insured and the insured person, the committee reported. No division of contribution was suggested but the state, under the committee's plan, would be responsible for collections.

The committee suggested benefits to the insured should include general practitioner service, public-ward hospital service, nursing service, pharmaceutical service with the insured when able paying half the cost; limited dental attention; limited physical therapy and surgical and medical appliances; radiological and pathological service and specialist service.

Eight Teams Enter Southend League

Eight teams have entered the Southend Softball League for this summer: Keene, De Laval, Quaker Oats, Cogs, Hawks, Maple Leafs, Nationals and Cardinals. Keene and Quakers will have some home games, each team playing once on their diamonds. And each of the Southend Loop teams will pay one game this season against City League squads at the Bowl. Bill Prindible, president, conducted the meeting.

Dave Leether of the O.A.S.A. and City League addressed the meeting, dealing with problems confronting organized softball. A double schedule was adopted with the first three teams of each half in playoffs. May 14th was set aside to work on the net and diamond, and each club is to have at least one representative on hand to assist. Practice sessions were listed as follows: May 4th and 11th, Nationals; May 5th and 12th, Hawks; May 6th and 13th, Cogs; May 7th and 9th, Maple Leafs; and May 10th, Cardinals.

Big Australian Loan Is Sold In London

London, May 4 (CP-Havas) AUSTRALIAN Government representatives and an issue syndicate reached agreement here yesterday on the terms of a £7,000,000 (Australian) ($28,000,000) loan soon to be floated to refund Government bonds and to finance Australia's rearmament program. The loan will be put on the market at 99 and will bear 3.75 per cent interest.

Between 1871 and 1874 more than a million head of buffalo were slain each year on western plains of the United States.

HOMAGE IS PAID BY ADOLF HITLER TO ITALY'S FALLEN

ROME, May 4 (A.P.). — Chancellor Hitler began a week's heavily-charged program to-day by paying homage to Italy's Kings and her Unknown Soldier, who lies in the vast white Vittorio Emanuele monument in Venezia Square.

The Fuehrer laid a wreath at the Soldiers' Tomb while bands blared and members of his party saluted. They then went to Capitoline Hill to salute the monument to fallen Fascists.

Premier Mussolini called for his guest at Quirinal Palace in an automobile. Followed by cars, they rode through streets lined with guards and modest sized early morning crowds.

Chilly Rain Falls.

The brilliant so-called "Hitler weather" which followed him into Italy yesterday gave way to chilly rain before the morning round of formalities was completed.

None outside the group of immediate confidants knew what the two dictators had to say in political talks to-day, but Rome diplomats suggested two pertinent points:

1—Premier Mussolini might sound out his guest on the much-talked-of five-power pact among Italy, Germany, Great Britain, France and Poland.

2—Hitler likely will use the occasion to renew his assurances Germany is content to let Brunner Pass (gateway between Austria and Italy) be his frontier, notwithstanding the presence of large numbers of German residents in the Italian Tyrol, which Italy won from old Austria at the end of the Great War.

What Hitler intends to do about Czechoslovakia and its German population doubtless was up for discussion, and there was speculation also on what the two leaders would decide about Spain.

to be set up after the various synods in the country have agreed on procedure, has mounted to $1,000,000 of an estimated $4,000,000.

The pension fund will be built up by contributions amounting to 7½ per cent of the clergymen's salaries, the clergy paying one-third from their salaries and the salary-paying source two-thirds.

Charles Caswell, a lay delegate, criticized the set-up.

"How far have we got away from trust in the the Lord our God?" he asked. "We are going to set up a trust fund. Our Saviour condemned usury and I can find no distinction between usury and interest."

GOLDS ARE STRONG TORONTO MARKET

TORONTO, May 4 (CP).—A strong market developed in the gold shares this afternoon on the Toronto Exchange and other groups tightened up in sympathy, particularly the base metals. The mining groups posted net gains of 1 to 1¾ points with the action fairly heavy in Dome, Lake Shore, Noranda and International Nickel. Reports that the big nations might re-adjust their exchange agreement, giving gold an improved position was evidently the basis of the flurry which tapered off towards the close. Volume around 750,000 shares was the heaviest in a week.

Prospect of a re-adjustment of the monetary accord involving Great Britain, France and the United States was interpreted as a bullish development for the gold stocks.

Western oils ruled narrowly higher, including Royalite and Calgary-Edmonton and in the industrial section the senior oils, utilities, beverages and miscellaneous issues did better.

Primate Urges Understanding In Church Union Discussion

Archbishop Owen Delivers Charge To The Anglican Synod Of Toronto Diocese

TORONTO, May 4. — Frankness and understanding and united prayer were commended to Churchmen "in all matters which have to do with Church re-union" by Arch-Bishop D. T. Owen, Primate of All Canada, in his charge on Tuesday afternoon to the Anglican Synod in St. James' Parish House.

His Grace referred briefly to the subject of Church re-union after reporting upon conferences he had attended while in England last year, one on "Life and Work" in Oxford and the other on "Faith and Order" in Edinburgh, representing about 120 Christian communions and 40 countries.

The Oxford gathering, the Archbishop said, "stands out in my memory as the conference in which it was stressed we must return more often and more simply to the source of action, to God Himself. And it was at Edinburgh that "the need of a deeper and wider theology was stressed."

Understanding Great.

"From all these meetings (one is to be held in Holland this month) I believe we can expect much in the long run," His Grace declared. "The spirit of understanding has been very great. Three heartfelt desires were very evident: To know God better, to understand one another better, and to face the facts with sincerity. But I am convinced that to try to force the pace would be a great mistake, and perhaps disastrous. I believe that at Oxford and Edinburgh we were on the right road. It may be a long road, but I believe it leads to the goal."

Favors Arms Program.

Early in the ninety-ninth session of Synod, Rev. N. C. Wallace, Birch Cliff, presented a notice of motion urging endorsation of Britain's arms program. His proposal, if adopted, would be an amendment to the report on world peace.

This report, by the Executive Committee, endorses the plea of the Diocese of Sydney, Australia, to assist in breaking down the friction and general discord existing to-day "in this mad world."

Mr. Wallace's amendment urges Synod to "believe the best method of giving practical effect to our desire for peace is for the Dominions to support the Government of Britain in its determination to make the Empire so strong that its voice will be listened to with respect by those nations which understand no language but that of force; and, further, this Synod expressed its penitence for any action it took in the past which had (as we now know) the disastrous effect of weakening the military power of the Empire, and pledges its support to the achievement of a strong and united Empire."

A Communion service in St. James' Cathedral opened the session. About 500 delegates from the Diocese are attending. Canon Sawers was elected Honorary Clerical Secretary and James Nicholson, Honorary Lay Secretary.

More attention should be paid to religious instruction in the Public Schools of Ontario, Right Rev. A. R. Beverley, Sufragan Bishop of Toronto, urged. He pointed to Department of Education regulations allowing this instruction by a clergyman before or after school hours and the program of studies, stressing the value of religious training for children. He suggested this recommendation would be effective in all schools if Churchmen co-operated with, and urged upon, Boards of Education its importance.

Quiet Hour Planned.

Attention was drawn during the Archbishop's charge to the "Quiet Hour," a new venture this year, to be conducted for Synod by His Grace in St. James' Cathedral from 12.00 noon to 12.50 o'clock to-day.

In urging careful consideration of the report of the Commission on Doctrine in Britain, the Archbishop asked, "How deep do the differences in the Church of England go?" And again: "Are the cleavages as deep and fundamental as they sometimes appear?"

Hope was expressed that the 400th anniversary of setting up the English Bible would be marked by special services in all churches in the Diocese on June 19.

"The Centenary Year (of the Diocese) should be the occasion of collecting and making of a thankoffering to help strengthen us financially," His Grace said. "It is needed. I know the times are full of difficulty in this sphere, but the sum allotted can be raised if the people feel as they should about the occasion."

CHURCH DEPENDING ON YOUNGER MEN

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 4—(CP) Task of carrying on the church's fight against varying problems lies with its younger ministers, Rev. Samuel Lawrence told the opening sederunt of the Toronto and Kingston Synod of the Presbyterian church in Canada. The three-day sessions conclude here tomorrow.

Mr. Lawrence, who was succeeded as moderator in an election last night by Dr. R. George Stewart of St. John's church, Toronto, referred in an address to seven ministers and 15 elders of the Synod who had died during the past year. Their names were read at a memorial service.

"These men have finished their fight," said Mr. Lawrence. "It is now up to the young men in the Synod to carry on in the church. People are drifting away from the church. Never in history has the minister faced such a difficult task as he does today.

Rev. Hugh Kerr of Shadyside Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh, told delegates that the church today is called on "to solve all problems—to stop war, to curb the liquor traffic, to prevent crime—and all these things can be achieved only by following the straight way and entering the narrow gate."

Dr. Stewart was opposed by Rev. C. E. Kidd, Gananoque, and Rev. J. A. MacInnis, Orillia, in election for Moderator. A standing vote on the first ballot saw Mr. MacInnis drop out and Dr. Stewart had a clear majority over Mr. Kidd on a second ballot.

LANCASTER URGES INSTITUTE LADIES BEAUTIFY TOWN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 4.—The Havelock Branch Women's Institute met Monday afternoon in the Council Chamber, with Mrs. John Armstrong, president, in the chair. There was a very good attendance, the whole membership responding enthusiastically to the roll call, "My Favorite Flower."

In reply to a communication from the Federal institute, in regard to Dominion-wide campaign for safe driving of cars, the local branch endorsed the move by ordering 100 of the White Cross Driver safety pledges.

The relief committee, composed of Mrs. Charles Taylor and Mrs. A. Anderson, was reappointed for another year, as were Mrs. Robert Jones and Mrs. William Rice, of the property committee. Other committees named were: Sewing—Mrs. Easterbrook and Mrs. Anderson; Sick—Mrs. J. Bedford and Miss M. Williams.

The auditors' report showed receipts at $289.51 and expenditures at $218.72, with a bank balance of $70.79. Mrs. Armstrong reported that several new dishes and utensils had been purchased for the Institute cupboard.

Report of the last District Annual held at Warsaw was presented by Mrs. William Rice. The next District Annual is to be held by the Belmont Women's Institute on May 27. Due to lack of necessary accommodation for the number of members expected, the Belmont ladies have made arrangements to hold the meeting in the Havelock Town Hall. Dinner is to be catered for the Institute by the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church.

The Havelock Institute will have five voting delegates at the convention for the first time this year. They will be the president, Mrs John Armstrong; the secretary, Mrs. Clare Price, and Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, Mrs. William Rice, and Miss Eliza Wright.

The secretary was instructed to send a letter of thanks to the Public School teachers for their co-operation in serving milk to the pupils in the lower rooms during the last term. Report of the cemetery fund was given by Mrs. Armstrong, who said that answers to their appeal had been very good, although many were still expected.

Beautiful Havelock.

Special speaker for the afternoon was Mr. T. P. Lancaster, who chose as the subject of his address, "A more beautiful Havelock." Mr. Lancaster, much noted for the beauty of his flower garden at his home in this village, is a strong advocate of flowers and trim lawns as a beautifying process. When the Horticultural Society was inaugurated several years ago this method was strongly pressed and the results may now readily be seen, especially about the Town Hall.

Beauty spots in Canada, he said, are second to none, the Dominion surpasses all in natural scenery. Children love the beautiful array of color and variety to be found here.

"Rock-gardens" are especially suitable for beautifying one's garden, and he gave thorough instructions in the method of building one and what materials to use.

Mr. Lancaster issued a special appeal to the Institute members to beauty their homes, gardens and streets, that we may have "A more beautiful Havelock." He closed by reading a poem entitled "My Neighbor's Roses."

Demonstration on how to make a braided rug was given by Mrs. A. Anderson and of a hooked rug by Mrs. Charles Roberts. Both exhibited beautiful examples of this type of work.

For the June meeting, Mrs. F. Wrightly volunteered to act as lunch convenor and "Bring a friend" was selected as the roll call.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by a committee composed of Mesdames Roberts, Colquhoun, Puffer, Fennell and Anderson and Miss McBurney.

NEW DEVALUATION OF FRENCH FRANC?

PARIS, May 4 (A.P.). — Possibility a new devaluation of the franc was being decided was reported in French financial circles to-day after revelation that the Cabinet met with President Albert Lebrun in a secret meeting.

The session followed all-night conversations by Premier Edouard Daladier, Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, and Finance Minister Paul Marchandeau, and telephone communications during the night with Great Britain and the United States, signatories with France of the tripartite monetary accord.

Rankers reported stabilization of the franc was under consideration at 175 to the pound and 35 to the dollar. The franc has been fluctuating between 32 and 33 to the dollar the past month.

Premier Daladier, it was announced, will address the nation in the evening. It was scheduled for 3.00 p.m. E.S.T.

Ministers said the Cabinet discussed many financial matters, including national defence loan details, which they said would be announced within 48 hours.

Drying Up At The Source

Chester Walters, provincial Controller of Finances, when appearing before the Rowell commission, talked a good deal of common sense. He said plainly that the large collection of money from estates of deceased persons could not be maintained. Much of the revenue which the province is now securing from this source is from arrears. That means that the estates existed and were founded some years ago, and the present government has found a means of taking something of monetary advantage from past effort. This source of income is but temporary and in a short time it will drop at least $8,000,000 a year.

Mr. Walters said also if the Dominion government did not reduce its extent of income taxation in the upper branches there would be little left in years to come to tax from estates by way of death levies. The logic of such reasoning becomes apparent.

The theory of soaking the rich when looking for increased governmental revenue is popular; it appeals to a number of folk as exactly the proper way to do business. That is, if governments want money—and they do—then let them take it in large quantities from those who have it. The weak spot in such a theory is that it is extremely short-sighted. It may provide revenue for the moment but the degree in which large revenue is taken from such sources determines the length of time such sources will remain productive.

There are too many agencies today working against the piling up of fortunes which create estates. (1) There is the increasing taxation which is placed upon a man's business by federal and provincial governments; (2) there are the large contributions which such an individual must make each year by way of income tax to the province and Dominion; (3) there is the known fact that a large portion of an estate is going to the government.

The cure for this is not popular with governments because it means reducing expenditure and getting government demands down to the point where they will coincide with the ability of the people to pay and where they will not dissipate the present sources of revenue. In short it means there is a well-defined limit past which taxation cannot be driven. Mr. Walters admits the Ontario government has found that to be a fact.

They Must Pay More

France has joined the tax increasers with a boost of eight per cent. An additional $120,000,000 was needed mostly for armament, and the government did as all other governments are forced to do—take it from the people.

Taxation is already high in France, but it is going higher. The French are not a particularly wealthy class. Outside of the larger cities much of the population is of the peasant class, simple and contented people who live by working on the land and their returns for that sort of work are small enough. We dare say there are many of them who know nothing at all about what their government in Paris is doing. They return to their villages late in the day from their work in the fields, and when the new day comes they are off early to renew their toil. They know little else than work, and yet in some way or other these new taxes or a portion of them will trickle through to these peasants.

They are not particularly interested in military matters apart from the time when their men may be drawn to the army. We are quite certain they have no desire to go forth and take territory from any other nation. If they were merely left alone they would ask for little besides. Yet they must by effort and sacrifice be prepared to hand over more of their few francs to the government.

Buying And Selling

Harry Leader, M.P. for Portage la Prairie, brought up an argument which the farmer often enough presents when discussing the prices of agricultural implements. That is, the comparative value of what the farmer has to buy and what he has to sell. In this case the comparison had to do with buying various implements and paying with them with the wheat which might be produced at various times.

For the purpose of these comparison the years from 1913 to 1936 were included. Mr. Leader said he preferred to start his comparison with the year 1913 because at that time the farmer's dollar bore a reasonable comparison to the prices he had to pay for his products. The year 1932 was the one when the farmer was at the greatest disadvantage owing to the low price he was receiving for his wheat. Summarized the comparison runs this way:

In 1913 the farmer could exchange 25 bushels of wheat for a walking plow, but in 1932 it would have required the handing over of 56 bushels to secure the same plow.

A binder could have been secured in 1913 if the farmer took 193 bushels of wheat to the implement dealer, while in 1932 it would have been necessary for him to have delivered 500 bushels.

Lumping a number of items it is found that on the basis of 1913 prices it would have been possible to take 762 bushels of wheat and purchase a walking plow, double disc drill, hay rake, binder, mower, disc harrow, gang plow and a wagon, while for the same assortment in 1932 it would have been necessary to deliver 2,008 bushels.

Admittedly that array of figures proves something or other, but the difficulty is in making practical application of the argument. If the price of wheat were to run up as it did in 1920 the binder could be secured for 110 bushels of wheat. But taking the broader view it does show that the farmer is at a disadvantage and that the price of manufactured articles rises to a higher level than does farm produce. And once the prices have gone up they stay up more than do farm prices.

The truth is there is no fixed relationship between what a farmer or any other person buys and sells. All those who purchase experience the same thing. Their meat dollar, coal dollar, butter dollar and so on has a different value each year and often enough each season. Mr. Leader's argument makes an interesting comparison, but his problem is going to become real when he seeks to apply what he would regard as remedial action.

Different Today

Prince Louis Ferdinand, 30 was married to the Grand Duchess Kira, 29, at Potsdam, which is but a short distance away from Berlin. After the ceremony the couple left by train for Doorn, Holland, where they will again be married in a Protestant ceremony at the home of the exiled Wilhelm Hohenzollern, former ruler of Germany. The wedding attracted little attention in the world. Germany was at the moment so taken with the departure of Hitler for his visit at Rome with Mussolini that papers made small mention of it.

A few years ago it would have been a great event, not only as a wedding but as a political and international alliance between Germany and Russia. The bride is the daughter of the Grand Duke Cyril, pretender to the lost throne of old Russia, connecting link with the butchered Romanoffs. The groom is a son of the former Crown Prince of Russia, in line of the house of Hohenzollern, the last reigning member of which was ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, now in exile at Doorn.

The husband has been working for a time in an automobile plant in Detroit; a few years back the question of occupation would not have been a matter for consideration at all. The shadow of Stalin in Russia and Hitler in Germany changed a great international event into a modest ceremony which received scant notice.

A Surprised People

If there is any distinction in being the most surprised congregation in the country then that distinction would go to the folk who attend Yorkminster Baptist church in Toronto when they heard Rev. W. A. Cameron announce on Sunday morning that he was resigning his pastorate. It had been taken for granted he would never leave that church as long as he was able to continue his work. When he was a young fellow just graduated from college he was called to Bloor St. Baptist church. That was thirty years ago. He had no trouble getting his church filled on Sunday evening and until the new church was built he used an uptown theatre for the Sunday evening services for six years, and had regularly a congregation there of 3,000. It was stated at the time it was the largest Sunday evening congregation in the world. The other occasion when he surprised his congregation was when he announced during the early days of the World War that he was going overseas as a private in the ranks.

Naturally the membership of Yorkminster church will be asking who is going to take Mr. Cameron's place. It is one of those situations where the pastor and the church have become one and the same thing as there has been the one pastor for thirty years. The Toronto man says he wants some time to study and travel, and one can readily understand such a feeling. The successor to W. A. Cameron will have to be prepared to do a man-size piece of work.

Let Them Give The Answer

What is described as a "fiery exchange" took place in the House of Commons between Hon. R. B. Bennett and Tom Reid, Liberal member for New Westminster, B.C. Mr. Reid started the thing going by a charge that in the days of the Bennett government there had been a padded payroll in a relief camp, and also there had been $72,000 worth of stores which could not be accounted for. Mr. Bennett assured the House that political patronage was in operation generally in the country today and mentioned Kingston, the riding of the Minister of Labor, as an example. Other members said it was difficult or impossible for those who were not supporters of the government to find employment in relief work projects today.

Having a "fiery exchange" on such a question in the House of Commons is not what the people of the country want. They know well enough that these fiery exchanges mean nothing at all, and that they are just as much plain bunk. It is an old political habit when such a change is made by one party that the other shall say the same thing was going on when the party now in opposition was in power.

What the Canadian people are plainly entitled to in such a situation is to be told the truth. The money which is at stake to pay for political patronage belongs to them and they are entitled to a strict accounting of it to the last dollar. Having Tom Reid M. P. rise to say that during the rule of the last Conservative government there was a padded payroll and $72,000 worth of goods which could not be found, and then hearing Mr. Bennett state the same sort of thing was going on under the present government is not the answer.

Our public men should be wise enough to see that by making such charges and doing nothing more about them they are weakening the cause of government and public service in the eyes of the whole people. They are fond enough at times of claiming that the press and the public in general are overly critical of men in public positions, but what they are now doing to themselves is a more severe indictment of public life in general than the press has ever attempted.

What is needed and what must be done is that the plain truth be told. And it can be told. The public has been patiently putting up large sums of money for relief expenditure and it has been trusting the government implicity in the handing out of that money. If it has not been properly spent then there has been a betrayal of public trust. It would be well for the House of Commons to stop in its tracks right now and have this matter settled. The degree of confidence which the public can place in our own governing bodies past and present is the issue at stake, and that issue has been raised by members of parliament themselves. Having raised the issue they should answer it and tell the truth about the way in which the money in question has been spent.

NOTE AND COMMENT

According to the leader of Quebec's Fascists democracy is a destroyer of authority and efficiency. We hope.

The Mounties have been ordered to see that transients do not steal rides on trains. And that looks like a fair-sized job—even for the redcoats.

The mystery is how these hit-and-run drivers the police all over Ontario are chasing do not run into each other some times.

A story from Toronto says that small homes are scarce in that city. Peterborough is evidently not the only place that is experiencing that difficulty.

Four prisoners have escaped from the Indiana State Prison. If is often to get folk into jail across the border and sometimes just about as difficult to keep them there.

Mr. Pouliot's attack upon the chairman of the National Employment Commission is the kind of outburst that makes many persons wish that Mr. Pouliot himself was in the ranks of the unemployed in so far as parliamentary activity is concerned.

NAMES

(By A. R. K.)

¶ A little baby down the street, is pink and firm and very sweet, I saw her yesterday; she's but a few days old I know, and cannot yet start out and go, or yet come out and play.

¶ They want to name this child I know, and they have names now row on row, grandmothers can't be missed; and all the aunts have choices too, that's how suggestions came and grew, to make so great a list.

¶ And then there's Susan, Kate and Jean, and several other names between, each full of hope and bliss; they vaguely hint and even threat, they'll get their handles tied up yet, upon this little miss.

¶ The parents have some notions too, and know just what they want to do, their plans were long since laid; but when the relatives join in, they make a strange and fearful din, and they become afraid.

¶ If all the folk who are enthused, get all their names and titles used, 'twould reach around the block; if this wee baby bore them all, unless she grew up broad and tall—she'd never learn to walk.

Our Statesmen Discuss Relief

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. WOODSWORTH: A few minutes ago the minister seemed to derive some comfort from the "very considerable progress" which had been made in lessening unemployment in this country. I do not think that that expression conveys a correct appreciation of the situation. I notice that in the last year, in April, there were being assisted a grand total of 1,215,476. That dropped gradually until August, when the number assisted was 759,009. Then the numbers began to increase steadily.

Mr. ROGERS: They always do, seasonally.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Yes, quite so. But they are up in March to 1,170,480, almost where they were in the corresponding month of a year ago.

Mr. ROGERS: Chiefly due to drought relief.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Partly to drought relief.

Mr. ROGERS: Chiefly due to that.

Mr. DUNNING: There is a tremendous increase there.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: The minister can say that, and I am not accusing him of purposely trying to slide from under, but I would say that his whole method of handling the situation makes it extremely difficult for us to know where we stand.

Mr. ROGERS: We separate the figures every month. My hon. friend can of course take the totals, but we always separate them.

Mr. DUNNING: Observe the drought relief figures, and that will show the difference immediately. The drought relief figures account for the increase.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: But the point is that there is no material lessening of the problem of unemployment.

Mr. DUNNING: Yes; definitely.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I fail to see it. I have been listening to the statements of the minister—

Mr. ROGERS: If my hon. friend will permit me: he will recall that when I spoke to the resolution before the Easter recess I gave a survey of the actual improvement in unemployment figures of relief in four sections of Canada: the maritime provinces, Ontario and Quebec—central Canada, which of course is chiefly influenced by economic factors—western Canada, and British Columbia. In British Columbia, as I recall it, the improvement was thirty per cent. in the two year period. In the maritime provinces, the improvement was about eighty per cent. In Ontario and Quebec, central Canada, the improvement was roughly forty per cent. in the two year period. The increase in relief figures was in the prairie provinces, and that increase, as I recall it, in Saskatchewan last year was over one hundred per cent.

Mr. DUNNING: That is right. They are all employed.

Mr. ROGERS: Of course you cannot properly speak of those who are receiving drought relief in agricultural areas as being unemployed. I am sure my hon. friend appreciates that.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Quite so. That was why I objected a while ago to including all of these classes needing assistance in one bill. I think it would aid greatly in clearing the situation if we had one bill dealing with the question of unemployment and included in that bill the definite recommendations which this government is prepared to make with regard to how the matter should be dealt with. That is what I am pleading for right along.

As far as the present situation is concerned we have had from the minister a most unsatisfactory statement as to what is likely to be done in British Columbia. Some of us had to take quite an active part in the house three or four years ago, when there was a trek of the unemployed and the Regina trekers, as they were called, were coming east. Does the statement of the minister not mean in effect that this government is going to wait and wait and watch and wait until there are riots in British Columbia, and then when there is rioting we shall turn out the mounted police and people will be killed? Is that what it means?

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Is the minister waiting for that? I know the minister is a human man; I have known him for a good many years.

Mr. ROGERS: Then why suggest he is waiting for that?

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I hate to say that, but that is the logic of the situation, and it does seem to me that those of us who have been through this kind of thing three or four times already must point out the possibilities to the minister. I urge that he ought to take the matter very seriously and not simply "watch" the situation until some untoward incident happens and then be forced to come to the relief of the citizens.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

(Montreal Star)

HOW WOULD you like—

To go out to the woodpile every morning and whack up enough wood for the breakfast fire in the old range?

To hike over to the ice house every morning and get a chunk of ice so ma could keep the milk sweet and the butter firm?

To go out to the well every morning and fill up the water buckets so ma could wash and cook all day?

To trim the wicks on a lot of kerosene lamps and polish the chimneys with old newspapers so you could read at night?

To go to bed every night with the chickens because there wouldn't be anything to keep you awake?

If you would, you'd like to live in the good old days they're always talking about.

Reduce! Then Reduce Some More.

(Letter in Globe and Mail)

TO THE EDITOR of The Globe and Mail: The "whys" in the depression questionaire still have it, because they have not been answered.

Why, after seven years in the depression bog, is one out of every three workers in the United States idle—in the cities, indeed, about two out of every five idle. Didn't the cheerful President start out in high gear five years ago to cure this very thing?

Why are the railways of not only the United States, but Canada as well, in the plight they are? Have they not, all recently increased wage scales to anticipation of increased business? What has happened?

Why is not the pulp and paper industry prospering? Has not both the price and demand for the products been increasing, and output doubled since the depression set in?

And why is the President of the great Republic allowed to squander another four billion in the financial year 1938-39? And why is Canada preparing to copy this suicidal policy of wasting the resources of the country in this pump-priming farce, when the cure-all is so simple? Ah, but did you see what Sir George Paish said a few days ago, that the President is adopting the right policy to save the country from dire disaster? Yes, Sir George is thinking more of business than he is of debt.

And lastly, why are not our political leaders, our enconomists, and a free press, setting forth the remedy for national ills? Have they no antidote or counter-active to offer, or does fear possess them, knowing the real cure is not palatable? Herein, undoubtedly, is the truth revealed.

WHAT, THEN, IS this remedy that is so simple? It is certainly no hidden secret. The man on the street who is blessed with common sense knows very well it is "live within your means," which Canada has not been doing—not within two hundred and fifty million a year—since this depression set in.

The truth, then, is that our domestic economy in Canada does not permit the existing scale of pay for human service, more particularly in monopolistic industry and in the realm of Government, Federal, Provincial and municipal, but this is the "hush" statement you are not hearing.

But what shall we do about it? I grant it is a statesman's job, and he needs a special brand of courage. It is a challenge to our democracy alright, but methinks Hitler or Mussolini could do it. What has to be done, and what would they do?

Here it is—excuse the presumption. The whole scale of remuneration for human service has to be reset on a lower plane, which will mean a reduction in pay of from 5 per cent in lower bracket to 30 per cent. in the higher. Just why, says the man who thinks he is not getting enough pay as it is, but the Dominion Bureau of Statistics answers with factual finding, our whole wage standard is in the average from 20 per cent to 30 per cent. to high and out of alignment with our agricultural base and the price level of commodities. I submit this finding upon grounds of equity, as well as the bald fact that we are not living within our income.

BUT HOW SHALL we proceed to stop increase of debt and balance the budget? Here are some other things that may be done, and for most part ought to be done:

Reduce the number of Provinces to five or six.

Reduce the number of probe commissions and the extravagance that too often is attached thereto.

Put an end to County Councils.

Rule out the Senate Chamber.

And when all this is done and we haven't a balanced budget, reduce some more. All this is only sanctified common sense.

Now, sir, while all this may seem a drastic piece of surgery, have you thought of how urgent is the case and how great will be the results? With the foregoing achieved will any economist or financial writer question the wonder-working results in a revival of confidence throughout the country.

In addition to these reforms, if we can catch the inspiration to open our gates to a select immigration from overseas, and build up our foundations again in a great land-settling campaign, then, and not before, shall a new era be ushered in for this Canada of ours, with democracy in the saddle and privilege cast down.

Why the West Grew Wheat

(From The Chatham News)

THE ONTARIO farmer has been able to stand the stringency of the past few years, and come through it in much better shape than the agriculturalists of Western Canada.

In the west the farmer has one thing to sell, viz., grain. In the east the farmer has not to depend on this one line. He has his garden produce, poultry, eggs, butter and stock. The failure of one line does not place him in an embarrassing position.

It is going to be a big problem to make Western Canada a mixed farming country. There are those well acquainted with conditions who say firmly it can never be done. The best answer to this is to point out that in many districts it is already an accomplished fact.

The reason why the west is such an exclusive producer of grain is not hard to arrive at. The great majority of the men who go on the land there have very little capital. In common with those who have the cash, they go west with the one object in view—to make money. Growing grain offers the easiest way out. The agents for the implement firms are ready to sell the necessary machinery on easy terms. The farmer has not to wait long for the harvest, and he requires no buildings of any account to take care of his crops. So it is not to be wondered at that grain growing becomes at once the most followed industry in Western Canada.

The change for the better must come, eventually. The farmers themselves will realize that growing crop after crop, without fertilizing the land as it should be fertilized, is hastening the day when they will have a run-down tract of land, unsaleable and of little value. When it comes to scientific and well-seasoned agriculture, the Ontario farmer can show his western brother a few things yet.

HAS SCOTS BLOOD.

(Glasgow Bulletin)

MRS. CHAMBERLAIN, wife of the Prime Minister, told a secret recently—she is afraid of thunder. "When I was a month old," she said, "my mother engaged a Scottish nurse whose name was Scott. She was very superstitious and when a thunderstorm came on she always wrapped me and my brother in blankets and put us in cupboards. I have always been afraid of thunder since." Mrs. Chamberlain, who was presiding at the annual concert of the London Gaelic Choir, stated that it was through this same nurse that she received her first knowledge of Gaelic songs. Mrs. Chamberlain told the choir that she was not Scottish—"I am sorry to say." She was born in Edinburgh and was half Irish. "The Prime Minister has Scottish blood in him," she added, "and not so very far back he had an ancestor who was called Hamilton and who was a Scottish minister. Very few people know about that."

BE PREPARED.

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

THE STORY about a boy falling down the mountain side and being immediately afterwards given first aid by a group of Boy Scouts who happened to be on the scene is a fine tribute to the work of the Boy Scout Association.

The motto of this organization is Be Prepared. It is merely a matter of calculation to prove that if sufficient among the population are prepared there will always be someone on hand to render service in an emergency, whether it is someone falling down a mountain side, someone else falling into the water or suffering accident of any kind.

SMOKE IN THE HILLS.

(Halifax Chronicle)

THE WEATHER grows warmer and Nova Scotians are beginning to enjoy the best of the Spring season. Anglers are going to the lakes and rivers and others are taking to the open road for a change of scene and air. It is a pleasant season. The sun begins to give some warmth, signs of life are on every hand, and the whole world is filled with anticipation of growth and bloom. The countryside has a beauty peculiar to the season. Sturdy horses draw ploughs through the rich earth and blue smoke curls up from the hills as men of the soil clear their land of brush.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

AND GOD said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them. . . . And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. . . .

Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them. . . . But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. . . . And the Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it.—Gen. i, 26, 27, 31; ii, 1, 6, 7, 15.

A ROOSEVELT "WE."

WITHIN THE past few days the New York Herald Tribune has published a number of letters protesting against and commenting on a speech delivered by James Roosevelt, the President's son and No. 1 assistant, in which he used the word "we" in a manner that proved offensive to many who read it. "Jimmy," who is said to be his father's choice for the governorship of New York as a stepping stone to the presidency, rid himself of the following utterance in his address:

"We have learned that when we go ahead with public works and work relief your average income goes up and we come closer each year to balancing the budget."

All his critics do not take the matter seriously. One writer recalls the oldtime observation that those entitled to use "We" were kings, editors and men with tapeworms." Does "Jimmy" come under any of those categories? He is not yet king, he certainly isn't an editor, and as for the tapeworm we have no inside information upon which to base an opinion.

VETERAN TRAVELLER.

(New York Sun)

AMONG THE Queen Mary's passengers was William Ellis Scull of Philadelphia, a veteran of many crossings who has witnessed the evolution of ocean liners from the old sidewheel paddle type to the craft of the present day. As he descended the gang-plank he recalled that he had made his first crossing in 1869 on the Cunarder Scotia, a paddle wheeler. This ship was the pride of the Atlantic in its day.

Mr. Scull had little to say except that he had been crossing year after year and "supposed" that was his "only claim to fame."

REV. H. B. NEAL ELECTED HEAD OF ROTARIANS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4. — Rev. H. B. Neal succeeded Charlie Davidson as president of the Campbellford Rotary Club, when officers for the year beginning July 1 next were elected at the noonday luncheon held at the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday. Principal Davidson of Emmanuel College, Toronto, was the guest speaker for the occasion. Prefacing his remarks by the statement that politics and religion are the men's jobs of life, he drew attention to the fact that this year the Bible is celebrating its 400th anniversary, having first been produced in England in the year 1538. Many were the difficulties to overcome in producing the early editions, but with the coming of printing it was made more accessible. In the year 1500 the Bible was produced in 20 languages —but not in English. It was not until 1525 that Tyndall's New Testament appeared and ten years later in 1535 before the whole Bible was produced under the direction of Myles Coverdale. Between the years 1538 and 1604 many translations were made in English and these included the Rheims Dewey Bible. The speaker pointed out that the Book was to a great extent the result of work done by scholars of the 16th century as well as Protestant and Roman Catholic clergy.

5,000 Languages.

It was the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society which began in 1804 that has given the world translations of at least part of the Book and little over a thousand languages. Drawing attention to the fact that there are some 5,000 dialects and languages in the world, Principal Davidson pointed out the Bible now exists in more languages than any other book, and is more extensively used. The religion of the Bible is said to be the foundation of the seriousness of the English race and a part of its heritage. "It comes to us with extraordinary simplicity supporting simple straight morality as well as a sense that the things that really matter are not those we can see or touch but contact with the eternal order."

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Rev. Harold B. Neal; secretary, Earl Bell; directors, A. J. Armour and S. A. Maguire.

POLLY AND HER PALS — By Cliff Sterrett

INSURGENT DRIVE PLANNED ON TERUEL

HENDAYE, France, May 4 (AP). —Insurgent and Government troops were being shifted to the Castellon front to-day in preparation for an insurgent drive from Teruel toward Valencia.

General Franco, facing formidable Government positions behind a line of rivers on the eastern front from the Pyrenees to Tortosa, was said to have weakened his armies in those sectors, leaving the Government superior in manpower.

The reinforced insurgent right flank, extending from Teruel northeast to Aliaga, was moving slowly forward in a south-easterly direction through the Gudar Mountains.

The insurgents were seeking to gain control of northern approaches to the Teruel Highway to Sagunto where Government fortifications have blocked the road to Valencia.

At least 50 persons were killed and many wounded yesterday when insurgent artillery again cut loose on battered Madrid. Shells fell in the centre of the city, scattering, killing and maiming home-going Madrilenos.

Two shells hit the British Embassy building and the British Consul's home was struck three times. No one was injured.

THIEVES ACTIVE IN KINMOUNT AREA

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, May 4. — Chicken thieves still continue their activities in this district, and to date the Provincial Police have been unable to run down the guilty parties. Norman Williams, who resides two miles from Kinmount, is the latest sufferer. Forty prize Barred Rocks, which Mr. Williams had for breeding purposes, and which were valued at $130, were taken from his coop some time on Sunday night. The theft was not discovered until Monday morning when the hired man went out to feed the birds. The birds were carried one hundred yards to the road, where they were believed to be loaded on a truck. Provincial Constable Adair announced that he believed he had trace of the thieves.

The local police have been informed that three burglaries were perpetrated in Beaverton on the week-end. The home of R. E. White, B. Jude and Alex. White were entered and household articles carried off.

The town council Monday night passed a bylaw abolishing all night parking on Kent street, the town's main thoroughfare. One member of the council charged that commercial travellers made a garage out of the highway. Chief of Police Lawler complained that motorists were abusing the privilege of double parking by leaving their cars parked behind angle-parked vehicles.

Street paving in Lindsay will commence immediately on Government authority relative to Queen, Lindsay and Russell streets is received. Russel street will also be paved from Sussex to Albert streets. The Warren Paving Company has its equipment ready for the work.

The local Hydro Commission has announced that it will discontinue the practice of free installation of water heaters and electric ranges. These have been installed free of charge for the past five years.

Bottle Of Iodine Is Upset By Baby

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 4. — David, 18-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Moore of Asphodel Township, had a narrow escape from death on Tuesday afternoon when he swallowed part of a bottle of iodine. The infant's condition is reported improved this morning.

Dr. J. A. MacDonald of Hastings worked for nearly three hours to induce vomiting which would bring about the baby's recovery. The baby had crawled up on the table unnoticed and when discocevred there was evidence of iodine spilled on the table top. The baby's face was covered with iodine, indicating he had drunk some of it. He is resting at home, recovering from the experience.

South Africa will make further search for oil this year.

PUBLICLY-OWNED NATIONAL RAILWAY IS LIBERAL STAND

LONDON, Ont., May 4—(CP). — The Liberal party stands for the "integrity and maintenance" of the Canadian National Railways as a publicly-owned and operated institution, according to Ross Gray, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Lambton West.

Addressing the annual convention of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association here last night, Mr. Grey criticized what he said was a movement under way for unification of Canada's two great railway systems. Statements by Sir Edward Beatty, President of the C.P.R., about economies that could be effected were "but generalities," he said.

Hon. L. J. Simpson, Ontario Minister of Education, told the convention banquet that great changes, particularly in the field of education, had taken place in Canada in the past 75 years. In 1875, he said, Ontario's outlay on education was $503,000; last year it was $11,250,000.

Ninety per cent of students have no thought of a university education, only 10 per cent receiving the full benefit of the matriculation curriculum, Dr. Simpson said. He recommended a specialized course to meet the talents of the student. "A smattering of subjects is of little use," he added.

Much of the Liberal Party's success in last October's general election in Ontario was due to the work of the women members of the party, Mrs. Mitchell F. Hepburn, wife of Ontario's Premier, said in proposing the toast to the association. Mrs. Peter Heenan, wife of the Provincial Minister of Lands and Forests, proposed the toast to Canada.

Senator Cairine Wilson, first woman member of Canada's Upper Chamber, said Canadians do not fully appreciate their country. Until two weeks ago, Senator Wilson added, she herself had not visited all of the provinces.

No Occasion For Harping.

"Canada has a railway problem, but it is not of this generation's making nor of the Canadian National Railways," said Mr. Gray. "Private companies should have been allowed to go into bankruptcy, but as the government has taken them over they would fulfill their obligations. This is no occasion for harping by Sir Edward Beatty and others."

Discussing dissension between Provincial and Federal Liberal organizations, the Lambton West member said: "It is a Liberal trait. It is constructive criticism to keep the party alive and up to date."

Casually referring to Hon. H. H. Stevens, leader and only member of the Reconstruction Party in the House of Commons, Mr. Gray said, "Mr. Stevens is on his way home, and will soon be back in the Conservative ranks." He referred to Mr. Stevens as "one who after his pilgrimage is glad to get back to the Opposition benches."

Health Run Down Housework A Burden

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy instead of sick and miserable, but is it any wonder that when they are run down in health they become nervous and irritable, weak and worn-out, and the lightest household duties seem a drag and a burden?

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills are a remedy that all nervous, tired-out, weary women should take to help them back to the blessing of good health, and when this is done their household duties will be a pleasure instead of a burden.

Mrs. A. K. McLean, Pleasantfield, N.S., writes:—"A short time ago I was in a badly run down and nervous condition. I got so that my housework became a burden to me. I started taking Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills, and now I feel like a different person, and again am able to do all my own housework.

Hereafter I shall always recommend H. & N. Pills to my friends."

CAMPBELLFORD

Students Present Pleasing Program

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4.—Second form students of the Campbellford High School presented a musical program for the entertainment of fellow pupils in the school auditorium on Tuesday afternoon. Vice-President of the Literary Society, Charles Jeffs, presided.

A chorus by the entire form entitled "The Old Apple Tree," came first, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted and a critic appointed. Jack Thomson gave a selection of current news events, following this a chorus of girls gave the well-known "Ti-Pi-Tin," and Miss Eleanor Armour followed with a piano selection. A novelty tap-dancing number by Miss Florence Bertrand received an encore, and a piano selection, encored, by Jack Cassan were also much enjoyed.

The critic, "Kit" Smith, expressed his satisfaction with the program, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

MORRISSEY'S BUNTY LAWLESS IS FAVORED FOR KING'S PLATE

TALK BROWN COLT FOR TOP PLACING IN KING'S PLATE

TORONTO, May 4.—(CP)—Preliminary prepping period finsihed, thoroughbreds being groomed for the 79th running of the King's Plate have rounded the turn to the stretch which will decide the number fit to start in the Canadian turf classic.

Thirty-eight temperamental thoroughbreds were nominated for the mile-and-a-furlong test May 21. Before the training period ends two or three days before the big event, turf experts expected 23 of the nominees would be eliminated from the list of possible starters—leaving a field of 15 to trot to the post.

A small, brown colt, Bunty Lawless, the pride of Willie Morrissey of Toronto, came out of winter quarters and startled railbirds by his soundness and immediately was established favorite. Unbounded enthusiasm by Morrissey, including a few side-bets—one for $2,000—helped place the colt in the favored position.

If he survives the grueling training grind ahead and continues the speed and stamina shown in workouts so far, he is sure to start as top-heavy choice. The way Morrissey is spreading money, only a major catastrophe will keep Bunty Lawless in the stable the day of the race.

Bunty Lawless displaced Suffern, H. C. Hatch's nominee for a third straight plate triumph, as early favorite. Suffern, leading two-year-old winner last year, has shown a desire to run in workouts to date, but his efforts lack the air of completeness and sureness surrounding Bunty Lawless. Hatch won the race in 1936 with Monsweep and was victor last year with Goldiure.

Canada's richest horse race is open to Ontario-bred three and four-year-olds which have never won a race other than those for juveniles. Besides taking the major portion of a $7,500 added purse, the owner of the winner receives 50 guineas, donated by the King. The guineas were donated in 1859 by Queen Victoria and continued by succeeding monarchs. They were won first in 1860 by Don Juan, owned by James White.

For four years, 1860-63, the race was run at Carlton, now West Toronto, before comparatively small crowds. Subsequently, under political pressure the race was made itinerant and travelled about between Guelph, London, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Whitby, Kingston, Ottawa, Barrie, Woodstock, Prescott and Picton. In 1883, however, Queen Victoria sanctioned an understanding that the race be established permanently at Woodbine Park, pictuesque track on Lake Ontario shores in Toronto's east end.

Interest in the race soared through the years until now it is known as the oldest continually-run race in North America. Although open only to Ontraio-bred horses, the race is hailed across Canada in the manner of England's Grand National or the Kentucky Derby, the United States historic race.

Miss Seagram

Lacking from the lineup which will go to the post this year, will be the famed black and yellow silks of the Seagram racing stable of Waterloo, Ont. Since 1891 the colors have been carried to victory 20 times. The powerful stable was broken up last year after the death of Edward Seagram. Available horses were auctioned and when nomination blanks were mailed this year J. E. Frowde Seagram, who carried on in a small way, had no thoroughbred eligible to name.

Despite the fact Bunty Lawless and Suffern will likely start as public choices, experts agree the race is more open this year than for several years past. Juvenile test races last year failed to crown a champion and railbirds are out bright and early to watch workouts—hoping to get a line on some horses that might have been overlooked in the fuss centred on Suffern and Bunty Lawless.

Mrs. H. Talbot's Skyros, G. M. Hendrie's Horus and Grand Dame, R. S. McLaughlin's Bucharest and Red Pirate will be tabbed closely when the training grind becomes tough. That's when a horse shows his true worth. Some come to form too soon and are a bit stale at race-time. Others are slow in rounding to their best.

Based on juvenile performances Suffern, Bunty Lawless, Grand Dame and Skyros rate about equal. Bunty Lawless started 10 times, and won three races, one the Clarendon Plate. He finished second six times.

Suffern started four times and was victor once—winner of the $5,000 added Mrs. Orpen Cup and Saucer, a preview of the King's Plate. He finished out of the money the other three trips to the post. Backers of the Hatch nominee claim the two-year-old races were too short and that Suffern would show his true running form over a distance, as he did in the Cup and Saucer, a mile-and-an-eighth race.

BARNEY ROSS OPENS TRAINING

GROSSINGER LAKE, N.Y., May 4.—Returning here for the sixth time of his colorful career, Barney Ross has settled down to the serious grind of preparing for the defense of his world welterweight crown against Henry Armstrong at the Madison Square Garden Bowl on May 26.

In his third defense of the title since regaining the diadem in 1935 against Jimmy McLarnin—in 1934 Ross won and lost the crown with McLarnin — Barney anticipates an engagement which will call upon his greatest efforts to achieve success. While appreciating the power in the fists of Armstrong, Ross is nevertheless confident that he possesses a tyle which will bewilder his opponent.

New York Rejects I.B.C. Affiliation

NEW YORK, May 4. — The New York Athletic Commission on Tuesday rejected proposed affiliation with the International Boxing Conference, an organization recently formed to standardize fight rules and clear world title claims.

The preference to remain an independent organization was voted at the Commission's first meeting since return of Chairman John J. Phelan from the I.B.C. session in Rome.

Chief objections to I.B.C. rules were recognition of bouts less than 15 rounds for world championships and failure to require boxers to wear foul-proof protective belts.

Golf Facts

NUMBER 9

Golfers seem to be specialists at heart. Most of them insist upon developing their skill with certain clubs for some reason. Perhaps this trend is due to the early success that these players have with some clubs.

For example, you can do exceptionally well with a No. 8 iron when it comes to lofting the ball and having it land on the green with little or no roll. Getting along so well with this club in one spot soon leads you to try it for longer distances or trickier lies. The result is that you use the iron for shots that should be played with a No. 5, 6 or 7 iron. And in using the more lofted club for too much distance, you are actually changing your swing to suit this abnormal practice.

The change makes your swing worse, never better. It is all right to have confidence in certain clubs but it is not right to let this confidence lead to bad practices. You should try to play all clubs equally well and you will be able to when you learn that such a result depends on what success you have with your swing as a whole.

Work on the fundamentals of your swing and you will have no need to fear some of the spots on the course which are now proving too much of an obstacle for you.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

TOOK AN ankle (in fact two) into the lacrosse arena south on George St. last gloaming and watched the guys work out. Lot of color down there, especially as they are daubing a couple of coats of green paint now on the inside fence. Ought to have a few splashes of red on it, what? Coach Frank Randle had a good turnout, and they stage an impromptu game, naturally somewhat one-sided since one squad had no goalie. One of the railbirds was telling us that he watched one of the practise tilts recently and it was enlivened by two fights! This comes under the heading of "stiff workouts" for those rough-and-ready lacrossers. Next big drill will be Friday at six p.m., and then Saturday after lunch.

BILL PRINDIBLE is calling a City Baseball League meeting for Friday e'en at eight in Duffus' and all interested in minor baseball here are urged to attend. Bill isn't sure anything will come of the meeting but several prospective team managers have asked him about such a session, and he felt it was well worth a try. Possibly four bantam or juvenile teams might line up—if not juniors—in an independent city circuit for this summer. 'Tis hoped there will be a good turnout at the gabfest Friday night.

AND NOW we wished we had maybe mentioned "Did" Reeves in the hockey headlines a few times last winter. Never know when you'll need a friend at court in a strange town. Or even in your own borough. Jim Lehane, secretary of the local lacrosse club, was telling us the other day that Reeves has been appointed a cop in Lindsay, starting the first of May. "Did"—and we never knew where he got that nickname—played a little hockey last winter here for Southenders, who battled their way through to the Senior City Hockey League title. After mixing in ye olde Blood and Thunder Loop, no doubt the former well-known Scugog athlete felt that anything that might happen to him as a limb of the law would be just a laugh. Anyway, our very best to P. C. Reeves.

SPEAKING OF cops, we notice in the list of players in the T.A.B.A. the name of one John Murray with Danforth Aces. We believe it is the same Bud Murray who played second for the Petes a couple of seasons ago, later catching on with the Toronto police force. But where is that other former Petes' player. Lefty Lepper, who also made the Toronto force? Other familiar names in the T.A.B.A. list this season are: George Blazetich and Walter Jeffers, last year with Napanee, and Ken Long, who played for the Petes in '37, all with G. W. Grads now. And Dave Osborne of Bowmanville now with Danforth. Also Ross Thornton, junior ballster here last summer, who is signed up with Webbers' senior squad.

QUITE A gang attended the Petes' workout last eve in Riverside, playing catch, roping flies in the outfield, doing a bit of batting, and having an infield drill. Whilst the hurlers loosened up the soupbones. The four righthanders, Kitchen, Jakafby, Whitehill and Scriver, are coming along nicely. All of last year's Petes have been out for practise (though Long, of course, left town) except Starr. He is quite doubtful about playing baseball this summer. There are a few newcomers on hand, too, and several former juniors. It is just a bit chilly for good ball practises yet, but it won't be long. A number of railbirds take in most of these workouts. The C.O.B.L. season opens here in less than three weeks.

AROUND ABOUT 30 boys turned out last night at the Exhibition Grounds for the initial junior baseball call to arms of the season. Herb Ralph, not showing the scars of past playoff upsets, must have had the cockles of his diamond-lovin' heart warmed at this response. Plenty of last year's Rotarian, a number of former juveniles and bantams and several new lads to ball here were on deck. They held a very light workout, not trying any strenuous stuff so soon. Maybe another practise there Friday e'en, but we hadn't heard definitely at this writing. Lions Club may run this junior entry in the Lakeshore Junior League this season. More again.

SOUTHEND SOFTBALL Loop collected eight entries the other p.m. and will start its schedule a week from next Monday. Teams include Keene, DeLaval, Cardinals, Hawks, Maple Leafs, Cogs, Quaker Oats and Nationals. Quakers and DeLaval wil lhave a game with each team on their home diamonds through the season. And the Southend Loop will send each of its teams to the Bowl once during the summer to play in the City League. A double schedule was adopted with the first three teams in each half in playoffs. Saturday, May 14th, was set aside to fix up the Brinton diamond and net, and managers are to have at least one team respresentative on hand for this work. Practise hours there are: Wednesday, May 4th and 11th, Nats; May 5th and 12th, Hawks; May 6th and 13th, Cogs; May 7th and 9th, Leafs; May 10th, Cardinals.

THREE TEAMS said "I will" last eve at the men's City Softball League get-together in Duffus', Motorists, Chuck Dorrington's and a crew put in by Jim Ellis. Names of the latter two teams are unknown yet. The circuit is still hopeful of getting one more entry, and meantime will have the eight Southend League squads playing once each uptown—a good move, that. Officers are: President, Bob Simmons; first vice-prexy, Fred Scates; second vice-president, George Dormer; secretary-treasurer, Max Glover; executive, Dave Leether, Harley Weir and Percy Harrison. A good gang of softball workers. Umps and groundkeeper should apply to the executive. Play will commence May 26th, and one more meeting will be held on the 17th.

DESE, DEM and dose: Westclox gals had a softball workout at the Bowl last gloaming . . . . Jim Ellis' gang of men softballers will drill at six Thursday twilight at the Bowl; all positions are open . . . We're glad to see Fred Scates return as a City Softball Loop officer; h dropped out several seasons ago after being very active in this circuit . . . . Daylight Saving here this year runs from June 12th to Sept. 5th, and local loops should draw up their schedules accordingly. . . . . All Saints and Knox Seniors open the church softball season at six Thursday night in the Oval . . . . St. John's Ambulance Assoc. is willing to supply trained men to sports events if the executives will apply to Div. Supt. L. E. Tomkins or Div. Secretary A. O. Phillips . . . . Spook Scriver was holding down first (but he's still a good pitcher) in the Petes' infield workout last evening . . . . And Rowan Chute of the lacrossers looked right cute in his life-preserver padding at the gutted-stick session yestiddy . . . . Some of the young athletes around here are figuring on a bit of golfing this summer . . . . That E.O.B.A. ball loop certainly revived with five or six teams to start . . . . That's all for today.

WEASEL KILLS 210 CHICKS

BOSS JOE TRINER SPEAKS HIS MIND

CHICAGO, May 4—Now that New York has the Joe Louis - Max Schmeling heavyweight title fight, it also can have any proposed Louis-Max Baer bout, so far as Joe Triner, Illinois boxing chief, is concerned.

The chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, irked at the loss of the Louis-Schmeling attraction, which he said Promoter Mike Jacobs had promised Chicago, declared yesterday a Louis-Baer fight here was out.

Triner's blast was directed at Jacobs and his proposal that Chicago could have a Baer-Louis match if Louis defeated Schmeling June 22.

Triner said he would approve a Schmeling-Baer affair, or Louis and anyone else, but he did not believe Baer would have "the proper mental atttitude for a return bout after the trimming he took from Louis."

FISHERMAN PASSES

KINGSVILLE, Ont., May 4—(CP).—Angus B. Girardin, 53, who with his father had been prominent in the Essex county fishing industry for years, will be buried to-day. Mr. Girardin died Saturday. His father, Francis Girardin, 83, died three weeks ago.

The two represented one of the oldest and best-known fishing organizations on Lake Erie, and the son at the time of his death was an executive member of the Fisherman's Association. He is survived by his widow, the former Voila Gray of Orangeville, his brother, and a foster-daughter.

Wise Fox Is Rated Highly By His Canadian Owner

Winnipeg Sportsman Confident His Entry Will Be Among Leaders

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4—(AP).—A Canadian hog-raiser who has turned a horse-racing hobby into a thriving business, figures he'll have something to say about the 64th running of the Kentucky Derby next Saturday.

He is A. G. Tarn, the Winnipeg sportsman, who has his Wise Fox, son of Gallant Fox, 1930 Kentucky Derby winner, entered in Saturday's great race.

"I've got what I consider a mighty fine horse in Wise Fox," said the genial, 45-year-old owner and trainer Tuesday, as he watched his horse cool off after a short breeze.

"He's done everything I've asked of him and if he runs his race Saturday, Stagehand, Fighting Fox and those other horses will at least know they have been in a fiorse race."

Tuesday afternoon ,however, Wise Fox failed to place in the one mile Derby trial won by Maxwell Howard's The Chief, stablemate of Stagehand and also a Kentucky Derby favorite.

Wise Fox caught Tarn's eye at Hialeah Park last winter. Then he was the property of William Woodward and was being trained by James Fitzsimmons, who will saddle Fighting Fox Saturday. The Canadian horseman was willing to pay $5,000 for the colt, but he wasn't sure that was enough. Much to his surprise, Woodward gave Fitzsimmons permission to sell.

Since donning Tarn's black and white silks, the Fox has won three races, including the Louisiana Derby, and finished second in four starts.

"I wouldn't be willing to post that $500 starting fee Saturday if I didn't think he had a chance," declared Tarn. "After all $500 would keep me in betting money for some time. But if he shows anything at all in the trial to-day, he'll be at the post next Saturday."

WINGS NIP BEARS WIN STREAK—JERSEY IN SECOND PLACE

Newark Suffers 10-6 Setback After 7 Straight Victories

Buffalo Trounces Baltimore Orioles In Their Own Park 12-6

NEWARK, N.J., May 4 (CP).—It might be well to look after these Jersey Giants with an eye toward revamping ratings in the International League pennant race.

Everybody has been talking about Newark Bears, but the Jerseys, who were picked as the Dodgers of the circuit a year ago, are in second place behind the Bears and displaying a brand of ball capable of keeping them around or on the top.

The Giants coupled sturdy hitting with tight pitching again yesterday when they trimmed Montreal 5-1 and picked up a game in the standings on the Bears, who were beaten by Rochester 10-6. Buffalo did a "man bites dog" act by trouncing Baltimore Orioles in their own park 12-6.

Roy Joiner, the Giants' veteran lefthander, won his first effort of the season, a well-paced seven-hitter. Ernie Horne led the assault with three for three in the 12-hit attack.

The Red Wings, bounced about considerably by the Bears in the first three games of their series, salvaged the fourth game with a 14-hit offensive led by Estil Crabtree and Jack Sturdy. Bob Bowman, a rookie, did a neat job of stifling the Bears' attack in the late innings.

Buffalo got the same number of hits as the Red Wings in beating Baltimore, but the Orioles kept right on rapping the ball over the fence. Frank McGowan, Pooch Puccinelli and Phil Weintraub hit for the circuit for the Flock, which has 24 homers to its credit thus far this season. The victory gave Buffalo a 3-1 edge in the series and put the Bisons only 31 percentage points behind the third place Orioles.

The Toronto - Syracuse game scheduled for yesterday at the Chiefs' park will be played at a later date.

Thirty-five thousand tons of rails from the United States will be used in new railway lines in North China.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, May 4.—(AP)—Col. Henry P. Edwards, demon press agent for the American League, sends out the following blurb:

"Lou Gehrig has never tasted hard liquor" . . to which Art Cohn of the Oakland Tribune replies: "Babe Ruth did; and so what" . . Jimmy Johnston is back from the coast hollering his head off that Bob Pastor was robbed in his opening western skirmish with Lou Nova last week . . Johnston also is relaying a choice bit of gossip which is interesting (if true) . . . He says Coasters believe one of the major league franchises will be transferred to Los Angeles.

It is the unanimous belief of the Pirates that the Cardinals made the prize boner of their lives in giving up the rookie Johnny Rizzo, now going like a fire engine in left for the Bucs . . up in Beantown they are rating Joe Vosmik, Ben Chapman and Roger Cramer the greatest Red Sox outfield since the days of Speaker, Hooper and Lewis.

CARDS RETAIN PENNANT HOPES NATIONAL RACE

NEW YORK, May 4 (CP).—The Old Gas House gang ain't what it used to be. In fact it hardly has recovered from the shock it received when its great mouthpiece, Dizzy Dean, was sold up the river to Chicago. But with a flock of new gas housers beginning to show promise, St. Louis Cardinals may have their usual piece to say about the National League pennant race.

Latest to encourage the fans' hope that St. Louis may trouble the National League's pennant contenders even if it can't finish on top are Lon Warneke, veteran right hander, and the new battery of Bill McGee and Herb Bremer.

Warneke has won his last two starts in fine style. McGee, getting his first trial as a starting pitcher, probably clinched a job as a ball player when he limited Boston Bees to six hits and fanned six to outpoint the able Lou Fette 3-2. Bremer, who may fill the Cards' demand for a regular catcher, provided the first two runs with a homer and Don Gutteridge made the third the same way.

Dean Back on Mound.

Meanwhile Dean, who retired from a game last week with a sore pitching arm, worked his flipper for seven good innings against the Phillies and got credit for Chicago's 5-2 victory. Diz was hit hard and looked tired when he turned over the job to Charley Root, but the Cubs gave him enough support to make up for any shortcomings.

The victory put the Cubs closer to the top as Cincinnati's Reds brought New York Giants' 11-game winning streak to an undignified end by licking the league leaders 10-2. While Paul Derringer pitched eight-hit ball, the Reds collected six runs and the game in the fifth when Hal Schumacher found his old-time jinx over Cincinnati no longer was effective.

Brooklyn's star rookie, Forrest Pressnell, handed Pittsburg Pirates their fifth straight defeat as the Dodgers manufactured a six-run seventh inning to win 7-2.

A's Going Up.

The American League standings were shuffled as Philadelphia's Athletics hopped from eighth to sixth place and Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees slid past Washington.

With Buck Ross hurling five-hit ball and getting the benefit of a six-run outburst in the third, the A's trimmed Chicago White Sox 7-2. Cleveland's league leaders outlasted the Senators 10-9 as Ken Keltner, rookie third sacker, clouted two homers and a single to drive in six runs.

Old Lefty Grove went 10 innings to beat Detroit 4-3 for his third victory and to become the eighth flinger in major league history to register 2,000 strikeouts. He whiffed six.

Lou Gehrig's first four-ply wallop of the season cheered New York Yankees' fans and helped beat St. Louis Browns 5-1. It came in the four-run first inning. Lou also hit a double and Tommy Henrich tossed in a homer.

Dale Hanover Prepares For Hambletonian

The Hambletonian Stake, classic race for trotters, is a long way off yet, but that's the eventual goal of Dale Hanover as he turns on the speed in a workout in South Carolina. Trainer Billy Dickerson is in the sulky. Before the big race are two "dress rehearsals," the American Stake and the National Stake at Agawam, July 26 and August 6. Dale Hanover continues to rule the favorite for all events in view of his mark of 2.03¼.

SOUND BASEBALL GAME FOR BLIND

OAKLAND, Calif., May 4.—(CP)—"Sound baseball" has enabled the blind to become actual players of the game. Except for a few variations the game is played accordng to regulation indoor baseball rules.

Electric bells and buzzers under the home plate and each base guide runners around the diamond. Rolling of the ball to the home plate increases the batter's chances of hitting it and he uses a hockey stick instead of a bat.

Invented by R. V. Chandler, superintendent of the Industrial Home for the Adult Blind at Oakland, "sound baseball" already has two teams within the institution. They are the Bears and Tigers. Players wear uniforms.

The pitcher—only member of a team required to have full vision—tells the batter when to swing. A base runner is retired by rolling the ball across the base before he gets there—or by rolling the ball in front of him as he advances. When the ball is batted over the fielders' heads it is good for one base. And, one way in particular, the blind baseballers have it over the other players. Under "sound baseball" rules you can't strike out. You keep swinging until you hit the ball.

Ball Moguls Plan Senior Circuit

GALT, Ont., May 4 (CP).—At a meeting of the Intermediate "A" teams of the Intercounty Baseball League held with W. J. Scott, Kitchener, president of the Ontario Baseball Association, and R. M. Phin, Hespeler, president of the Intercounty Baseball League, here Tuesday night it was decided to make a determined effort to revive the four-team senior group of Strathroy, Stratford, Brantford and London.

The Intermediate "A" teams discouraged the idea of adopting an interlocking schedule and claimed they were not prepared to oppose the senior teams in a home-and-home series.

In fact, the intermediates were willing to make a donation to the Brantford club to help pay the travelling expenses to Stratford, Strathroy and London.

Today the London and Stratford clubs will be asked to pay the Brantford team a cash bonus, Strathroy will not be asked to assume part of the obligation.

It is understood the London and Stratford clubs will be assessed somewhere in the neighborhood of $75 to aid the Brantford club.

Brewers Protest Sale Of Winsett

MILWAUKEE, May 4 (A.P.).—L. M. Nahin, business manager of the Milwaukee Brewers, said today he would ask Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis to intervene in the sale of Outfielder Jack Winsett by Brooklyn to Jersey City of the International League.

Nahin said he would take telegrams and letters bearing the signature of Larry MacPhail, vice-president of the Brooklyn Club, to Landis at Chicago to-day. The Milwaukee Club has been dickering with Brooklyn more than a month in an effort to get Winsett, Nahin said.

3 SQUADS ENTER SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Three teams entered the Men's City Softball League last night, while the Southend Softball League may put teams into this circuit for a game apiece during the season. At a well-attended session held in Duffus' last evening, considerable re-organization business was done. President Dave Leether conducted this meeting.

Teams entering were: one by Shorty Barrett, known as Motorists; one by Chuck Dorrington, unnamed yet; and one by Jim Ellis, managed by Pat Hayden—the name uncertain for the present. The Southend League was invited, and is expected, to play in this league, one team playing each week. It was left to the executive whether or not these games would count in the league standing. Entry fee is $5.00, and another team would be accepted yet.

Officers elected for this year are: President, R. H. Simmons; first vice-president, Fred Scates; second vice-president, George Dormer; secretary-treasurer, Max Glover; executive committee, Dave Leether, Percy Harrison and Harley Weir. Opening date of play will be May 26. The appointing of groundskeeper and umpires was left to the executive, who will deal with applications. Next meeting is May 17th.

Tunney Predicts Great Title Bout

WASHINGTON, May 4 (A.P.).—Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, predicted on Tuesday the Louis-Schmeling fight would be one of the greatest matches in years, but declined to pick the winner.

Tunney, visiting the United States Treasury on business matters, said he believed Louis would be in better condition this time than when Schmeling won by a technical knockout in their previous encounter.

Schmeling, however, Tunney said, would carry into the ring the confidence of his former victory and the "inspiration" of representing th new racial theories of his native Germany.

Tonypandy Farr Will Defend Empire Title At Toronto

Bill Galbraith Guarantees $25,000 For Queen City Match

NEW YORK, May 4 (CP)—Tommy Farr, Welsh wearer of the British Empire heavyweight crown, sails for England on the Normandie today with every prospect that during the last week of July or the first in August he'll fight Maurice Strickland of New Zealand in Toronto with his Empire boxing title at stake.

Such a match, of course, would not be for charity. Nor would it be for the good of boxing in Canada alone. Rather, Farr and his little manager, Joe Gould, were attracted by a guarantee of $25,000 offered by W. J. (Bill) Galbraith of Toronto.

"When they offer that kind of 'sugar' we are definitely interested," Gould said yesterday after announcing he had agreed to Galbraith's terms. "Money like that is not to be sneezed at."

Expect $100,000 Gate.

Bill Daley, Strickland's manager, was offered a percentage of the gate which Galbraith fiured would gross from $75,000 to $100,000. He joined Gould in announcing that negotiations with Galbraith had resulted in a satisfactory agreement.

He said only a few "minor details" remained to be ironed out. He anticipated no trouble with these and added that as soon as they were attended to articles for the fight would be signed. Galbraith's next move is to place all developments before the Ontario Athletic Commission.

"All I want is a license to promote this one bout," he said. "As soon as the commission says 'Go,' we'll go."

Daley, happy over landing the bout with the Empire champion, said he and Strickland had been after such a match for three years, but Farr had refused to fight the New Zealander.

Cricket Results

LONDON, May 4—(CP Cable).—Australia's hard-hitting cricketers started their tour of the United Kingdom with victory over Worcestershire by an innings and 77 runs. The home players were no match for the Antipodeans, being dismissed for totals of 268 and 196, after the tourists had led off with 541.

The other first-class matches started Saturday between Oxford University and Gloucestershire, and M.C.C. and Yorkshire, the champion county, were drawn. Rain prevented play to-day.

Scores of matches concluded to-day follow:

DIVORCE GRANTED IN UNUSUAL CASE

COBOURG, May 4.—(Special). — Three divorce cases and four other actions comprised the docked when Cobourg Spring Non-Jury Sittings opened Monday afternoon with Mr. Justice Mackay presiding. Settlements in three cases and granting of decrees nisi in the divorce actions, narrowed the docket down to one case to be tried to-day, plaintiff being John Fairbairn, Montreal civil engineer, who is suing the Peterborough Canoe Company.

Leaving himself open to Nazi disapproval, Heinrich Herrmann of Cobourg, plaintiff in a divorce action, expressed his opinion on the present form of government in Germany during the course of questioning by His Lordship on Herrmann's future intentions regarding his stay in Canada.

Asked if he intended staying in Canada, Herrmann declared positively that he did.

"I don't intend to go back to Germany as I don't like dictatorship," he said.

Herrmann complained of having trouble with his "in-laws" and this might have influenced him in his attitude regarding dictatorships.

Mrs. Herrmann, now a resident of Toronto, admitted the charges of the plaintiff in regard to her relationship with another man, whom, stated the plaintiff, was formerly his hired man. His Lordship granted a decree nisi but directed that the custody of the child remain with its grandparents. Herrmann was informed by the court that he was free to bring a motion at a later date before the court for custody of the child, but that at the presnt time it must remain with the present guardians.

After an interchange of argument between A. R. Willmott of Cobourg, counsel for the plaintiff and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterborough, solicitor for the defendant, in which Mr. Justice Mackay pleaded for some convergence of opinion, a settlement was arrived at in connection with the action brought by Henry Ellis of Millbrook against R. H. Edmunds of the same village. The dispute was over a right-of-way agreement which dated back to 1876 in somewhat obscure phrasing of the conveyance. His Lordship pointed out that costs of the case, if it went to trial, would outweigh the actual money involved in the dispute and recommended that the parties get together.

Settlement was also made in connection with the damage action, arising out of a highway accident, brought by George Dorland et al against Fred Burley, all of Port Hope. The accident happened near Port Hope in September of last year.

Similar disposition was made of the action brought by Richard Mahoney of Campbellford against John Connelly of Seymour Township plaintiff asking damages as a result of a dispute over timber cutting rights on certain lands.

The only case left on the docket, which will come up to-day, was the action brought by John Fairbairn, Montreal civil engineer, against the Peterborough Canoe Company. The action is to establish ownership of Juniper Island at Stoney Lake, the plaintiff alleging that the defendant erected a cottage on the lands of the plaintiff without permission. Damages of $1,000 are asked for trespass.

Ever Wonder Why You're Constipated?

Do you ever have days when you just have to drag yourself along, when you feel tired, sunk—because of that constipation? Then why not find out the real cause of your trouble?

What have you had to eat lately? Just things like meat, bread and potatoes? If that's it, you may not have to look any farther. It's likely your trouble is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.

If "bulk" is what you lack, your ticket is a dish of crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Proposed Air Bases In Pacific

This map shows three proposed strategic air bases in the Pacific that would give the U.S. navy command of the air over this vast ocean. The proposal, calling for an expenditure of $6,520,000 and marking the first step by the U.S. to disturb the "status quo" established by the Washington treaty for the Pacific defence of signatory nations, was transmitted to congress by Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson. The sites of the ocean air bases would be at Midway island and Kancohe bay, Hawaii, in the mid-Pacific, and at Kodiak in the Alcutian islands off the mainland of Alaska.

MORE ABOUT—

tario Legislature, a Bill was passed which required provincial sanction for construction or reconstruction of a bridge costing $2,000 or more. He said this also was aimed at the International Company.

A Bill, similar to the one being considered here, was defeated in the New York State Legislature some weeks ago, continued Mr. Bennett. He had been informed Governor Lehman of New York took the stand he would not sign the Bill while the vested rights of the International Railway Company were unprotected.

It would be an unfriendly act for Canada to pass the Bridge Bill in the face of the declaration of Governor Lehman, Mr. Bennett stated. It would be doing violence to friendly relations with the United States.

The bridge bill should not be proceeded with at the present session, he suggested. It should stand until the American authorities had settled the question of the rights of the International Railway Company.

There was not one Canadian connected with the International Railway Company, said Alex Young (Lib. Saskatoon). He said the house had spent hours hearing various arguments against the bill, all of which were designed to stop the province of Ontario building a bridge which in time would be toll-free.

He said most of the opposition came from Ontario Conservatives and he wondered what they would tell their constituents.

Senate Had Short Sitting

The Senate ended its three-week Easter recess by meeting for a few minutes last night. Later the members tested a microphone and loud-speaker system designed to improve acoustics in their chamber. Some favored the innovation, some didn't.

In the house it was another day of criticisms and suggestions on relief with Labor Minister Rogers bearing the burden of meeting the former and acknowledging the latter.

Mrs. George Black, 70 year old Conservative member for the Yukon who started the discussion, expressed sympathy with the youthful labor minister who has been under fire over a week.

"I feel that if attrition could wear a man down," Mrs. Black said, "he (Mr. Rogers) would not be in the house today." She commended the minister for his conscientious efforts and sincerity of purpose, and advised him to choose well those to whom would be entrusted the spending of relief monies.

Urging the need and urgency of unemployment insurance Mr. Martin declared the government should take action even though some provinces refuse to co-operate.

Condition Must Be Faced

"If we cannot get the provinces to agree to it we should assume that power," Mr. Martin said. "We have to face sooner or later the question of jurisdiction. We have to face sooner or later the continual shifting from the provinces to the federal government and from the federal government to the provinces, and ultimately to the municipalities. That condition must be faced.

"There are some provinces that have already signified a willingness to accept a system of unemployment insurance and in regard to those provinces you could have a scheme. I suggest if one or two provinces had the benefit of unemployment insurance the other provinces, as in the case of old age pensions, would come in.

Mr. Martin believed that if public opinion were tested it would approve parliament exercising jurisdiction on such national problems as unemployment insurance and he urged that the attempt be made in any event.

Mr. Heaps expressed the view a national referendum would result in overwhelming endorsement of parliament having jurisdiction over unemployment insurance and similar services.

Vigorous Attack

Late in the afternoon opposition leader Bennett launched into a vigorous attack upon the government. "I recall the days," Mr. Bennett said, "when those same gentlemen, sitting to the left of the speaker, could not find time enough in which to express themselves, nor language strong enough, to express the condemnation of those who were endeavoring to do the very thing that the government of this country is now endeavoring to do.

"From 1930 to 1935 the men now occupying the treasury benches were spending their hours, days and weeks in condemnation of the then government for doing what they now do. Condemnation was hurled from this side of the House against the very measures which are now said to be the very best possible of production.

"The great evil that we face today in the administration of unemployment relief is to be found in political patronage about which, at the proper time, I propose to say much.

"I could mention place after place in which either the defeated candidate, the head of the Liberal Association, or some one else, must be consulted before it is possible for a man to find employment."

Unemployment Will Continue

With so many people now congregated in the industrial centres Mr. Bennett maintained that, differ as they might with his fiscal policies, his political opponents would have to agree that so long as goods needed by Canadian consumers were manufactured outside the country there would be unemployment in Canada among those who would otherwise be doing that work.

"We are dealing only with palliatives," Mr. Bennett declared, "and every thinking person knows that." The essential thing was to provide policies which would ensure there was work to do. Apparently a substantial part of the population believed it was better to have immediate benefits in contemplation than to plan for an effective cure.

"You cannot have your goods manufactured in another country," Mr. Bennett said, "and not have unemployment among those who were making those goods here."

For the past three months, the Canadian National Railways had not enough to pay operating costs alone. It had cost more than 100 cents to earn one dollar of operating revenue.

"That has frequently happened in the past," interjected Finance Minister Dunning.

"It has not happened frequently in the past," Mr. Bennett retorted. "It happened but not frequently. Compare the returns for the darkest days of the depression with figures for the past three months."

When Labor Minister Rogers was taken from the lecture halls of Queen's University to administer relief in Canada, he had been proclaimed the man best fitted to deal with it, continued Mr. Bennett.

"When I contemplate the patronage in Frontenac and Kingston," he continued, "I realize that academic life does not fit a man for public life any more than work in a sawmill."

Mr. Bennett gave another side of the suggested housing projects when he read letters of protest from those whose savings invested in rental housing would suffer if every tenant were induced to build his own home.

Mr. Rogers vehemently denied that any patronage was operating in respect of relief expenditures with either his knowledge, connivance or approval, and he expressed resentment at the "veiled" charges frequently advanced by Mr. Bennett.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

MORE ABOUT—NO ATTENTION

Tracing the history of sit-down strikers in the General Motors plants beginning early last year, he estimated the loss to the men in wages as a result of the first strike "was around 30,000,000 hours, or about $25,000,000."

Knusden asserted the only issue in the General Motors strike was collective bargaining. Eventually his company's union problem was solved in some degree, he said, but then the recession set in and the company adopted a short work week, providing the workers an income of about $22 a week.

Knusden predicted the United States, like France, eventually would take a stand against the sit-down strike "because of the dangers as a defensive club rather than a social defensive weapon."

General Motors has an agreement with the automobile union, he continued, and is "trying to work with it, for, manifestly, if it is the law that men can organize to bargain collectively, that is the way to do it."

RELIEF STRIKERS PLANNING MARCH

CALGARY, May 4 (C.P.). — Undaunted by arrest of 12 more picketers, Calgary relief strikers plan another march this morning and a massed unemployed parade in the afternoon.

Charles Richardson, vice-president of the Calgary Unemployed Married Men's Association, nine other men strikers, and two women were arrested yesterday. Charged with unlawful assembly, they were released on bail.

"We were marching in files of two on the sidewalk en route to Riley Park to picket," Richardson said.

Police halted the marchers, dispersed them, and when they tried to re-form the ranks made the arrests. Sixty non-strikers were at work in Riley Park, half a block from where the picket parade was halted.

The arrested strikers made merry in the police cells, singing and cheering, but after Magistrate I. F. Fitch complained the noise was disturbing his court session they became silent. They were held in jail four hours.

The strikers walked off relief projects on April 6 demanding higher allowances.

MONTREAL MAN SEEKS $1,000 FOR TRESPASS

COBOURG, May 4 (Special). — Last case on the Supreme Court docket here, the action Fairbairn vs. Peterborough Canoe Company, commenced on Monday afternoon and occupied all day. Most of the evidence was in connection with surveys of the disputed property and only a few witnesses were heard by the time court adjourned in the late afternoon. It proceeded yesterday. The action is brought by John M. R. Fairbairn, Montreal, civil engineer, against the Peterborough Canoe Company, plaintiff asking for a declaration of his ownership of part of an island in Stoney Lake without any claim to it on the part of the defendant. He also asks damages of $1,000 for trespass. W. Dennison of Toronto appears for plaintiff and T. J. Carley of Peterborough for the defendant.

From a sheaf of correspondence read in court on Monday, it appeared that the Peterborough Canoe Company had written Mr. Fairbairn asking him to sell a portion of his property on the island for the purpose of building a cottage for Mr. Gillespie and his wife, the former being an employee of the defendant company. Mr. Fairbairn wrote in reply that as the land was part of the estate of the late Judge Rogers, it could not be sold at that time. Efforts of the company to lease the land pending a more suitable time to arrange a sale, were without avail.

Encroached on Property.

Subsequently, when he arrived for a visit during the summer to the island, Mr. Fairbairn found a cottage which he alleged encroached on his property. In 1931 he wrote the defendant company pointing out this fact and suggesting that the matter be settled to prevent the issue of a writ. Questioned by defence counsel, Mr. Fairbairn stated that his holdings on Juniper Island were 90 acres and that two acres of the land were sold by the Stoney Lake Cottage Association to the Peterborough Canoe Company. A survey revealed to him that a line ran through a boat house on the Cottage Association land.

The rest of the evidence was concerned with details relevant to several surveys which had been made of the land in question.

When court opened this morning it was announced settlement had been reached.

AUTO DEALERS CLOSE ON SUNDAYS

All automobile dealers in the city, barring one, will close their shops next Sunday and all succeeding Sundays, it was announced to-day by George Melton, secretary of the Automobile Dealers' Association.

Each dealer has agreed to close up on Sunday, leaving one of their number to handle all business on that day. The shop to remain open will rotate from one dealer to the next, in much the same fashion as downtown drug stores operate on Sundays.

The step was taken not as an arbitrary measure intended to embarrass motorists, but in order to alleviate working conditions in the mechanical divisions of the shops, Mr. Melton said. He felt that with the co-operation of the motoring public the plan could continue indefinitely without poor service resulting. The one open shop should be able to look after all cars and trucks, the association believed.

The closing does not apply to service stations in the city, but only to automobile dealers. Service stations will remain open as formerly.

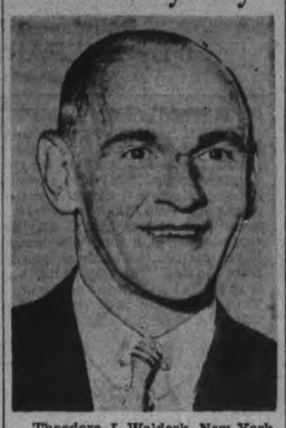
Solved Mystery



Theodore J. Waldeck, New York sportsman and explorer, who reached civilization at Georgetown, after leading an expedition into the hinterland jungles of British Guiana seeking a clue to the fate of Paul Redfern, U.S. flier, who vanished 10 years ago during a flight over South America. Waldeck reported that he had found proof that Redfern died in a crash of his aeroplane in the jungle, but refused to give details until he has communicated with relatives of the lost airman.

PLANS BEING LAID FOR RECEPTION OF LORD TWEEDSMUIR

Plans for the reception to be tendered His Excellency the Governor-General when he visits Peterborough on May 30 were discussed at a meeting of the Reception Committee, Ald. G. N. Gordon., K.C., chairman, on Tuesday afternoon, and the committee will meet again Friday to draft the final program.

Warden E. N. McDonald was present at Tuesday's meeting and he asked that the county should be allowed to participate with the city in the welcome to Baron Tweedsmuir.

It is likely that the civic welcome and the official reception will take place in Confederation Square, although that was not definitely decided upon.

Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, Public School Inspector Wightman and M. H. Gainey, chairman of the Separate School Board, were present to discuss the part the schools will take in the reception to the Governor-General.

Former Local Man In Port Hope Office

PORT HOPE, May 4.—Joe Watkins of St. Catharines, formerly of Peterborough, has assumed the position of town ticket and telegraph agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company here. Mr. Watkins replaced W. G. D. McMillan, who has resigned after holding that position for the past six years.

Starting his career in Peterborough he was transferred to Niagara Falls, Ont., where he was clerk in charge of that office. When the company opened a telegraph agency in New Liskeard he received the appointment as agent. Later this office was closed and he was sent to St. Catharines, where he has been for the past year.

Mr. Watkins is well versed with passenger and telegraph business, and in his travels has gained a wide experience, and knowledge of railroading.

The office has been moved from Strong's store to Mitchell's Flower Shop, where the business will now be conducted.

Presentation Made To Society Head

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4. — A special meeting of the Tidy Toldies Club was held on Saturday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. D. Durran, when the members presented her with a set of silver salt and pepper shakers in recognition of her leadership throughout the year.

Misses Irene Curle and Margaret McCulloch were chosen to demonstrate on Achievement Day which will be held in Brighton during the latter part of May.

It was Irene Curle who read the address which accompanied the presentation to Mrs. Durran as a slight token of the apreciation for the patience and time you have spent with us, while Fay Kelly made the presentation for which Mrs. Durran thanked the members in a few well chosen words. The meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

ARTIFICIAL BAITS MAY BE USED FOR SHORE FISHING

Fishing for pickerel from the shore, with either live or artificial baits, between May 16, when the open season for these fish starts, and June 20, when open season for black bass and maskinonge begins, is permitted this year. Game and Fisheries Overseer I. J. Lyons today received from the Department a copy of the amendments made recently in the Game and Fisheries Act, and in the Dominion special fishery regulations for the Province of Ontario and it is made clear that fishing from the shore and the use of artificial baits in such fishing is now legalized. Anglers who want to use boats will be permitted to do so, but their boats must be anchored, and in their case only natural baits may be used.

When the open season for bass and maskinonge arrives, of course, all restrictions in regard to pickerel fishing will be removed.

Subsection 4 of Section 12, dealing with the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Haliburton and Durham, as amended this year, now reads as follows:

"Notwithstanding anything contained in these regulations, no one shall fish for, catch or kill any fish in the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Haliburton and Durham, the waters of the River Trent and Lake Scugog in any county, the waters of Crow Lake and Crow River in the Counties of Peterborough and Hastings and the waters of Beaver Creek in the County of Hastings, from October 16 to June 19, both days inclusive; provided, however, that this provision shall not apply to the taking, during the respective open seasons which govern, of speckled trout, brown trout or rainbow trout, in waters not inhabited by black bass, maskinonge and lake trout in the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Northumberland and Durham and provided further that this subsection shall not apply to persons angling from the shore for fish in respect to which an open season prevails from May 16 to June 19, both days inclusive; nor to persons angling from an anchored boat and using bait other than artificial baits or lures, for fish in respect to which an open season prevails, from May 16 to June 19, both days inclusive."

(It will be noted that this subsection provides for fishing for pickerel from shore or boat from May 16 on. That is the date on which the pickerel season usually opens. A short time ago, however, the Department decided to open the season this year on May 14 to give anglers the benefit of the week-end, and it is assumed therefore that the subsection will apply as from May 14 on, instead of from May 16 as set forth in the official wording.—Ed.).

REMAND GRANTED DEATH IN FAMILY

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., was to have given judgment in police court this morning in the charge against Percy Little of having been drunk in charge of an automobile but a death in the accused's family caused a remand until tomorrow morning.

"If there is to be a conviction in this case," said W. G. Gordon, Little's counsel when the case was called to-day, "I would ask for a remand of sentence. Accused's sister died several days ago and is to be buried this afternoon."

"I intend to find him guilty," Magistrate Langley declared as he granted a remand until Thursday.

NURSES' GRADUATION.

Graduation exercises for nurses at St. Joseph's Hospital will be held on May 18 this year. Tuesday night the Board of Education granted the nurses' association of that hospital permission to use the auditorium of the Collegiate.

DAMAGING LAWNS.

Another annual occurrence that brings with it a nostalgic air of sweet summer nights, came to the Board of Education Tuesday night when a lady wrote a letter complaining about the damage children at one of the city's public schools have been doing to her lawn and windows. Baseball is the villain. "We have been more than tolerant in this matter," she wrote. The property committee will investigate.

WILLING TO SING.

If the Board of Education wants public school children to sing for the Governor-General when he visits Peterborough at the end of this month, it will be done, Inspector K. S. Wightman said Tuesday night. But he doubted that His Excellency will appreciate their efforts. A committee was appointed to determine what part school children shall play in the reception to Lord Tweedsmuir.

TO RENDER CANTATA.

A choir of sixty voices—with four assisting vocalists and a harpist from Toronto — will be heard on Monday evening, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, in the beautiful music of Sir Frederic Cowen's cantata, "The Rose Maiden." There are several delightful choruses, among them: "Mid the Waving Rose-trees" with harp accompaniment); the Bridal Chorus, "'Tis Thy Wedding Morning"; the male chorus, "What Sounds There So Softly," and the Chorus of the Elves, "Farewell, Sleep Thou Lightly" (with harp). With accompaniment of piano, organ, and harp, the music of these numbers alone is brilliant, and pleasing to the listener, and appropriate to the season now with us. The artists have been carefully chosen, and under the direction of Martin B. Chenhall a treat is in store for lovers of music such as composed by this foremost Britisher. The concert will climax the anniversary services on Sunday.

POWER TO FILL VACANCIES.

The annual flood of letters of application for positions in Peterborough public and high schools has commenced again. At Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Education two applications were read, both referred to the committee on appointments, which was given power to fill any vacancies that may arise.

ANOTHER ADJOURNMENT.

Owing to the absence from the city of T. J. Carley, K.C., Magistrate Langley, K.C., did not deliver judgment this morning in the case of Joseph Emery, charged with illegal sale of liquor. There was a remand until Wednesday of next week.

CASES GO OVER.

There was another adjournment to-day when the cases of Harry Redmond, charged with being drunk in charge of a car, and Basil Reid with reckless driving were called in police court. They will be heard a week from to-day. A reckless driving charge against D. Craig was also adjourned until next week.

TRAFFIC CASES.

In traffic court to-day Martin Henry and Eric Hunter were each fined $2 and 75 cents costs for failing to obey city traffic lights. Chester McCracken was assesed $10 and $2.50 costs for having defective brakes. H. R. Hope paid $2 and 50 cents for not carrying proper lamps, and a fine of $10 and costs, to be paid by May 18, was assessed against Albert Hughes for not having a license.

AN ANCIENT CAR.

Passers-by stopped and rubbed their eyes as they gazed at the ancient automobile that was parked on the Water street side of the market Tuesday night. It was a 1907 Pierce-Arrow, with wheels as big as those of a circus wagon, a body that towered high over every machine in the neighborhood and big headlight running out from the front fenders. In its heyday it was undoubtedly an aristocrat among the cars of the pre-war era. The old-timer was bought in Perth by Solly Seigel, formerly of Peterborough, and was being towed to Toronto, where it will be sold, perhaps as a curiosity, perhaps only as junk.

CAMPBELLFORD

CATHOLIC LEAGUE REVIEWS LABORS OF THE PAST YEAR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4. — A gratifying year's work was reported at the annual meeting of the Campbellford division of the Catholic Women's League held in their club-room. President Mrs. Elie Brunelle was returned to office by acclamation for another year, and the year's activities were revealed in the annual report read by the secretary which showed considerable splendid work had been done. The convenors of social service and child welfare reported substantial assistance had been given to the needy in the parish, as well as to those in the northern part of this diocese. It was revealed that three large boxes of supplies had been sent to Western Ontario, and these included such items as bedding, clothing, shoes, school supplies, and baskets of food. At Christmas time baskets were sent to the needy in the parish, while the visiting committee reported many calls had been made and boxes of dainties and flowers had been sent to the sick.

The convenor of education reported the Study Club had met regularly during the winter months, and that a donation had been sent to the National Scholarship Club, as well as a prize donated to each of the Separate Schools in the parish. A prize was also given to the Sisters of St. Joseph to be competed for by their music pupils.

During the year the league had raised money by an "At Home" held in the school, a bazaar and cooking sale, and by bridge and euchre parties and teas held in their rooms, as well as in the homes of some of the members in the town and country. It was also stated that a picture show had been sponsored and tickets sold on a blanket which was drawn for at the close of this meeting and won by Mrs. Joe Smith.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: Honorary chaplain, Rev. Father McAuley; president, Mrs. Eli Brunelle; first vice-president, Mrs. Edward O'Connor; second vice-president, Mrs. James Black; third vice-president, Mrs. Edward Gorman; recording secretary, Mrs. Joe Smith; corresponding secretary, Mrs. O. Brahaney; treasurer, Mrs. D. N. O'Keefe; Councillors, Mrs. George O'Sullivan, Mrs. V. Farrel, Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke, Mrs. R. Bush, Mrs. Leo Doherty, and Mrs. Charles Collins.

ALD. McCANNAN'S AUTO IS STOLEN

Ald. H. J. McCannan's automobile was stolen about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon right under his eyes. The machine had been left in front of Ald. McCannan's office on Simcoe street and the chairman of the Property committee, who had been absent on business was walking along the street close to his office when the thief drove away with his car. One of Mr. McCannan's staff saw the man enter the automobile and start away with it but thought it was some one her employer had sent for the machine. Ald. McCannan ran to George street, but by that time the car thief was turning west into Charlotte street.

The police were notified and the alarm sent out to surrounding towns but the missing car had not been reported up to noon to-day.

St. John's Y.P.U. Hears Short Talk

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4. — An interesting talk dealing with his native country "Switzerland" was the topic given before members of St. John's Y.P.U. on Monday evening by Jack Meier. In opening his remarks the speaker drew attention to the fact that many people harbor the mistaken idea that Switzerland is a land of nothing but ice and snow. This is a fallacy for their are many fertile valleys where the crops familiar not only to those of temperate climates are grown as well as the warmer areas where citrus fruits are widely cultivated alongside vast vineyards.

Harold Kitney was in charge of the program for the evening and the president, Miss Ruth Palliser presided. Following the opening devotional period which was concluded with prayer by Miss Vera Clark the program was opened with a piano solo by Miss Patricia Ironside. Mr. Kitney then gave a few brief remarks on the World Conference of Ministers pointing out its accomplishments and purposes. He claimed that possibly the greatest advantage that could come of such a conference was in the opportunity for each to study the other's point of view.

The meeting was closed with the benediction which was pronounced by Rev. Neal.

The Rambling REPORTERS

ONLY TWO TRUANTS

This city does not harbor many Tom Sawyers or Huck Finns. It would appear from Truant Officer Doug. Loomis' report to the Board of Education on Tuesday evening. Or else the children of to-day have more fear for approaching examinations than did those two romanticists. Only two truants in the entire sunny month of April were reported.—J.F.P.

Seeks $5,000,000

A suit filed in Hollywood in name of Eloise Spann, 21, singer and dancer, seeks $5,000,000 from Milton Beecher, music director and 50 co-defendants. Miss Spann won fame when she sang at the last Republican convention.

TWO YOUNG MEN GIVEN TEN DAYS GAFFING SUCKERS

Unable to pay a fine imposed on them when they pleaded guilty in police court before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning of gaffing suckers at the Peterborough Lock, Ross Dickson, 27, and Harold Laroche went to jail today for a ten-day term.

The charges were laid by Game and Fisheries Overseer I. J. Lyons, and on their plea of guilty the accused were fined $10 and $2.50 costs. "I have no money to pay a fine," Dickson told the court. "I was only getting a few suckers."

Laroche also said that he was unable to pay a fine.

Roy Murphy of Dummer Township pleaded guilty to spearing lunge near the head of Stoney Lake, and was given a week's adjournment for sentence.

"Times are not very good," he told the Magistrate in explanation of his conduct, "and I wanted to get a little food."

Several other fishing cases will be aired next Wednesday, Overseer Lyons having been unable to serve summons on some of the men involved.

It cost Earl Grose, 23, a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $2.50, for using a .22 calibre rifle in Smith Township without a license. Grose pleaded guilty.

"Didn't you know that what you were doing was against the law?" asked Magistrate Langley.

Accused admitted that he did know the law.

"You were just taking a chance," commented the Magistrate.

DR. J. HOLDCROFT NOT IN ACCIDENT

A report in The Examiner told of a traffic accident on No. 7 Highway and stated that Dr. J. Holdcroft of Havelock had been injured to the extent of having a broken arm and facial lacerations. The following afternoon the Doctor appeared at The Examiner office, saying he was certain now that he did not believe what he saw in the newspapers.

"Does that arm look as though it had been broken?" he queried.

The Examiner man had to admit the arm looked to be in fine condition.

"And is there anything on my face to indicate that it has been lacerated?"

Once again it was necessary to admit that the Doctor was not carrying as much as a scratch. Seeking an explanation from the Havelock physician as to the error, it was learned that the injured person was Clarence Holdcroft.

"Yes, you had better have somethings put in the paper about it," was the advice tendered at the conclusion of this professional call, "because I am receiving too many letters and inquiries from friends offering sympathy and asking how long before I will be around." Having seen the Doctor in person The Examiner can state definitely and with assurance that he was in no automobile accident. There were no scratches on him and no evidence of a broken arm—left or right.

BOARD WILL MOVE AUXILIARY CLASS TO PUBLIC SCHOOL

Results of wholesale immunization of public school children against scarlet fever were far higher than had been anticipated, Dr. G. Murray Fraser, M.O.H., said in a report read at a meeting of the Board of Education on Tuesday night.

Only 32 out of a total of 746 pupils who completed the series of inoculations and the final Dick test, still reacted positively at the end of the treatment, Dr. Fraser reported. This number represented a total of 96 per cent. who had been immunized to the disease, while "usually it is possible to immunize about 70 per cent. of individuals," he said.

"The results obtained are very satisfactory and justify the carrying on of the campaign," his report stated. "It was originally intended that further doses of toxin would be given in an effort to immunize those who still reacted positively. However, in view of the results obtained, it is considered unncessary for the present to proceed with the plan."

In all 1,526 pupils were given Dick tests at the outset of the immunization drive, and 1,106 or 74 per cent. of pupils proved to be susceptible to the disease. Of that number 796 received the five inoculations, 22 received four, 41 received three, 27 received two, and 34 received only the first inoculation. The chief reason that some did not complete all the tests was that parents objected when some reaction set in. "While no serious or severe reactions occurred, numerous children complained of sore arms, headache, etc.," the report stated. Of the 796 who received full five inoculations, 746 returned for the final Dick test to determine whether they had been immunized.

The auxiliary class at South Central school will be moved in September into a classroom at the Prince of Wales school, it was decided when the board adopted a report brought in by D. G. H. Melton, and coinciding with a recommendation by Inspector K. S. Wightman.

Mr. Melton advocated the new arrangement because it would free the pupils from an air of segregation. Many parents feel that attendance at the special school places a stigma on their children, he claimed. The class will be of both boys and girls, will include not more than 16 students. At present there are 18 pupils in attendance at South Central, but a number of these will by leaving in June. Departmental regulations permit auxiliary classes to total 19 students when they are of one sex, only 16 when they are of both.

CAMP KAWARTHA REUNION PLANNED

There promises to be a big time at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night, when a Camp Kawartha reunion supper will be held, commencing at 6.29 o'clock. All boys who have attended the camp at Clear Lake as well as all those who might be interested in going this year are invited and the parents are extended a hearty invitation as well to come along, enjoy the supper and program and hear something about this very fine camp. The only stipulation is that those who propose to attend should notify the Y.M.C.A. office by Thursday so that information as to how many guests to prepare for may be available. Two or three carloads of boys from Bowmanville and Oshawa who were guests at Camp Kawartha in other years will be here for the occasion. There will be a sing-song, stories and movies, the latter showing camp scenes, and plans for this summer's camp will be discussed.

CHAPTER 27

NOT SO many months ago Tommy Minton had been saying everywhere that he would get even with Garry Page because Garry had socked him one night. It was this thought that returned to mock and torment Barbara as she sat by the fire at the Worthington lodge, listening to the low, clear call of the siren, as Garry's car came nearer and nearer.

Odd to remember now that it was a matter concerning her over which Garry had been so chivalrous. Could Tommy Minton be endeavoring to get even with Garry now by taking away his girl, playing up to the lovely, glamorous Wenda?

Barbara decided she might be acting mentally melodramatic but she could not throw off the sense of fear that stayed in the outskirts of the great room where the shadows were thickest.

Yet, when the late comers came in, she forgot that fear completely. Lights were turned higher greetings were cheerful. And a little boy, stifling a yawn, came rushing to her.

"Hello, Miss Kingsley. I'm here, too. They brought me!" Robert Kerns was grinning at her delightedly, as though no doubt of the splendid welcome he would receive had ever entered his mind.

"Oh Bobbie, bless your heart, now everything's perfect! You know we were scared to pieces because we just had 13 and now it's right!" She was helping him out of his coat and leggings, and the simple task restored her poise so she acknowledged the greetings of the others gaily and impersonally.

"I'm afraid that it was a dreadful imposition to bring along a child," Wenda was saying to Natalie, and Barbara hurried the little boy away so he wouldn't overhear. "But, you see, he was awake when I stopped by the apartment after the theater, and he had had a nightmare. All of a sudden he got some sort of horrible notion that he couldn't stay alone, so Garry insisted he had to come along."

"Of course he had to come!" Natalie said. "Do you want to slip into something more comfortable? We're having some hot chocolate and sandwiches around the fire."

Bobbie went straight to bed. Wenda changed her traveling suit for sea green velvet pajamas. Sitting in the shadows, Barbara reflected that Wenda would see always that she added her note of beauty. The depth of color in the pajamas suited the luxury of the great oaked room with its dark leather, fur rugs and massive chairs. Wenda would not mind that others waited for her—whether she changed husbands or frocks—knowing that inevitably she would reward them in the end. She was a gay parasol for a sunny day. Barbara mused. And she, Barbara Kingsley, was a steadfast umbrella for a rainy day—so Natalie once had said.

Barbara went to bed, clother in a feeling that she, the guests, the house were not real. It was a nice feeling, one that softened the edges of any hurt by holding it at a distance. She was still in bed the next morning when Natalie rapped at her door, and entered carrying a pair of orange velvet pajamas banded in gray squirrel.

"For you, with love," her hostess said. She tossed them on the bed. "Wear them down to breakfast and shine. They take high color, honey, and with that hair of yours you should look glorious."

"Bobbie will think they are swell!"

"Bobbie, my eye! It won't hurt Garry any to notice you are moving around quite comfortably."

Stretching lazily under the silken comforter Barbara answered: "No, Natalie, if love's a game, I'm not playing. I know easier ones where it doesn't make much difference when you lose. And I'm cured, anyway. But I adore the pajamas. May I wear them just the same?"

She wore the pajamas. She wore, too, a gay, new mood when she entered the dining room where most of the guests were already gathered. Electric grills and chaffing dishes were arranged on a long table. Two maids presided over the coffee urn, thec hocolate pot, the toaster.

"We're each preparing our own breakfast," Natalie explained. "Choose what you want — batter cakes, bacon, hash, sausages—"

Barbara noticed that Jimmy Minton was not yet down. She was relieved. He was an inharmonious note. He frightened her, even here with yellow jonquils, imported from the twon greenhouses, in every copper bowl; log fires roaring on the hearths in the great rooms; white light and blue light, from the snow fields and the pond and sky, coming through the wide windows from which the brown curtains were pulled back this morning.

Garry smiled at her and his eyes crinkled with the old laughter lines. He looked a little thinner—he who always was lithe and strong and ready. Maybe she imagined it, she decided. He had enough to make him worry, though.

"You look too gorgeous to cook bacon and eggs," he was saying to her.

Bobbie came rushing up, dressed for skiing. When he saw Barbara's gaiety he stopped, puzzled, and she smiled at him as she answered Garry. "I'm not having bacon and eggs. It's wheat cakes." She began to pour the batter but a door into her mind swung open, showing her other Sunday mornings when Garry had come whistling up the long steps, the newspapers under his arm, to have a late breakfast with her. She took all her strength and pushed and pushed against that door but it would not shut.

"Babbs, my beautiful one, could you make me just one cake, please?" Garry was pleading with the old mirth and contentment in his eyes.

No answer was required. Wenda, in rose flannel this morning, had heard. She intervened. "Garry, you pig! You asked me for creamed eggs and beef. Cakes, my lad, digest like rocks. You aren't having any!"

But Garry only looked at her lazily and his voice held a thread of the old, lovable impudence when he answered. "Not Barbara's cakes, Wenda. They digest like rockets! You soar, my angel, up among the clouds and the stars. I'll take two of them, Barbara."

If it was her possessiveness that she was trying to demonstrate, Wenda would have no interference with which to reckon, Barbara decided. She reached into the scrapbag of her mind where she kept light words—words you never needed for any serious subject, like love and tomorrow and what you would do when a play was done. "I'm feeding Bobbie," she said. "Sausages or bacon, honey? Better drink all of your orange juice."

And she smiled wickedly as she saw Garry accept a plate of golden and snow white creamed eggs, remembering that he loathed eggs and he loathed cream sauces.

However, she mused, he adored Wenda so he probably would like these eggs. She made no cakes for herself. Fruit juice and coffee suddenly were enough. Jimmy Minton came down, and called gaily to all of them, and then looked at Wenda.

"Can you work again?" he asked.

"Of course. What shall it be?"

The millionaire playboy, whose eyelids were puffy and whose chin sagged with years, and a strain that was too great even for those years, looked at Bobbie's cakes. "Just what you gave your nephew."

Bobbie looked at the man and cleared his throat. He was going to explain that his aunt had not made his cakes, but Wenda's voice, gay and sweet and rich, spoke before he could begin.

"How many cakes can you eat?"

Maybe Wenda had no interest in the man's digestive system because she was not engaged to him, Barbara told herself. Being in love with Garry, perhaps she honestly had wished to control his diet. Still, she was prompt to please Jimmy Minton.

"Nut!" Barbara did some talking inwardly. "She didn't want you to re-establish even a culinary contact with the man—"

"Come and talk to me while I eat," Jimmy Minton was saying to Wenda, who perched on the edge of a table and smiled down at him.

"How's the new play coming?" someone called to Garry.

"Fast," he answered. "The second act's shooting along."

Barbara did not know that she kept her eyes on Garry's face for a long time in her surprise, until he flushed. "I'm doing another, Babbs. Something lighter, to grab the popularity which may blow away like a puffball before tonight's papers, you know."

Garry writing a play in a few weeks! Garry who had slaved and dreamed and despaired and prayed and hoped while the other drama came into being! Garry walking the frothy path that did not touch on themes that came to life only when you slept with them, suffered with them, laughed with them, let them wear you out and wring your heart—

"Come on, Bobbie, I'll change my clothes and we'll ski," Barbara said.

"Gosh, I hoped you would!"

As she went out the door, Barbara had a glimpse of Garry's face. It looked a little drawn, and his eyes were stern. He didn't approve of Jimmy Minton's interest in Wenda. That was sure.

Try to Talk on Paper

Carol's in a stew again. Trying to write so Jim will say "Just like Carol—charming and lovable!" But she simply can't put her personality on paper.

Don't begin drearily, "Not a thing has happened." Why not say, as you did to Sis, "Guess what! Baby robins in the apple tree! They're the cutest things—all mouth!" When you're "talked" out, quit; don't trail off with "Well, you must be fed up with this long epistle." And look for errors, such as "He spoke to Mary and I." This is as bad as "to I." It's Mary and me, of course.

Wives Should Not Rebel if Husbands Gradually Let Down in Their Ardor of Courtship Days; Being Taken for Granted Is High Compliment

IT IS one of life's little ironies that the things we complain of most in marriage are the very things that make it endurable. Take marriage itself, for instance, which both men and women are always invidiously comparing with courtship. Ah, those were the good old days, they sigh, when each saw the other clothed in glamour, when they thrilled at each other's presence and every kiss was an ecstasy and when every hour they were parted was a weary eternity.

That John never went to see Mary unless he was shaven and shorn and dressed within an inch of his life. And he never beheld Mary except when she floated in chiffons and had perfume behind her ears. Then John spent his time trying to do things to please Mary. Made offerings of candy, magazines and books, and was never too tired to step out with her of an evening and dance half the night. Mary was simply a mush of appreciation and gratitude and complacence, and John's slightest desire was her law. Then they never talked out. No evening was long enough to say half of the things they wanted to each other.

How different that mountain peak of sentiment from the flat plane of marriage where the husband and wife discuss the price of butcher's meat and how groceries have gone up oftener than do the state of their affections; where kisses have become a habit instead of a privilege and are flavored with ham and eggs oftener than with passion; where John and Mary do not feel called upon to camouflage their faults and where they have settled down into being yokemates instead of a storybook hero and heroine.

We are always bemoaning the matrimonial slump, but, in reality, it is the only thing that saves it. No human being could keep up for forty or fifty years the high tension of courtship. The strongest nerves would snap. No man and woman could endure a marriage in which they always had to be putting on a show; always have on their best clothes and their Sunday manners; always be making an effort to be suave and tactful and witty and entertaining.

Nor could one stomach being made perpetual love to. It would be as sickening as living on a steady diet of chocolate creams. While to be kissed in season and out of season when one's mind was, say, on the stock market, or how to rehash yesterday's cold mutton for today's dinner, would make even the most demonstrative individual feel more like biting the kisser than returning the kiss in kind.

So it is not a calamity that romance takes a tailspin after marriage and comes down to earth. It is what keeps matrimony a going concern. The ideal marriage is not a never-ending petting party. It is one in which the husband and wife are so sure of each other's devotion that they no more have to be continually telling each other of their love than an honest man has to go about assuring everybody that he doesn't steal or cheat.

The thing over which more wives shed more tears than anything else in the world is their husbands taking them for granted and never telling them how beautiful and wonderful they are, and how they still look like brides to them. They just can't understand that when a man is as domestic as the house cat and works his fingers to the bone to keep his wife comfortable that he feels that he has given the best proof of his affection for her and admiration for her that it is possible to give, and that there isn't any use in palavering about it.

Of course, women who put an inordinate value on words don't agree with this point of view, but, if they did, and if they would accept their husbands taking them for granted as the supreme compliment it is, they would save themselves a lot of unhappiness.

Another thing that we are always deploring in marriage is that husbands and wives so often save their charm of manner and personality— as they do their best clothes—for strangers; and at home are silent or grouchy or ill-tempered and make no effort to be entertaining and amusing. This is regrettable, of course, but even that has its points. For one of the things that makes home sweet home is having a place where we can blow off the accumulated nerves and worries that we had had to suppress all day.

And one of the things that most endears our husbands and wives to us is having somebody we can comfortably quarrel with and not having it treasured up against us. After all, the happy marriage is the one that is as easy as an old shoe.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BIG PUSH

"Hark!" whispered Baby Bunty, as she and Uncle Wiggily started back from the sunny celaring into the darker patch of woods where grew the violets and the pitcher plants. "Hark, Unkie Wig!" said the Orphan rabbit.

"Did you hear anything?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"I—I—now—er—thought I heard a noise," whispered Bunty.

Rabbits and all other animals, even your dog or pussy cat, must listen carefully for noises. Some noises mean danger for them. Also they must sniff and smell for danger so they can either run away from it or fight it.

That is why your pussy or your puppy can hear so much more keenly than can you and smell so much better.

"What sort of noise was it, Bunty, my dear?" asked Mr. Longears.

"It was a sort of a skiddnig or maybe dripping or maybe drippling noise," whispered Bunty. "Listen!" There it is again!"

Uncle Wiggily listened. Then he laughed.

No Danger

"It's all right, Bunty," he said.

"What you hear is water dribbling, the pitcher plants you smashed when you fell down in them as you gathered the violets."

"Oh," said the orphan rabbit. "I'm glad. I mean I'm glad it isn't a danger noise. I wuoldn't want to be glad because I broke the poor pitcher plants, which I didn't mean to do."

"Certainly not, Bunty," spoke her rabbit uncle. But, in a way, it's well you did break them else I might not have known the pitcher plants were there and I wouldn't know where to get a drink and give you one."

"Oh, that's so!" and Bunty laughed, being no longer afraid. "I almost forgot I was thirsty. But you said something about going to get you and me a drink of water from the Huntsman's Cup. Is there a hunter in these woods? Maybe he might shoot us."

"I hope there is no hunter here, Bunty," said Uncle Wiggily. "If there was he might very well try to shoot us. That's what hunters are for, I suppose, but that doesn't make it any more pleasant for us."

"Does it hurt to get shot?" asked Baby Bunty.

"Very much," Uncle Wiggly said. "I got shot in the leg once."

"Did it give you the rheumatism?" asked the orphan rabbti.

"Perhaps. But the Huntsman's Cup is the same flower that some call the pitcher plant. It hold water and perhaps fairy huntsmen used to drink from it just as we are going to do."

New Danger

"I am very thirsty," said Bunty. "Please give me a drink."

The orphan rabbit and Uncle Wiggily sipped rain water from the cups or pitchers of the woodland plants. Then they gathered more of the May flowers—violets, blue, white and yellow—tiny little Spring beauties, and some trailing arbutus which has a lovely perfume.

All of a sudden, as the two rabbits were gathering their flowers into the woodland glade sprang the Bob Cat and the Fox growling.

"Oh! Oh!" cried Baby Bunty. "That was the danger noise I heard!"

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" sneeringly laughed the Bad Chaps.

"Push over and give me room to grab one!" said the Fox.

"If there is any pushing to be done I am going to do it!" bravely cried Uncle Wiggily. "Here goes for a big push!"

With that he pushed first the Fox and then the Bob Cat right down, over on the backs and into a clump of pitcher plants and the Bad Chaps were all wet, like Baby Bunty. This so surprised them that Mr. Longears and Baby Bunty had a chance to run safely home.

And if the Police Dog will please stop trying to get a ride around the block in the doll carriage, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Bunty's shot.

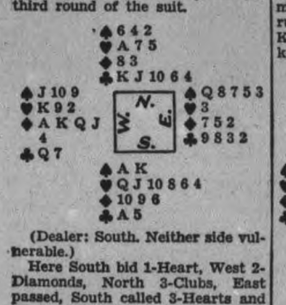
"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKING A KING GOOD

IF YOU HOLD two guards to a king of trumps and the twice-guarded ace sits over it in the dummy, your nice big honor seems doomed, since you expect the declarer to hold the immediately lower ones at your right. But he cannot catch your king in a finesse if you remove one of those guards from the ace. The way to do that is to make him ruff in the dummy. Then your king is ready for the third round of the suit.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Here South bid 1-Heart, West 2-Diamonds, North 3-Clubs, East passed, South called 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

West cashed the diamonds K and Q, and having seen the doubleton in dummy, switched to the spade J, which South won with the K. The heart Q was led and allowed to ride, and when the finesse proved successful, was followed by the J, so that on the third round the A dropped West's K. Before drawing the last trump, South finessed the club J and came to his hand with the spade A. After cashing the club A, he drew the last heart, and on the club K tossed the losing diamond, so that he made five odd.

Had West continued a third diamond, declarer would have had to ruff in dummy, so that the heart K would have surely taken a trick, keeping the contract to four.

BEWDLEY

Thursday afternoon the teacher, Miss L. McBride and her pupils of Bewdley school had a theatre party to see the show "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" at the Capitol Theatre, Port Hope. The children had a very enjoyable afternoon. Those with cars conveying the children were Miss McBride, Mrs. Halcot Benson, Mrs. Harry Goss, Mr. George Byers and Mrs. Harold McAllister, Mr. Charlie Buttar and Mrs. Arthur Buttar also Mr. Frank Halligan.

Ronald, Murray and Garth Manley have been in quarantine for scarlet fever and were unable to attend but Miss McBride kindly remembered them with a box of chocolates. They were also previously given a pretty yellow sunshine basket heaped with lots of good things from their teacher and school chums. The ladies of the Plainville W.M.S. and W.C.T.U. also sent the boys a lovely basket of fruit.

Five little new scholars have commenced school since Easter. They are Arleigh McAllister, Barbara Halligan, Leighton Westington, David Clarey and Alvin West. Garth Manley will make the sixth member of the class a little later.

On Friday evening, St. Anne's Anglican Church was well filled to hear a former rector, Rev. Mr. Christie of Toronto, give a much enjoyed address on "The Arctic." After, everyone went to the Kennedy Hotel where a short program was given and dainty refreshments served by the ladies.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, May 5

This should be a rather neutral day, according to the lunar transits, but one on which much may depend on personal discretion, fairness and freedom from rancorous speech or writings. These may provoke reprisals in the way of gossip, slander or other sinister comebacks. There are omens of fraud, misconstruction, distortion and trickiness. Keep alert and straightforward in all business as well as private transactions.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather adverse situation to contend with during the year, unless they keep a very firm curb on their tongues, refraining from unkind, bitter and provocative speech and writings that may draw the animosity and slanderous reprisals of those assailed. Fraud, treachery, betrayal and disputes may mark an uncertain state of affairs. Be wise. A child born on this day may have a very clever and shrewd intellect, but may be the victim of its own unruly tongue, which may subject it to gossip, slander, libel and litigation, unless it be given a friendly and kindly outlook in its early years.

Visit to New York Described to Y.P.U.

"A Visit to New York" was described in a most interesting way by Miss Margaret Lytle, giving an account of a three weeks holiday in that great city to the Young People of St. Andrew's at the Christian Cultural meeting Tuesday evening.

The speaker had visited the Hayden Planetarium, with its huge dome in which the solar system is set forth in realistic manner, and the sky shown as it appeared at the time of Halley's Comet in 1910. By ingenious methods, the speaker said, the sky is shown at Christmas as it appeared at the time of the birth of Jesus.

Radio city with its elaborate studios in which the famous artists give their programs was also visited, and New York's Chinatown with its "strange sights and smells." The speaker was not favorably impressed with the Chinese people of New York. They were very different from the mild appearing Chinamen of Peterborough. The beautiful park running through the centre of the city and affording refuge for tired people, was described. In the bowery, Miss Lytle saw many poverty-stricken men lying on the pavement at night, and others selling their coats to traders on the streets for small sums of money to buy bread. The poverty of this section could hardly be described. The speaker mentioned also the splendid view afforded the visitor from the top of the Empire State building.

Miss Margaret Emerson, vice-president, presided at the meeting, and Walter Morrow was at the piano. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Dorothy Harle.

The business period was in charge of Harry Vass, the secretary. It was decided to close the season on May 31 and hold a picnic in June. James Harvey was appointed to obtain further information concerning the softball competition organized by the Peterough Presbytery Young People's Union. The majority favored the plan as outlined.

It was announced that the Lily Lake Christian Endeavour Society will be guests of the Union next Tuesday evening at a social meeting. The visitors will conduct the worship service, with the president, Miss Helen Rowland in charge. Miss Alta Wilson, past president will speak, taking as her topic, "Honoring Our Parents."

The Ross-Leahy Wedding

Tailored Slacks

SLACKS almost drifted out of the picture a season or two ago. But they came back with "wim and wigor" during the last two winter resort seasons, and are now more popular than ever.

Florence Rice, whose father is a famous sports writer and commentator, and who is herself fast making an enviable name for herself in pictures, has adopted a slacks costume for her daily game of badminton.

Florence's trousers are fairly wide but well tailored; her jacket is an eton with long sleeves and a single link button fastening. A contrasting colored shirt with wide collar and revers makes a stunning blouse to wear under this jacket.

Annual Meeting Havelock H. and S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 4.— The Havelock Home and School Association held their annual election and installation of officers last evening, when the regular May meeting was held in the school. There was a good attendance, thirty adults being present, and Mrs. W. Nobes, president, in the chair.

Report from the auditors, P. Yuill and D. C. Drinkwalter, showed total receipts at $24.39, total expenditure at $14.37, leaving a balance of $10.02.

The report of the nominating committee was presened by the convenor, Mrs. R. E. Lemon, after which the officers were elected.

Mrs. Walter Nobes was returned as president of the organization for another term of office. The other officers elected were as follows: 1st Vice-president, Mrs. George Rigby; 2nd vice-president, Miss V. Robinson; secretary, Mrs. Ray Scott; treasurer, Mrs. George Hubbel; executive committee, Miss E. Roberts, Miss Lucy Wing, Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft, and D. C. Drinkwalter; program convenor, Mrs. Brisbin.

The Parent Attendance Shield was won this month by the pupils of Miss Lucy Wing's class, the presentation being made by Miss M. Roche, the holder of the shield last month.

The program included an address on "Temperance" by Mrs. W. W. Yale of Lakefield, and a paper by Mrs. Weese on "Wasted Effort."

Mrs. Brisbin newly elected program convenor announced that Rev. R. E. Lemon would be guest speaker at the June meeting.

Hard Lumps Came On Her Legs

Ankles and Feet Swollen With Rheumatism

Rheumatism sent this woman to bed with lumps, swellings, and inflammation. Yet these symptoms soon disappeared, as they always will do when the root cause is removed. This letter tells you the method she used:—

"I was taken ill with terrible rheumatic pains in my legs. They were badly inflamed, swollen, and they were partly covered with red, hard lumps. To put my foot down to the ground was agony. After I had been in bed for 16 days, suffering agony all the time, my husband said, 'You can't go on suffering like this, let us try Kruschen Salts.' He got a bottle, and almost from the first I felt benefit. Before long, I was completely relieved — swellings, inflammation, and lumps all gone—and I am up again and doing my housework."—(Mrs.) E.L.

Do you realise what causes a good deal of rheumatic pain? Nothing but sharp-edged uric acid crystals which form as the result of sluggish eliminating organs. Kruschen Salts can always be counted upon to clear those painful crystals from the system.—Advt.

DOES BOTTLE BOTHER BABY?

IF SO Mrs. Robert E. Brandon, of Markham, Ontario, has this message for you: "As so often happens to bottle-fed babies, stomach trouble and constipation were so troublesome we despaired of ever raising our first baby. A neighbour recommended Baby's Own Tablets and they proved so satisfactory we have never been without them for over thirteen years, with the result we have five extra sturdy children. So far they have missed all the so-called children's diseases and four of the five were bottle fed."

And Mrs. M. Butchart, of Toronto, says this: "Baby's Own Tablets are excellent for bottle-fed babies as they assist in digesting foods which cause indigestion."

Never be without Baby's Own Tablets — sickness so often strikes in the night. Your money back if you are not satisfied. 25 cents.

Clemenceau, Lloyd George Call Broke Wilson-House Ties

President Resented Visits To Diplomat Author Reveals After 14 Years' Silence

NEW YORK, May 4 — (AP). — Breaking a silence of 14 years, Bob Davis, author and newspaper man, disclosed in his column in the New York Sun today Col. Edward M. House's version of his break with Woodrow Wilson in Paris in 1919 at the time of the ePace Conference.

Davis said that House, active for the United States government during and after the war, himself told the story to him and the late Herman Kohlsaat, Chicago publisher, on February 3, 1924, the day Wilson died. With the death of House on March 28—Kohlsaat died in October, 1924—Davis said he saw no reason to withhold the story.

Davis wrote that in June, 1919, House was staying at the Hotel Chillon in Paris and Wilson, then president of the United States, was living at the residence of Prince Murat. They were in requent consultation, and one afternoon Wilson dropped in at the hotel to pass the time of day.

While they were talking, a card was brought in. "'Someone for me?' asked the president. 'For you. Colonel House,' replied the doorman. 'Mr. Clemenceau is calling.'

"The President," Davis quoted House as saying, "arose and said: 'Let me not disturb you,' and with that, before I could detain him, recovered his hat and let himself out through a private exit."

Wilson Unwell

House said he thought Wilson was not disturbed at the time. Later events led him to think otherwise. He remarked that Wilson was not a well man.

A few days later Wilson again called on House and was setting down some notes on a writing pad when a doorman announced that Lloyd George was calling on Col. House.

"I asked that he be shown into an adjoining reception room," House continued. "This time the President's reaction, as compared with his retirement when Clemenceau appeared, was indeed definite.

"'There is no reason Mr. Lloyd George should be kept waiting,' he said, carefully folding his notes and placing the sheaf in his breast pocket. 'Nothing that I had in mind is of the least importance, I assure you.'

"That was the end of my long and intimate friendship with Woodrow Wilson. Whether or not he resented my association with Clemenceau and Lloyd George at a time when he was the accredited leader of thought and expression for the United States, is for you gentlemen to reflect upon as you see fit. The facts are as stated."

Looking Back
On This Date

It was on this date (May 4) in 1910 that the House of Commons passed the naval service bill of the Laurier ministry, and thereby provided the means by which Sir Wilfrid was ousted from office by the votes of his own province, Quebec. The debate had been in progress from January, when Sir Wilfrid himself introduced the bill. It provided for a naval force of a permanent corps, a reserve and a volunteer force, on the same lines as the Militia Act, except that while the latter makes all males from 17 to 60 liable for service, the naval service was to be purely voluntary. The force was to be under the control of the Canadian government, but the governor-general-in-council might, in emergency, place any or all of it at the disposal of his majesty, subject to the immediate summoning of parliament if not in session. At first five cruisers and six destroyers would be built, valued in England at a cost of $11,000,000, but if possible the ships would be built in Canada.

Fred Williams

The bill was the outcome of a decision by parliment in March, 1909, when Mr. G. E. Foster had presented a resolution that the time had come for Canada to defend her own coasts. Sir Wilfrid accepted the Foster suggestion by an amendment in favor of a Canadian navy, which was endorsed by Mr. R. L. Borden ad unanimously adopted. Yet when the naval bill was before parliament there was a complete change of front. The Conservatives saw that votes could be won in Quebec, and when the Nationalist agitation in Quebec was at its height and was responsible for Sir Wilfrid's defeat in his home county of Drummond-Arthabaska that autumn, the first man to send a telegram of congratulation to the man who had defeated the Laurier candidate was the same G. E. Foster. When, having won the election by the aid of the anti-British campaign in Quebec the Borden cabinet was formed, the men who had led the campaign against Laurier and his navy in Quebec were sworn as members of the Conservative cabinet.

The advent of the Border minstry, of course, killed the Laurier naval policy; Mr. Borden proposed a contribution to the British navy, but this was killed by the Senate, and whatever naval force we had was, after all, based upon the Laurier policy.

HASTINGS

NO ACTION TAKEN METER RURAL LINES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 4—The Hastings Hydro Electric commission held their regular monthly meeting in the council chambers Monday night. All members were present and Dr. W. E. Wilson was in the chair.

H. G. Fairman, newly elected to the board to fill the vacancy left by the late Herbert Stephenson, voiced his approval for the nomination given him and stated it was with much regret that he try to fill the chair left by Mr. Stephenson. Dr. W. E. Wilson offered words of welcome to Mr. Fairman and said he knew he could fill the position from past experience.

The secretary read a letter regarding an electric range campaign. The commission declined to participate but revealed that a purchaser of a new range would receive a credit of $1 per month for twenty months, as an enticement to use more power.

For purpose of comparison, the secretary told the commission, that there was but $8 difference in March power account for this year and last year.

The pros and cons on having the rural lines metered where they connect on the local lines were discussed but no action was taken.

On motion of H. Fairman and Reeve Kelly the commission will purchase a 10 K.V.A. G.E. transformer and materials fot a new line on Park street.

Vote Victoria Day For May 23

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., May 4 (CP)—City council last night voted 5-4 to observe Victoria Day on Monday, May 23, instead of the statutory date of Tuesday, May 24.

After the vote, Mayor John D. Wright, who voted against the proposal, said "If it is not in the interest of the citizens I will veto the bylaw and not issue a proclamation."

The bylaw approved read in part: "Public holidays observed on any day but Monday cause considerable inconvenience, and if all public holidays were observed on Monday in the week in which they fall considerable public benefit would ensue by virtue of the fact the holiday week-end would be lengthened."

CAMPBELLFORD

COUNCIL PASSES LICENSE BY-LAW FOR JUNK DEALERS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4—Council passed a by-law which gave them veritable control of all junk yards and second-hand dealers who operate within the Corporation when on Monday evening a bill requiring all dealers in second-hand goods, junk, old rags, papers, iron, etc., to take out a municipal license at an annual fee of $2.

The bill was given passage on its third reading, following a deluge of complaints from citizens in various sections of the town who claimed their property was being depreciated in value by the proximity of junk dealers who kept unsightly yards. Designed to both limit and control dealers in this type of merchandise, it was embodied in the by-law that all applicants must furnish a detailed statement of the type of goods it was intended to handle and must at all times keep the property in a clean and orderly manner. The property will be inspected by the legal committee before power to grant a license to any applicant is given. Conviction for the breach of any of the terms will bring a fine of $5 for each offence, and in default distres sor confinement to the county jail for not more than 21 days. The law comes into force on May 16, and all licenses will be subject to revocation by council.

Protest Cooking Sales.

Another matter which gave cause for heated discussion was the large number of cooking sales being sponsored in town by both local and out-of-town associations. Members agreed that these weekly sales were an injustice to the local bakers who were compelled to pay a business tax but were given no protection from these societies. The matter was left in the hands of the Legal Committee.

A request by A. Rapport for a fixed taxation on the two properties now owned by the town and adjoining the tourist camp at the north end of Front Street was also left with the Legal Committee with power to act. The proprietor of the tourist camp stated that if he were assured of a fixed assessment he would turn the lots into a free tourist camping site and would also spend a considerable sum of money in its development.

A delegation from the Seymour Agricultural Society requesting permission to hold a street dance on June 1 was headed by Messrs. T. J. Horkins and E. A. McCook. The request was granted.

Letters requesting the M.O.H. to attend the annual convention in Toronto and to the weed inspector requesting his attention to a meeting in Cobourg were dealt with.

The resignation of George Whitelaw, who has been operating the town weigh scales, was accepted and instructions were given the clerk to advertise for tenders to fill the position for the balance of the year.

Erect Guard Rail?

The matter of placing a guard rail on the south side of Hastings road was again aired by the council and the agreement with the Department of Highways was discussed. Reeve Calver stated he would not be in favor of signing the agreement with the Department until the town brought in a by-law assessing all gas pumps a tax equal to the levy which would be made by the Department if they assumed control of the road. The Clerk read the terms of the agreement for the benefit of members who were not familiar with its clauses. Councillor Macmillan pointed out that vendors of gasoline who had the advantage of the more favorable positions along the highway should well be able to shoulder the extra levy made by the Department and saw no reason why other dealers should be penalized if the agreement were signed.

It was indicated that it would cost about $400 to build the fence and it was felt the matter should be given more thorough investigation by the Road and Bridge Committee.

A motion was passed authorizing the Clerk to write the Department of Militia for permission to place a parking lot on the grounds occupied by the Armouries in order that the Mayor's promise of a parking lot to the merchants on the west side of town might be fulfilled.

Councillor P. H. Macmillan, chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee, told council members he had been in conversation with a representative of a paving company who had gone over the roads in town with him and would forward a tender for the work. He advised that tenders should be sought from other companies as well and stated that before any work could be done to the roads, repairs would have to be made to the town roller and grader. A motion was passed calling for a special meeting to deal with the matter of pavement repairs.

Tax Collector J. C. Birmingham reported collections of 1938 taxes during the month of April at $208.73; 1937 arrears collected during the same month were $178.73. Other arrears collected during the month were $283.67.

The report of Relief Officer J. J. Lewis Hay, who told council that relief had been discontinued last Thursday, indicated that the relief during the month of April had reached a total of $775, which was $285 above the same month last year.

King Attends Church Service

King George is shown arriving at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, for the annual service of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. The last time the service was attended by His Majesty was in 1932, when he was Duke of York. The order of St. Michael and St. George was founded in 1818 by the Prince Regent, afterwards George IV.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO GET GRANTS

TORONTO, May 4.—It is the intention of the Department of Education to provide some legislative grant to public schools which will make it possible for Grades VII and VIII in their schools to take manual training and household science in high schools which have equipped themselves for shop-work and household economics in accordance with the new course of study for secondary schools, Dr. George F. Rogers, Chief Inspector of Secondary Shools, revealed Tuesday to the Associated High School Boards of Ontario.

Dr. Rogers, in reply to a query put by Dr. Eagleson of Madoc, stated that he felt that the seventh and eighth grades in public school should be given the privilege of taking these subjects in a high school equipped for the purpose "on a rental basis." Not only would the department assist the public schools in the high school centre, but those also in the surrounding country. It would, moreover, assist in paying the transportation of pupils from outside the centre, he added.

Victim Of Scuffle Cadet Is Buried

TORONTO, May 4 (CP)—Gentleman Cadet Ronald D. Smith, Toronto youth, who died following a "friendly dormitory scuffle" at R.M.C., Kingston, Saturday, was buried at Mount Pleasant Cemetery today.

Six pall-bearers, all classmates of the deceased, stood with heads bowed in the drizzling rain as the casket, draped in a Union Jack, was lowered into the grave. They wore the scarlet tunics of full R.M.C. dress. A bugler sounded "Taps."

At St. Clement's Church, Rev. W. G. Nicholson and Rev. Provost J. H. Cosgrave of Trinity College conducted a service. There was no sermon. "Abide With Me" was the only hymn sung.

The church was a mass of floral wreaths and baskets. The chapel was full to overflowing with friends of the young student and his family.

HASTINGS

Members of Hastings division Catholic Women's League held a successful tea at the home of Miss Mary Barry, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Butler, daughter Gertrude and son James, of Rochester, N.Y., spent the weekend at the home of Miss M. Butler.

Mr. John Londerville, Peterborough, visited his brother, William Londerville, on Sunday. He was a former resident here and renewed acquaintances with several friends.

MARMORAN GAINS NAME IN POETRY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, May 4.—The reguing poem appears in the May issue of The Church Chronicle of the Diocese of Ontario:

"The Father's Business"

In the Father's business
Work is left for you,
Others will not do it,
Their have theirs to do.
Left for you is good work
Humble though it be,
This be your endeavor,
To toil honestly.
Much corrodes through worry,
You had better trust;
Save up heavenly treasure,
It is safe from rust.
As you find depression
Keeping others down
Seek to raise their spirit,
Smile against each frown.
In the Father's business
Do not faint or tire,
One day He will call you
To employment higher.
Carry on the good work,
God will make it pay,
He's your Senior Partner,
Call Him up each day.

—William James Cottrell.

Hitler And Duce Talk About Old Colonies

Mussolini Listens as Nazi Dictators Outlines Wants; Italians Show Visitor Seapower in Vast Panorama

NAPLES, May 5 (AP).—Premier Mussolini spread Italian seapower in a vast panorama before Chancellor Hitler today in the first of four spectacles intended to show Italy's capacity for war.

More than 200 fighting craft and squadrons of seaplanes were marshalled for the war-like manoeuvres, with trim little combat launches speeding out of smokescreens and big guns roaring in simulated attack and defence.

As a climax, Fascist aviators planned a dramatic aerial "attack" upon the 22,000-ton battleship Cavour carrying Mussolini and Hitler as observers.

The other three spectacles planned in honor of Italy's Nazi visitor were a gigantic military parade later in the week in Rome, a sham battle at Santa Marinella showing troops in action and an aerial demonstration over Furbara.

Despite these demonstrations, however, the question of how close Italy and Germany might come to a military alliance was not clarified by spokesmen of either side.

Both denied such a pact would be concluded, although the general staffs of both countries have co-operated closely for many months.

Colonies Main Topic

The business end of Hitler's visit thus far had touched only on colonies in conversations between the two leaders, it was said, with Hitler doing most of the talking as he explained his desire for restoration of war-lost possessions.

The overshadowing political question, however, was whether Hitler would discuss Czechoslovakia with Mussolini, and seek his agreement to the union of Sudeten Germans in that country with Germany.

Taken for granted was the assumption that at conclusion of their conversations they would reiterate their friendship for Japan and their opposition to communism.

ENGLISH NATIONS MUST BE EXAMPLE

WASHINGTON, May 5 (CP). — English-speaking nations must impress upon the world the principles of justice and freedom and recognition of the rights of others to assure a restored universal stability, J. H. Woods, past president of the Calgary, Alta., Herald, said today in an address here.

"Our position in commerce, in finance, in education, in diplomacy, if used unitedly can sway the world to justice," Mr. Woods, chairman of the Canadian section of the Empire Press Union, told the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"I speak with care when I say that there is a high duty resting upon the people of the United States and the people of the British Empire to come together in this great cause," he said, "and if we neglect it, we will leave a poor heritage indeed to our successors. I do not think that there has ever been a time when there has been such a spiritual reaching out by our people and yours toward one another as there is today."

Mr. Woods said the duty rested on this continent and more with the United States and Canada than with any other two peoples.

ONTARIO AT LIMIT OF HER ASSISTANCE TO MUNICIPALITIES

TORONTO, May 5 (CP)—Ontario municipalities are unlikely to be relieved of any more of their tax load by the provincial government unless the Dominion agrees to recognize the prior right of the province to collect personal income tax, it was indicated to the Rowell Commission today.

Hon. Eric Cross, Ontario Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs, said the government had relieved the municipalities of $13,000,000 by taking over complete responsibility for several services last year, but it was difficult to see how further benefits could be passed on to the municipalities "unless an agreement is reached with the Dominion with respect to the prior right of the province to collect income tax."

The province believed all social services should be financed out of direct taxation, he said. "If this field had not been invaded by the Dominion the province would be in a position still further to alleviate the present load which the municipalities are required to carry."

A Building Brake

He appreciated that with real estate taxation at its present high level the building industry was likely to remain stagnant.

"Recognizing this, the province has determined to do whatever is possible within the limitation of its own budget requirements to improve the position of the municipal taxpayer," he said.

Mr. Cross sketched the development of the Provincial Department of Municipal Affairs since its inception in 1935, outlining its investigations and studies of municipal matters generally. Through the efforts of the Departments experts, the standards of municipal government were being improved and extended throughout the province.

Due to control of capita lexpenditure being vested in the Ontario Municipal Board and the general supervision of the Department, no further defaults occurred in 1936 and 1937. The province could take credit for the energetic measures to deal with the alarming picture that had developed up to 1934, he said.

From 1930, 34 Ontario municipalities defaulted with debts totalling 103,000,000. However, suggestive of the general improvement in the municipal picture was the fact total municipal debt was reduced from $483,952,000 at the end of 1934 to $431,546,000 at the end of 1936, he said.

Otonabee Claims First 1938 Victim

Barbara Douglas, Three-and-Half-Year-Old, Falls Into River From Wharf at Rye's Pavilion

The swift flowing Otonabee river claimed its first victim of 1938 this morning (Thursday) when a three and a half year old girl tumbled into the chilly water from Rye's Wharf. She was Barbara Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Douglas, 598 Young street.

The grim tragedy was enacted before the eyes of two other children, one of them nearly eight years old, according to Jack Hunter, 22, of 270 Park Hill Road. Jack Hunter was travelling in the river in an outboard motorboat when he saw the little girl's body floating in the water about ten feet from the wharf. The other children were standing on the wharf, and made no outcry, he claimed. Two other men were standing talking about a block away at the time. They told police they had heard no shouts, and were both in a position to save the child if they had only known she was in danger. They saw the two children standing on the wharf, but were not aware anything was the matter.

Pulling the body of the child into the boat, Jack Hunter reached shore and stopped a passing truck, whose driver telephoned the Peterborough Fire Department. An inhalator was rushed to the scene, but efforts to revive the child failed. Firemen Robert Armour, Garnet Brown and Vergil Carr arrived at the wharf four minutes after the alrm reached the station at 9.53 o'clock. They applied artificial respiration until 10.22.

One of the two children who were standing on the wharf at the time of the fatality was Marlene Jacques, a neighbor. Her father said she had been gone scarcely ten minutes, supposedly on a message, when he heard the pullmotor arriving. Because the body was found floating it was believed the child had died from shock. The child's father is Joseph W. Douglas, assistant foreman at the Card and Paper Works.

It was almost a year ago that a similar tragedy was avoided on the same spot when a small boy fell into the water, was rescued.

Barbara Douglas leaves to mourn a sorrow mother, father, and three brothers, Tommy, aged 7; Ray, aged 5; Billie, aged 9 months. The remains are resting at the funeral home of D. Belleghem and Sons until Thursday at 8 p.m. The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, Rev. T. Gault of St. George's Anglican Church officiating. Interment will be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

Toughest Beards At Kirkland Lake

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., May 5 (C.P.). — Bronzed and bearded hard-rock men of Ontario's Northlands are engaged in bitter dispute over toughness of beards in the various camps. It started when Sudbury men bewailed the fact they had no women barbers, although Rouyn, Que., had one.

Timmins males smugly replied they had had a woman barber, but their beards were too tough for her and she fled. The former Timmins barber, now here, denied it. "There never was a beard I could not shave," she replied. "Beards are tougher here than at Timmins."

A calf was born recently in an airplane over New Guinea.

LACK OF ACTIVITY BRINGS PROTESTS FROM THE SENATE

OTTAWA, May 5.—(CP)—Some senators have no work to do and don't like the inactivity, according to Senator Creelman McArthur (Lib. Prince). He would like to be on the active committe with enough labor to keep him busy.

The Senator brought his complaint before the Upper House yesterday during what government leader Dandurand called a "free-for-all." Senator McArthur declared that of 20 members of the special railway committee nine were lawyers and there was a "super-lawyer" engaged as counsel at $100 a day. (Col. O. M. Biggar is the committee counsel).

"I refuse to be a bump on a log or a rubber stamp any longer," the Senator said. He had been a member of a finance committee that had not met for several years.

The "free-for-all" grew out of a charge by Senator John T. Haig (Con. Winnipeg) that Senator Arthur C. Hardy (Lib. Brockville) had "positively insulted" him in the senate divorce committee. The Brockville senator had attempted to prevent him from speaking during the committee sessions, Senator Haig declared, and had been upheld by the committee chairman Senator Charles E. Tanner (Con. Pictou).

"I was positively insulted by the honorable senator from Brockville and I was not supported by the chairman of the committee," he said.

Senator Hardy replied Mr. Haig had spoken to Senator Lendrum McMeans (Con., Winnipeg) in a manner which Mr. Hardy did not like. Senator Hardy said more deference ought to have been shown to Senator McMeans, one of the oldest members of the House 'and

Turgeon Proves Easy Champion Of Dominion's Arbiters

Saskatchewan Judge Ends Eighth Enquiry — Covered 25,000 Miles on Last Two

OTTAWA, May 5 (CP).—A Maritimer who achieved high reputation in the political and judicial life of Western Canada, Mr. Justice W. F. A. Turgeon, stands out today as the Dominion's master arbiter.

When the Royal Grain Commission report is tabled in the House of Commons, possibly this afternoon, it will mark completion of the eighth inquiry in which Mr. Justice Turgeon has participated during his long career.

In the past two years, the energetic judge of the Saskatchewan Appeal Court has headed an extensive royal commission inquiry into the textile industry, the report of which was tabled in the Commons a month ago, and also has investigated the Canadian grain trade.

In public hearings stretched over 17 months, he listened to evidence on intricate details of the textile and grain trades for more than 250 days and travelled nearly 25,000 miles in trips through Canada, United States and to Europe.

Now that the grain inquiry has ended, Mr. Justice Turgeon plans a vacation and then likely will return to Regina and his judicial work on the bench of the Appeal Court to which he was appointed in 1921.

An active man who has crammed a career in politics and law into his 60 years of life, Judge Turgeon does not desire retirement. He scoffed at rumors he might eventually be appointed Canadian Minister to France.

Roadside Gold Strike Just A Bubble As Yellow Flakes Prove Mica

Vancouver, May 5 (CP)

DREAM of four roadworkers of sudden riches in a roadside "gold" strike suffered a rude ending as an assayer termed their samples yellow mica.

"We had fun for a while anyway," said Alfred Camadge, who with Samuel C. Cory, Robert Genge and George Westwood, hurriedly staked claims yesterday near Point Roberts, 35 miles south of here, when Westwood discovered "flakes of yellow stuff" in roadside gravel.

However the assay was not entirely worthless. Gravel in which the mica was found returned an assay of .01 ounces of gold a ton. It was practically a minimum but considered commercial by a few large companies under the most favorable conditions.

"We are going to hold a council of war and decide what to do," said Cory. "I think we will obtain the opinion of a good engineer before doing anything more."

7,000 Are Needed To Equip Canada's Army

Initial Order Reported Placed by Great Britain For New Weapons Adapted For Her Own Troops

OTTAWA, May 5 (CP).—The Bren gun, the light machine-gun with which the British army is now being equipped, will be manufactured in Canada, the National Defence Department announced today. The Czechslovakian weapon will be made in Toronto by the John Inglis Co. Ltd.

Inquiries at the department failed to elicit information as to the volume or value of the contract, beyond the fact that the needs of the Canadian service were placed at 7,000, which would be delivered as circumstances warranted.

Confirmation was lacking here that the British government is linked up with the program of the Inglis Company, although from other sources it was insisted that an initial order from the United Kingdom had been placed with the Toronto firm.

The Department's announcement, issued under authority of Defence Minister Mackenzie, adheres strictly to the Canadian angle of the matter and makes no mention of any British hook-up.

Aid Canadian Labor.

It sets forth that the Inglis Company "will manufacture Bren light machine guns in Canada under the terms of a contract which has been dealt with by the Inter-Departmental committee on the contro lof profits on government contracts. The contracts will result in very considerable benefits to Canadian industry and labor. Owing to the large re-armament program in England, it was not possible otherwise to obtain an early supply of machine guns.

"The Department of National Defence will purchase and retain ownership of all special machines and tools required. A number of machines formerly utilized in the production of Ross rifles and now in possession of the Department will be used in manufacturing operations not requiring the utmost precision. The terms of the contract provide for rigid Departmental control of expenditures and production costs.

"The need for modern machine gun equipment was recognized some time ago, and the exhaustive tests carried out under the auspices of the War Office were carefully followed by the experts of the Department. The opinion is that the Bren gun is the superior weapon amongst the many light machine guns tested.

"The establishment in Canada of a plan for the manufacture of these guns is of great strategic importance."

Compay Confirms Order.

Toronto, May 5.— (CP).—Officials of the John Inglis Company confirmed to-day an order had been received for manufacture of the Bren gun, a light machine-gun with which the British army is being equipped.

Beyond confirming the announcement by the Nationa Defence Department at Ottawa, company officials would not go.

SIMON SPREADING HIS NETS TO TRAP RICH TAX DODGER

LONDON, May 5.—(CP Cable).—Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, has spread a wide net to catch the wealthy evader of taxes.

The methods of the tax "dodger" are varied and ingenious. Acting with strict provisions of the law he so contrives to transform the nature of his income that it becomes capital, and therefore escapes if not the standard income tax at least the surtax.

There is nothing illegal in what he does—he acts strictly within the law. Nevertheless the treasury loses and the poorer taxpayer bears a proportionately heavier share of the tax burden.

Resolutions of which the chancellor has given notice in the House of Commons, it is hoped, put an end to these methods of tax evasion.

Under his provisions, income tax will be taxed as income, in spite of devices to convert it into capital.

How They Work It

Here are some of the devices used: The Revocable Trust—this makes use of the legal machinery of trusts and settlements to avoid surtax payable on incomes of more than £2,000 annually. Under the existing law if an individual can get back benefit by revoking a trust to himself he cannot reduce tax liability. So making revocation subject to consent by a third party, he nominates an accommodating friend. Sir John Simon's proposals put a check on the accommodating friends.

Loans offer the second tax evasion device. The income goes into a settlement fund from which the trustees make loans to the settlor. Such loans now are not income and therefore escape tax. Sir John proposes to treat loans from undistributed income of settlement funds as the income of the settlor for taxation purposes.

The third device is the one-man company formed abroad. Income paid into the company is withdrawn in the shape of capital. The new proposals provide that where avoidance of taxation is the purpose of such an arrangement, the transfer will not reduce the liability to taxation.

Sir John expects to get an additional £5,000,000 in surtax for the financial year 1938-39 but the full effect of tightening the law on evasion tax will not be apparent for another 12 months.

FRENCH FRANC IS STABILIZED AS WAR GUARD

Premier Needs Cash For Growing Threat

PARIS, May 5.—(AP)—The government announced today the franc have been stabilized at 35.80 francs to the dollar and 179 to the pound, as Premier Daladier admitted the danger of war was increasing and ordered the move in an attempt to get money for development of military defence.

The official announcement called the action "de facto stabilization." This was believed to mean the franc would be allowed to fluctuate above this level but would be held by the equalization fund from falling below it in conformity with Premier Edouard Daladier's pledge last night to the nation.

Before the announcement the franc had dropped to 35.90 to the dollar and 178.95 to the pound in bank trading, after opening at 35.70 and 178.5.

Afternoon quotations were maintained at approximately the stabilization level, which makes the franc worth 2.79 cents.

Until the government announced today's new bottom there had been no official limits to the franc's fluctuations since the Chautemps government created the "floating franc" by cutting it loose from its gold content last June 29.

War Threat Grows

The Premier announced the devaluation—third since the Great War—last night after admitting the danger of conflict in Europe was increasing and that the step was necessary to put France on a preparedness footing.

The monetary stabilization fund established after the devaluation by Premier Leon Blum in 1936 guided the franc in the new de facto stabilization.

By delaying the legal fixing of the new rate, the government would be following the example set by Premier Raymond Poincare who let some time elapse before fixing the value of the cheaper franc in 1928.

Stabilization with legal revaluation of the bank of France's stock of gold at that level would have two effects:—

1. Enable investors to buy forthcoming national defence loan bonds with reasonable assurance they

CUBA SEPTUPLETS FAIL TO SURVIVE

HAVANA, May 5.—(AP)—Dr. Roberto Fonesca, director of a hospital at Bayamo, Oriente province, telephoned to Havana today tat a farm woman near Bayamo had given birth prematurely to seven children but none had survived.

He said he had visited the woman but had not seen the children, because the midwife had disposed of them before his arrival. The birth he said, occurred Monday, after only three months' gestation.

The woman's name was given as Rafaela Canova, 30 years old. She was recovering.

Earlier Colonel Fulgencio Batista, chief of the army, on receipt of reports that septuplets had been born, sent an army physician to the Bayamo district to investigate.

BANKER ARRESTED ON FRAUD COUNT

LONDON, O., May 5.—C. Stirling Smith, former Cleveland banker, was taken into custody at the prison farm today by Federal Immigration Inspector Guy Holmes for deportation to Canada.

Mother Details Son's Murders 'To Get Right With Maker'

Officer Disguised As Clergyman Gets Confession Solving 4 Ten-Year Mysteries

WALLA WALLA, Wash., May 5.—(AP)—A 73-year-old mother accused her son of four unsolved mystery murders, prison officials said today, as they arranged to bring the pair together for the first time in 10 years.

By a ruse, Deputy Prosecutor John Schermer of King County said, investigators extracted from Mrs. Mary Eleanor Smith a tale of how her son, Earl DeCasto Mayer, hammered to death James Eugene Bassett in Seattle 10 years ago, dismembered his body and hid it in scattered, secluded spots.

Unexpectedly, Schermer said, Mrs. Smith wrote State Patrolman Joe McCauley, who duped her by posing as a clergyman, that Mayer previously killed two other men and a woman in Montana and Idaho.

The letters named the victims as Mrs. Ernest La Casse of Butte, Mont., who vanished in 1923; Ole Larson of Anaconda, Mont., who disappeared in 1921, and a man named Randall whose body was buried in stone quarry in Idaho.

Both Mrs. Smith and her son are in prison here, where they were sent for grand larceny after the state was unable to prosecute them for Bassett's murder, one of the most baffling in Washington state's criminal history because they could not find the body.

Freak Accident Ends 26 Years' Service

New York, May 5 (AP)

A FREAK ACCIDENT yesterday cost the life of Patrolman Thomas Hackett, 56, four times cited for heroism during his twenty-six years on the police force.

Hackett's death resulted when his foot became wedged in the rear bumper of a sedan hurled toward the sidewalk in a collision with a truck trailer.

The sedan, struck a terrific glancing blow, spun around several times. With his foot imprisoned in the bumper, Hackett was dashed against the pavement. His skull was crushed.

Planes To Shower Gas Upon Hamilton As War Units Raid In Fun

Hamilton, Ont., May 5 (CP)

AN ACTUAL air raid, followed by a gas attack, will be staged here May. 20 in connection with the annual meeting of the Navy League of Canada. The demonstration is believed to be the first of its kind attempted in Canada.

Plans for the "battle," in which military units from United States as well as Canadian points will participate, were outlined before the league's legislation and reception committee last night by L. T. Spalding of the Hamilton branch.

Airplanes will dip near the Civic Stadium and drop bombs on a dummy ship. Anti-aircraft guns will train their fire on the "raiding" aircraft. Gas bombs will be dropped and non-poisonous fumes will rise from the field as they hit.

Defending forces will be equipped with gas masks and will give a demonstration of their use. A "destroyer" will launch an attack upon a "battleship" in a great sea, land and air spectacle.

ARMS PROGRAMME IMPROPER TOPIC SYNOD DISCUSSION

TORONTO, May 5.—Convinced that rearmament or disarmament as roads to peace was not a subject for church debate or decision, the Toronto Synod of the Anglican Church late yesterday defeated a resolution endorsing, in brief, Britain's arms program by a standing vote of approximately 235 to 25.

The overwhelming vote of nine to one followed a long discussion of a resolution of Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, Rector of St. Nicholas Church, Birch Cliff, which was intended as an amendment to a Committee resolution endorsing a resolution of the Sydney, Australia, Diocese urging action "to break down the friction and general discord existing today in this mad world."

Mr. Wallace's motion asked Synod to resolve that it believed "the best method of giving practical effect to our fervent desire for peace is for the Dominions to support the Government of Great Britain in its determination to make the Empire so strong that its voice will be listened to with respect by those nations which understand no language but the language of force; and further this Synod expresses it penitence for any action that it took in the past which had (as we know now) the disastrous effect of weakening the military power of the Empire and pledges its support to the achievement of a strong and united Empire in this present crisis in the world's history."

Far Too Vague

The original Synod motion endorsing the Australian letter was far too vague, Mr. Wallace argued.

"Everyone here is behind the Empire, so why not say so in plain language," he declared. "The British Government would like to hear an expression of faith and support from such a body as this."

"It's not a fit subject for Synod to discuss," F. Andrew Brewin, lay delegate from St. Simon's Church, contended. "The best minds of the Church at the Oxford Conference couldn't decide the question. Why should we try. It's better let alone."

"Remember, this resolution is going out to all the dioceses of the Anglican Church," Rev. C. J. S. Stuart of St. Thomas's Church, warned, intimating the Synod had been placed in a ridiculous position by the Wallace amendment. "What good would it do in the Diocese of Chicago, for instance, to learn that we stand behind the Empire?"

COLLEGE PLACES HOPE IN BRACKEN

BRANDON, Man., May 5—(CP).—A large delegation, representing 45 towns and districts of Western Manitoba, will journey to Winnipeg to-day to interview Premier John Bracken and Education Minister Ivan Schultz in hope of reaching some arrangement by which Brandon College, facing a financial crisis, will be able to carry on.

The Western Baptist Union, which has financed the college for 38 years, has announced it cannot continue financial support after the end of the present term. Unless a solution is found the college, affiliated with McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont., probably will close at the end of June.

was sentenced to five to eight years in prison and was to have been released Monday. The son was sentenced to life imprisonment as a habitual criminal.

The letters said Bassett, a former naval officer, was lured to the "little brown house" where Mayer stayed with his mother on the pretense they were to buy his automobile.

She said she took no part in the actual slaying, but she boasted of the manner in which she cleaned up everything so thoroughly that, when officers searched the house soon after the crime, they could find no trace of the slaying.

"I was sitting on the couch, where I had a rod of iron hidden in a quilt, in case of a struggle," she said.

Basset was forced to write a telegram to his sister in Bremerton, Wash., and then was slugged on the head with the hammer after Mrs. Smith left the room.

Never Allowed Suffering

"I heard his body fall and went back into the room. He was gurgling. I stepped out again and Earl gave him one more blow and it was all over...He never allowed his victims to suffer."

Then Mrs. Smith said, Bassett's body was removed to the bath tub, where Mayer dismembered it with a meat saw and a butcher knife.

"The poor boy worked so hard," she said. "To keep up his strength I made him an eggnog."

The dismembered body was put into a galvanized iron tub and hidden for the night in Mayer's bedroom.

"That was one night," Mrs. Smith joked in a letter, "if Dr. Clark (owner of the home) had called I would have had to admit there were indiscretions going on in the bedroom."

She said all the body except the head and hands were put into four sacks and hidden separately under bushes in the woods north of Seattle. The head and hands, she said, were thrown into a woodchuck hole in a different locality.

Confronted in his cell yesterday with one of his mother's letters, Mayer showed no emotion. He said coldly, "she's goofy."

MORE ABOUT—

7,000 NEEDED

The Bren light machine gun was invented in Czechoslovakia and came to the notice of the British military authorities some years ago. Its weight gives it an initial advantage over the Lewis gun which, during and since the war, has been the infantry arm for weapons of this character. The Bren gun weighs only 27½ pounds, when carrying one fully loaded magazine.

Its rate of fire—from 500 to 600 rounds a minute—is slightly greater than that of the Lewis gun, while it is without the heavy air-cooling barrel which the latter possessed. The Bren barrel differs in few respects from that of the ordinary short muzzle Lee Enfield rifle, beyond the tubular muzzle extension whose function it is to conceal the flash.

Extensive tests over a period of years by the British War Office established other advantages, chiefly the low proportion of stoppages in fire and the rapidity with which such stoppages could be cleared.

The Bren may be fired from a bipod, for ground work, or from a sliding tripod for anti-aircraft work. The magazines are almost semi-circular, as contrasted with the flat panniers of the Lewis gun, and are inserted much after the fashion of cartridge clips of ordinary small arms. The cartridges are the service .303 calibre.

The War Office has adopted the Bren gun for infantry units, but not so far for aircraft.

SWIMMING POOL OPEN

The swimming pool at the Y.W.C.A. is open again after being closed for winter months. Nearly 38 members were swimming there on Wednesday afternoon and evening, when the pool first opened.

CANADIAN SAILOR HELD AT OSAKA

VANCOUVER, May 5.—(CP).—An Anglican clergyman and the secretary of a Vancouver organization to-day awaited a reply to a request the Federal Government investigate reports a British Columbia seaman was being detained by authorities in Japan.

In a telegram to Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie last night, Rev. Canon Harold King appealed on behalf of Joe Gilbertson, 24-year-old engineer of the S. S. Heatcote, whom he has known as a "splendid character" since boyhood and who is Scoutmaster at S. Paul's church where Canon King is rector.

Gilbertson is reported held by authorities at Osaka, Japan, because snapshots showing Japanese streets were found in his possession.

The other appeal came from Aubrey Peck, secretary of the Vancouver Centre Liberal Association, whose wire to the Defence Minister said friends of Gilbertson here request Government attention.

London Not Informed

LONDON, May 5.—(CP Cable.)—The Foreign Office to-night said it had received no official word of the detention at Osaka, Japan, of Joe Gilbertson, engineer of the steamship Heathcote.

A spokesman said such cases were usually handled by the local consular or diplomatic authorities and added the same could be said for the case of F. L. O'Hara, British insurance man, arrested at Yokohama on espionage charges.

LIBERALS HOLD CAUCUS

OTTAWA, May 5—(CP).—Liberals held a largely attended caucus to-day when, it was learned, the present outlook indicated the budget would not be brought down for at least two weeks. The date will depend on the progress being made in the negotiations at Washington for a new trade agreemnt.

IMPLEMENT PRICE JUMP STIRS M.P.'S INTO RESENTMENT

OTTAWA, May 5 (C.P.).—Further expressions of resentment against agricultural implement companies for raising prices are expected in the House of Commons to-day when members consider the report of a committee which investigated the industry last session.

In previous debate on the committee report Liberal and Co-operative Commonwealth Federal members attacked the companies for increasing their charges in the face of the committee report that increases were not justified.

The House turns to the implement committee report after almost three weeks' consideration of the Unemployment Relief Bil lauthorizing expenditures on direct relief and projects for the provision of work.

The Bill was passed through committee stage in yesterday's short session and may come up for third reading to-day if progress is made in consideration of the implement report.

The members may see tabled today the report of the Royal Commission investigation into the grain industry conducted by Mr. Justice W. F. A. Turgeon. Trade Minister Euler said yesterday the report would be tabled this week and possibly to-day. It has just been completed.

KIDNAPPING YARN JUST LAD'S PRANK

HAMILTON, May 5 (C.P.).—Kidnapping story by a High School student turned out to be a prank on his father, police officials said today.

The father of the boy appealed to police after he had been summoned by telephone to drive his son home from Saltfleet Township.

The story the boy related was that he had been roller-skating in the east-end when a stranger stopped his car beside him, pulled him into it, and forced him to accompany him on a drive into the country where he was dumped out, unharmed.

Later it developed the boy had been given an assignment at school to get some samples of plants and he roller-skated to a locality that promised to reward his search. As the evening waned he became tired He then decided to concoct the kidnapping story in order to induce his father to come after him.

BRIDGENORTH

A very enjoyable event took place in the Forester's Hall on Monday night when a community shower was given for Mr. and Mrs. Everett Doughty, bride and groom of the month. Mrs. Doughty was formerly Miss Avice Forsythe, a popular young lady of the village. The hall was prettily decorated in pink and white. Over the platform was suspended a large white bell. The evening's entertainment opened with community singing with Mrs. C. Telford at the piano. Soloists for the occasion were Mrs. Hepburn and Mrs. Mitchell, Messrs. R. Payne and Thomas Parker of Peterborough; recitation, Mr. James Jopling; guitar duet, Blewitt Bros.

Following the entertainment Mr. and Mrs. Doughty were asked to the platform and Little Bobbie Hardill and Doris Jopling carried in a large pink and white basket filled with gifts, which the chairman, Mr. Fred Jopling, in his humorous manner, asked the bride and groom to accept, to which the bride acknowledged in a charming speech, followed by the groom. After the presentation a sumptuous lunch was served, followed by dancing.

Rev. C. C. Miller and Mrs. Miller, daughter Gwenyth and Mrs. Ella Nicholls were in Haliburton on Monday and Tuesday to attend the golden wedding of Mrs. Miller's parents.

Mrs. L. McIlmoyle is spending the week with her niece, Mrs. B. Nicholls, at Fairview.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Apathy on part of buyers allowed Winnipeg May wheat to fall more than two cents to-day. Spreading operations held the October future but volume for the session was small and final quotations 2¾ to ⅛ cent lower. May $1.15¼, July $1.08½ to ⅝, and October 87⅞ to 88 cents.

Satisfactory growing conditions in Western Canada and United States wheat areas loomed as the chief depressing market influence. The market weakness was helped by almost virtually no export interest in Canadian wheat.

Other world wheat markets averaged lower. Improved moisture conditions in European countries, threat of an early winter wheat harvest in United States, liberal Australian arrivals at Liverpool and poor cash demand combined to discourage investment dealings.

BOARD WATCHED NEWSPAPER FIGHT FOR TWO YEARS

NEW YORK, May 5 — (CP). — Members of the Pulitzer Prize Advisory Board watched the situation in Alberta for nearly two years before deciding to break with tradition and make a special award in recognition of the battle of newspapers of the province to defeat the Alberta Press Act.

Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the Columbia University School of Journalism, and secretary of the Advisory Board, told last night of the steps leading to the unprecedented gesture.

When the awards for 1937 were announced Monday, it became known that for the first time in the 21 years history of the Pulitzer Prizes the trustees had bestowed honors outside the United States. A bonze plaque was given to the Edmonton Journal "for its leadership in the defence of the freedom of the press in Alberta." Engraved certificates were awarded to five other daily and 90 weekly newspapers for their resistance to attempts of the Social Credit government to impose a measure of control over the press.

Dean Ackerman said his interest in Alberta was stimulated two years ago when he attended the Canadian-American conference at St. Lawrence University, Canton, N.Y., At the time John W. Dafoe, editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Free Press, discussed the Alberta situation.

Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, and a member of the Advisory Board, subsequently sent a staff reporter to Alberta to "cover" the situation. A personal report on the situation from the Associated Press man acquainted the Board members further with the position being taken by the newspapers of the province.

A series of other developments finally resulted in crystallization of the Board's plan to step outside its usual sphere and recognize the fight the Alberta press.

The Agony Of Eczema

Eczema, or salt rheum, is one of the most torturing of itching skin diseases. The principal cause is bad blood, aided by inactive skin and inflammation. It manifests itself in small, round pimples or blisters which later on break and form crusts or scales, and the intense burning, itching and smarting are almost unbearable.

To eradicate eczema from the system it is necessary to give the blood a thorough cleansing, and for this purpose we would highly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mrs. Joseph R. Berger, Millbank, Ont., writes:—"Several months ago I was troubled with eczema on my hands. I could not help with the milking my hands were so sore and itching, and could hardly put them in water.

After I had taken two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I found my hands were healing very quickly. I have never found a remedy to compare with B.B.B. for purifying the blood."

54 Days In The Year

The more sessions there are of commissions discussing government finances the greater the amount of information which is being made available for the public.

Chester Walters, controller of finances for the Ontario government, touched on something before the Rowell Commission.

Just this: Residents of Ontario work an average of 54 days per year to support government in Canada.

From their combined incomes of about $2,000,000,000 they pay 15.77 per cent. to finance their government, and that is divided this way:

Dominion government	7.32%
Provincial government	1.98%
Municipal government	6.47%

That figure used by Mr. Walters is interesting—that the average individual works 54 days a year and turns his entire earnings of that time over to those who in one way or another govern him. We do not believe the average man needs that much government. As a rule he can go about his day's business with no supervision or suggestion from any government. It would seem that government is one commodity in which those who pay for it have nothing to say in regard to how much they want or need of it We do other things in a different way. If for instance a man wants to paint his house he goes to one painter and agrees upon the color of the paint and the amount of money which he will have to pay for the work. All the painters in the place do not rush in upon him and start putting paint upon his house. He gets just as much as he needs and no more, and if he does not desire any paint then he does not have to pay for it.

Governing people is different of course. We admit readily that governments are doing more things for people today than they ever did before, and that all increases the cost of what we call government. But even so, it is getting to be a pretty stiff problem when an individual in each year must work 54 days and hand the proceeds over to our three major systems of government, federal, provincial and municipal.

A Form Of Insanity

Some things are done in United States which on the surface appear to be evidences of insanity or an attempt at open defiance of plain justice.

In Hollywood there has been a case going on for several weeks in which Jackie Coogan is suing his mother for money which he made as a boy wonder on the screen. The amount has apparently shrunk, but that is not the point.

It is here: One despatch announced that Mrs. Coogan-Bernstein, the woman being sued, had dismissed her press agent. She is not in the moving picture business, so why should she need a press agent?

Here is the explanation: When the court case started Mrs. Coogan-Bernstein engaged a press agent. His business would be to write stories regarding her, telling what a dandy she was and how she loved her son, and how broken up she was over the trial, and then try and find newspapers which would insert the tripe. The idea would be to create a feeling favorable to the woman so that such favorable opinion would be reflected in the outlook of the jury. The press agent got fired because he could not find papers willing to print his stuff.

Asked No Advice

It is easy to fill up the papers, because one day it is necessary to deny what has been said the day before.

Like this: Premier Hepburn told the Rowell Commission he did not like the way in which it had been appointed. Some provinces had been consulted by the Dominion government, while others including Ontario had heard nothing about it. Mr. Hepburn first learned of the Commission when he read it in the paper. And of course that all helped to fill up space.

Next day on Premier King at Ottawa said the government had consulted with none of the provinces, and that filled up some more space.

The Dominion government had made its own decision. As Mr. King stated: "The decision of the Government was reached by itself."

And of course there is good enough precedent for that. In the days long since departed we read that Nehemiah, after rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem, found there were grafters in the place and complaint was made to him. His own record is that: "And I was very angry when I heard their cry and these words. Then I consulted with myself and I rebuked the nobles."

Nehemiah found there was something which needed doing and he went and did it, and as a rebuker of nobles or of men in general we dare say Nehemiah would do the thing thoroughly. In somewhat the same strain the government at Ottawa desired to have a Commission and the government proceeded to name it.

What Can They Do?

Members of the Associated High School Boards of Ontario met in Toronto, and the chief object of attack was Toronto and its methods. The complaint was and is that Toronto Board of Education made it a practice to raid teaching staffs outside the city, select the best teachers there and offer them positions in Toronto at an advance of $400 to $600 over and above what the smaller centres were able to pay. The Department of Education will have one more problem on its hands because the Associated Boards asked that something be done by the department to rectify that which is considered wrong.

Lorne Eedy of St. Marys is quoted as having described the situation as "indefensible and intolerable". Mr. Eedy is publisher of the St. Marys Journal-Argus and as a rule is pretty sensible in his views. This time he was moved to the point of mild explosion. Other trustees said Toronto insisted on teachers having experience and after they had been broken in and demonstrated their worth, then Toronto reached out and grabbed them. In this way it is felt that outside places are being used as training centres for the schools in Toronto.

We have not the least doubt that the situation complained of actually exists and trustees of the schools which have been raided would feel more at ease if there were some sort of a barrier erected.

But what are they going to do about it? It is not possible to pass a law saying that teachers shall not accept appointments in Toronto at higher salaries. Nor could the province pass a law saying that salaries in Toronto schools should not be higher than elsewhere. A school teacher has but one way of making a living—that is by selling his or her services in the best market.

That does not apply to teachers particularly, but it is the common law of trades, professions or vocations of any sort. Likewise it is just an outcropping of human nature that a teacher or any other individual should desire to go where salaries are most attractive. It probably does cause trouble and inconvenience for school boards but we do not see what can be done about it for after all this is a free country and teachers as well as other people can go where they wish to go.

The Jews And Their History

When it was announced that Germany had ordered all the Jews to register their property, and had informed Jews living outside of Germany that they would have to do the same thing, it was known well enough that some new form of anti-Semitic action was at hand. Announcement is now made that there is just one thing for the Jews to do—get out of Germany. That notice has been served on them in words which are so brutally plain that the meaning cannot be misinterpreted. The German state has taken as much as possible of their possessions and now desires them no more. Included in the announcement is this: "The Jew always was and is today our enemy. For us there is no such thing as a decent Jew".

The word Jew has several meanings. One is a man of Judah or of Judea; in Bible times it was also interpreted as signifying an adherent of Judaism. So one meaning is racial and the other religious and that confusion has persisted to the present. Within more recent times the word Zionist has a national implication, but as a nation the Jews ceased to exist in A.D. 130 in the time of Hadrian.

It is doubtful indeed if there are a people on the face of the earth with so romantic and colorful a history as the Jewish folk. They have a continuous history of over 4,000 years. David reigned about 1,000 B.C.; the fall of Samaria and the overthrow of the Northern kingdom of Israel was in 721 B.C., and the fall of Jerusalem and the overthrow of the Southern kingdom of Judah was in 586 B.C. The answer to what became of the lost tribes of Israel has not yet been authentically given.

Josephus, the most accepted writer of ancient history, says the Jews before the time of Titus were entirely an agricultural people, and there is much in history secular and sacred to support that idea. They were virtually forced to become a trading people and today if given opportunity they are exclusively traders in whom the instinct of buying and selling is more highly developed than in any other people.

In the city of New York one does not need to remain long to see evidence of the wealth and might of the Jewish people. Their holdings and interests are immense. The first of them went to New York in 1655, but the real influx did not take place until later. It was actually another case of the Jews being driven from one land and seeking refuge in another. At the time of the Jewish persecution in Russia in 1882 there was a large exodus to United States, and there are now 3,500,000 Jews in that country. World estimates give the total Jewish population as 15,000,000. There are about 400,000 of them in the British Empire, and during the World War there were 50,000 Jews in the British army.

Strange is their situation. The Jews have no national capital, they have no government, no army and no navy. There is no coin bearing their superscription; they have no postage stamps; they are scattered as few people have ever been scattered, and yet the mark of their race is upon them as indelibly as ever. They know what persecution is as few races have experienced it; they attend to their own folk who are in want and they have forfeited nothing of their racial characteristics by reason of their world pilgrimage and residence. Germany may drive them out. Probably will. But Germany cannot snuff out the Jewish folk. That has been tried too often and it has always failed.

Burning A Mortgage

Interesting we think and rather quaint is the news which comes from London, Ont., telling of a gathering in a church hall for the purpose of burning the mortgage on the building. The mortgage was for $15,000 in the first place and it has been that way for about 13 years with a little being paid off now and then. Finally the ladies started a drive and they drove hard enough to earn the right to touch a match to the mortgage paper and then watch it go up in flame and smoke.

It is rather good news to find that here and there are people who are burning mortgages on church property. Taking the country all over we have a tremendous amount of church property, most of it free from taxation, and much of it also carrying a heavy burden of debt in the way of mortgages. Now and then there have been heroic bodies of people banded together who decided to erect a church building and have it paid for when opened, but their number has been comparatively few. Most of the churches with mortgages find it difficult to pay them off. They have campaigns and they secure pledges, but then they find in a few years that a number of those who signed pledges for yearly payments have left the community through death or removal, and so the onslaught on the mortgage diminishes in vigor. Some of our larger churches have the largest mortgages, and in some cases the raising of money for interest alone is so serious a business that it cramps much of the other work in which the church ought to be engaged. We do not know what Biblical precedent there is for having a mortgage on a church building, but we have a notion the women in London who took matters in hand and hastened the day when the mortgage on their building was burned did exactly what a good many other church organizations ought to do.

NOTE AND COMMENT

France may decree the death penalty for spies. There is one thing to be said for such a policy—it is at least final.

Mr. Arcand realized that only under a democracy would he be able to make such an attack upon the existing system of government without landing in jail.

Out of 264 cars examined by Toronto police 58 were found to be defective mechanically. The percentage in smaller centres would probably be higher.

The Edmonton Journal has been awarded a special public service Pulitzer prize but we understand that Premier Aberhart would like an opportunity to bring in a minority report.

A natural question at the present moment is whether we are to endeavor to remain a nation—or be satisfied with just being nine separate provinces, flying the flag-one-for-himself.

Jean Francois Pouliot is said to be making a bid for the Quebec Liberal leadership. He had better be careful Premier Duplessis will be clamping a padlock on him.

Even those who demand sterner penalties for reckless driving will not applaud the action of a Quebec court in sending a fifteen-year-old boy to the penitentiary for such an offence.

Ten persons were killed and 32 injured when a drunken driver in Mexico City drove his machine into the stone wall of a bridge. That is probably the worst motoring tragedy yet credited to an attempt to mix gasoline and alcohol.

HABIT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I guess that being in parliament, fills up a man with discontent, and riles him to the core; each day some new attack's begun, and when they get that fairly done, why they attack some more.

¶ And Grits attack the Tories too, and paint them with a sombre hue, and turn their guns on them; then Tories will attack the Grits, and tear them all in little bits, and then attack again.

¶ Then they attack our railways too, but never tell us what to do, it rather gets one's goat; the speakers bang their brawny hand, but they take care to safely stand, so they won't lose a vote.

¶ And they attack our banking men, they'd make fresh sausage out of them, they'd make them hump and moan; but when they's finished with their say, they leave the thing in such a way, that they can get a loan.

¶ Our other governments they smite, for they are fifteen miles from right, invaders is the word; they give us oratory in lumps, attack our roads and all their bumps, with heated noun and verb.

¶ I read their stuff most every day, and all the things they spear and slay, they'd whack more if they could; I often wonder now and then, if any of our public men—find anything that's good.

Plain Rubbish In This Debate

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. BRADETTE: The hon. member should know about "dumbness."

Mr. POOLE: I would not have to be very smart to know that. All Canada should know it.

Mr. ST-PERE: How long has the hon. member been in this country?

Mr. POOLE: I have been here long enough to know how dumb the Liberal party is.

Mr. ST-PERE: The hon. member should go back where he belongs.

Mr. POOLE: I belong in this country just as much as the hon. member does.

Mr. ST-PERE: No, sir. My ancestors came to Canada in 1642.

Mr. POOLE: Well that was not the hon. member's fault.

An hon. MEMBER: This hon. gentleman is one of those fellows who want to live without working.

Mr. POOLE: I may be a better Canadian than the hon. member, because I chose this country and adopted it. The hon. member did not choose Canada.

Mr. ST-PERE: We certainly made a bad bargain when we let in the hon. member.

Mr. POOLE: Yes, a bad bargain for the Liberal party.

Mr. FOURNIER (Maisonneuve-Rosemount): The hon. member chose this country because it had had Liberal administrations before he came.

Mr. WOOD: When he chose this country he must have thought it was better than some other countries or he would not have come here.

Mr. POOLE: I think it is the best country in the world, but I am here to make it a better country.

An hon. MEMBER: Another Mussolini.

Mr. POOLE: Well, we are starting in the west, and it must be admitted that we have made a good start. We have taken one province, and next year we shall do more. I believe that the social credit forces in this country represent the hope of economic democracy in Canada.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): In the hon. member's opinion.

Mr. DUNNING: And the promise of twenty-five dollars a month to the electors.

Mr. QUELCH: What were the Liberal members elected on?

An hon. MEMBER: Your group did not intend to keep their promise.

Mr. POOLE: The present government promised to issue $500,000,000, but they did not do it.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Oh, no.

Mr. POOLE: The Liberal party promised to issue credit for the public need and they did not do so. Let them be fair. Alberta is merely one province in the dominion, and if the social credit party of that province had the necessary power there is no question about what it would do. But the Liberal party has the power. My hon. friends opposite said that they would do certain things and they have not done them. For many years in this parliament there is one body of citizens who have not been represented and that is the poor people of Canada. I have always felt that the members did not understand the conditions under which the people were living. We have a tremendous debt which is being added to every year, every decade. In the last twenty years we have spent from all sources pretty close to a billion dollars for all kinds of relief. What could we not have done with that money in building useful public works and homes for the people? Have the government any vision of a future when unemployment will be a thing of the past, when once again there will be a demand for the youth of Canada in industry? If the government have not that vision, have they made provision for the youth of the country?

Mr. ST-PERE: According to the parliamentary guide the hon. gentleman came here when he was three years old, and he said he chose this country to live in. He was pretty precocious.

Mr. POOLE: I was in this country and in this city twenty-nine years ago.

Mr. ST-PERE: But the hon. member did not choose this country to come to.

Mr. POOLE: No; in fact I went back.

Mr. ST-PERE: He should apologize to the hon. member.

Mr. POOLE: At the age of two years I left Canada, but I came back in 1926, so I did choose the country. I am sorry my hon. friend did not have the same privilege.

AND THEY HAVE FUN.

(Baltimore Sun)

I CAN'T SAY that I approve of the "purloining" of a B. and O. handcar by five Highlandtown boys the other evening and of their ensuing "race" with a police scout car—indeed, I don't approve of it. Let's get the moral part over with at once and call it a reprehensible act and a dangerous trick. But failure to approve of such doings does not prevent understanding of them.

And who doesn't understand the urge momentarily to "purloin" a handcar and to ride it whizzing down the rails? Is there anybody who has ever seen a handcar who has not felt that desire and suppressed it only with the greatest difficulty? My own belief is that at least half of all the people in America carry within their hearts the scars of frustration because of it. Like playing Hamlet, the operation of a handcar is something we all are confident would be wonderful fun and something that we could do to perfection. I don't suggest that anybody else try it, but I shan't be surprised if somebody else does.

THE LONGEST WORD.

(Ripleys Big Book)

WHAT IS THE longest word in the English language?

The word most frequently cited is "honorificabilitudinitatibus", which is to be found in Shakespeare's "Love's Labour Lost", Act 5, scene 1, line 44. To the Puritan divine, Byfeld, we owe "incircumscriptibleness." Doctor Benson is credited with "antidisestablishmentarians".

RAGWEED

Editor Examiner:

Sir I am enclosing a cutting for your attention. It refers to the way the ragweed is being attacked in other sections of the province and particularly the method which will be employed in Toronto to rid the whole area of this source of hay fever.

It seems a shame to see such a move in the right direction wasted without co-operation from surrounding districts. Peterborough is particularly cursed with this scourge and a follow-up of Toronto's example certainly would be much appreciated, as a check-up at the medical clinic will show the large percentage of hay-fever sufferers in this city is appalling, especially as the cutting of weeds is one of the city bylaws.

We do not want an epidemic of "Polio" such as Toronto experienced last summer.

Your paper can do much to call this matter to the attention of the public.

FROM VANCOUVER

Editor Examiner "Camera",

Sir Give credit where credit is due, says "we" Peterborough folk, here in Vancouver.

During my extended visit, since January, at the above coast city, I have been, by kindness of my boss, receiving regularly, every copy of your paper which has been something certainly well-read.

You sure have "got something" in your idea "Candid Camera Shots", and that you would believe, if you could picture myself surrounded by other Peterborough folk here in Vancouver, enjoying a real thrill in informing each other "who's who" appearing in your "Candid Shots", or at least endeavoring to do so.

Several, you may be sure, have been recognised by some of us and on each occasion one of us any way is generally known to burst out I know her or him.

GOVERNMENT AND EMPLOYMENT

Editor Examiner:

Sir Allow me a portion of your space to state some views on the present state of affairs. Regarding this new so-called depression. Why we are not out of the last one yet. And things will never be prosperous for any length of time. Until the old system of government is changed. We are using an old form of government which is out of date with our present times. Our present government is wrangling at Ottawa over problems which on the whole are more or less petty squables and are not giving much thought to the working class.

We are still waiting for that much-promised minimum wage to take effect. Any important question is always overlooked, and two old parties are dangling along the same lines, which will help nobody but the upper class. We have got to have a government that will help and work for 70 per cent. of the people and not for 10 per cent, and a government that will control business, and not be run and influenced by business; also a government that will put through regulations that these companies will be forced to abide by. In these days everything is for profit to get the highest price for the goods and pay low wages. Some plants are on short time and it takes full-time work to just get by, and also in some plants to keep the cost of production down the work is rushed out and the men laid off. The men and youths of this country will never have a chance to earn a decent living until the government takes a firmer control over these factories, and that will never come about until the people put their own government in power and stand behind it.

PENNY POOLS

Editor Examiner:

Sir In your issue of Sept. 14th last, you gave particulars of some winnings in our "Penny Pools", and I thought the following would interest you:—

For week ending April 9th, 1938, the winners got £30,163 for 1d, averaging 5 dollars to the £, this would amount to $150,815 dollars for 1d. So far this is a record.

I daresay the Yankee would sum up. "I guess and kalkerlate he struck oil". Also in this issue you had some poetry about "My Neighbor likes the Country Fair", that made us laugh.

Yours truly,
W. I. SIBTHORP.

The Streets Filled With Cars.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

SATURDAYS and Saturday nights are the biggest problem. Last Saturday night, a survey made by the Whig-Standard disclosed the fact that between eight and nine o'clock there was hardly a place to park a car or any street in the area bounded by Queen, Street, Wellington, Brock and Clergy. This is very encouraging, for it indicates that a lot of business is being done. At that time, however, when many motorists were searching for places to park, there were several places vacant, because of the "No Parking" regulations. We wonder if it is not about time that these "No Parking" privileges were taken away. For they are privileges, but when they are a "Police Order" they become law.

We have no doubt that every business man would like to keep the front of his store free from parked cars, in order that customers could drive up and conveniently step out of a car into his store. Is it quite fair, therefore, to give these privileges to one and not to all? If there are certain periods when it is necessary that the theatres and some places of business should be free from parked cars, for the convenience of the general public, could not the "No Parking" restrictions be limited to these definite periods.? If every business place in town demanded "No Parking" privileges the people of the district who come here to shop would turn with disgust to our neighboring cities. We feel it is time these privileges were curtailed.

There has been another feature of the increased automobile traffic that has been causing considerable worry during the past few months and that has been the practice of many motorists in the residential section parking their cars in front of their residences on streets that are comparatively narrow and on which the city buses operate. It is almost with fear and trembling that one drives up Earl Street or along parts of Victoria Street during the day. Cars are parked on both sides of the street and one almost has to corkscrew down these streets to get through successfully.

In the interests of safety and of business, some definite action should be taken in the matter of parking, both as regards the business sections and the residential sections. It would certainly result in fewer traffic hazards and greater convenience for the buying public.

RYE BREAD.

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. DUNNING: Would my hon. friend say that the youth of Germany are getting better bread to-day than Canadians on relief? Let us in this discussion stick to some facts.

Mr. BENNETT: They are getting a good bread—rye bread.

Mr. PELLETIER: I am not discussing the quality of the bread. I said that in the speech made by Hitler in Germany yesterday he maintained that there is no unemployment in that country.

Mr. GARDINER: How many are in the army?

Mr. DUNNING: Can the hon. member tell us how many are in the army?

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): There was no unemployment, either, among the slaves in the south.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

AND THE LORD God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept; and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; and the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man.—Gen. ii: 21, 22.

For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: (for the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth;) proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. . . . But all things that are reproved are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest is light. Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. —Eph. v: 6, 8-11, 13, 14.

MUSIC PUPILS GET DIPLOMAS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JAMPBELLFORD, May 4.—The musical recital presented by the pupils of Miss Marie Crosson was most enthusiastically received by an audience which filled the High School Auditorium to capacity on Friday evening. Carnations, tulips, snapdragons and daffodils formed the colorful background for the performance of each of the pupils who ranged from four years of age. The opening number, a chorus of twenty-four boys and girls singing "Fairy Pipers" gave every indication of the delightful program which was to follow. Every number from the first to the last was presented in a pleasing and entertaining manner which not only reflected credit to the artists themselves but also to the person whose work and preparation had made it possible.

An interesting feature of the program was provided by three of the pupils who have been studying music not more than four months. Each played a short piano number in a manner which won them loud applause. The first of these "Raindrops," a Bohemian Folk Tune, was given by Billy Rowe, the second entitled "The Tumbling Clown" by Doris Bertrand and finally an English Folk Tune by Betty Johnston "O Dear, what can the matter be." Little Marilyn Hopping, four years of age completely captured her audience with her song and tap dance number which established her in the roll of the "starlet" of the program. Joanne Fisher next to the youngest of the performers, wore a yellow organdy dress and did a tap dance number which won for her an encore.

Bernice and Beatrice Pickering gave a piano duet "Invitation to a Waltz" as the concluding number on the first part of the program.

Audience Delighted

A piano solo by Jack Storie introduced Part II in which Helen Beatty gave a character dance involving several difficult steps which were executed in an easy manner. Marion Rowe offered a vocal solo "When Song is Sweet" followed by a chorus of six little girls in blue skirts and white pinafores singing "In Our Little Wooden Shoes" a number which was supplemented by a dance routine. In this chorus were Betty Johnston, Doris Bertrand Jean Haig, Melba Ferguson, Ruth Floyd and Helen Beatty. Two piano solos were next "Dreaming" by Lily Pickering and "Spining Song" by Shirley Rowe. Marguerite and Jack Lamey did an Irish dance in appropriate costume and were heartily applauded while the trio constituting Helen Russell and Roy Young playing "Down by the Old Mill Stream" also won an encore. Marion Rowe and Pauline Cassan each offered a piano solo, and Doreen Graham won an encore for her tap dance numer which she did appearing in a pretty green satin dress. Pauline and Jack Casson gave a fine performance in their piano duet "Jolly Blacksmiths" as did Mary and Blanche Elmhirst in their offering "Approach of Spring". Helen Young played a rather difficult number "The Myrtles" as a piano solo and Jack Cassan and Doreen Graham gave the concluding piano numbers.

Pauline Cassan did a solo Sailor's Hornpipe in white sailor's costume and the national dance of the Scots was portrayed in the Highland Fling by Melba Ferguson, Marguerite Lamey, and Ruth Floyd.

Eight girls in white, pink, blue and yellow organdy carrying each a long stem of roses formed the pretty back ground for a ballet dance by Shirley Rowe entitled "Kiss of Spring". In the chorus were Phyllis, Lily and Beatrice Pickering, Helen Young, Marion Rowe, Doreen Graham, and Pauline Cassan. The concluding chorus by the whole group was "Beautiful Dreamer," by Foster.

Dr. O. C. Watson who acted chairman for the evening presented diplomas and prizes as follows, — Doreen Graham, Grade A piano; Blanch Elmhirst, Grade 4 piano; Jack Cassan, (Honors) Grade II Theory. Prizes,— Doreen Graham, for Grade A piano, donated by Mrs. G. Cassan; Blanch Elmhirst, Grade 4 piano, donated by Miss. K. Crosson; Pauline Cassan, General proficiency and Grade 6 piano; Shirley Rowe, best attendance; Jack Cassan, Honors in Grade II Theory.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

Looking Back
On This Date

May 5

One hundred and eighty years ago to-day (on May 5, 1758) there sailed from England an armada destined to forever end France's military power on the continent of North America. Composed of 23 ships of war, 18 frigates and fireships, under the command of Admiral Edward Boscawen, it began without any particular notice from the English public the voyage which was to change world history.

Fred Williams

It was a most remarkable expedition in every sense of the word. A time table was set; it was carried out to the hour. Before leaving Dartmouth, Boscawen stated he would be at Halifax on a certain date; he was. He asserted his fleet would arrive at Louisburg by June 1; it did. So wonderfully correct was the navigation that at no time during the whole voyage did any of the fleet get out of touch with the flagship, despite storm and fog, and without any of the radio direction and other aids to navigation which sailors have now!

No time was lost at Halifax. Warships and transports sailed together for their destination. The navy got there first and began their siege of the great French fortress. But the army was not so fortunate. It was a week late, owing to storm; but when it arrived it was ready for immediate action, under General Jeffrey Amherst. He had three brigades of infantry, one led by Brigadier-General James Wolfe, another by Charles Lawrence, governor of Nova Scotia, the third under Edward Whitmore.

The story of the gallant attack and equally gallant defence is one of the epics of our history. You will find it in the books, but it is written in the very heart of Britain, the capture of the Gibraltar of America, the first step toward the capture of Quebec a little over a year later and of the final capitulation of Canada to the same Amherst at Montreal on Sept. 8, 1760, after another expedition which from its start worked with clock-like precision.

Both arms of the service did their bit. The soldiers fought magnificently at Louisburg, as they did later at Quebec. But in both cases they had to have the support of the navy, which in the attack on Quebec also led the way and a year later sealed the French defeat when the flag of St. George told James Murray and his beleaguered garrison at Quebec that all was well. Britain ruled the seas!

The Philippines will have wireless communication with Europe and Japan.

Vienna Being Made 'City Without Jews'

VIENNA, May 5 (AP).—The Nazis are making swift progress toward their objective of making Vienna a "city without Jews."

It is estimated 21,000 of Vienna's 1934 Jewish population of 176,034 left Austria between March 8 and April 15. Probably 50,000 more have applied to foreign consulates for visas. Some committed suicide. Some were taken over the Hungarian border at night. Some don't know what to do nor where to go.

ROOKIE JOHNNYRIZZO ANSWERS PIE TRAYNOR'S LONG SEARCH

Texas-Raised Italian Backs Confidence With Heavy Bat

Rizzo Coming Through With The Pay-Off Punch For Pittsburg Pirates

The Pittsburgh Pirates, early-season sensation of the National League, may yet succumb to the "morning-glory" tendencies that have plagued them in past years, but Manager Pie Traynor is beginning to feel sureof one thing. Apparently, he has found at last a right-handed slugger who will fit in among the galaxy of left-handed hitters on the Bucco club—a batter who shows indications of being able to provide that "pay-off punch" which Pie has been striving to obtain for several years. The answer to his quest, he believes, is Johnny Rizzo, rookie outfielder.

In a spring interview Traynor analyzed the weaknesses of Pirate teams of recent years. "For years," he said, "we have had three or four good or great hitters, but too many days we find ourselves shy just one slugger who could clear the bases loaded with Waners, Vaughans and other able hitters who somehow always get to most of the bases, except home plate, in a tight game. Last year, we thought we had that over-the-top slugger in Dickshot. This year, we think it may be Rizzo."

Traynor's judgment in respect to Rizzo began to look excellent as quickly as the race started. The broad-shouldered lad of Italian extraction, obtained from Columbus of the American Association last winter via the St. Louis Cardinals, in a trade that took away Catcher Tommy Padden, First Baseman Bernie Cobb and Outfielder Bud Hafey, along with a big wad of cash, played a heavy role in the winning of seven straight games. His insertion into the Pirate lineup broke up the southpaw continuity of the two Waners, Jensen, Vaughan and Suhr.

Another Italian Conquest

The story of John Costa Rizzo is another chapter in the record of the new generation of Italian athletes, since the Latins came over the diamond horizon to vie with the Germans, the Irish, the Poles and the Vikings. With boys like Joe and Vince DiMaggio, Cookie Lavagetto, Dolf Camilli, Ernesto Lombardi, Zeke Bonura, Philip Cavarretta and several other young luminaries in their ascendancy, Il Duce's boys are doing fairly well by themselves.

Rizzo is a native of the Houston section of Texas, having come into the world on July 30, 1913. The Texas sun provides plenty of fine baseball weather, and when you find them dotted with names of stars who learned the rudiments of play in the Lone Star state. Yet the strong Johnny Rizzo of Houston, with the strong hands and powerhouse punch, had to Rand-McNally his way around the diamond map before he received a chance to show his best wares.

Although Johnny was born in Texas, when you look at his thick chest, his pearly teeth and his raven locks you might surmise that he had landed with one of the late Italian quotas, although he has yet to see the land of Mussolini.

Johnny's progress was hampered by the fact that he broke into the game in the middle of the depression. Then, too, he became enmeshed in a chain system. Despite the fact he batted better than .300 over five seasons, he failed to receive a real trial until this year. His big chance came after he had battled Enos Slaughter, now with the Cardinals, for the American Association batting honors last year.

Track Action

Ben Johnson, Columbia University sprint star, leads his team to a win in the quarter mile college relay at the Penn relay carnival, and as he crossed the finishing line every muscle is strained for that extra something that usually is the magin between victory and defeat.

Golf Facts

The business man golfer looks for a businesslike set-up in everything he tackles. Why not cater to this by giving him a chance to get the much needed practice shots near the first tee in a driving net.

Some courses have done this and I'm sure that the few shots each player hits in the net help him to play better when he goes out on the coudse. Most practice grounds are located at quite a distance from the first tee. The thought of having to dig out the practice balls or borrow some from the pro generally proves to be a step that seems too much of a bother so it is seldom done. Time is the one thing that the business man thinks about most. He hasn't time to practise, no matter how much he would like to. But he will take a few swings while waiting for another foursome to get away from the tee, or he may have to wait for a playing partner to put on some of his clothing.

After all there will be a few minutes which might be used for practice if he could catch in on the run. A driving net near the first tee is the answer. The net should be big enough to allow two or more players to swing at the same time. Even six or eight swings, particularly when made at the ball, will do a world of good for any player.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

WHILE it is rather tough on umpires in the different C.O.B.L. towns, like Shiner Johnston and Lou LeBarr of Peterborough, Reg. Fair of Oshawa, and Pat Corrigan of Kingston, still the neutral umpiring system lined up for the old Central League this summer should be a big advantage. No matter how impartial umps are, when they hail from the same town that one of the competing teams in a game does, there is bound to be criticism—not to say downright suspicion of favoritism. Such an official gets panned by the other team, by the fans and—if his home club is losing—by his travelling mates. But this year, four neutral men have been named to handle all C.O.B.L. contests, and they cannot travel with a team. They are Ken Colling and Don Thomas of Belleville, and Maurice Kinkley and Walter Gerow of Napanee.

* * * * * *

COLLING is a colorful, efficient and experienced arbiter, handling Central Loop games for over a dozen years—and very rarely being panned by any of the managers. Gets a bit of razzing from fans at times, and the odd argument from players, but is generally considered the best ball umpire in this part of the province. Thomas is a young chap, with no senior experience in umpiring, but he has been handling junior and intermediate games around the Quinte district and in O.B.A.A. playdowns for several seasons. Handled several here last year and made a hit with everyone. Snappy, fair and with the promise of a lot of color in his work. We liked the way he would bellow: "Oh, no!" with a shake of the head and a wave of the left hand for a ball. We think he'll do okay under Colling's tutoring this year in senior ranks.

* * * * * *

WALTER GEROW needs no introduction around here. The lanky former skipper of Belleville and Napanee teams has done quite a bit of umping around about from time to time. Some in the C.O.B.L., too, having the Oshawa-Petes' playoffs last autumn, with Colling. It's quite something to see the stream-lined Walter splitting the breeze as he gallops across the infield to get a closeup of a play. He is especially good as a base official. Maurice Kinkley is another experienced and efficient guesser who made a hit around this loop the last two years. Didn't hesitate to antagonize his hometown Napanee fans by calling one against the Gibbards. Yeah, we think they are four pretty fair arbiters. But that won't stop us from panning them, we suppose, during the summer!

* * * * * *

LOOKING THROUGH the O.B.A. book of instructions to umpires, we felt touched by this somewhat pathetic final paragraph, signed by the O.B.A. prexy and secretary: "Be courteous and firm and so compel respect from all, and never lose sight of the fact that friendship for the umpire, appreciation of his arduous duties, and practical co-operation in his troubles rarely extend outside of this office." Elsewhere was an amusing item which said: "If photographers are on field, do not allow them to hover in groups around a base or the plate. If interference by a photographer prevents a catcher or infielder from making a catch on an easy fly ball, call batter out. In all other cases, if ball hits photographer, ball is in play." Even if the poor cameraman is knocked out of the play, what? In other words, the ball is not dead—but the photographer might be.

* * * * * *

ERE LEAVING the matter of umps, we see where there is now an invention of an electric umpire for baseball. Yessir, 'safact. Things are coming to a fine pass when they try to take away this important part of the diamond game. How could you put a mechanical umpire on the griddle, or give him an argument? How could fans get their shilling's worth by calling the iron man names? And how could a losing pitcher or batter rave about the lack of brains and eyesight of such a machine? Away with it.

FIVE TEAMS entered the intermediate Lakeshore Baseball League the other day, Port Hope, Cobourg, Bowmanville, Sunderland and Newcastle. The latter will have to step to hold its own in this lively loop. Oshawa, the team which won last year, will not be back—but some of their players may perform for Bowmanville or Sunderland. It is a "B" league and the teams will play a double schedule. Incidentally, the Bay of Quinte setup is a "B" intermediate circuit, too. It should be a pretty strong one, with Napanee especially powerful for "B" company after playing senior last season. The Airport is an unknown quantity—and might provide a good exhibition scrap for the Petes within two or three weeks. Picton is generally strong, but we doubt if the Belleville bunch will do much this year. Too bad Peterborough didn't put a team in the Lakeshore League.

OPENING GAME of the Church Softball League schedule will be at six tonight in the Oval. All Saints playing Knox Seniors. They must start on the dot to work in seven innings. Rev. C. M. Parr of the Ministerial Assoc. will likely officially open the schedule, while other ministers will be on hand, too. And Dave Leether of the O.A.S.A., and Ald. Herb McCannan. The 18th entry to this loop was received yesterday with Murray St. Seniors returning to the fold to make six in this section. St. Paul's and St. James are expected also. Juveniles and bantams commence their series on Monday with games at Central and Prince of Wales Schools.

EMBLEMATIC of the Ontario intermediate church basketball championship, the Robt. Simpson Cup arrived in Peterborough yesterday and will be presented to St. Paul's team at a basketball banquet in the "Y" next Tuesday e'en. Previous winners of this trophy were Niagara Falls, St. Thomas and Welland—the cup coming up into this neck of the timber for the first time. The crests which are presented these victors by the Ontario Athletic Commisson ought to be along in time for this banquet, too. The local Saints were worthy champs and earned the title the hard way—and we hope they run up a high score at Tuesday's spread.

Oscar Vitt's Indians Have Made A Firm Believer Out Of Gabby

NEW YORK, May 5.—Cleveland Indians have made a firm believer out of your old friend Gabby Street, who limped into New York with his St. Louis Browns. Barring injuries or tiffs among the players, he thinks they'll win out in the American League.

The "Old Sarge," it might be pointed out, was not struck on the head by that ball dropped off the Washington monument back in 1908. He caught it in his big mitt, and he still has all his buttons.

"They're a terrific team as they stand now," he insisted. "They've nicked us four out of five, and my boys are playing good ball, believe it or not. There's no reason in the world why they shouldn't beat the Yankees if they continue to play heads-up for Oscar Vitt.

"They're really hustling and their pitching is brutal. All my boys say Bob Feller is harder to hit than even, and they can't wait him out, either. He'll throw three balls now and then zip three fast ones right down the middle."

The Sarge, who used to manage the Cardinals and still has a lot of National League connections, says he's afraid Dizzy Dean has lost his high, hard one for good.

"I thought for a while he just didn't want to pitch for the Cards, but now that he's with Chicago he would be cutting loose if he still had it. Nope, it'll take some team besides the Cubs to stop those Giants. Pittsburg might, but I'm afraid they haven't got the pitching either."

PHILLIES WHIP CUBS, 6-4

The Phillies whipped the Cubs 6 to 4 yesterday, when Chicago handed the lowly Philadelphians the two runs which gave them their margin of victory.

After knocking Larry French out of the box in the sixth, the Phils scored their fifth run in the seventh when Clay Bryant walked Chuck Klein and the latter scored on a stolen base and two errors. The Phils counted their sixth run when Bryant walked three men in a row in the eighth and then uncorked a wild pitch.

The Cubs knocked Claude Passeau out in the eighth, but Al Smith came in to put a halt to the uprising with the bases filled.

BEES IN 5-5 TIE

Boston Bees and St. Louis Cardinals battled through five innings yesterday to a 3-3 tie and then were chased from Sportsman's Park by rain.

Joe Medwick hit his second homer of the season in the second with no one on.

CAMPBELLFORD

ELECTRICS BEAT HAVELOCK 18-10

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 5.—In an exhibition softball fixture here on Wednesday afternoon, the Campbellford Electrics took Havelock with an 18 to 10 score. It was the first game of the season, and there were plenty of errors on both sides, but the pitching of Bun Crosson partly compensated for the loss through errors and put the Electrics out in front in the second inning. Brunton pitched a good game for the losers but weakened towards the last. In the fourth inning Captain Len Holmes put Anderson on the mound for Crosson and tried Blake in place of O'Sullivan at centre field, and put Bennett on second base in Montgomery's place.

The next two games will be played away from home, and with several changes on the team being contemplated, it is expected they will make a real good showing when they meet Napanee on Wednesday next.

The line-ups:

Campbellford: L. Holmes, 1b; Reddick, lf; D. Holmes, 3b; Cole, ss; J. O'Sullivan, cf; Phillips, ss; Montgomery, 2b; Couch, c; Crosson, p.

Score by innings:

Havelock .. .. 110 215—10
Campbellford .. .. 157 302—18

Umpires—Plate, C. Bush; bases, W. Sarginson.

WONDER BOWLER STICKS TO HIS JOB

LONDON, May 5.—(CP)—Unruffled by "all the fuss" about his feat in bowling Don Bradman, Australia's captain and batting wizard, Paul Wilson Brooks sticks to his boot-cleaning job at Lord's swanky home of Marylebone Cricket Club. He hopes some day to be seen in the ranks of first-class pro cricketers.

The 16-year-old ground-boy believes he is more of a batsman than a bowler and little thought he would take Bradman's wicket when he was ordered to "serve 'em up" at the Australian's first practice in England. He could hardly believe that the story of his achievement had been cabled round the world.

Ranked a smart schoolboy cricketer, Brooks modestly said he had bowled A. G. Chipperfield the same day and later scattered the stumps of three other Australian players.

"I had been ordered to help the Australian bowlers at the nets," Brooks said. "Bradman came to my wicket and began hitting hard, thoroughly enjoying himself. After five minutes I sent down just an ordinary straight medium-paced delivery.

"Bradman tried to hook it, but missed it completely and it hit the middle stump.

"I was flabbergasted, but Bradman said nothing. He just gave a friendly smile."

Brooks, who bowls left arm, lives at Paddington. He played for the county of London schoolboys' team against Eton, Harrow, Sussex and other teams and topped the London schooboys' batting averages.

Air services of England are offering special fares to children who fly home for their summer vacations.

BREAKS LOSING STREAK

Little Poison Lloyd Waner was big poison to Brooklyn pitchers yesterday. He hit a homer, two triples and a single, drove in five runs and scored three to pace the Pirates to a 9-to-5 victory over the Dodgers.

The win ended a five-game Pirate losing streak. The Dodgers were held to three hits by Russ Bauers and Joe Bowman, but took advantage of Bauers' wildness to take an early lead before Lloyd Waner's bat did its heavy damage.

USE CAMERA EYE AT THE WOODBINE

TORONTO, May 5.—Woodbine has finally agreed to see eye-to-eye with the camera eye.

Today at the east end course workmen are busily engaged installing the necessary equipment for photo finishes. The camera has been under consideration for the past three years, but it was not until it proved successful at Long Branch, Dufferin and Thorncliffe that Woodbine decided to fall in line and give up the guessing game of the judges.

No official announcement has been handed out by Woodbine, but you will see the new gadget suspended in the air on a platform between the general admission stand and the members' stand. Already they are taking the side windows from the members' enclosure in order to go ahead with building operations and wire installation.

At the time of writing it was not known whether Woodbine would use the "still" camera or a movie machine. In all probability it will be the latter, since much more satisfactory results are obtained from this gadget.

DEAN LOST TO CUBS FOR MONTH—HUBBELL WINS 3rd STRAIGHT

Ripple's Bat Aids King Carl In Subduing The Reds 3 To 2

Pirates End Losing Streak At Expense Of Dodgers, Winning 9-5

CINCINNATI, May 5 (A.P.). — Carl Hubbell came through again for New York Giants on Wednesday, but he had to have a lot of help from Jimmy Ripple before he subdued the Reds 3-2.

Ripple belted four-for-four — a triple and three singles—to lead a 10-hit attack that finally overcame Peaches Davis after he had blanked the National League champs for five innings. Hubbell allowed a total of seven hits, fanned five and walked only two.

The Reds scored a run in the first on a pair of hits and another in the second on Billy Myers' homer. Through the next seven innings, however, Hubbell mowed them down, holding them scoreless and giving up only three hits.

One of Myers' two errors, a single by Ripple and Mel Ott's fly finally shoved the Giants into the scoring column in the sixth. Harry Danning's base-hit, Hubbell's sacrifice and Jo-Jo Moore's single added another in the seventh, and in the eighth Ripple singled and scored the winning run when Johnny McCarthy drove him across with a base hit. The win was Hubbell's third straight of the season.

JACOBS DENIES CHICAGO BLAST

NEW YORK, May 5. — Promoter Mike Jacobs on Wednesday issued a vigorous retort to the "big fight blast" given on Monday to the Chicago Daily Times by Chairman Joseph Triner of the Illinois Boxing Commission.

The Times quoted Triner as flaying Jacobs for breaking faith with the Illinois Commission when Jacobs selected New York instead of Chicago as site for the Louis-Schmeling heavyweight title fight of June 22.

Jacobs denied:

1—That he ever assured Triner "or anyone else" that the big fight would be held in Chicago or that he had given Triner and the commission "the run-around."

2—That he ever expressed fear of having a strange referee in Illinois officiate at the Louis-Schmeling fight, adding: "I don't care what The Times calls my 'precious property.'"

3—That he still is connected with the ticket speculating business in New York or that he wanted the big fight in New York because he could "dispose of 1,000 choice ringside seats at $100 per copy" when the top price is only $30.00.

4—That he ever had mentioned to Triner or anyone else in Chicago the possibility of staging a September Chicago bout between Maxie Baer and the Louis-Schmeling winner.

"I've been promoting fights for five years now," Jacobs said, "and this is the first big squawk anyone has made against my promotion. I can hardly believe that Triner made the statements attributed to him; yet I know the sports writers on The Times are capable men who could not misquote him on such an important matter. I can't understand what prompted this blast."

NO HALF-WAY MEASURES

BOLTON, England—(CP). — Sir William Edge, M.P., at the annual meeting of Bolton Wanderers Football Club declared that directors and manager as well as players should be suspended for persistent rough play.

'Who's A Clown?' Says Baseball's Funny Man

The baseball diamond and the boxing ring are represented in this bit of clowning staged by two of its leading exponents. Al Schacht, LEFT, is the former major pitcher who tours the continent in the summer putting on his pre-game act for the amusement of the fans (and a few coins of the realm). Al's act becomes more popular each year and he has no cause to envy any of the active stars and their salaries. The other rotund form is that of Tony Galento, Jersey's cigar-smoking, beer-drinking heavyweight boxer, whose suspension was recently lifted, and who is scheduled to tangle with Natie Mann in his next fight.

CROWDS GATHER FOR '38 DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5.—(AP)—Kentucky's annually recurring tornado, better known as the Derby, struck this horse-minded community full force today and gave no indication of expending its energy until the king of the three-year olds is crowned at Churchill Downs Saturday.

It has been gradually gathering momentum the last few days as the 11 equine principals in the classic, stepped through their final preps for the $50,000 test and the early arrivals from every section of the United States argued pro and con the merits of each horse.

Out of all the arguments came only one clear fact—this is the most wide open Derby since Brokers Tip surprised in 1933.

Heading the list is Maxwell Howard's combination of Stagehand and The Chief, trained by Earle Sande. Sande.

Muscle Ailment To Keep Dizzy On The Sidelines

Must Not Even Attempt To Pitch Ball For Two Weeks, Doctor Says

CHICAGO, May 5 (AP).—Dizzy Dean, the $185,000 addition to the pitching staff of Chicago Cubs, will be lost to the team for at least four weeks. For that period he must not pitch. For at least two weeks he must not even try to throw a ball.

These were the orders of Dr. John W. Davis, Cub physician, after an X-ray examination of the star's pitching arm which followed Dean's failure to complete the game against Philadelphia Tuesday. Dean's trouble, according to Dr. Davis's diagnosis, is a lingering inflammation of the deltoid muscle at the point of insertion with the humerus—the bone of the upper arm.

Doctor's Statement.

After four weeks' rest, Dr. Davis is hopeful that Dean will be able to resume his regular turn on the mound.

Said Dr. Davis:

"The inflammatory condition probably results from the subdeltoid bursitis which bothered Dean last year. Rest during the winter should have corrected the weakness, but he probably brought on the present condition by throwing too hard this year before his arm was in shape.

"The important muscles in the pitcher's arm seem to be absolutely normal and complete rest of the arm for two weeks and no hard throwing for four weeks should enable him to come back better than ever. There is no trace of injury to the bone and no trace of calcifications of the muscles.

He's Still Confident.

"It will be just a case of Dean doing all his spring training over again, and it may be that he may have to be just a bit more cautious," concluded Dr. Davis.

Ole' Diz took his vacation instructions just as he takes almost everything else—good naturedly.

"I'll still win twenty games," was his prediction after taking time out to figure that he will be a month getting back into condition.

In addition to being ordered to rest his salaried arm, Dean also was instructed to run every day and get into physical condition to enable him to pitch.

Manager Charley Grimm was responsible for ordering the X-ray examination. Dizzy has persistently maintained to Grimm that his arm was not sore, but Grimm realized that Dean was not pitching naturally. After a forty-minute workout Wednesday Grimm suddenly decided to send Dean to the hospital.

SENATORS TAKE 13-INNING DUEL FROM INDIANS

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP).—Rookie Dutch Leonard pitched Washington Senators to a 1 to 0 victory over the league leading Cleveland Indians Wednesday in thirteen innings.

Fluttering his knuckle ball with deadly effectiveness, he allowed only six hits, struck out five and did not pass a batter.

The Senators filled the bases in the thirteenth off young Bill Zuber, who went to the mound in the eleventh after Bob Feller had been lifted for a pinch-hitter. Rookie Taft Wright was sent in to hit for Rick Ferrell. He came through with a fly to Solters in left, and big Zeke Bonura slid home after the catch.

Zuber had retired one Senator in the fatal thirteenth and apparently had another, when he leaped on Travis' bunt. But he threw wildly to third and all hands were safe. Wright's fly came after that.

The hurling duel between Leonard and Feller was a beauty—a fast ball artist versus a master of the knuckle-ball. Feller gave up only three hits, all singles, and whiffed eight Senators. He walked nine, however.

Leonard's performance was greater. He walked nobody, allowed no Indian to reach third, and only two got as far as second.

Bucky Harris—manager of the Senators—was banished from the game in the ninth inning during an argument with Umpire Rommell at first base.

Ken Keltner—Cleveland's flashy third sacker—was the only Indian who got more than one hit off Leonard. He collected two singles, both clean hits. The four others who touched him were Heath, Averill, Hale and Trosky.

HASTINGS WILL ENFORCE BYLAW

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 5.—"Wednesday afternoon half holiday by-law will be strictly enforced till the by-law is rescinded," declared Chief of Police William Wellman last night.

All stores remained open the early part of yesterday afternoon. The chief called on all merchants about 2 o'clock and issued warning that they must close. Not quite sure of his authority in this respect, he got in touch with members of the council who gave him full authority to deal with offenders. He made a second call on merchants and gave final warning.

"One merchant remained open all afternoon," the constable said. "He will be brought to court and the by-law will be tested."

ONE LINER BURNS STRIKE TIES 2ND AT FRENCH PORT

LE HAVRE, France, May 5 (AP).—A seamen's strike because the sailors disliked their uniforms held the French liner Champlain in port today, within sight of the ruins of the Lafayette of the same fleet, which was devastated by fire.

It had been announced last night that the Champlain strike for better working conditions was settled and the liner had sailed for New York, but the vessel was at her dock this morning. The passage was cancelled, leaving 1,000 passengers to seek other transport.

The double setback struck the line suddenly during the night, with members of the Champlain's crew refusing to take their posts because they disliked the shade of blue of their jackets and wanted stars on the sleeves.

A third unit of the French Line fleet, the Ile de France, arrived during the night from New York and docked between the Champlain and Lafayette, but later was taken by tugs into the harbor far from the burning Lafayette.

Blasts Shake Hull.

Fire continued to blaze today from the Lafayette. France's largest motorship, with explosions sending flames skyward.

Charred lifeboats fell into the water beneath the single, red hot funnel. Fire-fighters turned a half-dozen hoses on the vessel, in drydock, but confined their efforts to preventing spread of the fire.

The liner's costly fittings were saturated with oil from exploding fuel tanks, feeding the flames which swept the ship.

The fire started in the stokeholds, spread first to the large dining salons, and then enveloped the broad glass-enclosed promenade deck.

After rescuing a skeleton crew of 30, trapped on the forward deck, fire-fighters from all surrounding districts worked to keep the flames from spreading from the Lafayette's drydock to the rest of the port.

LEAD POISONING IS FOUND COMMON AMONG CHILDREN

TORONTO, May 5 (CP)—Dr. John R. Ross of Toronto told the 58th annual convention of the Ontario Medical Association here today that lead poisoning in children "is now known to be much more common than was previously thought," but the number of cases had decreased in the past four years as a result of increasing parental knowledge.

"Young children in the teething period between 12 months and two years of age are most commonly affected," Dr. Ross said in presenting a paper on common poisonings in children. "Metal or wooden cots which have been repainted at home are probably the most common source.

"New metal cots and cribs as purchased do not appear to be in any way dangerous because the enamel is baked on in manufacture and the enamel used is lead-free as a rule. Play pens, however, which are made of wood, may easily have the paint scraped off by the child's teeth and if lead is used in the paint they constitute a considerable source of danger."

Repaint Jobs Easily Nibbled.

Kitchen chairs and tables, window sills and verandah railings "are frequently repainted many times," said Dr. Ross. He said the paint used in most cases contains about 65 per cent. or more of lead carbonate. This thick layer of soft paint is easily nibbled off, he added.

The Toronto Hospital for Sick Children had reported a decrease in the number of cases of lead poisoning during the past four years. Only five cases were admitted last year, with one death, compared to 17 cases and three deaths in 1934. One child had recovered but is blind, Dr. Ross said, adding:

"This satisfactory decrease in cases is probably due to the program directed against this preventable directed against this preevntable type of poisoning in children. Lead poisoning ought to be practically entirely preventable in children if proper parental instruction is given."

CORDOVA MINES

Two very small boys of about seven and eight leaving school at recess failed to report home and instead went picking flowers in Terry Fitzpatrick's Woods till after dark, and after giving parents and neighbours very anxious hours, finally were located.

Mr. Robert Wright, new road foreman, is grading the roads daily in this district. Roads are also receiving good coating of crushed rock.

Owing to the many unfenced mining holes in this locality, some filled with water, it might well have turned out disastrous.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. John McCurdy Edwards, on Saturday, Mr. Charlie Beodre and Master Wilfred Bedore were recent visitors to Cordova.

HAVELOCK BUYS 15 TONS CALCIUM

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 5.—The Havelock Council met on Monday evening in the Council Chambers, with all members present and Reeve Seeney presiding.

Hutchinson, a motion was passed that the regular rate for Saturday evening engagements at the Town Hall be set at $6 per night for all local parties. It is understood that all dancing is to be concluded by 11.45 p.m., and that this plan be tried out till the end of July.

On motion of Councillors Squire and Wilde, the council will appeal to local representaties of both Provincial and Dominion Governments, to provide some work for at least a part of Havelock's unemployed.

The council, on motion of Councillors Chiles and Forde, will forward a request to the County Council to complete the portion of road through Havelock, which was started last fall, as soon as possible, and to grade the east end of George Street immediately as this is extremely bad.

The Reeve and Clerk were authorized to purchase 15 tons of calcium for the streets, the Clerk being instructed to write Mr. Sears, Department of Highways engineer, to see if the village might have the calcium come in their car.

The Council will purchase a police hat for W. J. Akins to wear while on duty, on motion of Councillors Squire and Forde.

Changing Of The Guard – Roman Style

One of the sights that will greet Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler on his present visit to Rome, is the Ceremony of changing the guard outside the Palazzo Venezia, as pictured here. The guard is composed of members of the Balilla with toy rifles. But don't think that Premier Mussolini entrusts his personal safety to these boys and their pop guns. The sentry in background is armed with a real gun.

day would expedite presentation of relief appropriations for the coming year. While it has been reported the estimates will contain $40,000,000 for relief grants to provinces and public works Labor Minister Rogers has declined to disclose details. He has stated, however, that public works will be confined to projects under federal control.

Toronto Hall a Hazard

In the long discussion on relief, members touched on everything from social credit theories to the condition of the Toronto City Hall. The Toronto municipal building came into the discussion yesterday when Joseph Harris (Con. Toronto-Danforth) said the city hall was a fire hazard. He urged construction of a new one as a relief measure.

Charges of political patronage in relief works were made by Opposition Leader Bennett who said the president of the Kingston Liberal Association was an officer of the company doing contracting work in the restoration of old Fort Henry at Kingston, Ont.

Mr. Rogers denied this, saying there was "no basis whatever" for the statement. He gave the members assurance political patronage was not practised on relief works to his knowledge.

Criticism of Ontario for applying to the Dominion for relief assistance when it has a surplus of $6,000,000 last year was levelled by Dr. T. F. Donnelly (Lib. Wood Mountain).

He compared the Ontario surplus with the Dominion deficit of $70,000,000 and said: "I wonder on what grounds Ontario can come to this government and ask for grants-in-aid when it has a surplus of that amount."

Surely if a surplus was declared the province could look after its own needy without applying to the Federal authorities for help.

The Two Deciding Factors

Replying, Mr. Rogers didn't mention Ontario, but explained two factors determined the amount of the Dominion grant for relief—amount of unemployment in the province and its financial position.

Ontario received a grant for the first three months of 1938 of $465,000 a month or 30 per cent of the cost of relief, whichever was less.

Chief reason for increase of relief administration costs, said Mr. Rogers, was due to services rendered by other departments now placed under the Relief Branch.

One example was the relief camps which formerly were under the Department of National Defence. Cost of administering these jumped from $509,179 in 1933 to $988,394 in 1935.

Divorce Changes.

The Senate yesterday held over until to-day consideration of the amendments made by the special committee on the Divorce Bill sponsored by Senator Lendrum McMeans (Con., Winnipeg). The purpose of the measure is to broaden the grounds on which petitions for divorce may be based.

Senator Charles E. Tanner (Con., Pictou), committee chairman, told the House three amendments had been approved. In the first place "cruelty," noted in the Bill, was defined to be "legal cruelty as interpreted and construed by the High Court of England in divorce and matrimonial causes."

The committee had also struck out a clause, which would have prevented a petition for divorce being made until three years had elapsed from the date of the marriage. The reason for its deletion was that it conflicted with divorce laws in some of the Provinces which possessed such laws.

Extension of the period of desertion from three to six years was the third amendment. The Bill would have made it possible for an aggrieved person to sue for divorce if he or she had been deserted by the wife or husband for three years. The committee extended the period to six.

TURGEON PROVES

Born in Bathurst, N.B., he is the son of Senator Onesiphore Turgeon (Lib. Gloucester) and brother of Gray Turgeon, Liberal member of the Commons for Cariboo, B.C.

His career stretched from the Maritimes where he began his legal career to a Cabinet post in the Saskatchewan Government. He practised law in Prince Albert, Sask., and for a while edited a weekly newspaper there, The Advocate.

Mr. Justice Turgeon has become renowned, particularly in the West for his dry humor and puckish smile that has carried him through many ticklish situations.

In 1914 he was a member of an inquiry into farm implements in Saskatchewan and in 1923 headed a Royal grain inquiry following which he drafted the Canada Grain Act which was not revised until 1930. It has been amended considerably since.

As chairman of the Board of Arbitration, he investigated the dispute between the Saskatchewan co-operative elevators and the wheat pools in 1926, and the present Transport Minister Howe was also a member of the Board.

Three years later, Mr. Justice Turgeon inquired into the natural resources of Manitoba and the present Resources Minister Crerar was a colleague on the inquiry. Then he headed an investigation into Saskatchewan properties of the Presbyterian and United Churches, a probe which developed from church union.

In 1932-33, he was a member of the inquiry into the los sof University of Manitoba funds through fraud. Finally in 1936 he started the textile inquiry and wound up the long sequence of official investigations with the grain probe.

Ill-Health Charge Withdrawn

(Before Mr. Justice Kruschen)

JUDGE: All the evidence proves conclusively that this unhappy woman has been consistently neglecting her health. In this Court preventable illness is treated as a crime. Ignorance of the remedy cannot be accepted as an excuse. Kruschen is sold by all drug stores. Kruschen is—

PRISONER: (Excitedly, undoing her handbag): I have a bottle with me now, sir!

(Sensation in Court.)

JUDGE: A bottle of what? Pass it up to me, please.

(The Judge examined the bottle and handed it on to the jury.)

JUDGE: (continuing): This is an amazing development. We have here an unopened bottle of Kruschen. (Turning to the Prisoner): When did you buy it?

PRISONER: This morning, my lord. I intended to take it with my coffee tomorrow and every day. I thought it might put me right.

JUDGE: Prisoner, your timely good sense has earned you your acquittal. You will leave this Court without a stain on your character. (At this juncture there was an outburst of clapping, which was rapidly suppressed.) You have yourself done precisely what I should have ordered you to do; you have adopted a good remedy for your present affliction, a splendid precaution against a recurrence of it. I am very glad. I have one word of advice to add: do not, on any account, miss the little daily dose of Kruschen—and then, indeed, you will be the happy possessor of good health for less than 1c a day.

PRISONER: Thank you, my lord. I shall never forget what you say.

KRUSCHEN SALTS

relieve constipation and rheumatism

Kruschen is a combination of several mineral salts which your body must get, in some way, to keep the blood pure, the inside clean, and the system generally toned up, but which you can't get in Nature's own way without abundant exercise and fresh air. You should have those salts every day; hence the importance of the "little daily dose". Every drug counter sells Kruschen in 25c, 45c and 75c bottles. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Blocks Speculators

Daladier's ministry was understood to have made its sudden decision to devalue the franc after heavy speculative attacks had forced French currency down this week and menaced the success of the urgently needed loan to keep France's munitions plants running.

The premier painted a tragic picture for France in his brief radio announcement last night of his government's decision.

"The truth is," he declared in measured tones which failed to cloak his emotions, "that our economic life is in a very bad condition; that legitimate profit is tending to disappear; that partial unemployment is increasing in every branch of industry; that our trade balance is impoverishing us; that our production figures are a humiliation for all Frenchmen.

"The truth is that in this anaemic economic condition the budget recurrently and inevitably was faced with a deficit; that the treasury's needs exhaust public savings, ruin the public credit, dry up private credit and threaten monetary credit."

In addition to providing means of employment in the arms industry, revaluation was designed to have the following results:

1. Increase the government credit by permitting the government to wipe out through its gold profits a large portion of its debt to the Bank of France. The Government's debt to the bank now totals 40,000,000,000 francs.

2. Start the wheels of industry turing by reducing the price of French goods in foreign markets and building up export trade.

3. Loosen credit by making investments safe through a currency low enough to be stable.

4. Attract new money to France from tourists whose purchasing power will be increased.

Plumber Let Off On Kiss Theft

DETROIT, May 5 (CP).—Holding the defendant to be entitled to the benefit of the doubt, Recorder's Judge Edward Jeffries found Morris Schlesinger not guilty of assault and battery—specifically the theft of a kiss from 18-year-old Dorothy Kader.

Miss Kader charged in court yesterday that she went to Schlesinger's wholesale plumbing supply office in response to an advertisement for a stenographer and that Schlesinger made improper proposals to her. When she refused to consider the job, he stole a kiss, she said.

Schlesinger, a married man, denied everything. Miss Kader was one of 150 girls who applied for the position, he said, and she begged him for a job. Three girls who told police they had undergone similar experiences with Schlesinger were in court, but it was ruled their statements could not be admitted.

Cells Used As Dressing Rooms In Early Days In Haliburton

Prisoners Would Be Set Free Whenever a Play Would Come To Town

HALIBURTON, May 5.—A story of the days when the life of the theatre in this part of the country was as hard on local criminals as it was on the actors themselves, came to light today in a letter from an elderly Englishman to relatives in Montreal.

Writing to his sister, Mrs. Helen N. Haworth, in the Canadian city, James H. Porteous, of Girton, Cambridgeshire, enclosed the program of a pantomime which he had produced in Haliburton half a century ago while resident here.

Recounting the story of how the town hall, which also housed the local jail, had been used for the performance, Mr Porteous wrote: "This is an occasion when the cast, overflowing the usual 'concert' dressing rooms h'd the cells added to the available accommodation. The mayor, on having the hypothetical tenancy put on him for official purposes declared that if any misguided individual was so injudicious as to be 'in residence' during the two-day run of the pantomine, he'd have to clear out and rustle up somewhere else for himself for the time being."

The faded, hand-written program enclosed, announced the performance of "Beauty and the Beast, by J. H. Porteous" which was scheduled to be played in the Town Hall at Haliburton, the evenings of December 27 and 28 1888., Opposite the list of characters, the players had signed their own names, many of which will perhaps be familiar to folks around Haliburton today. They were: F. W. Tornen, Susan Payne, Minnie Martin, Constance Stewart, R. Miller, J. N. Lucas ,May McDonald, Agnes Loucks, Martha Payne, Topsy Prust, Lottie Davis, Maggie Johnston, Maud Millage, Maud Dart, Gaily Dart, Lila Hoxey, Leta Caldwell and Agnes Stewart.

Mr. Porteous left Canada for his native England a year or so later and has lived there since.

Tom Reid, Liberal member for New Westminster, B.C., who recently charged, in a bitter debate with Rt. Hon. R. B. FACES CHARGE OF DAMAGING TREES

In police court this morning J. E. Gregson was arraigned before Magistrate Langley, K.C., on the complaint of Mrs. Ida Little, 181 Lake street, who charged that he had damaged about ten trees or shrubs belonging to her.

Gregson, represented by J. F. Strickland, K.C., pleaded not guilty and said he was ready to go on with his trial.

The complainant however had no witnesses ready and an adjournment was asked for.

"I would like to go on with the case this morning," said Mr. Strickland. "The whole thing is nonsense in my opinion."

Finally it was agreed that the case should be heard on Thursday, May 12. Crown Attorney V. P. McElderry estimated that the hearing might take an hour and one-half.

BETTER LIGHTING AT CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, May 5.—Members of the Water and Light Commission set Tuesday evening aside for a joint meeting with members of the Separate School Board when the matter of placing water mains to the Separate school buildings will be discussed. The request for a joint meeting which had been sent through the council was dealt with during the early part of the Commission's monthly meeting on Wednesday.

Twenty-five new light standards will be placed on the streets during the next few weeks in addition to the ones already in place to make a total of thirty-seven standards of the new type and this will take in practically all of the business section of the town. Manager P. C. Denyes told the Board that it was the intention to paint all hydrants during the summer and if possible to do some work on the houses adjacent to the power plant.

A communication from the town council requesting that a street light be placed on the north part of Kent street near the residence of Harry Redden was assured prompt attention by the commission and in reference to lighting throughout the town Chairman Benor pointed out that better lighting was one of the best forms of police protection.

Several communications regarding the purchase of a chlorinator to supplement the one already in use at the town pumping station were received and filed with the board expressing general satisfaction with the prices quoted.

In discussing the requirements at the local pumping station it was pointed out that people of Campbellford use more water per person than citizens of any other city in either Ontario or the United States. The amount is estimated at 600 gallons per person per day.

TERM OF 7 DAYS IS GIVEN DRIVER ON DRUNK COUNT

Percy Little was found guilty by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning of having been drunk in charge of a car on April 12 and was sentenced to seven days in jail. Magistrate Langley said that having regard to all the circumstances, as disclosed by the evidence, he was satisfied it was a case for the infliction of the minimum penalty. "In saying this," said the magistrate, "I am not forgetful of the necessity of stamping out this kind of thing."

Reviewing the cast in giving judgment, Magistrate Langley said that it had been argued on behalf of the accused and well presented by his counsel that when Little was found asleep in his car on the morning in question, the car was not in a fit condition mechanically to be driven and therefore was not a motor vehicle within the meaning of the act. However, having regard to a decision by the Manitoba appeal court, Magistrate Langley felt that there was no reasonable doubt about the car being a motor vehicle at the time Little was found in it. The evidence of the crown witnesses as to the accused's condition had satisfied him that Little was intoxicated when the police found him.

W. B. Gordon, counsel for Little, pleaded for the minimum sentence. "The public was not endangered," he pointed out.

Magistrate Langley said Stewart Place where Little had been found was not a very heavily travelled thoroughfare and the man had gone to sleep in his car instead of driving it.

HAVELOCK WOMAN KNOWS HER LAW

Mrs. Mae Hill of Havelock knows her law. She proved it in police court this morning when after she had pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possesion of liquor, Magistrate Langley was looking up the jail sentence that had to be imposed in the event of the fine not being paid.

"It's three months," said Mrs. Hill. "You needn't bother to look it up. I know it."

"You must have a copy of the Act," suggested Magistrate Langley, smilingly.

"No, but I know it," returned the accused.

Mrs. Hill was fined $100 and $3.50 costs or in default three months in jail.

"Are you going to pay your fine?" asked the court.

"Oh I'll pay her," returned the Havelock woman as she headed for Constable Puffer's office.

ATTACK UPON GIRL STARTS MAN HUNT

HAMILTON, May 5.— (CP).— Provincial and city police to-day started a search for two men in a car who are alleged to have kidnapped and assaulted a 13-year-old girl.

The girl reached a house on Tuxedo avenue in the eastern section of the city early to-day. Police were called and she said that when on her way to an entertainment during the evening, two men had stopped a car by the curb at Rosslyn and Campbell avenues. One seized her and dragged her into the automobile. They then drove to a quiet spot on Lawrence road. She said both men and attacked her. She wandered about seeking help for hours, losing her way in the dark, and finally coming to a Tuxedo avenue house, from whence the alarm was turned in.

Man's Neck Broken In Auto Crash

NEWMARKET, Ont., May 5 (CP). —Carson Pollock, 37, of Keswick, who believed he received only minor injuries in a road accident near Keswick Monday, was in hospital here today with a broken neck. Extent of his injuries was not determined until several days after the accident.

Pollock, a road commissioner of North Gwillimbury, said he was driving home when a large truck forced his automobile from the road and failed to stop. In the car with him were Reeve E. Morton of North Gwillimbury and Art Peddlar.

Light Plays Magnet And Saves Pup

New York, May 5.

IF YOU EVER get a bug in your ear, place a light near the ear, draw it away and the bug will scamper out, following the rays, says Sergeant Alex. McManus of Brooklyn police.

Acting on his instructions sixteen policemen rigged a big searchlight in Bergen street, Brooklyn, today to entice a whimpering puppy out from under planks in a three-inch crevice between buildings.

They let down thirty feet of rope with a hood on the end, raised the plank, shone the searchlight into the darkness, and slowly drew it toward the sidewalk. Out walked the puppy, who spent all last night keeping the neighbors awake with his cries.

The Examiner has two cases to draw to the attention of readers. First there is that of an elderly lady who is in need of some sort of a cupboard or cabinet for her home. She suggested that when people are house-cleaning, moving or fixing over their homes they might have such an article to spare. Another woman living in a home where relief has been extended for some time wants to know if some one might be interested in helping secure sufficient wall paper to cover two rooms in her home. She says she can attend to putting it on. If any of our readers are interested information regarding the names and addresses can be secured by calling the Examiner—1600.

A test of a number of cars in Port Hope this week has shown a surprising proportion of them to be defective mechanically, especially in regard to brake equipment and there is no reason to believe that conditions here are much better. Demented Man Is Taken From Church

After going without sleep for several nights a twenty-nine-year-old south end resident became violently insane Wednesday, causing trouble in several quarters. The man visited St. Peter's cemetery and there started to dig up his mother's grave and then caused damage by tearing up a water pipe. Later he visited the Government Employment Bureau where his actions frightened the staff. Then after another sleepless night at home he went to the early Mass in the Church of the Sacred Heart this morning and was removed from there by Officers Naples, Sexsmith and Ringer, who had to handcuff him and tie his legs before being able to handle him. Later the demented man was examined by two doctors and it was decided that he should be committed to an institution.

Immediate Action Is Needed To Fight Carp Menace

Tear Up Weeds, Make Water Muddy, Game Fish Won't Stay

Something has got to be done about carp before it is too late, Matt Nicholls, Bobcaygeon guide, told the Examiner recently.

"There are carp in Emily Creek, Sturgeon Lake, Scugog Lake, yes even in Chemong Lake, and it won't be long until they are down in Rice Lake," he said in warning to which he declares the government and fish and game protective associations should be giving immediate attention.

"We've had them for the last eight or 10 years. They came down from Lake Simcoe, and its going to be just too bad for fishing if something isn't done."

Carp are called "pig fish" by sportsmen, because of their habit of rooting up the weeds. Matt Nicholls regards the carp menace as the biggest problem now developing in the Kawarthas, "carp and the regulation of the water levels during the spawning season".

"The trouble is no one is catching them, and they are multiplying fast. When they tear up the weeds, they make the water muddy and game fish won't stay there. In fact there are seasons of the year when muskies want to be in the weeds. That's the natural place for them to go, but with the carp around what are the muskies going to do.

Another thing about them is, we'll soon have no green bass because that variety of bass spawns among the weeds, and if the eggs get covered with muck and mud the carp stirs up from the bottom, good-bye to the green fellows.

Of course there are lots of weed beds left, but carp have just about destroyed some of the old weed beds in Emily Creek, and what has happened there will happen in other places. When the weeds go, I think it is going to mean that the lunge will be driven out, and in the long run you are going to loose the natural feeding grounds for wild ducks. And we gets lots of men who come here for the duck shooting season.

Would Dynamite Them

Do you know that you can feed carp grain like chickens or animals? They're just no good. What I'd like to do is dynamite them, try it once somewhere to see how it would work. People will say that you'd kill other fish too, but I'm not so sure of that. I know places where the carp are thick. I could take you to them right now, and not far from Bobcaygeon. You'll find them in shallow boys, for instance, and the dose I'd give them is to lay three or four sticks of dynamite, toss in some grain if you think that would help, and connect the detonators by wire to a battery on shore, and when you see enough movement in the water, let them have it.

I sure would like to see that scheme tried out, say around the first of June. Another way would be to net them. You'd get thousands of them. Whatever is done, the first thing is to get the game associations, the sportsmen of the Kawarthas to wake up to this problem. My brother, Berce, mentioned carp at recent meeting at Lindsay, and it fell flat. Nothing more was said."

Wm. T. McClellan Dies In Windsor

Dope Wolves In Sheep's Clothing

Coming down the gangplank of the Italian steamer, Marco Polo, are pictured two smugglers (second from LEFT and extreme RIGHT) attired as a friar and a nun, who were caught by authorities at Alexandria, Egypt, attempting to bring ashore more than 100 pounds of opium and marihuana. The pair visited the steamer a short time before it was due to sail. Officials noticed that the "nun" and the "friar" seemed to have put on considerable weight when they were leaving some time later. They were searched over vigorous protests and the dope was revealed.

Dog, Man Rescue Man From Bull

PICTON, Ont., May 5—(CP).—Harold Adams wielded a pitchfork and his dog barked and bit to drive a bull away from Adams' father-in-law, John Palmer.

Backed to a fence and knocked down by the animal, Palmer was saved from serious injuries when his son-in-law and the dog came to the rescue. He suffered bruises about the leg and hips.

SULPHANILAMIDE GETTING RESULTS

TORONTO, May 5 (C.P.).—Medical and surgical advances of the past year, experiments aimed at medicine's constant battle against disease, were detailed to general practitioners from all parts of Ontario to-day in papers delivered before the 56th annual convention of the Ontario Medical Association.

Radiologists will meet in separate session to hear addresses by men prominent in that line of medical work. Most of the 1,400 delegates will gather in general session to hear among other noted doctors Dr. E. M. Eberts of Montreal, Dr. F. A. Collier, Ann Arbor, Mich., and Dr. N. M. Keith, Rochester, Minn.

Class dinners and re-unions occupied the physicians and surgeons last night after a busy day during which Dr. A. J. MacKenzie in his presidential address told the convention many in the medical profession in this province favored a scheme of health insurance. Such a plan, he said, was the best solution of the problem of medical care for low-income earners.

Aid With Pneumonia.

Dr. W. Hurst Brown, Toronto, told delegates there was reason to hope sulphanilamide might be helpful in treating some type of pneumonia. With a colleague, Dr. Harold Kinsey, Dr. Brown said sulphanilamide preparations were used in a Toronto hospital last year in Type III. pneumonia cases "with what would seem to be a measure of success."

He said nine cures in nine treated cases had been obtained and almost phenomenal results were obtained in the treatment of erysipelas and some other diseases. "Truly spectacular results" had attended use of the drug in treatment of streptococcal meningitis, Dr. Brown reported.

In a 35-year period to 1934 there were only 89 recorded recovered from this disease, Dr. Brown continued. Since discovery of sulphanilamide, 56 recoveries within the past thirty months had been effected bringing the recovery rate, formerly only one to three per cent., up to 80 per cent.

CARS BURDENING MISSION CLERGY SYNOD IS TOLD

TORONTO, May 5. — Contending that many mission clergy of the rural charges of the Toronto Diocese were carrying an unjust load of debt in an effort to provide themserves with motor cars, Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson, last evening made an appeal to the Synod to give assistance in financing this transportation problem.

He pictured these rural clergy driving cars which were "unfit to be driven on the streets of Toronto and desperately unfit to drive on the country roads, and particularly in bucking with snowdrifts in the winter."

"We are responsible in compelling the mission clergy to go in debt to buy cars which require monthly payments for twenty-four or thirty months. I know of some mission clergy owing bills at the grocery store in order to keep up the payments on the motor car so that they can do the Lord's work in the Diocese of Toronto," said Canon Paterson.

He commented on the cost of the upkeep of a car driven continually on country roads and the heavy expenditure in repairs and "getting pulled out of mud holes."

Synod agreed that a committee be appointed by Archbishop Owen to deal with the matter of assisting mission clergy with the problem of transportation.

WILD RUN ENDS IN BLIND STREET

ORILLIA, Ont., May 5—(CP). — London police were expected here to-day to take back to the Western Ontario city two Toronto men, alleged car thieves, who were captured here last night after a wild 80-miles-an-hour chase through traffic-crowded Orillia streets.

Charles Oakley, 23, and Murdoch Harris, 24, submitted to arrest quietly when police trapped them in a blind street after they missed a highway leading out of town. Police said they carried no weapons.

The men allegedly are the pair who held up Frank MacRae on Tuesday night while he was demonstrating a car to them. MacRae was forced out of the car at gunpoint, three miles from London, and the men raced off in the car.

Reports of the car's progress came from several points leading to Northern Ontario mining fields yesterday and police guarded all main highways to the north. Constable W. G. Carson and Joseph Abernethy were waiting at the outskirts of Orillia for the car after the men were reported to have driven away from a service station near Gravenhurst, to the north, without paying for gasoline.

Embittered Ulster To View With Suspicion De Valera's Friendship Pact

Deep - Seated Enmity Still Rankles In Both North And The South

By DR. ALEXANDER CAIRNS
An American Commentator on Ireland

BELFAST, Ireland, May 5.—The story goes that an Irishman in London came along to two men fighting and went up to them and said: "Is this a private fight or can anybody get into it?"

That is not a bad photograph of Ireland. She was born to fight. And the history of the Irish people verifies that fact.

I watched the parade of the Orangemen of July 12 in Belfast last year. There were 40,000 men in line and I counted 252 of the great banners, about seven by nine feet, and 163 bands. Moreover, there were 1,000 Orangemen over from Glasgow and Scotland in return for the courtesy of the 1,000 Orangemen from Belfast and Ireland who took part in the parade on the previous Saturday, in Glasgow.

Welkin Boomed.

And then I went to the fields at Finaghy, where the parade stopped and the speeches began and lasted throughout the remainder of the day. Well, it was the greatest parade the Orangemen of Ireland ever had, and the welkin fairly boomed with loyalty to Britain and for the first time in my life I heard what might well be called a prayer of hate. It was offered by the chaplain against De Valera and all his ilk.

But now De Valera has signed a new pact of friendship with Britain, and perhaps a new day is dawning for the embittered Emerald Isle.

Undoubtedly there are hoodlums in both north and south. The anti-British demonstrations upon the occasion of the visit of the King and Queen to Belfast and Ulster last summer, were a disgrace to the I.R.A., the Irish Republican Army, an organization which has been repudiated by the authorities of the Irish Free State. Needless to say, the crowds were well sprinkled with hundreds of plain clothesmen from Scotland Yard and the parade line was fringed with thousands of soldiers, shoulder to shoulder, men brought in from Derry and other Ulster cities.

And so it was demonstrated more graphically than ever that Ulster wants no affiliation with the Free State, with or without a friendship pact with Britain tossed into the bargain. In fact, the north looked with suspicious eyes upon the recent Anglo-Eire negotiations. If the union of north and south Ireland is dependent upon an affirmative plebiscite on the part of Ulster, it will not occur till the Vatican canonizes Martin Luther. And the editor of the Irish Press, De Valera's most staunch supporter, told me that they expect no republic without a united Ireland, north and south.

This May Bring Coalition.

Bernard Shaw has hit upon the only possible thing that may knock Ulster's ideas into a cocked hat and bring about a coalition with the Free State. A man in the officialdom of Ulster gave me the identical ideas expressed by Shaw. That is, that the ultimate growth of the labor element north and south may force capital to combine, irrespective of boundary lines. For labor in the Dail is already almost the little boy in the middle of the see-saw who may throw the balance which way he wishes.

In Ulster one hears plenty of talk about the movement in the Free State as being essentially a Catholic movement. But southern Ireland denies that and proves her genuineness by putting it into her new constitution. Freedom of conscience and religion is stated in so many words. In Dublin about half of the judges are Protestant. Down through history the Irish people have followed loyally their leaders, irrespective of their religion. Parnell was a Protestant, as were also Wolfe Tone and Grattan and Curran. The Dail appointed a commission to determine the worthiness of all candidates for jobs with the government and they are belligerently insistent that the only criterion of availability shall be ability.

Yet the preamble of the constitution adopted last year by the vote of the people should be enough to satisfy the most ardent religionist. Just listen to it:

"In the name of the Most Holy Trinity, from Whom is all authority and to Whom, as our final end, all actions both of men and states must be referred, We, the people of Eire, humbly acknowledging all our obligations to our Divine Lord, Jesus Christ, who sustained our fathers through centuries of trial, gratefully remembering their heroic and unremitting struggle to regain the rightful independence of our nation, and seeking to promote the common good, with due observance of prudence, justice and charity, so that the dignity and freedom of the individual may be assured, true social order attained, the unity of our country restored, and concord established with other nations, do hereby adopt, enact, and give to ourselves this constitution."

Could the twelve apostles be more orthodox than that?

CHAPTER 28.

It was snowing again. Not fast, sharp flakes, but great white ones that came slowly, as though they made a lacy valentine, and wanted the world to watch.

Barbara had a ski suit which she had worn, now and then, at the club to which week-end house parties went on winter jaunts when she was in college. She had brought it with her. It resembled a pair of old-fashioned brown woollen overalls, with a yellow shirt. Large brass buttons held the costume together. There was a yellow stocking cap and yellow mittens that went with it. She had ski boots, to.

When she came downstairs, the group in the dining-room was cattering. She decided, on a sudden impulse, to make some sandwiches, and stay out until Bobbie grew cold.

They found a hilltop with a nice slope and skied a while. Then they brought the skis back and began to tramp. Now and then, thrugh the white network of the treees, they caught the gaiety of other hikers' costumes, or the refuse of laughter left behind. Barbara stopped suddenly, and held the little boy's hand tighter. She had an unexplainable sense that never again would she find long stretches of white peace. Hope, that had glowed like a candle for a shining moment that morning when Garry had said: "Could you make me just one cake, please?" had flared its last.

Now she knew why she had come so suddenly from the lodge. It was that look in Garry's eyes when Wenda chatted with Jimmy Minton. She did not want to see Garry loolkng like that—looking as though he were hurt and lost, even as she had been — even as she was now, at times. If he wanted his yellow-haired rag doll, then why didn't he seize he rand make off with her instead of letting other people waste tears they needed for themselves on his problems?

"Bobbie, always be glad you are a man," she told the child.

"You bet I'm glad I am," he said. "Why?"

"You can take anything in your stride and when you do get hurt everybody feels so sorry for you."

"I won't get hurt," he answered.

"I wonder," she mused. 'Let's go back, Bobbie."

It was about half a mile from the Lodge, where the road forked, that they came upon Wenda and Jimmy Minton. They were deeply engrossed in some subject of conversation, and only Bobbie's excited: "Aunt Wenda, Aunt Wenda," made them wave indifferent hands as they went back to their theme.

Julia's confidence, half-lingering on the fringes of Barbara's mind, moved in a little closer. Wenda seemed to be on good terms with the playboy.

But when the whole party gathered precently in the long room that held the swimming pool, Wenda was devoted to Garry and paid no attention to Jimmy Minton. Purposely Barbara had brought along a green bathing suit instead of the yellow one which she had worn a time or two with Garry, last September, before the beaches closed. The pool was warm, and its green waters were reflected in the glass ceiling. There were sun lamps and gay chairs and parasols along the pool's edge. Natalie had paid her price for wealth and ease. She had been repaid richly in the coin for which she reckoned.

Barbara stretched out lazily on the water and floated, but, when she heard Garry and Wenda's merry voices nearby, she began to swim in earnest. She had to. She must not remmeber those few afternoons on Atlantic beaches near New York when she and Garry had tumbled through white breakers, rested under striped umbrellas, sunned themselves, talked and were silent.

You could throw away souvenirs when a party was over. If you didn't hear music for a long time, you could forget how the melody went. Why coulddn't you pack all your memories in a trunk and address it to Timbuctoo? Only, even if you did address it to Timbuctoo, Singapore, Madagascar, you would find it waiting for you in the hall outside your door when you came home at night. There should be some chemical manufactured which would destroy memories.

A strange young man was saying something to her and she knew she was answering with no knowledge of what she said. He seemed to be waiting, at the moment, for an answer. So she sang out blithely to him, 'I'll race you to the other end of the pool and back."

It was Garry who took up the challenge.

"Count me in. Ready?"

"And I'm going along!" That was Wenda, svelte and lovely in a white velvet bathing suit.

They started — Garry's black suited figure, the girl in green because she wouldn't wear yellow any more, and the one in glistening white, all three cutting through the bright green water with long, firm strokes. They reached the edge of the pool, turned and started back, Garry in the lead. He came in first, then Wenda gave a sprint forward and passed Barbara.

("I love you because you can swim half a mile without getting winded," once Garry had said to Barbara.)

Wenda was being very charming to Garry. But Barbara wondered if she imagined that the actress' eyes, now and then, sought out Jimmy Minton.

After a little while Wenda drifted away from Garry and went to sit with Jimmy at the edge of the pool, letting her feet dangle in the water. There was something amused in the playboy's gaze, something hard and malevolent, too, as he turned it briefly but unmistakably in Garry's direction. Garry's chin had set in stubborn lines and his eyes were narrowed.

Barbara wondered if Garry, too, was rememoering the threat to "get even with him" that Jimmy Minton had made.

The atmosphere around the pool grew tense. Basil Worthington arose and began to move among his guests, a courtly host. Natalie began to talk about unimportant things.

"Everyone senses it," Barbara mused. "Something is up."

"I'm tired of swimming," Natalie said. "We'll have tea directly in the living room. Everybody had enough of inland sport?"

It was absurd, preposterous to come here to the snowy hills, the fir-ringed skating pond, the silver paths through woodland, for forget the tonic of the clean, cold air while you sat around the swimming pool, Barbara was thinking. When Ray came, she would ask him to take her for a long walk, and they would make a snow man outside the windows for Bobbie. She was going to be glad to see Ray. She would laugh at the pomp and extravagance of the interior Florida where stars were strung like Japanese lanterns across the dark blue sky, and hills climbed up to heaven.

The strain of being so near to Garry, yet so remotely removed from him, was making her nerves jump.

Jimmy Minton spoke to Wenda in a low voice, as he left the pool to dress, but Barbara caught the words. "You'll tell him now?"

"Right away, before I change my suit."

"Then meet me in Basil's den. In about an hour?"

"I'll be there."

Wenda turned to Garry. "Let's take another plunge—just the two of us."

Her mocking brown eyes dismissed the others.

While Barbara took her shower, brushed out her copper curls, put on a gray knitted sports dress and gray brogues, since no one dressed for dinner, she thought of the two who were alone in the swimming pool. She could see Garry, tall and wide-shouldered, bronzed and blue-eyed, with his rough light hair gleaming in the artificial light. She could see Wenda, slim and white, witha mop of golden hair, floating widely and provocatively, when she removed her bathing cap.

The telephone was ringing somewhere and she wondered who else might be coming, or who might be wanted. She reached into her bag for the scarf that she wound loosely at the neck of the gray dress. She expected to find a large handkerchief with gypsy colors tumbling down a riotous road. She was sure she had packed it. It was not there, though. Instead, she had folded and brought the large chiffon green kerchief which had been a gift of Gary's from the Liberty Shops in London. She did not want Garry to think that she had brought it purposely. She was making no bids, however subtle, for favor.

Yet, because the neckline definitely needed a touch of color, she knotted the gold-veined green chiffon square. Her eyes, which were so gray before she added the touch of green, immediately found jade-green tones and darkened.

A maid knocked at her door. "Telephone in the upstairs sitting room for you, Miss Kingsley."

Julia's voice said: "Barbara, I'm at the Bay Tree Inn, five miles from the Worthington lodge. I'm counting on you to have Mrs. Worthington ask me out."

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX — Why should a man marry?
BOB.

Answer:

Well, Bob, we are told that God, who seems to have originally intended for a bachelor to be the sole occupant of the earth, soon found out that it was not good for man to be alone and so created woman. That, I take it, is still the reason why men marry.

No matter what else a man has, he isn't happy until he gets a wife, and sometimes he isn't happy then, but even a bad wife seems to be better than no wife at all, as is amply proved by the fact that widowers, whether they are grass or sod, almost always remarry.

Of course, there are many plausible arguments in favor of celibacy. You can say that marriage is an expensive luxury; that once a man takes unto himself a wife he has to spend the remainder of his life slaving to support her; that all the money that he makes goes to paying the family bills instead of for his own indulgenes. You can say that women are kittle-cattle to get along with; that they are full of whims and notions, given to nagging and temper and nerves. You can say that a man forfeits his freedom when he marries and thereafter is a prisoner paroled into the custody of his wife. You can say that when a man marries he isn't even sure of getting a good cook and housekeeper.

All of which is, of course, true. But, on the other hand, you may equally well say that even if a wife does cost money, she is a spur in the side of her husband that speeds him up in making it, and that few men ever save any money until after they are married. Then, too, a wife is a protection to her husband against his predatory relatives who think that as long as Tom hasn't any children of his own he might as well support and educate theirs.

Also, if women are not all Patient Griseldas, many of them are good company who keep their husbands entertained and amused. And it takes a lot of sting out of nagging to know that it is prompted by love and that at least to one human being you are the most important thing in the universe.

Likewise, it may be pointed out that the only people who are really free to come and go as they please, with no questions asked, are those whom nobody loves enough to care where they go, or whether they ever come back. And while that is personal liberty, it is also lonesomeness.

Furthermore, while it is true that many wives' cakes would never take a blue ribbon at the church festival ;it is also true that these same women feed their husbands' souls on ambrosia.

As a further argument in favor of matrimony, it may be added that wives have many other virtues that justify wedding rings. Love, for instance, that sees a man still as a figure of romance when he has got paunchy and bald-headed and triple-chinned. Loyalty that makes a man know that if all the rest of the world turns against him she would still be standing at his side. Willingness to work without wages and think it a privilege to do so.

Wives are also valuable as sick nurses and come much cheaper. They make fine press agents. They are good social secretaries and are invaluable in boosting a man up the ladder in his career. And they are priceless as alibis, for a man can always lay his failure in business or his being a drunkard and his mistakes generally on his wife. And for these and many other reasons men marry.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of 19, engaged to a very fine young man. I love him very much, but he and I are just two different types of people, as opposite to each other as day from night. We don't like the same things, not even food. I am serious-minded, while he thinks lightly of things that to me mean everything. I can't understand him and he doesn't understand me. Do you think I can make myself over to fit his ways and ideals if I go at it with a strong heart and all my will power?
YVONNE.

Answer:

No, I don't. I don't believe that you can change your nature any more than you can change the color of your eyes. You can, of course, force yourself to adopt this young man's habits and ways. You can go to his church. Read the books he reads. Let him pick out the movies. You can have highly seasoned food on your table or plain boiled. And you can refrain from arguing with him about the subjects upon which you think differently.

This outward agreement may satisfy him, but it won't satisfy you. It won't make you happy and it won't bring you and your husband any nearer together, because underneath it all will still be the real you, with your own opinions unaltered, your own standards unshaken, your own nature unchanged, and you will still be craving hot bread or cold bread according to the way you were raised.

The one indispensable thing in marriage is congeniality, for a couple to have the same tastes and habits and like the same things And it is a great mistake for different types of people to marry each other. A warm-hearted woman's heart breaks if she is married to a cold and undemonstrative man, so does the affectionate man's heart break if he is married to a human frigidaire. A man and woman can be happy together either saving or spending, either gadding or staying at home, if they both want to do the same thing. It is when one wants to do one thing and the other wants to do the other that they fight. My advice to you is to marry a man whom you understand, not one who will be a riddle to you as long as you live.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX — My fiance has a paralyzed little brother that he wants to live with us after we are married, but my mother has to live with us, as she has nowhere else to go and she objects to the child. The child has a father and three sisters who could take care of him. What should I do?
EDITH.

Answer:

You expect your husband to welcome your mother and support her, but you are noth willing to take in his afflicted little brother. That isn't giving him a very square deal, is it? It isn't fair for you to shirk your part of taking care of the child. Neither is it fair for the other member of the family to pass the buck to you. All should do their share. Or, better still, contribute enough to send the child to a hospital, where he will be better looked after than any of you could possibly do.
DOROTHY DIX.

Bedtime Story

By
HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUNTY'S SHOT

When Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit, reached the hollow stump bungalow after their adventure with the two Bad Chaps, Bunty showed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy the May flowers they had gathered. I mean the flowers Uncle Wiggily and Bunty had picked.

"Of course the Bad Chaps didn't pick any flowers," said Bunty with a laugh when the muskrat lady housekeeper asked her about that.

"Didn't they?" asked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "Why not?"

"Because," laughed the orphan rabbit again and she wrinkled her little pink nose like a wash board, "because Unkie Wig gave them a big push."

"Oh, did he?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Yes. Into a clump of pitcher plant flowers full of water," explained Bunty. "But now I must write my home work composition for the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Tree School," said Bunty.

"What are you going to write about?" asked Nurse Jane.

"About nature and flowers," said the orphan rabbit.

Not Frightened

She put the wild May flowers she had gathered with Uncle Wiggily on a little table in front of her and taking her pencil began to write. By the time Bunty had finished her composition it was time for supper which was the evening meal in Uncle Wiggily's bungalow.

"Where you frightened of the Bad Chaps, Daddy?" asked Tootsie as her father was telling about his adventure.

"Oh, no!" said Uncle Wiggily.

"Our daddy is very brave," said Wootsie. "And I like him and I like carrot pie an' please may I have another piece."

Every one at the table laughed. So it was a pleasant meal. After supper the little rabbits went to bed. Then the larger rabbits went to bed and soon it was morning and time to go to school again.

But when Bunty looked at the May flowers she had gathered to write a composition about she sadly cried:

"Oh, my lovely blossoms! They are dried and wilted! Boo! Hoo!"

"That is because you did not put them in water last night," said Uncle Wiggily. "When flowers are picked they must be put in water to keep them fresh."

"Why does water keep them fresh?" asked Baby Bunty.

Flowers Drink

"Because, answered Mr. Longears, "flowers and plants need water. When they grow in the ground they drink water from the earth up through their hollow stems. When you pick flowers and bring them in the house you must put them in water so they may keep on drinking to keep them alive and fresh. You gave your flowers no water so they died."

"Oh, how sad!" murmured Bunty. "I'm so sorry. But I have learned something. I must put that in my composition." So she did and hopped away to school and the Lady Mouse Teacher said Bunty's writing was good.

Next day Baby Bunty said:

'Unkie Wig, will you please take me to the woods again so I can gather more May flowers? This time I will put them in water."

"Hop along!" invited Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose.

"I hope we don't meet any Bad Chaps," said Bunty. "Or hunters with guns to shoot us."

"That is as may be," said Uncle Wiggily. So the two rabbits hopped to the woods and as they were gathering flowers, all of a sudden there was a rustling noise in the bushes and Bunty shouted. Then came a "CLICK!"

"Oh, Oh! What happened?" cried Bunty hoppng to Mr. Longears.

"I thnk you have just been shot," sad Uncle Wggly. And he laughed and Bunty laughed for she had been "shot" in a funny way to be told about in the next story. It will be Uncle Wiggily sees himself. But please don't let th elollypop go to school without its stick.

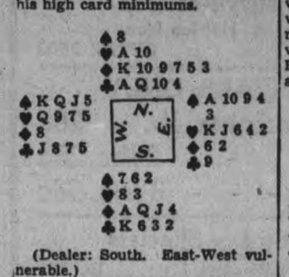
"The Authority on Authorities"

A TIME TO SHADE

WHEN YOU have a couple of suits which can be bid, it pays in the long run to shade your high card requirements for an opening bid, particularly if you are not vulnerable. Finding a fit with your partner may change the result to something completely different from the lot which befalls a stolid bidder unalterably committed to his high card minimums.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

In the duplicate where this deal arose the results depended upon whether South considered he had strength enough to make an opening bid or not.

Where 1-Diamond was the opening by South, North took the contract to 5-Diamonds and East, even though holding two good suits, was afraid to call either one at the five range while vulnerable. As a result, the contract was allowed to stand at 5-Diamonds, which was made.

Those players who decided their holdings were too weak for an opening bid and passed in the South position received poor scores. In those instances, North opened with 1-Diamond, East overcalled with 1-Spade, South raised the diamonds, West the spades and North went to 5-Diamonds. However, East-West sacrificed at 5-Spades and were set only one trick.

Bowling Banquet King Edward H. and S.

The bowling season for the members of King Edward Home and School Association was brought to a conclusion with a delightful banquet at the school and presentation of prizes to the season's winners.

Forty guests sat at a U-shaped table attractive with white linen cloths, streamers in the school colors, blue and white, candles in the same colors held in silver holders and a profusion of spring blossoms. Mrs. E. Hubel, president of the Home and School Association, presided, and at the conclusion of the banquet, called on Mrs. A. Ellis, convenor for the games, to present the prizes. "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow" was sung later in appreciation of Mrs. Ellis' work during the year. Games and contests made an enjoyable evening.

Mrs. H. H. Graham New President, Mission Circle

Following a particularly successful year the annual meeting of Murray Street Baptist Church Mission Circle took place in the Ladies' Parlor, with the president, Miss M. J. Barnard, in the chair.

During the devotional period Mrs. G. Johnston led in prayer and Miss Cochrane gave the Bible reading from Joshua 1, 1-9. Splendid reports from the secretary, the treasurer, and convenors of all committees were heard during the business session. The treasurer's report showed the magnificent sum of $720.37 had been raised by the Circle during the past year.

A solo, "My Task," beautifully sung by Mrs. R. Paris, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. F. M. Somerville, made an enjoyable musical interlude.

The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe occupied the chair for the installation of officers, and expressed deep appreciation for the fine work of the Circle for the year. The report of the Nominating Committee was read by Mrs. W. H. Webber, who thanked all the ladies who had helped to make the work of the committee an easy task. The newly installed officers were briefly addressed by the Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, who had called them to the front, after which he led in prayer.

Following the installation ceremonies the new president, Mrs. H. Graham, took the chair, taking up the program of work confronting the Circle, which includes the Women's Mission Convention of Ontario West meeting here next month.

Sincere regret was expressed at the retirement of Miss Barnard, who was presented with a beautiful bouquet of spring flowers as a small token of appreciation.

Tea was attractively served at the close by Groups 2 and 4 of the Circle, from a table made charming with wild plum blossom, the same pretty flowers decorating the bay window of the room.

The officers for the coming year are as follows: President, Mrs. H. H. Graham; 1st vice-president, Mrs. L. J. Pettit; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. G. Raymore Scott; secretary, Mrs. B. W. Harvey; treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle; Mission Band superintendent, Mrs. M. H. Parkhill; Program convenor, Miss M. J. Barnard; membership and visiting committee, Mrs. Bertram Jackson; practical work, Mrs. W. G. Shiner; telephone, Mrs. T. H. Graham; social, Mrs. Norman Barrie; reading course, Mrs. J. H. Sutcliffe; envelopes, Mrs. F. M. Somerville; financial secretary, Mrs. George Johnson; Indian fund, Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle; Link and visitor, Mrs. A. Campbell; pianists, Mrs. W. Kidd, Mrs. Frith; leaders, Group 1, Mrs. F. M. Somerville; Group 2, Mrs. J. Rodney; Group 3, Mrs. W. H. Kidd; Group 4, Mrs. Bertram Jackson.

Dots Return

More Vitamins In Molasses Cheaper Than Sugar

Recipes That Should Be Clipped If They Catch Your Fancy

SWEET AS MOLASSES IN MAY
(By Mary Moore)

With the housecleaning done and the out-of-door rhubarb ours for the pulling—the out-door season is safe for this native.

I weeded the tulip bed—that's another sure sign of returning consciousness from my hibernation—for although I do my feeble best to enjoy the snow sports I'd rather be in Florida—and don't brand me as unpatriotic just because I like to be warm.

Sometimes—in fact often—ideas are scarce as hen's teeth, and when my fondest friend said she had a letter full of molasses recipes from her cousin "on the farm" I asked for a look at it for ideas for "The Page".

We all know the virtues of molasses — especially that spring tonic one—but do we realize how much cheaper it is than sugar—that besides that it contains vitamins and mineral salts sugar can't even pretend to?

NOTE: It will be a long time before I will devote cookery page space to molasses recipes again — so if these catch your fancy clip them now please.

Molasses Bran Muffins

Three-quarters cup good shortening or half and half butter and lard, 3 eggs, 2 cups molasses, 2 cups hot water, 2 cups bran, 2 cups graham flour, 2 cups white flour, 3 teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ lb. seeded raisins, ½ lb. chopped dates. Add the bran to the hot water and molasses and let stand while creaming the shortening, beating in eggs. Sift together the flours and soda and salt. Then add ingredients to the butter mixture and beat well. Bake in buttered muffin tins at 350 deg. Fahr. For smaller family divide recipe in two. These muffins keep very well and are good split and toasted when stale.

Molasses Fudge Cake

One-half cup butter, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately, 2 squares melted chocolate, ½ cup molasses, ½ cup sour milk, ½ cup hot water, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Cream butter and sugar together and beat in yolks. Add melted chocolate and molasses and sour milk with which soda is mixed in hot water. Sift in flour mixed with cinnamon, then fold in beaten egg whites last. Pour into buttered sheet pan and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 1 hour. If baked in layer cake pans put together with date filling, and frost with Chocolate frosting—preferably cooked. A good keeping flavorful cake — especially nice with vanilla ice cream or chilled Blanc Mange.

Economical Brown Sugar and Molasses Cookies

These cookies are used by the lady who gives us the recipe as a standby to fill the cookie crock and are recommended by her because they are such good food for hungry kiddies.

Two cups brown sugar, 1 cup shortening (if beef or chicken shortening is on hand this lady uses them, prefering them for flavor to butter) 2 eggs (or three if you have your own chickens), 1 cup molasses, 7 or 7½ cups sifted flour, 1 tablespoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon mace or cloves. Mix together sugar and shortening creaming well, then add beaten eggs and molasses, sift in dry ingredients which have been sifted together. Roll out using as little flour as possible. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. (rather slow oven). These keep very well when kept in airtight tin.

Steamed St. James Pudding

A simple delicious pudding without eggs which may be steamed in 1-lb. baking powder tins—attractive to serve.

Three tablespoons butter, ½ cup molasses, ½ cup sweet milk, 1⅞ cups flour, ½ teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon each salt, powdered cloves, allspice, nutmeg, ½lb. stoned dates cut in pieces. Melt butter, add molasses milk, and sifted dry ingredients and dates. Put into buttered steaming mould or baking powder tins and steam two hours. Serve with Hot Lemon Sauce or Hard Sauce.

Hot Lemon Sauce

(To serve with steamed puddings)

One-half cup sugar, 1 cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, few grains nutmeg, few grains salt. Mix sugar and cornstarch, add water gradually, stirring constantly; boil over double boiler 20 minutes to remove taste of starch, stirring frequently, then remove from heat and add butter, lemon juice and nutmeg and salt. Nutmeg may be left out if desired.

Hard Sauce

(For Hot Puddings)

One-third cup butter, 1 cup sifted icing sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg (if liked). Cream the butter very thoroughly then sift in the sugar a little at a time. Then add vanilla. Spread on small plate, marking with ridges with tines of fork and sprinkle top with nutmeg.

Molasses Pound Cake

Two-thirds cup butter, ¾ cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2-3 cup milk, 2-3 cup molasses, 2⅓ cups flour, ¾ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon allspice, ¼ teaspoon each clove and mace, ½ cup seeded raisins, 1-3 cup citron peel sliced and cut in strips. One cup raisins may be added if desired and some currants. Cream the butter and add the sugar gradually, eggs well beaten and milk and molasses. Mix and sift flour with soda and spices and add to first mixture, then add fruit. Bake in two loaf pans or in buttered muffin tins, in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. This keeps well.

Molasses Peanut Brittle

One cup each molasses and sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup shelled and skinned peanuts. Boil together the first four ingredients until when tried in cold water it is brittle. Then stir in the soda and peanuts and pour quickly onto greased pan, spread thin, then cool. This is a light and puffy brittle and well liked.

Molasses Corn Balls

Three quarts popped corn, 1 cup molasses, ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ teaspoon salt. Pop corn and pick out kernels that have not popped and put in large kettle. Melt butter in saucepan and add molasses and sugar. Bring to boiling point and let boil until mixture will become brittle when tried in cold water. Pour mixture gradually while stirring constantly over corn which has been sprinkled with salt. Shape into balls, having hands wet and buttered, using as little pressure as possible. Let stand on waxed paper for syrup to harden.

CHICKEN PIE COUNTRY STYLE

One 5-lb. fowl, 2 cups cooked potato balls, 6 medium sized onions cooked, 4 cups chicken stock, 6 small carrots cooked, soft biscuit dough. Clean, singe and wash and disjoint fowl. Put in a large kettle and cover with boiling water. Season with salt and pepper. Cook slowly until tender. Cool.

Remove chicken from bones keeping it in as large pieces as possible. Put chicken in a large casserole add vegetables, pour over stock, thickened and seasoned. Set casserole in oven to heat. On a lightly floured board roll out standard biscuit dough to ¼ inch thickness. Now roll up as you would when making jelly roll, and cut in ¼ inch slices. Take casserole from oven and arrange slices close together on top. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes. Extra stock for gravy is usually desired.

Don't Be "Smug" Women Advised

LONDON, Ont., May 5 (CP).—Liberal women of Ontario should beware of the danger of becoming "smug" and should be ready for a general election within the next two years, in the opinion of Mrs. Arthur Brickenden of London.

Mrs. Brickenden told the closing session of the annual convention of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association here yesterday Liberal women must take stock of present-day problems. They must not become mere information bureaux of political thought.

She deplored what she said was a trend toward sectionalism in Canada and in the world at large. For in these days of unrest "it becomes so evident why the democracies must stand together."

Mrs. P. M. Dewan, wife of the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, in proposing a toast to Canada, paid tribute to pioneer mothers who followed their husbands into the hinterland and there reared families and helped create civilization.

Mrs. R. C. Widdifield, Stratford, was elected president. The 1939 convention, it was decided, will be held in Niagara Falls.

ANOTHER INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, May 5—(AP). — Congressional leaders proposed creation to-day of a National Economic commission to investigate monopolistic practices in business in the United States, in accordance with President Roosevelt's recommendations.

The commission, an informed person said, would consist of two Senators, two Representatives, the Attorney General, the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission and the chairman of the Securities Commission.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Who seeks for Heaven above, to save his soul,
May keep the path, but will not reach the goal;
While he who walks in love may wander far,
But God will bring him where His blessed are."
—Henry Van Dyke.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes we see some who are trying to get to Heaven struggling and elbowing everyone out of their way, to get there. They have no time to stop and do a kindness, no time for love in all its forms, they want to save their soul, and they don't care who they hurt in the doing of it.

After all, how else can one save their soul than in doing God's will by helping others? You can work your head off in church work, you can read your bible assiduously, you can be a constant attendant at church services, but if you are thinking only for yourself and the place you want in heaven, what are you? Nothing but a selfish prig.

For, in all these things, you are not really thinking of God, you don't care a cent for your fellow-man and his suffering, you are just like an animal at the feeding trough who wants to get all he can, no matter how the rest lack.

We read in the bible that we can have all the virtues, but lacking charity, we are nothing but tinkling brass and clashing cymbals. And when you figure it out, how many are just that. They say in effect, "Lord, look at me. I am doing this for you and that for you. I am not like these others who do not enter Your temple, for I go there all the time, so do see that I get a good place in Heaven, won't You?"

Which reminds me of the time the Titanic went down. A few months later when I was crossing, "Sparks" the radio man asked if I would like to see the place where the iceberg caused them to founder with such an appalling loss of life.

So the next day, we both stood at the rail, and when he said "this is the place," I said a prayer for those who met such a death. He told me they called it the Devil's Hole, as it was so deep they had never been able to take a sounding of it.

I thought of the tales of heroism that had taken place on that beautiful doomed ship. Everyone had thought it was unsinkable due to the extra bulkheads etc. But a thing like an iceberg, plus the wish to break a record, sent it to the bottom.

And along with the heroism, I recalled the tales of cowardice that had been enacted in the early hours of that bleak morning. Men shoving women and children aside that they would be saved. Men and women using money to bribe a place in the boats so that they would live. We don't like to think anyone would be so cowardly as that, we hate to think of how they lost their manhood and womanhood in their frantic desire to escape the death they were dooming others to.

And some Christians (so-called) do just the same thing. They think that the Devil's Hole of everlasting damnation is escapable if they do this or that to save themselves. They never realize that they are only dooming themselves to the fate they loathe so much by their inhumanity to others, their selfish desire to be saved, no matter who goes down. I would think those who saved themselves from the watery grave would always be haunted by the cries of those who had gone down in their stead. I would think too, that this life they had saved at other people's expense would be tasteless to them forever after.

And so I think it must be with those who simply seek God and Heaven to save their own soul. Not all of us can give largely in money sometimes, but there are always the little kindnesses to be done. Not all of us can give much time, but we can always give a little to comfort those who are worse off, thus in helping others, gaining Heaven and the love of God for ourselves. More later, Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

Black Frock

Black is a great favorite this spring, in spite of the fact that color is so popular.

It is vastly becoming to the sweet young things, as can be seen by this picture of Betty Furness, young screen actress, who is wearing a quaint gown of black taffeta combined with velvet.

The frock has a square-cut neck and high waistline banded in black velvet, full skirt and short, puffed sleeves.

A nose-length veil sprinkled with sequins and fastened on top of her head with a hand-made flower, cerise in color, and many strands of vari-colored beads around her neck give the color accents. Fresh flowers on top of her head would be even more charming with this dress.

SPORT BROADCAST SUNDAY RADIO ADS OPPOSED IN SYNOD

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 5—(CP) Delegates to the Toronto and Kingston Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada continued their discussions today with the record of the opening day's meetings holding their concern about decreasing Synod revenues. Ways and means to overcome a growing deficit are to be discussed.

The Synod went on record last night as favoring a report of the evangelism committee which declared present-day practices tend to secularize the Lord's Day. Sunday advertising talks on the radio and broadcasting of professional sports were opposed.

The report recommended that presbyteries arrange for conferences in the fall during which emphasis should be placed on evangelism. Expressing concern over attendance decreases at evening services. The report favored services of an evangelical character with brief gospel messages.

Dr. J. A. MacInnis, convenor of the budget committee, reported the Synod's deficit last year was $16,000 and the allocation set for 1937 was $41,000 short. "We cannot go on operating with a deficit," he warned, asking for increased contributions. Average donation of each communicant last year was $1.52, described by Clarence Pitts of Ottawa, chairman of the management committee, as "not enough."

Pitts deplored the "great" deficit of the church in Canada and asked how was it possible to budget when the management committee started with a deficit of $201,000. "The givings to the church should not go down," he declared, "while the income tax collected is going up."

Ask Higher Salaries

Increase in minimum salaries for ministers in the field was asked for by Dr. Hugh Munroe of New Glasgow, N.S., Moderator of the General Assembly, who said ministers in Canada are unable to get along on their small salaries.

Principal Thomas Eakin of Knox College, Toronto, condemned the policies of various Synods appointing committees to act on the College Board. "They are not helping the college but are sitting back acting more or less as judicial bodies," he said.

He requested reduction of 50 to 75 per cent. in the number of committees and appointment of an administration committee for five-year periods instead of present three-year terms. Under present conditions a committee only gets acquainted with what it is supposed to do, when a new committee is appointed.

Rev. Hugh T. Kerr, of Pittsburgh, Pa., speaking on "The Church in the Modern World," told the Synod, "the Christian Church is out of sympathy with what Christ taught. The Church is putting a different interpretation on what the world wants."

He answer the question of what the modern world is seeking to-day with: "Some sort of society that embraces fellowship."

"The city church is composed to people who don't know each other and don't want to, while the country church is composed of people who know each other and are sorry for it. If we can't have society in the Christian Church, how can we hope to have it in the modern world?"

LINDSAY MAN IS FINED $100

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, May 5.—L. Mills, a local business man, was fined $100 and given two years' suspended sentence in police court Wednesday after pleading guilty to the charge of making indecent literature, the original charge "distributing indecent literature, being amended. Magistrate Gee in passing sentence pronounced the case as one of the most revolting that had come to his attention. He had many cases dealing with morality, but this was the first of this type. He could not conceive how a normal man could concoct a piece of literature such as was produced in court, and place it in the hands of unsuspecting girls. County Crown Attorney Anderson, who conducted the prosecution, in dealing with the case stated that while two girl students of the Collegiate Institute were proceeding to school accused crossed the road from his place of business, placed a piece of paper on the sidewalk and put his foot on it. He removed his foot and crossed to his office. The girls picked up the paper, and immediately noting its character, placed it in the hands of the police. G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterboro; who appeared for defendant, referred to the fact that accused had spent three and one half years in the air service overseas, and had been in hospital following a crash. The type of literature which accused had made indicated a sadistic mind. Magistrate Gee remarked that he realized the accused had suffered a business reverse since his arrest, but he had to consider the interests of society in dealing with the case.

Gordon McCabe and George Dobie, the two local young men, who entered the home of an aged resident named Dennis Sullivan, on Saturday night, pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery. They were remanded until May 13 for sentence.

Dread Silicosis Proved To Be Preventable

In tests conducted by the American Optical Company, Southbridge, Mass., respirators have proven 100 per cent. protection against silicosis, deadly occupational disease, is now possible for those exposed to dusty work. Gas-masked and begoggled a laboratory worker of the company is shown, LEFT, about to start a 30-minute bicycle ride around a specially-constructed chamber, which was flooded with carbon black. The "human guinea pig" emerged from the chamber, TOP, covered with carbon black after his 30-minute ride. This study in black and white, BOTTOM, shows just how the mask and goggles protect the worker's mouth, nostril and eyes from dust particles.

CHINESE SWEEP GOES UNCHECKED

SHANGHAI, May 5 (AP)—An inspired Chinese army claimed capture of Matowchen, walled town four miles northwest of Tancheng as continued "rapid progress" was reported today in erasing the second big Japanese offensive in South Shantung province.

Matowchen was considered by Chinese commanders the key to Tancheng, which had become the southernmost point of the Japanese advance toward the Lunghai Railway, 15 miles away.

Tangcheng was encircled and beleaguered, Chinese said, though it had formed the east side of a salient until counter-offensives from the opposite corner at Talerhchwang apparently straightened out the battle line.

A sudden attack by General Miao Chen-Lieu's 57th army was reported to have driven the Japanese back toward Antung-Wei on the Yellow Sea, in a battle along the Shantung-Kiang-Su border. The attack relieved the threat of a Japanese thrust from the north at Hiachow, seaport terminus of the Lunghai railway.

Italians Shudder At Duce's Chemical Army

Mussolini's Strength Display for Nazi Visitor Shows Next Conflict to Be Dread Totalitarian War

ROME, May 6 (AP).—The next European war—if it comes—will be largely a struggle with chemicals, flames and artillery if Premier Mussolini's line-70 of armed forces today in honor of Chancellor Hitler is an indication.

Also, it will be the "totalitarian war" of which the late master strategist, General Erich Ludendorff, wrote, meaning that women and children would be drafted into service as well as men.

Mussolini showed Hitler a whole "chemical regiment" that sent a shudder through the mass of spectators. The soldiers looked like beings from another planet in their gas masks.

Among their equipment were tanks and tubes and compressed air containers. There was, however, some reassurance for Italians in equipment for fighting fire and disease germs.

A further feature of the impressive two-hour parade was the prominence given to artillery, from machine-guns and anti-aircraft pieces, to heavy cannon. The Duce seemed determined to show his German guests he was not lacking implements of war.

Besides Hitler and his entourage of high Nazis, Mussolini's guests included kings, Alfonso of Spain and Amanullah of Afghanistan.

Children Have a Part.

How seriously Mussolini is thinking of future war as "totalitarian" may be judged by the fact his review included not only regular army units—infantry, cavalry, artillery and colonials—but also small boys, girls in black uniform, teen-age youngsters on horseback, military units of university students and various Fascist formations, including the colonial Fascist police.

Nor did he hesitate to incorporate spade-carrying labor camp conscripts into the parade.

An interesting phase of the display was the jaunty march-past of Alpine troops with their rucksacks and skis. Among them one could detect many a Teutonic face from South Tyrol.

When the Alpini passed Hitler looked on gravely, pensively, while Mussolini, who usuall explained each formation in his capable German, lapsed into silence.

Both relaxed into smiles soon afterward as the picturesque Bersaglieri trooped by on the run, their band playing as the musicians trotted along.

Hitler stood in the monuments of Imperial Rome of old to witness the review. It was in the Via Dei Trionfi, through which Caesar's legions once marched. Within sight were the triumphal arch of Constantine and the Colosseum.

MEDICOS RALLIED TO HIT EXPECTED PARALYSIS BREAK

TORONTO, May 6.—(CP—Dr. J. T. Phair, chief medical officer for Ontario, warned the Ontario Medical Association today of a steady increase in infantile paralysis in the province during non-epidemic as well as epidemic years.

Dr. Phair, mobilizing medical forces for an unexpected outbreak this summer of the disease, said: "It is not possible to predict with certainty a season of increased incidence."

His suggestion of a possible relationship between infantile paralysis and the seasonal complaint affecting children, called "summer 'flu" was a highlight of his report, one of a synposium presented by five Toronto doctors on infantile paralysis, correctly known as poliomyelitis.

Dr. Phair said 1,115 summer flu cases at the Hospital for Sick Children here were reviewed to determine a possible relationship between the two diseases.

Some Similarities

The age group atacked by the two diseases were in the main the same; the time of the diseases in terms of seasonal distribution was almost identical; the districts of the city in which the bulk of paralysis cases were the same as for summer flu.

Many Ontario doctors believe as a result of their clinical experiences of last year the convalescent serum, derived from a person who suffered an attack of the disease, has unquestioned merit as a treatment, Dr. Phair said, but added logical arguments have been advanced in rebutal.

"It is of interest to note counties with 1937 rate (of paralysis incidence) were adjacent to those showing a higher than average rate for the past eight years. Certain areas of the province appear particularly prone to greater than average incidence, while other districts remain year after year comparatively free of the disease in any form.

"There appears to be no doubt the disease is transmitted as a result of the exposure of susceptible individuals to known or unrecognized cases or with permanent carriers.

'Nothing in the finding of the investigating group would support the presumption fruit, insects, water or domestic animals played any part in disease transmission.

"Slightly over half the 2,834 cases investigated showed some paralysis with over two-thirds of these showing recovery within six months of the onset. The case fatality record was 4.8 per cent.

Taylor Defends Muskie Date

TORONTO, May 6.—(CP)—Deputy Minister D. J. Taylor of the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries said today that the earlier opening of the maskinonge season would not endanger conservation of the fish.

He was replying to a protest of C. A. Walkinshaw of the Ontario Federation of Anglers who had protested the lengthening of the season. Mr. Talyor said there would be no interference with the spawning season adding that in Manitoba and Quebec and in most of the neighboring states the season opened far in advance of the Ontario opening.

The season will open this year June 20.

Ireland Wonders At Frost's Hurry

Tory President Denies Discourtesy to R. C. Wood; Claims May 28 Is Too Late to Appoint Delegates

TORONTO, May 6 (CP).—Executive members of the Ontario Conservative Association will be able to discuss within the next 10 days the demand of Cecil G. Frost, vice-president, that a general meeting be held June 15, W. H. Ireland, association president said today.

Mr. Frost issued a statement last night, backed by Argue Martin of the executive, demanding that no postponement be made of the general meeting until after the Dominion Conservative convention at Ottawa in July.

"There is nothing new in Mr. Frost's stattment," said Mr. Ireland. "It simply reiterates the stand he and Mr. Martin took at the last executive meeting."

The executive will meet again wthin 10 deays and the question may be discussed then, Mr. Ireland said. He denied he had shown a discourtesy to R. C.Wood, prominent Conservative, by not answering his letter protesting against the postponement.

Answering Wood Now

"I am answering Mr. Wood today and am telling him that I shall be only too glad to meet him or any of those for whom he speaks and discuss the situation with them," the president added, "I have never been asked for an interview by Mr. Wood or any of his associates. As a matter

$150,000 WINNING AT ILLEGAL POKER IS ALL GIVEN BACK

LOS ANGELES, May 6—(AP). — The $150,000 winnings of Lew Brice in a poker game weren't worth as much to-day as the matches he used for chips.

Between sad puffs on a cigar, the former Broadway hoofer and brother of Comedienne Fanny Brice, returned to Squire Harry Clifton of England the cheques he had written to cover his losses in a game with Brice last month.

"This is tough," said Brice. "Here I've taken chances on the Irish Sweepstakes for years and never won a cent. Now, I win the equivalent of the capital prize of $150,000 at poker—and I can't collect! It's like getting edged out in a photo finish. I always play 'em on the nose, you know."

On the advice of the Rev. Violet Greener, Mystic Pastor of Agabeg Temple, Clifton had protested to the District Attorney's office that the game he played was illegal stud poker. Investgator John Klein, despite Brice's writing off the debt, said he was still interested in "certain phases" that might be explained by two other players, George Lewis and Jack Reynolds, whom he hasn't been able to locate.

A hearing scheduled for to-day on Clifton's petition for a permanent injunction to prevent collection is now a mere formality.

DIES ON GALLOWS

MONTREAL, May 6 (CP) — Georges Dagenais, 23-year-old farm youth who came to the city from the Laurentian town of Joliette, was hanged here today for the murder of Joseph Sylvio Benoit, tobacco merchant slain during an attempted holdup of his Jacques Cartier Square store last Dec. 22.

Dagenais, known as "Banjo Eyes," went to the scaffold three months after his conviction.

"FAINTER" LET OFF ON DRIVING COUNT WILL BE RETRIED

TORONTO, May 6 (CP).—The Ontario Appeal Court today ordered a new trial for W. G. Shaw, recently acquitted at Goderich by Judge Thomas Costello of "omitting to do what it was his duty to do—refrain from driving a motor car on the public highway."

Appeal against the acquittal was entered by the Ontario Attorney-General, evidence at the trial showed Shaw was subject to fainting spells. Two passengers in his car were killed when Shaw fainted on one occasion and the car got out of control.

"The drunken driver is dangerous—even more dangerous is the man who is afflicted as Shaw was and who is subject to fainting spells or periods of unconsciousness," said Acting Chief Justice W. E. Middleton in the court's unanimous decision.

A Terrible Menace.

"Those operating motor cars must be impressed with the terrible danger there is, not only to the passengers but those using the highways, when one subject to attacks such as this does not refrain from driving at all."

Referring to Shaw's malady, the Acting Chief Justice said: "It was quite evident that, while possibly not aware of the exact nature of his malady, he must have been perfectly aware of the danger he would occasion by operating a car at the time he was attacked by his malady."

Statements that he had no other defects than a need for eyeglasses were reiterated by the accused man year after year in obtaining driving permits, Justice Middleton said.

A new trial was ordered, the court declared, on the ground that "the accused should have been called upon for his defence."

BARN BURNS IN REACH

LINDSAY, Ont., May 6.—(CP)—A large frame barn and driving shed on the farm of Henry Davis, fourth concession of Reach were destroyed by fire during a severe electric storm last night. Following a bolt of lightning which splintered boards in the main barn from the top to the bottom, the structure burst into flames.

Volunteers removed the stock and implements from the barn.

Canada's Governor In War Days Duke Of Devonshire Dies

Was One Of England's Wealthiest Land Owners And Friend Of Royal Family

LONDON, May 6 (C.P.). — The Duke of Devonshire, K.G., 69, Governor-General of Canada during the latter years of the Great War, died to-day after a long illness.

Death came at Chatsworth House in Derbyshire, his principal seat, within the historic walls of which Mary, Queen of Scots, once was imprisoned. For six months he had been in failing health and had been receiving daily medical attention.

One of the wealthiest landowners in England, His Grace was a close friend of the Royal Family and frequently entertained King George V. at shooting parties on his Yorkshire moors and at Chatsworth House.

Much of the Duke's life was devoted to public service and he was called to Viceregal office in Canada in 1916 when the Dominion's great national effort was at its height. He remained at Rideau Hall until 1921 and was a witness to the final transition of Canada to complete nationhood following the peace.

He set foot on Canadian soil at Halifax on November 11, 1916, exactly two years before the Armistice, and entered keenly into the campaign of national service. Women Are Invited To Join Army

London, May 6.

WAR MINISTER Leslie Hore-Belisha has drafted a plan whereby women will be enlisted for the British Territorial army, it was revealed last night.

The women will perform "minor military duties" in the Territorial army—corresponding to national guard units in the United States—and relieve the men for more active duties.

Announcement of the scheme was expected soon after a meeting at the War Office Friday to consider the organization of a women's organization for various non-combat duties.

Chicago Couple Must Blind Daughter Or Have Her Die In 2 Months

CHICAGO, May 6 (AP)

THE HERALD-EXAMINER said today in a copyright story a young Chicago couple faced the appalling alternatives of submitting their infant daughter to an operation that would leave her blind forever, or permitting her to die.

The affliction has been diagnosed as glioma, a tumor that first attacks the retina of the eye and spreads through the optic nerve to the brain.

Dr. Herman Colan, 30, a dentist, and his wife, Estelle, 23, the parents of the five weeks old child were told by specialists, the paper said, the baby would die within two months unless the eyes were removed.

The malady was considered unusual but the necessary operation was said to be not dangerous in the average case.

F. C. Betts Missing Since Trip Last Tuesday

Car, Rented in Ottawa, Discovered on River Bank Friends, Uneasy, Call in Mounties to Aid With Search

BUCKINGHAM, Que., May 6 (CP).—Quebec Provincial Police, searching for Fred C. Betts, Conservative member of parliament for London, started dragging operations in the Blanche river near here this afternoon.

Operations were started in the vicinity of where a car, rented by Mr. Betts from an Ottawa taxi company, was found yesterday.

The London member has not been seen since Tuesday when he left Ottawa for this district presumably on a fishing trip. Indicating that someone had been fishing from the riverbank, a freshly-broken bit of shrubbery close to the waterline was noticed by police.

Denton Massey, member for Toronto Greenwood, A. C. Casselman, Conservative whip, and Douglas Ross, member for Toronto-St. Paul's, who came here from Ottawa to aid in the search for their parliamentary colleague, returned to the capital this afternoon.

Police established that Alcide Bisson, a farmer living near Bourget, Ont., 35 miles east of Ottawa, did not fish with Mr. Betts as was first believed.

Joked With Clerk

The desk clerk at the Y.M.C.A., where Mr. Betts lived during the session, said he saw him leave the building Tuesday morning in fishing clothes. The clerk added that Mr. Betts joked with him asking him how many fish he wanted.

Isaac Lorrain, a farmer living near where Mr. Betts' abandoned car was found, said he saw a "tall, dark, man" leave an automobile Tuesday night about 150 yards from his home and go towards the river carrying what he thought was fishing tackle.

Lorrain customarily retires about 8.30 p.m. and said he went to bed after seeing the man. "In the middle of the night I heard a shout," he said. A short time later he heard another shout.

"I said to myself that if I heard another shout I would get up and investigate but there was no further cry."

LOST SAYS WIFE

HAMILTON, May 6.—CP)—While police in the Ottawa area are bending every effort toward learning the whereabouts of Fred C. Betts, Conservative M.P. for London, who disappeared under mysterious circumstances near Buckingham, Que., last Tuesday, his wife, daughter of Thomas and Mrs. Moore, 60 Arkledun avenue, Hamilton, anxiously awaits reassuring word of his safety.

Mr. Betts, an ardent fisherman, was known to have planned a day's fishing this week. When advices from Ottawa reported the London member as missing Mrs. Betts said she was convinced her husband had become lost.

FERMENTED WINE FOR COMMUNION LEFT TO BISHOPS

TORONTO, May 6.—(CP)—A motion by Rev. J. R. S. Boyd "That the use of fermented communion wine be permitted in the diocese of Toronto" was sent to the House of Bishops for consideration today by the Toronto Synod of the Church of England.

"Although I am a total abstainer myself, I do not object to taking fermented wine at communion," Mr. Boyd said. "But I do object to giving it to others for whom it is a temptation."

"I do not think that this sacred cup could be turned to temptation," declared Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen. "But I feel that perhaps we here do not feel like discussing such a matter and I will guarantee to see that it is given proper consideration by the House of Bishops."

"I've seen men go on a spree after going to communion and I knew of a church warden and his wife who were led to drink to excess in their homes because of it," said Mr. Boyd in presenting his motion, which was passed on to the House of Bishops on an amendment by Canon H. F. D. Woodcock.

CECIL G. FROST DEMANDS PARTY CALL CONCLAVE

Wants No Postponing Of Annual Meeting

LINDSAY, May 6.—Declaring emphatically that Ontario Conservatives are entitled to know what plans have been made for the reorganization of their party, Cecil G. Frost last night issued a statement as vice-president of the Ontario Association, in which he set out that both he and Argue Martin, K.C., treasurer, are opposed to delay of the annual meeting of the association.

The first vice-president affirmed his loyalty to his colleagues on the executive, but asserted that "Conservatives generally are upset and dissatisfied . . . and we feel (speaking for Mr. Martin as well) that Mr. Wood's letter deserves the courtesy of a reply, as it undoubtedly reflects the view of a large number of Conservatives and Ontario citizens, and Mr. Wood is well within his right in demanding clarification of these issues."

Mr. Frost was referring to a letter written by R. C. Wood, secretary of a "Committee of Action," in which criticism of President W. H. Ireland his executive was voiced over the decision to postpone the meeting until after the Federal convention in July.

"We still feel that an annual meeting held not later than June 15 next, would do much to solidify and encourage Conservative supporters and sentiment in Ontario," Mr. Frost wound up his statement.

Text of Statement.

The text of Mr. Frost's statement follows:

On Saturday, April 30, immediately after having read the letter of R. C. Wood, Esquire, and feeling that the attitude of some of the members of the executive of the Ontario Conservative Association was being shown in a false light, I wrote to the Honorable Earl Rowe; W. H. Ireland, president of the Ontario Association, and John R. MacNicol, M.P., joint chairman of the National Conservative Committee, asking them to see that a proper statement be made clarifying the reasons underlying the postponement

Blond Scot Matron Held As Spy

EDINBURGH, May 6.—(AP)—A wavy-haired blond beauty parlor operator, Mrs. Jessie Jordan, jauntily denied guilty today on charges of participation in a widespread spy plot and was committed to trial May 16.

She left court smiling despite indications of intense preparations for her trial. Details of the charges against her were not announced, but it was disclosed there would be 42 government witnesses, including Royal Air Force officers, a retired naval officer, War Department operatives and police officers of Dundee, Perth and Glasgow. The prosecution also will produce 64 exhibits.

Mrs. Jordan was arrested at Dundee March 2 and accused of violating the Official Secrets Act. At the time of her arrest, the London Daily Mail said: "The drama was the outcome of widespread inquiries on the continent and in the United States."

Britain Will Mobilize Women, And Charge Them To Join

War Office Proposes Year's Training In Non-Combatant Duties For Emergency

LONDON, May 6.— (AP).—The War Office concentrated to-day upon plans for mobilization of women for service in time of emergency.

Turning its attention to non-combatant duties which women might perform, the War Ministry called a meeting of Territorial Army officials and heads of various women's patriotic organizations.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, Secretary for War, said a modern army had a place for women. It was recalled 1,000,000 British women during the Great War worked in munitions factories, served as nurses, and enlisted in the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps and Women's Royal Naval Services performing non-combatant duties.

The War Secretary said his purpose was to train women "in various tasks so that on mobilization women could supply military requirements for various non-combatant duties."

The Army and Air Councils have recognized "emergency service," an organization training women as officers for women's corps in war time.

The Duchess of Gloucester is president of the service. Army and air officers give instruction at day and evening classes.

A year's training culminates in a camp where the woman cadets take turns at duties as commanding officer, adjutant, orderly officer and drill instructor, and share "fatigues" and cook-house duties. Cadets must spend from eight to 15 days in camp, and pay a 10-shilling ($2.50) subscription annually.

Duet, "Come Gentle Spring" Draws Bolt That Douses Festival Lights

Lindsay, Ont., May 6 (CP)

A BOY SOLOIST was rendering "Winter Is Over" when a thunderclap shook the building in which Victoria County's Music Festival was being held.

Rain pounded down to drown out other soloists. The storm eased then and a women's duet started "Come, Gentle Spring."

For some reason or other the storm came back with renewed fury, a bang of thunder and vivid lightning. The lights went out.

The Adjudicator, Dr. Charles Peaker of Toronto, led the audience in community singing in the darkness and the lights came on.

"Come, Gentle Spring" was resumed.

COMMONS ARGUES FOR WHOLE DAY ON IMPLEMENTS

OTTAWA, May 6.—(CP—One of the problems faced by Canadian agriculture—the high cost of farm implements—will be threshed out in the House of Commons today. During the entire session yesterday the subject was debated but no conclusion was reached.

For six hours members from all sides poured out a flood of oratory. Low tariff Liberals urged removal of the existing 7½ per cent. duty on imported implements. Conservatives argued this would throw thousands of industrial workers into idleness with little or no compensating advantage to agriculture.

The debate was a continuation of that which arose over a motion to adopt the report of the special committee which studied this question in 1936 and 1937. No other business was taken up yesterday.

With little action in the House committees held the spotlight. The special senate committee on the railway problem was told by S. W. Fairweather of the Canadian National his organization was prepared to consider economies through abandonment of lines without going through the complicated procedure of apportioning losses and advantages if the Canadian Pacific would do the same.

Railway matters were also discussed in the House committee which is considering Transport Minister Howe's measure to enlarge the board of railway commissioners to control water carriage and air traffic. Representatives of both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National argued in support of the measure.

Means More Jobless

In the House Denton Massey (Con. Toronto-Greenwood), who has been mentioned as a possibility for the Conservative leadership, attacked the facts and tone of the speech made Friday by Agriculture Minister Gardiner. His address aroused cross-fire and comment from the Liberal ranks.

Mr. Massey charged the low tariff Liberals were urging a step that would put the Canadian implement business out of business and throw thousands into the unemployed ranks. He repeated his earlier declaration that neither himself nor his family was interested in the Massey-Harris Company.

R. J. Deachman (Lib. North Huron) and W. G. Weir (Lib. Macdonald) were among those urging abandonment of all protection for the industry. Others, including D. G. Ross (Con. Toronto-St. Paul) de-

LABOR CAPTURES LICHFIELD SEAT

LONDON, May 6.—(CP).—Labor to-day won the Lichfield by-election, C. C. Poole, 35-year-old railway clerk, winning the House of Commons seat held by the Government since 1931.

The Labor candidate defeated G. B. Craddock, National Labor candidate suporting the government by a majority of 826. In the 1935 general election the late J. A. Lovat-Fraser held the seat for the Government with a majority of 3,298.

It was the third by-election loss for the Government in recent weeks, Labor having won Ipswich and West Fulham in campaigns based largely on Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy.

"No longer can Mr. Chamberlain say the people of Britain share his child-like faith in dictators," the victorious Labor candidate told his supporters after the result had been announced.

He said he had been elected "because the people have no faith in the foreign policy of the government."

REVERSE IN CHINA MAY MEAN TURN OF JAP EXPANSION

SHANGHAI, May 6 (AP).—The war in the Orient ends its 10th month today with the Chinese army resisting and even striking back at Japan's mechanized power.

For four months the previously rapid spread of the Japanese occupation has been stalled. Recently on the main front in southern Shantung province the Chinese have taken the offensive. Japan has suffered one serious defeat. Another seems possible.

Before it was stalled the Japanese army overran approximately 400,000 square miles of Chinese territory. The Japanese air force carried the war still further, along the whole extent of China's coast and for 1,000 miles inland.

Probably 500,000 Japanese soldiers have been sent to the continent, to be confronted by two or three times their numbers. A Japanese naval blockade on China's coasts has been declared.

Three Phases So Far

The war has had three distinct phases since its genesis in an exchange of shots July 7, 1937, at Marco Polo bridge, west of ePiping.

First was the comparatively easy Japanese overrunning of nearly all North China. Next came the Shanghai-Nanking phase, ending with the fall of Nanking, the Chinese capital, December 13. Finally, the operations on the central front.

Chinese military losses have been tremendous, estimated in Hankow, the new capital, at roughly 1,000,000 killed and wounded. In January the Japanese army said its casualties had been only 20,000. Neutrals believed this far below the real numbers. Since then Japan has lost much more heavily in Shantung.

Both nations are weary of the war, but neither can stop. For China it is a fight for life. For Japan, although it began as an "incident" it has grown to involve her place in the Orient and her status as a world power.

OBITUARY

GEORGE WHITELAW.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 6. — Ailing for nearly a year, death came early on Tuesday morning to George Dickson Whitelaw. A resident of Campbellford for more than forty years, Mr. Whitelaw was in his 74th year. An active member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, he served for many years on the Board of Managers and was for a time the treasurer of the congregation. In the early years of his residence in Campbellford, he was engaged in the construction of the bridge which crosses the river at the main part of the town. He was a civil engineer, but perhaps best known in later years as the weigh master at the town scales.

Respected by many, he leaves to mourn the loss, his wife, the former Margaret Mills, and two brothers, William T. Whitelaw of Kansas City, Kansas, and Robert T. Whitelaw of Woodstock.

The funeral will be held from his late residence, Grand Road, on Friday afternoon by the Rev. B. Simpson Black of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Interment will be in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

MARKET GARDENERS

BARRIE, Ont., May 6 (CP) — Eight families given assistance under the Soldiers' Aid Plan of re-establishing unemployed veterans on the land, are carving out new homes for themselves 7 miles west of here.

After 11 months of hard work a market garden centre nears completion on the rich black soil and crops of lettuce and celery are almost ready for market.

Cucumbers, which appear quite solid, actually are 95 per cent. water.

Tax increases are arousing protests in Ireland.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Winnipeg wheat futures firmed in final stages to-day on buying prompted by talk of an oversold market condition and improved cash wheat spreads. Final quotations were ⅛ higher and ¼ cent lower, May $1.15¾, July $1.08⅝ to ⅝, and October 87¾ to ¾ cents.

Futures earlier dipped about a cent in line with outside markets, dearth in export demand, an even spreading and intermarket spreading operations.

A contributing factor in late firmness was a Saskatchewan private report that wheat acreage reduction in that province would total 1,389,000 acres.

Delay in Western Canada seeding and poor germination weather with temperatures hovering around the freezing point also was stressed.

Trent River Woman Becomes First Lady Member Of Peterborough Presbytery

Rev. Cleland Of Norwood Nominated As President Of Conference

The Spring meeting of the United Church of Canada was held in Wesley Church, 16th Concession of Smith, Thursday, May 5. The meeting opened at 9.30 a.m. with devotions conducted by the chairman, Rev. E. M. Cook of Fraserville. The roll call showed forty members present; among them Mrs. Thomas Brown of Trent River, a delegate from Havelock, and the first woman lay delegate to be a representative.

Recognition was made of the fact that the Rev. E. W. Young, M.A., B.D., had recently been honored with the degree of Doctor of Divinity (D.D.), by United Theological College of Montreal.

The Presbytery nominated the Rev. A. S. Cleland of Norwood as its choice for President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, which is called to meet in Trinity United Church, Napanee, on Tuesday, May 31.

Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street Church, Peterborough, was nominated to the Settlement committee. Mr. Alex Stewart of 189 Dalhousie street, is also a member of this committee.

Rev. George S. Easton of Trinity Church, Peterborough, and J. G. Keefer of Norwood were nominated as commissioners to General Council meeting in Toronto in September.

Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street Church was elected on the first ballot as chairman of Presbytery for the next conference year, beginning July 1. Rev. C. C. Miller of Bridgenorth was re-elected secretary and Rev. J. W. Wilkinson of Warsaw was re-elected treasurer. Convenors of committees for the next year are to be: Archives, J. F. Morrison; Colleges and Students, Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt; Religious Education, Rev. C. H. Ferguson; Evangelism and Social Service, Rev. F. W. Craik; Finance, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson; Foreign Missions, Rev. R. M. McMullin; Home Missions, Rev. C. C. Miller; Missionary and Maintenance, Rev. George S. Easton; Pensions, Rev. S. A. Kempt; Property, Rev. J. R. Trumpour; Publications, Rev. A. L. Sisco; Records, Rev. J. S. Ferguson; Roll, Rev. M. C. Parr; Statistics, the Secretary.

Mr. Morrison, in giving the Archives report, drew attention to the number of churches that have compiled very full and accurate historical records, most of which have been published in The Examiner, a paper which does not lose any opportunity to give publicity to special church occasions. Mr. Morrison said, "We are forunate in having such a sympathetic paper in our midst."

Kenneth R. Stewart, who has been the student missionary at Wesley and Curve Lake for the past two years, has been certified to Albert College Belleville.

Charles G. Kitney, B.A., son of E. G. Kitney of Peterborough, having completed his studies in Theology, was licensed by the Presbytery to preach, and was recommended to conference for ordination in June.

Increase in Givings

Of the seven presbyteries in the Bay of Quinte Conference, Peterborough was the only one which showed an increase in its givings to the Missionary and Maintenance fund of the church in the year 1937. The Presbytery gave $16,558, and besides $562 for Western relief.

The Home Mission committee asked the Presbytery to give its support to a request that the Women's Missionary Society station a trained socail service worker at Curve Lake Indian Reserve.

Mrs. J. Bradbury, corresponding secretary of the Conference branch of the W.M.S. spoke in support of the motion. The Presbytery was unanimous in its agreement that such a worker was needed.

Mrs. W. H. Morton, president of the Peterborough Presbyterial of the W.M.S., addressed the court on the work of that organization. She reported 28 auxiliaries, nine circles, and 11 mission bands at work in the presbyterial. These contributed $8,484 to assist in keeping 280 missionaries and 69 associated workers in 131 stations in home and foreign fields, and besides sent approximately one ton of clothing to destitute areas.

Call Is Ratified

A deputation from Wesley Mission requested that the Settlement committee send them if possible an ordained minister for the next year. The call of the Rev. M. I. Robinson of Athens to Norwood was ratified, as was the call of Rev. A. S. Cleland of Norwood to Athens. The invitaton of Fraserville to the Rev. Fred Horton of Foxboro to Fraserville was agreed to, as was the call of Rev. E. M. Cook to Foxboro. The requests of Rev. S. A. Kempt of Havelock, Rev. C. C. Miller of Bridgenorth, Rev. W. F. Riding, Pontypool for change in pastoral relations were endorsed. The request of Rush Point and Victoria congregations to engage a student minister for the summer months was granted.

The secretary presented the statistical report, showing an increase of 123 families with a decrease of 190 in membership. One new Sunday School and 10 new through the week organizations. Two new organizations of the W.M.S. and one new Women's Association organization of the Women's Associations of the Presbytery raised one thousand six hundred and fifty-five dollars more than last year.

The committee on evangelism and social service presented strong reports through its newly-elected chairman, Rev. Fred W. Craik. These had to do with sweepstakes and the liquor situation.

The Sweepstakes.

The Ontario Legislature by a majority vote has favored government-controlled sweepstakes in the Province to assist its hospitals and universities. We vigorously protest against the introduction of any such measure of raising money for these worthy institutions, as it has a tendency to promote the gambling instinct in our people and ought to be condemned as an evil and insidious practice.

"We are opposed to anything that savors of the gambling spirit on the grounds that it tends to augment greed and selfishness and to dry up the well springs of philanthropy and voluntary giving.

"The great ambition of the best thinkers of today is to create a sound economic order, and this is utterly impossible when we attempt to build a superstructure upon the gambling habit.

"We draw the attention of the public to the fact that the hospitals of Canada are themselves opposed to this method of raising money, as expressed by the Canadian Hospital Council, and we have no reason to believe that the universities are urging for this privilege either.

"And further, we wish to express our satisfaction and appreciation of the stand taken by the churches in this matter, never has there been greater interest and unanimity shown on any public question not only by our own church, but by the churches of other communions.

"Further, we commend the courageous stand of rural members of the Legislature and particularly by our own member, Mr. Elliott, in voting against introduction of any such legislation.

Report on the liquor situation to the Peterborough Presbytery:

Your committee wishes, as far as possible, to give the Presbytery a balanced report indicating the gains and losses in this sphere. Following these statements of fact, we ask the Presbytery to take appropriate action.

Encouraging Features.

In 85 local option contests since 1934 in Ontario, the dry forces have won 59, almost 70 per cent. of the total.

The leading papers almost universally condemn the present conduct of the beverage rooms in this province.

The Department of Education is extending the facilities for teaching temperance in the Public Schools. Hitherto the subject was taught in Grades 1 to 6; it is now proposed to give instruction on it in Grades 7 and 8.

The decision of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation not to accept liquor advertising programs on its stations, and to ban such programs by privately owned stations throughout the Dominion. The Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Church favored this decision.

The Prime Minister of the Province of Ontario declared that he would allow private members to vote on the liquor issues before the House, according to their conscience without any disciplinary action from the Leader of the party.

Discouraging Features.

The reappearance of the liquor advertisements in several of our newspapers. These contain fallacies and half-truths and omit much relevant matter. They are sponsored by the Brewers' Association at a considerable cost.

The marked increase in the consumption of alcoholic liquors consumed in the Province in recent years. The amount of spirits last year increased 16.7 per cent. over the previous year—beer 7.7 per cent., wine 12 per cent. The quantity of beer sold in 1937 was three times as great as in 1933-34, an increase of 212 per cent. Spirits in 1937 was 73:40 per cent. over 1933. Ontario people consumed twice as much alcohol in 1936-37 than in 1932-33.

There has been a marked increase in crime in Ontario in recent years. Convictions for drunkenness have risen from 8,724 to 13,049, an increase of 50 per cent. Previous to the era of government sale of liquor, out of 17,448 persons arrested in Canada for serious crimes, 59 per cent. admitted using liquor. In 1936 of 36,059 similarly imprisoned, 94 per cent. acknowledged using liquor.

Moral standards have weakened in recent years. In 1926 there were in Ontario 26.89 illegitimates in every 1,000 live births. We believe the attendance of girls in beverage rooms is a contributional cause to this evil.

The fatalities on our highways have risen to 756 in 1937, an increase of 194 or nearly one-third over the previous record of 562.

There were orgies of drunkenness in Toronto and some other cities in Ontario during the last two Christmas seasons. The Toronto Globe and Mail in its editorial comment said probably not in history has there been such a sight in downtown Toronto as on the night of December 24. The streets were full with inebriated men and women, boys and girls. Some 200 persons were arrested for drunkenness, and in all 209 cases were listed in the Police Courts on the Monday after Christmas.

In view of these facts, we ask for certain lines of action from the Presbytery. First as concerning ourselves:

(a) That we pledge ourselves to refrain from using alcoholic liquor as beverages or from offering it to other people in our homes or elsewhere.

(b) We will use our influence in promoting public opinion against liquor traffic by every means in our power, by personal influence in friendly conversation with others especially young people.

(c) The Presbytery calls upon the ministers to give addresses on the subject in our churches and Sunday Schools, and if possible secure pledges of total abstinence from young and old.

(d) We urge our people in the various congregations to insist upon watchful and vigorous enforcement of existing liquor laws by the local police force.

Concerning the Provincial Government:

(a) We advocate shorter hours for beverage rooms, and we recommend that the closing hour be 10 p.m. on days other than Saturday and on that day 1 p.m., and that the hours designated be standard time.

(b) We demand that the Government amend the Liquor Control Act so that the provisions covering the advertising of this narcotic drug other than in the immediate place of sale shall become absolute, and not subject to qualification or exception at the hands of the Liquor Commissioner.

(c) Whereas the Liquor Control Board report of March 31, 1937, discloses the fact that there were purchased in Ontario 50,839 individual liquor permits at $2.00 each, and the number of single purchase permits sold at 25 cents each, on which the full quota of liquor may be bought, is 2,729,566. We advocate the abolition of this cheap permit, except for non-resident tourists only.

(d) We believe that the present Liquor Control Board has forfeited the confidence of the people of this Province and should be replaced by a board whose purpose would be to lessen the evils of drink rather than the promotion of its sale for profit.

(e) We advocate the return of the permit system for the purchase of beer and the exclusion of women from beverage rooms.

(f) That we favor the referendum on the beverage room.

Affecting the Dominion Government:

(a) We urge that the Minister of Justice and the Dominion Parliament change the wording of the Criminal Code, Section 285, to read: "Everyone who, while under the influence of alcohol or a narcotic drug drives any motor vehicle or automobile.

(b) We recommend the use of the highly effective blood test in connection with all motor accidents.

The Presbytery went on record as feeling that there must be a closer co-operation among farmers and all primary producers and requested Conference to appoint a committee to investigate the rural problem with a view to giving counsel and leadership for the promotion of the products of primary producers.

At the noon hour the ladies of the Wesley Church congregation served one of the best dinners that the Presbytery has ever been catered to for many years.

The thanks of the meeting was expressed to the ladies, to the church officials, and the student minister, Ken Stewart, for all the courtesies of the day. This is the first time Presbytery has met in Wesley Church.

Hungarians To Keep Their Moustaches

Budapest, Hungary, May 6.

DEBRECZEN CUSTOMS officials recently received orders not to shave their moustaches. Several of them refused to obey the order, but it was disclosed that a law, passed in 1890, prohibits shaving moustaches. The officials are asking the Minister of Finance to repeal the law.

In the former Austro-Hungarian Army shaving of moustaches was forbidden except for one cavalry regiment.

Real Anglo-French Goodwill

British War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha must have told a good one, to judge from the smiles of approval shown by General De Camp, LEFT, and Colonel Girard, of the French Army. The photo was made on Hore-Belisha's arrival at Le Bourget from Rome, where he conversed with Premier Mussolini. A few days later French and British statesmen tightened the ties that bind their armed forces.

ORILLIA TAKES LACROSSE TILT

ORILLIA, May 6.—Trailing all the way into the fourth and final period, Bucco MacDonald's Orillia Terriers, Eastern Canadian Senior Lacrosse champions, came through with six goals to capture their first game of the season here last night by a 11 to 10 victory over the Brampton Excelsiors in an exhibition tilt. The Terriers were behind 4-3 at the end of the first stanza, 5-3 at halftime, and trailed by three goals at the end of the third period, 8-5.

They gained the lead in the final quarter only to lose it again and then pulled to the fore again with seconds left to play.

The game was marked by a general melee near the end of the third period when Harmon of the Terriers, scoring a goal, charged the Excelsior's goalie.

No Other Way

One report from Ottawa says Prime Minister Mackenzie King is prepared to go to the people on short notice on the issue of centralized government in Canada versus the increasing demands being made for wider powers for provincial governments. It would be an unusual issue such as this country has not actually faced since the days of Confederation. There is nothing to indicate that Mr. King will do as the Ottawa report indicates. The last federal election was on October 14, 1935, and there is not at present any outstanding issue of federal policy which would justify an election.

But this business of the powers of the Dominion government as opposed to the powers of the Provincial governments is one which is going to require attention. To use a rather poor but readily understood phrase it is like a boil and it must come to a head. We have so many governing bodies all operating on the same people that confusion and antagonism cannot be avoided. Instead of moving to a point of clarity and common understanding the confusion is worse, and it amounts to open hostility.

If this country is going to continue as the Dominion of Canada—and we can see no other method of existence—then the greater authority must be the Dominion government.

Evicting A Governor

Lieut. Governor Bowen of Alberta has received some sort of notice from the Aberhart government to vacate the premises he has been occupying. The government has been paying some $22,000 a year for the upkeep of the house, but the salary of the occupant, $9,000 a year, is paid by Ottawa.

But a Lieut.-Governor does not move out when served with something which smacks much of an eviction paper. It is not proper to go to him and merely say "Get out." If Mr. Aberhart and his colleagues thought it could be done that way they have learned they were in error.

Mr. Bowen merely refuses to be moved by any such method. He insists there is a right way to do everything and he is not handing over the door key until the government causes an Order-in-Council to be passed. The Lieut.-Governor claims there is a degree of respect due the office which he occupies. He was neither hired nor appointed by the province, but is actually a representative of the King in Alberta. He is as right as can be in insisting that any eviction order served on him shall be done according to custom.

He Commends Himself

Hon. Earl Rowe, M.P., who was leading the provincial Conservative party in Ontario during the last election, informed a gathering of Conservative ladies in Eglington that he was still the leader of the Conservative party in Ontario. Going a little farther he said plainly he intended to keep on being the leader. He seems to like the position although he is not a member of the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Rowe speaks plainly of himself as a party leader. Quoting from the report we take this:

"It is common knowledge thrpughout the province that had I surrendered as your leader I would have ended the Conservative party in Ontario and have embarrassed it in the Dominion for the next quarter of a century".

And that, we agree, would have been rather tough on the Conservative party. If we recall the last provincial contest correctly there were a number of very consistent Conservatives who said they were not much taken with Mr. Rowe as a campaign leader. But Mr. Rowe does not share their belief at all. His claim to having saved the Conservative party from obliteration in Ontario and from embarrassment throughout the Dominion for the next quarter of a century tells plainly enough what he thinks of himself. And that is a good deal.

Sent To Jail

Two men appeared in court in Peterborough on a charge of taking suckers with a gaff. The sucker does not rank high in the fish family but there are certain ways in which they cannot be taken. The fine imposed was $10 and $2.50 costs, but the arrested men said they had no money to pay a fine. The result was they went to jail for ten days for catching suckers in a way which is not recognized by law.

We do not know whether these two men were ever in court or jail before. If not they become ex-jail-birds in ten days for the taking of suckers. Enough to make some of the old-timers rub their eyes in amazement. The sentence does not seem to fit in with the size of the offence. If they had been taking bass or lunge out of season it would be different, but we cannot see why men should be sent to jail for ten days for taking a few suckers.

We Own This Road

When the Senate committee was discussing the railway situation in Canada it came upon the finances of that fine piece of public ownership, the Hudson Bay Railway. Perhaps readers of this paper may say they are not much interested in it; it does not run near here; they never ride on it; nor have they ever seen it.

It might be well to ponder this for a moment—whether interested or not you are one of the owners of the property, and in some direct or indirect way you are going to put up the money for it. Now read on.

The capital expenditure on that road up to March of last year was $54,800,000. It has been operating for some years and in each year there is a curious sameness about the results; that is, each year has produced a deficit, the total for the last three being $833,000.

In 1930 the Hudson Bay Railway carried in all 11,047 passengers, but in 1937 passenger traffic was down to 6,956, and the explanation given was that the tourists had become tired of going that far to look at Hudson Bay. In 1930 there was no wheat shipped by that route, but in 1937 there were 20 tons, and it was built to carry western wheat on the first leg of its long trip to Liverpool.

It might also be interesting for readers of this paper, as part owners of the road to know it was built because politicians from the West insisted on it. The people who had votes in the West said they wanted the road and if candidates had opposed the idea they would have lost the votes they needed to be elected to Ottawa.

No set of business men with money to invest would ever have built the road because such people as a rule do not have money to throw away on something of no value. But we—the ratepayers of Canada—were put into that sort of business because politicians desired something which would at that time win them votes.

Going Modern

We noticed in the old home paper that the village has gone modern. It will enforce traffic regulations and put calcium chloride on all the dirt and gravel roads in the place. At several corners on Main Street there will be signs saying that drivers of cars must not make U-turns there

The chloride is for the purpose of keeping down the dust, and there were years when no person paid much attention to the dust. Some of the folk who had gardens used to go out on the road and scoop up a pail of dust to sprinkle over their cabbage plants as they said it helped kill off the worms. Of course there wasn't much traffic then.

But the new traffic signs on the corner of Main street telling not to make a complete turn there are new and strange. We know the corner quite well. On the days when pigs were shipped they were first weighed on the village scales and then driven down Main street to the station shipping yard and right at that corner they had to make a turn. It was then that a boy in the village learned how to be a good pig driver; he had to supply his own gad and his own language and his own powers of persuasion to make all the pigs turn that Main street corner at the same time. We don't know how it will work now if they still ship pigs and march them down that street because our recollection is that when a pig took a notion to make a U-turn or any other kind of a turn it was difficult to persuade the pig that it was wrong to do so.

The Men Who Enlisted

A committee in Kingston has been considering revising bylaws which govern the employment and conduct of men on the civic fire department. In the Whig-Standard of Kingston it is reported that "Ald. Smith objected to a regulation which stated that 'any person appointed to the fire department shall not be over 30 years of age'." He claimed this regulation automatically barred any returned soldier from entering the fire-fighting service. This same question was raised within recent times in several cities in the Western section of the province when it came to naming men to the police force. The age limit for probationers there was such that the returned man was barred.

We are not now far removed from the time when the World War will have been over for a full 20 years, nor are we far from the date when it can be said to have started 24 years ago. If the average age of an enlisted man at the conclusion of the war had been but 25—and it was probably higher—he would be in the 45-year-old class now. We do not know if there are figures which give the average age of the returned men, but we have seen it stated several times as being around 47 years. Civic departments such as fire and police will not accept probationers' of that age.

It is not a comfortable fact but it is a blunt and true one that many of the returned men never found it easier to find work because they had served during the war. Some years ago it was freely stated that the wearing of a returned man's button was no use whatever when it came to looking for work. Many returned men have informed us they found they could make better progress when they did not display their button and when they said nothing at all about their war service. There were departments of governmental service where preference was given to the returned man, but such preference was not extended generally.

There must be many who recall the recruiting addresses in the early war days; they recall also the promises which were plainly made to the men who are enlisting. Those men were told that a grateful country would never forget them and would be waiting to look after them on their return. In an official way we have spent millions for disabled men and for pension, but too often the returned man had cause to come to the conclusion that the grateful citizens of a grateful country had forgotten all about their promises. Added to that is the plain fact that today many of the returned men are informed they are too old for such employment as many be available.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mr. Hepburn is like Mr. Dooley. All he knows about the Rowell commission is what he reads in the papers.

The price of asparagus is so low that children are afraid the cost of spinach will go down in proportion.

Out of 55 cars tested in Port Hope 44 were found to be defective. Between bad drivers and lame cars it is a wonder the accident record is as low as it is.

The commonest excuse when a motorist is caught with defective equipment is that he could not afford to buy better. That's an excuse but not a reason.

Now it is announced that Dizzy Dean has a lame arm. The bulletin might have added that the Chicago management has a headache.

Mr. Rowe says he is still leader of the Conservative party in Ontario. And you an almost imagine R. C. Wood asking "What party?"

The Niagara bridge bill has been talked out of the House of Commons eight times. The suspicion arises that some of the members do not want the thing to pass.

Every time anybody suggests the amalgamation of the two Canadian railway systems some one else mentions the railway vote and the politicians all hit for cover.

Thirty-one Toronto motorists have been involved in two accidents each so far this year. That suggests the thought that they should lose the right to drive long enough to make sure they are not mixed up in a third in 1938.

Horse was taken out of Kentucky Derby because it had developed a high fever. Generally that trouble strikes the people who put their money on the horses.

Section of the Conservative party insists that there shall be a convention held in June, that being the month when people have grown accustomed to say they will love, honor and obey.

Uncle Sam is trying to stop the French campaign against buying American-made cars. Unfortunately for the attempt however Americans are likely to be reminded that their tariff is not exactly a boost for trade.

Premier King is reported as ready for an election on the issue of provincial autonomy. But if he goes to the country he will have to fight the Conservative-opposition and not the man who raised the issue, Premier Hepburn.

Someone started a complaint in Toronto about the Public Library Board hiring a florist. The latter turned out to be a gardener who looks after the lawns of all the libraries. and the incident is mentioned merely because it illustrates the readiness with which a section of the public will kick.

SANITARY?

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When I buy razor blades today, I tear the cellophane away, I don't know what it's for; perhaps it keeps the germs away, and fixes things so they will stay, more docile than before.

¶ When Angus comes in on the run, and says he's bought a stick of gum, I know it's just the same; before he starts to bite and chew, there's always one thing he must do, remove the cellophane.

¶ When I buy prunes down at the store, why I can sample them no more, my taste can't teach my brain; for they are wrapped in pounds for me, all I can do is look and see, squint through the cellophane.

¶ A Sunday shirt I needed too, the one I have it just won't do, for it is old and plain; the ones they show look fine enough, but I can't reach and feel the stuff, it's wrapped in cellophane.

¶ They say one's health gets good that way, for germs don't get a chance to play, the fat ones and the lean; and dust that's blowing off the street, can't park on things you're going to eat, it keeps them awful clean.

¶ But then when I go out to shop, I like to sample quite a lot, and then get what I please; with cellophane wrapped everywhere, I can't go picking here and there,—and try the prunes and cheese.

Farmer's Income Found To Be Low

(By Rusticus in Stratford Beacon-Herald)

THE NAME Sandy Fraser is well known to readers of the Farmer's Advocate, and many fine articles come from Sandy's pen. Just recently he wrote one entitled "The Margin of Profit". In this article, Sandy and the "meenister" discuss the farmer's annual income. The "meenister" questions Sandy regarding the truth of the statement that "the average Ontario farmer gets in a year for his labors on a hundred acre farm $362—not quite a dollar a day."

Often have we wondered just what the farmer's net income really is. Such matters as depreciation and assets on hand are not as easily figured on the average farm as they are in most other lines of business. For the purpose of this article we shall use Sandy Fraser's estimated figures. You see, Sandy and the Scotch meenister sat down with a wee scrap of paper and a fountain pen (it was the meenister's) and did a bit of "figgering". They put down a group of figures running like this:

Of course, there are those who will scoff at these figures. They probably handle twice that amount of money but, as Sandy points out, "the costs are likely to over gang the profits."

Stacked up against this income or, as the city bookkeeper would have it, on the debit side of the ledger are: Taxes $60, food supplies $200, clothes $150, upkeep of car $175, light $10, medicine $25, seeds $40, church $15, a total of $705, and the auld Scotchman was mighty well pleased that the two groups of figures, when balanced, left a profit of sixty-five dollars, with which, we suppose, the farmer might take in a Fall Fair or two each year.

If, as we have said, the estimated receipts were low, a good many gaps are left in the expenditures as well. What about education, newspapers, interest on mortgage? Frankly, we fear the picture is more nearly a true one than we like to admit. What difference if the figures are twice as much, so long as the profit balance is no greater?

DO THOSE figures explain why so many farmers are doing the best they can with the help available this Spring, when they know full well that they should be hiring another man? Do they explain why farm-raised boys are so anxious for a city job? Do they explain why probably 20 per cent. of rural Ontario is for sale today, and at prices that would pay for the buildings on the farms? They do.

The problem is, why are those figures as they are? Why should the average Ontario farmer have to be content with a bare living? We might answer that tariffs, union wages and what is generally referred to as social services which cause high taxes are the cause. But then, we might answer that perhaps the hundred-acre farm is not the profitable unit. Perhaps farmers might take a leaf from the pages of industry, with larger and ever larger units.

We do not believe that is the right way out. Is seems difficult to think of old Ontario, without its many rural homes passed down from one generation to another, and yet that is not possible in very many cases unless the farm situation picks up very much within the next few years.

"Sandy Fraser's" sixty-five dollars net income for the average farmer is just an estimate. Basically, it is nearer correct than we like to think. That ridiculous figure is going to have a tremendous influence on the future of agriculture, if it continues to be anywhere near the correct net income of the average hundred-acre farmer.

There was a time when we hoped that farm prices would return to a basis where the income might cover the overhead charges prevailing in modern agriculture. Today most are convinced that overhead expenses, such as implements and implement repairs, interest rates and even capital indebtedness must be reduced to meet present farm income. We don't like that idea. Who does? On the other hand, it is a certainty that there can be no prosperity, either in rural or urban centres, till the overhead and maintainance charges on the farm are reduced to a point that will allow more than sixty-five dollars as the net income of the average hundred-acre farm.

ON SHORT TIME.

(Welland Tribune)

AN ALARMING number of labor disputes and strikes in the United States is out of keeping with the economic situation there. The majority of the walkouts are at motor plants or at concerns making accessories for motor cars. That suggests a lack of intelligence on the part of employes of such industries since there is not much likelihood of the automobile factories being able to continue on full time this year in any event. The strikes may be to the benefit of the employers who are thus absolved of responsibility for a shutdown.

The situation draws attention to the tremendous producing power of industry because of modern labor-saving devices. It would require a tremendous volume of production to justify the mechanical installations of the present. Of course consuming capacity has been curtailed considerably ever since 1929 so that there has been no sustained test as to whether industry can keep its wheels turning to full capacity throughout the year and market its porducts. Even if conditions were entirely normal, there is a good deal of doubt as to whether full-time production of all factories could be consumed.

THE REACTION

(Toronto Globe and Mail)

The wild acclaim with which Hitler was received in Austria having died down, one is able to hear the pistol shots which announce that prominent Austrians have ended their own lives rather than face the prospect of Nazi rule.

BUT WHY?

"Yes, we're trying Holland this year, because for some reason or other Walter hates walking up hills."

—Humorist.

Obligations Go With Wealth.

(Kitchener Record)

IN A RECENT address to the Association of Canadian Garment Manufacturers, Hon. M. M. MacBride, Ontario's minister of labor, left substantial food for thought when he said:

"It is about time that you and I and all the business men realize that accumulation of material wealth is a pretty poor thing to make a life goal.

"The time has arrived to have some grave concern for all who are associated with you and who are dependent on your fortunes, good or bad.

"Let us get rid of the idea there is anything romantic about the piling up of wealth.

"Let us rather get the idea of an honest, efficient business which aims at a square deal for all who labor in industry.

"That idea will, in time, make Canada more prosperous than at any other time in her history."

These remarks, coming from the minister of labor, should arouse serious thought in the minds of those captains of industry whose sole aim in life is to accumulate money, not realizing, perhaps, that wealth brings obligations, which in these times of unemployment and consequent hardships, become even more exacting.

"Excessive wealth," declared an eminent philosopher, "is neither glory nor happiness. There is in a fortune a golden mean which is the appropriate region of virtue and intelligence. Be content with that; and if the horn of plenty overflow, let its droppings fall upon your felowmen; let them fall like the droppings of honey in the wilderness to cheer the faint and weary pilgrim."

The Beaver Is a Good Engineer.

(By John Gillese in Montreal Herald and Weekly Star)

BEAVERS ARE about the hardest to study of all our wild animals. To know them at all you must be keen at observing and deducting, for seldom, if ever, will you have a chance to watch the animals themselves. You see their work and the results of such work, and from that you draw your own conclusions.

I live near several beaver colonies and thus have an excellent opportunity to study the shy animals. The beaver is dark-brown in color, having a body shaped much like that of a modern automobile. Since the entrance to their den is about as large as the mouth of a rain barrel, you can form a good idea of their size. They have long sharp teeth, webbed hind feet, and powerful flat tails used to steer by and to give warning of danger.

If they happen to live in lakes they have plenty of water for their requirements, but if they dwell in rivers they are forced to build dams. The method of constructing these dams is very interesting and shows vividly the knowledge and wisdom of the little engineers. First, a wide and sandy (or clay) bottomed part of the river is chosen as site. Then the workers cut hundreds of small shrubs ranging in size from mere twigs to the thickness of a broom handle. These are stuck securely into the river bottom, butts first with the tops floating, and are kept in place by rocks, sods and mud. Forked branches are placed ahead of the floating tops to keep the water from carrying them downstream. Soon there is an intricate network at the water's edge to entagle and hold the brush in the centre of the stream. After this layer has stretched across the river, actual logs are floated down the stream, entwined with the brush and kept firmly in place by mud and rocks. This wall is raised to the height of four or five feet, and the resulting dam is often hundreds of feet long. Then, too, the bottom is lowered, passages and storehouses are tunnelled, so that in the centre of the dam the water is sometimes seven or eight feet deep.

Beneath the surface the beavers have a small village. When moving about, they do not swim any place they feel like, but follow regular courses that correspond to our streets. Their tunnels are always started under water so that enemies cannot locate them. They have storehouses that are packed before winter with food, and repair houses which contain supplies for the dam during the winter.

✧ ✧ ✧

BEAVERS ARE expert woodsmen. On bright nights two sentinels are placed on guard at either end of the dam; the rest set out for the forest. Here again a sentinel is stationed, and the others begin work. Choosing a tree one to two feet in diameter, two beavers start. Using their tails to balance them, they rise on their hind feet, gnawing away notches on either side of the trunk. So clever are they that they can fall a tree exactly where they want it. Sometimes, however, a young, inexperienced beaver may lodge his tree in the top of another. Is it left there? Not on your life! Either another tree is felled against it, or, if it is too securely wedged for this to loosen it, the tree on which it leans is felled.

After the first crash the workers scurry back to the water, in case a hungry enemy should come to investigate. After awhile they return, cut off the branches, divide the tree into suitable lengths and two the pieces to the river. Sometimes they build canals for this work, but generally they trust to their own strength to move the wood.

The beavers are just as industrious in their dam as in the woods. Both in summer and winter a daily inspection is carried out to make sure that there are no leaks in the dam. They are very clean animals and they hate to have fish, mink and such in their home, although they never interfere with their muskrat cousins. If you observe their runs in winter, you will notice air bubbles at regular intervals across the ice. As the beaver swims along he breathes these bubbles, thus maintaining his oxygen supply while in the water.

Like humans, beavers have various classes of society, their rank depending on their ability. No one does another's work. There can be no laziness or carelessness, because the safety of one depend on the safety of all.

The engineer are the most important, for the protection of the whole colony depends upon how well the dam is constructed. Once—only once—I saw an engineer at work. I had been duck hunting and was resting on an old fallen log when suddenly I saw a ripple cleave the water of the dam. The next moment I sighted the darkbrown head of the beaver moving swiftly towards the logs of the dam. Arriving, he peered cautiously around him for several moments, then he climbed up on the logs. Rising on his hind feet he gazed long and studiously at a leak in the structure, as if debating the best means of repairing it. Suddenly he dropped flat for a closer inspection. By this time my curiosity had reached such a pitch that I rose cautiously to get a better view. Crack! With a deafening slap of his mighty tail on the water, he vanished. I realized, though, that the only danger to their dam had brought the old fellow out in daylight.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

AND THE LORD GOD commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die. . . .

And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil. And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat. . . . Therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken.—Gen. ii, 16, 17; iii, 4-6, 23.

✧ ✧ ✧

But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.—II Cor. ii, 3.

✧ ✧ ✧

Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you.—James iv, 7.

JUMPING AT DEFINITIONS

"Now, let's assume you all like school," said the new teacher. "You know what it means, I suppose, to assume something?"

"Yes'm," cried a bright boy in the last row of seats; "that's to say something is so when you don't know a thing about it."

LAST WORD

"But," said the witness, "do you mean to say it's a crime to call a policeman an ass?"

"In the opinion of the Court," said the magistrate, "it is."

"Well, then," the witness asked, "would it be a crime to call an ass a policeman?"

"Well," the magistrate said, coughing discreetly, "er—hardly; no!"

When the witness was permitted to leave the court-room, he turned at the door and called pleasantly, "Good afternoon, policeman!"

STABILIZING FRANC IS HELD INFLATION CUE FOR BRITAIN

LONDON, May 6—(CP Cable). — Inflation in Great Britain will inevitably follow the decision of the French Government in stabilizing the franc, says the Daily Express (Independent) today in commenting on Premier Edouard Daladier's announcement.

The British people, the paper says, will wish the French good luck in their efforts to stabilize their currency and adds: "Inflation must follow here as it has followed on the heels of unbalanced budgets in America and France. Don't shut your eyes to that fact, whether you like it or not!"

While government spokesmen were not disposed to comment, the reaction in financial circles and in the few papers commenting editorially was generally favorable. The feeling in the City is that Premier Daladier's policy will facilitate the return of capital to France and the raising of large internal loans for rearmament, which would be equally welcomed in Britain as in France.

From London's point of view the repatriation of French fugitive money is long overdue, as it has always been regarded as "bad money" and a source of weakness.

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) says Premier Daladier now has a brief but golden opportunity to lay the foundations of permanent recovery. "Yesterday's decision suggests he is grasping it with courage and resolution," the paper adds.

Will Restore Confidence.

Lauding the decision, the Yorkshire Post (Conservative) declares the fresh devaluation will presumably enable the French Government once again to revalue the country's gold stock and obtain an operative fund from that source, and adds:

"Whether it will also secure restoration of confidence in the stability of the franc and the consequent return of French capital from abroad is a question which may not immediately be forthcoming."

The Daily Mail (Independent) says all friends of France will hope Premier Daladier by bold measures will be able to restore the internal security of the country. The paper attributes the condition of the unsteady franc to differences between capital and labor which must be adjusted.

"Expert financial opinion in this country inclines to the view that stabilization will be only a palliative and not a cure," the Mail comments.

Chinese War Has Cost U.S. 150 Millions

New York, May 6 (CP)

THE UNITED STATES has suffered a direct loss of more than $150,000,000 during the ten months of the Sino-Japanese war, on the basis of damage to United States property in China, curtailed trade and the depreciation of investments in the Orient, according to a report of the Exports Managers' Club of New York.

YOUTH CLEARED IN ABDUCTION

WINDSOR, Ont., May 6—(CP).—Alex Whitely, 17-year-old Toronto lad was freed today of a charge of abducting a 14-year-old Amherstburg girl. After hearing prosecution evidence, Magistrate Arthur Hanrahan ruled it did not constitute a case. The action, brought by the girl's father, was dismissed.

Magistrate Hanrahan said he was convinced the lad had not offered the girl an inducement to go with him on a hitch hiking tour to the Niagara Peninsula, but on the contrary, had advised her against it.

Court was told the pair left Amherstburg April 20 and were picked up by the Welland police April 26. The girl said she was on her way to visit her mother and younger brothers, who live at Port Dalhousie. The girl said she met Whitely at the home of a girl friend in Amherstburg and, having been thinking of leaving home, suggested she accompany him.

FILM CITY BOILS AT RAP ON STARS

HOLLYWOOD, May 6 —(AP). — Charge of a group of film exhibitors that a group of top-flight motion picture stars aren't worth their huge-salaried keep stirred up a hornet's nest in the film city today.

Screen actors, especially those whose names were mentioned, did not, naturally, comment on the advertisement which touched off the squabble.

The ad, by the Independent Theatre Owners' Association of New York, ran in a Hollywood trade paper. It began: "We want the Myrna Loys, the Gary Coopers, the Sonja Henies, but we want them when we get value, not when they drive people away from the box office."

The advertisement went on to give capsule criticisms of the drawing powers of various big movie names, among them Greta Garbo, Katharine Hepburn, Marlene Dietrich, and Kay Francis.

Consider Legal Action

A spokesman for the Artist Managers' Guild, M.C. Levee, struck back. "Contracts are being made for the purpose of determining whether or not any legal action will be taken," he said, "but based upon the wave of resentment from other exhibitors throughout the nation and upon opinions expressed in responsible circles it is pretty well concluded now that the ad in question is the result of a group of brain-fagged individuals trying to pick a fuss where none either exists or belongs."

The advertisement asserted that producers "Are now, or soon will be, concentrating on the making of good pictures, not merely surrounding a $5,000-a-week star with any sort of vehicle."

Harry Cohn, president of Columbia pictures, who has signed Miss Dietrich for a film, answered with a statement on the vagaries of the box-office.

"Many of the so-called waning stars have bounded back into top-flight appeal as the result of one excellent picture," Cohn said.

The Diva broke off her singing in the first act, throwing up her hands and exclaiming "I can't go on."

LINDSAY SHELVES COLLEGIATE WING

LINDSAY, May 6.—Constable J. Simnett, of the local police, left for Windsor yesterday, and will return with Russell Burdick, a native of that city, who is wanted here for armed robbery. The youth was employed as a farm hand in Downeyville and several weeks ago, it is alleged, he held up Miss Ruth Curry, of Lindsay, with a revolver, which was the property of his employer, and relieved her of her purse after she had alighted from the Toronto bus. Reply to criticism directed by the Toronto Synod of the Church of England in asking shorter hours of sale and fewer selling places in a resolution yesterday, Mr. Odette said the hours of sale were "in the hands of the municipalities themselves—if any municipal council asks for an earlier closing hour, it can have it."

ITALIANS PARADE CREAM OF ARMY TO DAZZLE HITLER

ROME, May 6—(AP)—Italy's land power was marshaled for the eyes of Chancellor Adolf Hitler and the world today as the cream of the nation's fighting forces mustered for a gigantic military review along the avenue of triumph.

More than 30,000 men were assembled for a three-hour display of fascist battle strength. Approximately 2,500 horses, 600 motor cars and 320 motorcycles were in the lineup.

Distinguishing the spectacle was the display of 400 tanks, 200 heavy cannon and 400 light field guns as well as colorful Libyan regiments of cavalry and infantry.

A special stand was built for Hitler to see the review, in company with King Vittorio Emanuele and Queen Elena.

It was the second of four great war shows arranged in the honor of the man who rearmed Germany. A sham battle and a mammoth aerial circus were yet on the program. Yesterday the Fuehrer witnessed the manoeuvring, with war-like precision, of Premier Mussolini's naval forces at Naples.

The spectacle caused conjecture whether Hitler would return to Berlin determined to build a war fleet on his own, though he has heretofore avoided naval rivalry with Great Britain by signing a treaty to limit Germany's navy tonnage to 35 per cent. of Great Britain's.

Duce, Hitler Real Charming

On the bridge of the Conte di Cavour, Hitler and Il Duce continued the exchange of views which might determine much of Europe's future. Observers said they were impressed by the intimate comradeship that prevailed between the two men.

It was believed Hitler again had assured Mussolini that his purpose of uniting all Germans in one Reich would not apply to Germans in Italy.

Diplomats recalled that both Italy and France in the recenly initiated friendship conversations paralleling the Anglo-Italian agreement had said they expected to complete preliminary negotiations before Hitler's visit, and said there was no doubt Hitler had brought about a delay.

They looked for the course these negotiations henceforth would pursue to be an indication of the understanding reached during this visit of Hitler to Rome.

BORROWING EXPERIENCES
Typical of the many ways in which the Bank is able to render assistance to customers is the following experience from our records.
He drove a milk route:
This young man knew his milk business—from the driver's seat. He was making $20 a month and his board. He was industrious, business-like and ambitious. An opportunity came to purchase the milk route from his employer at a fair price. He consulted the nearest branch manager of the Bank, and borrowed the money he needed, being able to furnish satisfactory security for the loan. His first objective was to repay the loan, which was promptly accomplished; then he just kept on managing that milk route—and with profitable success.

ROOKIE HURLERS STEAL AMERICAN BALL CIRCUIT SPOTLIGHT

Leonard, Beggs, Poffenberger Crash Sports Headlines

Fellers, Ruffings And Gomezes Heralded Pitching Stars Must Remain In Background

NEW YORK, May 6.—A little soft music to-day, professor, and a strong spotlight for four American league boys from the back row — Emil Leonard, Joe Beggs, Cletus Poffenberger and Bill Dietrich. Never heard of some of 'em, have you?

Well, for this day anyway the Bob Fellers, Red Ruffings, Mel Harders, Lefty Gomezs and other heralded pitching stalwarts of the American league must remain in the background while Leonard, Beggs, Poffenberger and Dietrich take a bow for four brilliantly pitched games.

First, there's Leonard, 28-year-old righthander from Auburn, Ill., who pitched Washington to a 13-inning triumph over Cleveland, 1-0. The knuckle-ball expert who came up from Atlanta after once failing to make the grade at Brooklyn, of all places, let the Indians down with six singles, fanned five and had perfect control.

Then, Joe Beggs, 24-year-old right-hander from Aliquippa, Pa., who pitched the New York Yankees into second place with a 3-2 triumph over the St. Louis Browns. He allowed only seven hits, fanned one and did not issue a pass. A slender 6-footer, Beggs, who came up from Newark, once had aspirations to be a javelin thrower when he attended Geneva college.

"Poffy" Tames Red Sox

And next Cletus (Boots) Poffenberger, stocky, chesty, 22-year-old right-hander, who pitched the Detroit Tigers out of the cellar with a 4-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox. He allowed only six hits, struck out two men, and walked one. Poffenberger is the lad who continually tells Mickey Cochrane: "Let me pitch against the tough clubs. I don't like to waste my stuff on the push overs." He's out of Charleston, W. Va., and came up from Beaumont last mid-season.

And finally Bill Dietrich, the bespectacled Chicago White Sox right-hander who can't see across the room without his glasses, completes this quartet by virtue of his five-hit, 4-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics. Bill isn't often right, but when he is he's tough, as witness his no-hit, no-run game performances last season. He walked four and fanned none.

Give 'em a hand fans.

Bill Dickey's homer after Joe DiMaggio's double gave the Yankees their winning tallies against the Browns. Taft Wright's fly with the bases loaded enabled Zeke Bonura to score Washington's winning run. Bob Feller, who retired as a precaution against injuring his arm in the eleventh, allowed only three hits, but walked nine and fanned eight. Zuber, who relieved him, was the loser. The Tigers shelled two Red Sox pitchers for 16 hits, including three each by Greenberg and Tebbetts. Steinbacher's triple and Gerald Walker's single were the big blows in the White Sox winning rally.

Fighting uphill behind Carl Hubbell's stout pitching the New York Giants collared the Cincinnati Reds in the eighth to win, 3-2. Johnny McCarthy's single drove in Jimmy Ripple with the winning run. Ripple had a perfect day, "4 for 4." It was Hubbell's third straight win.

Claude Passeau, an old Cub jinx, pitched the Phillies to a 6-4 victory over Chicago, with a little relief help from Kelleher in the eighth and ninth innings. Bill Atwood hit a homer with one on.

Pittsburgh snapped a five-game losing streak with a 9-5 victory over Brooklyn. Russ Bauers and Joe Bowman held the Dodgers to three hits. Bauers was taken out in the fifth because of wildness. Lloyd Waner got two triples, a homer and a single for a perfect day at bat and drove in five runs.

The Boston Bees staged a 2-run rally in the fifth off Lefty Lainer to tie the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-3, and then rain halted the game. Joe Medwick hit homer No. 2.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press.)

Johnathan Stone, Senators—Hit homer with bases loaded in 8-6 win over Indians.

Joe DiMaggio, Yankees — His homer, triple, and single drove in four runs in 12-10 win over the Browns.

Al Epperly, Cubs — Stopped Phillies with six hits for 21-2 win in major league starting debut.

Rudy York, Tigers— Walloped two homers, good for three runs to beat Red Sox 7-5.

Ray Benge, Reds — Rushed in as relief pitcher with bases loaded and two balls and no strikes on batter in tight ball game, he fanned Lou Chiozza to save 5-2 win over Giants.

BRUEN LOOMS AS CUP HOPE

ST. ANREW'S, Scotland, May 6.—(AP). — Jim Bruen, big, plump youngster who won't be 18 until Sunday, loomed today as Great Britain's new Walker Cup golf hope.

Quitting school to get ready for cup play, this young Irishman posted rounds of 68-71, five under par, yesterday as a squad of 24 began two days of trials designed to help the Royal and Ancient Club in selecting the cup team that will face the United States June 3-4.

Bruen's 68 equalled Bobby Jones's record for St. Andrews's Old Course. The only difference in his morning and afternoon play came on the greens. He sank putts of 45 and 80 feet in the first round but three-putted four greens in the afternoon.

The squad went out in threesomes, each man playing 36 holes against the other two in his group. Bruen was nine up on J. E. Gent and eight upon Andy Dowie when the day's firing was over.

"He's definitely Walker Cup stuff," said Henry Cotton, British open champion, after following him around the course.

Bruen has an excellent record. A native of Belfast, he won the British boys' championship in 1936, holds the Irish closed amateur title, and was low amateur in the 1937 Irish open.

A vote of thanks to last year's officers was passed, and Mr. Anderson spoke briefly on baseball as played in this league.

KILLING OFF TURTLES

STRATFORD, Ont., May 6 (CP)—First result of a drive against turtles, who have been killing hundreds of trout in Sutherland's pond, southeast of here, was the shooting by Wilfred Lowe, Vancouver, of a 26-pound, 37-inch long snapping turtle. The animal was about 60 years old.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

WHILE the Men's City Softball League is decidedly in the doldrums this season, despite having use of a swelegant new diamond at the Ashburnham Bowl, things are fairly booming in the Southend Softball League. Which makes one wonder a bit. Why is this so? The no-advertising angle hit the uptown circuit to some extent inasmuch as a couple of squads would have entered teams this year but they wanted it on an advertising basis—using trade names. However, that isn't the real reason for the slump in softball, else it would be felt in other local leagues. Things are humming in the big eight-team Southend League (they were afraid it would get too unwieldly) and there are all kinds of entries in church, school and shop loops. But the O.A.S.A. setup is quite shaky.

* * * * * * *

LET US LOOK at the Southend League entry list. Teams in are: Keene, DeLaval, Cardinals, Hawks, Maple Leafs, Cogs, Quaker Oats and Nationals. The two factory squads, DeLaval and Quakers, could have jumped into the city loop had they wished to, but evidently they preferred not. Keene, like Omemee, might have applied for entry into the uptown loop but didn't seem interested. And then look at all these teams—which are organized strictly as sports squads rather than as advertising organs: Cardinals, Hawks, Maple Leafs, Cogs and Nationals. Yet there is a heck of a lot of work to dig up even two uptown teams for O.A.S.A. with neutral names.

* * * * * * *

WE HAVE been informed by guys connected with the Southend League that there is always a packed team in the City League and no other club has a chance. An official of the C.G.E. Shop Softball League told us a few days ago that they didn't like the financial setup when they were represented in the City Loop before and would not enter again. Westclox chaps, who won the title last year, say it cost them too much in playdowns, and they're not back this season. More than one prospective sponsor states it runs into real money to equip a team in organized softball these days, especially as some of the star players want the best of everything. These are a few of the reasons why we figure teams would rather organize on a somewhat sketchy basis and enter an independent local league where expenses are quite low and there is plenty of competition, and fairly even, than to try the older O.A.S.A. circuit.

* * * * * * *

SOME of th officers of the Men's City Softbal lLeague will give us an argument on that, but we're only quoting managers of other teams. And we can always point to a big southend League with a flock of strictly sports teams, and ask why aren't these teams playing organized softball? Evidently they prefer to play in that league on a much poorer diamond than the City Loop squads have and before slimmer crowds. We wonder if Bill Smith of Toronto, O.B.A. life member, didn't have hold of something when he wrote Max Swanston recently re the C.O.B.L. saying: "Sports are finally finding out that commercialism does more harm to sports than good." No doubt, commercial companies can help athletics but the games' officials must not come to lean too heavily upon them. Look how that mercantile loop in Toronto ruined the senior O.H.A. setup.

* * * * * * *

IT IS QUITE a knotty problem, this matter of a slump in O.A.S.A. softball here, so we'll give it another paragraph. Bill Walshe of Kingston thinks expensive equipment is killing the game, pointing out that the beauty of softball was that it could be played cheaply and on smaller fields than baseball. With older chaps able to play. Nowadays, few veterans can click in the fast company of packed O.A.S.A. teams. (Which may be why the Southend Loop is flourishing, too.) He quotes this from a Toronto sheet: "The six teams presented a colorful picture in their flashy softball ensembles, two creating quite a sensation with gold and blue and white satin jerseys and windbreakers, not to mention the hose, pants and caps." That sounds like dough. Our only advice is for the City Softball League to go back a bit and start building up properly again. Do as the Southend Loop is doing now.

KNOX SENIORS opened the Church Softball League season at the Oval last night with a 5-2 nod over All Saints. Hon. President Rev. C. M. Parr, Prexy Len Agnew and Dave Leether of the O.A.S.A. took part in the opening ceremony. A nice snappy start it was, too. Senior games early next week are: Monday, George St. Buzzers vs. Mark St. at the Oval with umps from Knox and All Saints; Tuesday, George St. Majors vs. Murray St. at the Oval. George St. squads are called the Buzzers and Majors now, the team managed by Lloyd Parnall being the Buzzers, while Manager Ron Payne's crew are the Majors. Executive last night decided to allow members of last year's junior O.A.S.A. City Loop outfit to play in the Church League. Several juvenile and bantam games will be played early next week, also.

* * * * * * *

WE WILL HAVE a junior team in the Lakeshore Junior Baseball League this year. Herb Ralph attending the loop organization session in Port Hope last e'en. Clubs in are Peterborough, Bowmanville, Cobourg and Oshawa, and they'll play a double schedule, starting May 24th. Second and third teams playoff two in three, and ditto the finals. Next meeting for schedule, etc., will be May 19th in Port Hope. Officers elected were: Prexy, Walter Branch of Oshawa; vice-president, J. W. Anderson of Peterborough; secretary-treasurer, Cliff Samis of Bowmanville; executive, Russ Kitchen of Peterborough, J. W. Burtt of Cobourg, Chas. Matthews of Oshawa, and Sid Little of Bowmanville. Entry fee is five bucks and twilight games start at 6.30 with afternoon sessions at 3.30.

BUZZ BENNETT of the Oshawa GM-men has packed his kit after one year in the Motor City and headed north to Timmins. Bennett came from Western Ontario and, enroute to Napaene, was derailed in Oshawa. Played a good game back of the bat, being a steady receiver and timely hitter. Since the GM-men have no imports (for a change) this year, they may run into a spot of trouble lining up a capable receiver to hold up Biddle. However, they have a fine junior graduate in Danny Normoyle, who should make good, and a capable catcher in Dick Mitchell, the Cobourg chatterer. So we won't weep into our schnapps yet awhile for the twice-C.O.B.L. champs.

Golf Facts

Very often your clubs will get marked through rough handling. The shafts or heads will be scratched so that bright spots appear. These spots, as well as any bright paint that might be on the club, will more than likely catch your eye and take your mind off the ball when you play in the sun.

You eye invariably takes in the brightest object. This happens automatically without any conscious effort or help on your part. Once your attention is taken away from the ball, there is little chance that you will get even a fair result with any shot. You should take your clubs to your pro and have him see that all such marks are darkened with stain or whatever he suggests for the job. Also, have the bright paint darkened.

The whole idea is much the same as is carried out with gun-barrels. You don't see rifles made with bright objects that might take you eye off the sights or target. And if there is any doubt remaining in your mind, ask the pro to show you his clubs. He may have a brand new set or his clubs may all be relics, but there is one thing you can be sure of, and that is the absence of bright spots that might take his eye.

The bottom of the clubhead doesn't matter, it is only those surfaces that you can see as you stand over the ball.

GREAT HORSES DIFFER MUCH IN HANDLING

NEW YORK, May 6.—War Admiral and Seabiscuit, training at Belmont Park for their $100,000 match race May 30, are a couple of equally beautiful steed, but their similarity ends at about that point.

The Admiral, pride of the United States East, was brought out first to pose for photographers. He bucked and reared and tossed his saddle off twice before they finally got him settled down. Even then he jerked his head and started intently when a train whistled two miles away.

The Biscuit sauntered up as though he owned the place, and after Jockey Red Pollard climbed on his back he struck a pose and held it for five minutes. He didn't ripple a muscle when the movie machine began whirring almost in his face.

That's why the War Admiral camp is trying to get the conditions of the big race altered to permit a walking start. They are down now to start from stall gates, and the Admiral doesn't like that sort of confinement. The Biscuit, on the other hand, wouldn't care if they started him from a coal chute.

Trainer Charley Conway and Charley Kurtsinger, who will ride the Admiral in the great race, seemed irked at all the comment on their horse's skittich behavior. "Don't worry about that," said Kurtsinger. "As soon as he starts running he's the easiest horse in the world to handle. All he wants to do is to get out there in front and go. That's what we'll do in the race, too." "He's just a lively horse," said Trainer Conway, fondly.

Like most men who spend their lives around horses, Tom Smith, trainer of the Biscuit, says almost nothing. Asked how he thought the race was going to come out, he thought a long time. "Yeah, I know it's going to come out, all right, but I wouldn't tell even my best friend," he said finally.

Boston Fans See First Fist Fight In Eighteen Years

Chapman and Tebbetts Tangle As Tigers Triumph Over Sox 7-5

BOSTON, May 6 (AP).—The first fistic outbreak a Fenway Park baseball crowd has witnessed in eighteen years incited Detroit Tigers to come from behind and defeat the Red Sox 7-5 yesterday in the series' finale.

After the Sockers pounded over four runs against Vernon Kennedy in the fifth, fiery Ben Chapman took a third strike. When he questioned Umpire Joe Rue's judgment, George Tebbetts, Detroit catcher, taunted him. The players then engaged in a heated verbal exchange, during which Chapman challenged Tebbetts. The latter ripped off his mask and grappled with Chapman. Umpires separated them and expelled both.

The quartet of Boston runs resulted from Jimmy Foxx's fourth homer of the season, a 450-foot drive over the left field wall with two on, Doc Cramer's triple, Joe Cronin's double, singles by Joe Vosmik and Pinky Higgins and Kennedy's wild pitch.

The Tigers tied it up in the seventh when Fritz Ostermueller gave them a pass, a sacrifice and a single, and pulled ahead in the eighth after Greenberg singled ahead of York, who blasted his second homer of the game over the left field fence.

The Yankees wheeled their siege guns into line yesterday and exploded 16 hits for 29 bases and a 12-to-10 victory over St. Louis Browns, to sweep the current three-game series.

Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich each hit his third homer of the season. DiMaggio also collected a triple and a single and drove in four runs. Billy Knickerbocker connected for a triple, double and single off his old mates and batted three runs across.

It was the Yankees' biggest run-making spree of the season, and give them their fourth straight win.

Frank Gabler, former International League hurler, made a successful debut in the American League ranks yesterday with a seven-hit mound performance as Chicago White Sox hammered three Philadelphia Athletics' pitchers for 17 hits and a 10-to-4 victory.

Boze Berger hit the first pitch of the game for a home run and added three more safeties to pace the winners' attack. Gee Walker hit one into the left-field stands with Berger and Steinbacher on base in the third to tie the score at 4 to 4

The White Sox added two more runs after Walker's homer in the third to clinch the victory.

Johnny Stone banged out a home run with the bases loaded yesterday as the Senators beat Cleveland Indians, 8 to 6.

The victory gave Washington the series, two games to one.

Washington drove Mel Harder out of the box in the fifth and continued to pound three more Indian hurlers for a total of 15 hits. Zeke Bonura got three of the Senators' blows, and Rookie George Case whacked out a couple.

Unable to score during the first five innings, Cleveland got three runs in the sixth, another in the eighth, and two in the ninth. The tying runs were on base when Ken Keltner was called out on strikes to end the game.

Hogsett gave up seven hits, and got credit for the win. Harder was the losing pitcher. Cleveland gathered six hits off Kohlman and Appleton.

Sportsmen Protest Arrest Of Von Cramm

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6 (AP).—A group of California sportsmen, including world amateur tennis champ, Don Budge, and Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yanks, today demanded immediate release of Baron von Cramm, Germany's No. 1 net star, from a Nazi concentration camp.

Van Cramm was arrested several weeks ago, supposedly on a morals charge, but the accusation has not been fully explained. The sportsmen in a letter criticized the "dark secrecy" of Nazi officials and asserted the charges were "mere subterfuges."

Others who signed the letter include Bill Johnston, the Sidney Woods, Jr., and Sr., and Bill Doeg, all well-known tennis players, and William Fuller, tennis coach for Helen Wills Moody, and Helen Jacobs.

LEAFS DEFEAT JERSEY CITY 5-0 IN FIRST TORONTO GAME

MONTREAL COPS 5 TO 3 VICTORY IN FIRST GAME

TORONTO, May 6 (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs, who started like a house afire last year and then folded like an accordian, are working it in reverse this season. In 1937 Dan Howley's young men won their first seven games in a row but this season the Leafs dropped four games, three of them extra inning tilts, before bagging their first victory over Newark. They then lost two more to Baltimore a week ago but haven't been beaten since.

They carried a three-game winning streak into their own park yesterday after two weeks on the road and cheered an opening day crowd of 13,000 by blanking Jersey City Giants 5-0. The defeat sent the Little Giants down to third place as Buffalo Bisons, who also opened their home season, walloped the league-leading Newark Bears 12-9 before a banner turnout of 16,000 and moved into second.

Montreal Royals also came through triumphantly in their inaugural by a 5-3 score before 5,000 but Rochester Red Wings, the fourth northern club to make its first home stand, took a 10-4 licking from Baltimore Orioles as 11,100 customers looked on.

Use 3 Leaf Pitchers

Three Toronto pitchers combined to whitewash the Giants with three hits. Earl Caldwell started but was forced to leave the game at the end of the third inning after being spiked by George Myatt in a close play at first base. He allowed but one single and John Berly, who received credit for the win, gave two more one-baggers before being lifted in the seventh because of wildness. Mike Meola stepped the invaders in the next two frames.

The Bisons rammed out three homers that accounted for seven runs in stopping the Bears. Ollie Carnegie, Smoky Joe Martin and Johnny Tyler clouted for the circuit to more than overcome Buddy Rosar's bass-cleaning homer in the third inning. Rosar later suffered a split finger on a foul tip and will do no catching for at least a week.

Phil Weintraub duplicated Rosar's stunt in a big seven run rally for the Orioles that ruined the Red Wings and the veteran Royal southpaw Harry Smythe halted the Syracusans with eight hits to score his third victory of the season.

KNOX CHURCH NINE WINS FIRST GAME SOFTBALL SEASON

The Church Softball League season was opened last evening at Nicholls Oval with Knox Seniors, last year's champions, copping a 5-2 win over All Saints. It was a first-rate, snappy dish, run off in 50 minutes, the winners having an edge in pitching and fielding. Rev. M. C. Parr, honorary president of the league, officially opened the schedule with a brief and interesting speech. He commended the sport shown in last year's games and made some suggestions regarding this season. He pitched the first ball with President Len Agnew catching and Dave Leether of the O.A.S.A. at bat.

All Saints started strong with three hitters banging in a pair of runs. Sandy Wedlock, speedy Knox hurler, held them safely from then on with neat flinging as he fanned six. Bus McDougall, All Saints' southpaw, went well till the fourth when Knox got three runs, his support being shaky. McKinley and A. Wedlock had two hits each for Knox with Livingstone collecting a single and double for the Anglicans. Both third basemen looked good in the field and Smith and Charlton roped in fine catches. The teams:

Knox — Gatfield, 2b; W. Wedlock, 1b; McDonald, cf; Allen, rf; McKinley, 3b; Watson, ss; Masters, c; Charlton, rf, lf; Copping, lf, cf; A. Wedlock, p.

Score by innings:

All Saints	2	0	0	0	0	—	2	6	5
Knox	0	1	0	3	1	x	—	5	9	3

Umpires—L. Agnew and L. Parnall.

Chicago Cubs Beat Phillies 12-2 To Gain On Giantmen

Cincinnati Reds Take 5-2 Decision From Rampaging Terrymen

CHICAGO, May 6.—(AP)—Chicago Cubs presented Rookie Paul Epperly with twelve runs in the eighth inning yesterday, but the 20-year-old pitcher up from Moline of the Three Eye League did not need them to defeat Philadelphia Phillies 21 to 2 in his major league debut.

Epperly held the Phils to six hits while Rip Collins and Augie Galan blasted out the Cubs's nineteenth and twentieth home runs as part of the eighteen-hit assault on Wayne La Master, Tommy Reis, Pete Sivess anod Harold Kelleher. La Master was charged with the defeat, although he pitched but three balls and a strike to the first batter, Stan Hack, before retiring with a strained arm.

The Cubs' twelve runs in one inning bettered the season's previous major league high of ten established by Cleveland against Detroit Monday.

Cards Lose 5-2

Boston Bees swarmed on Rookie Max Macon and veteran Guy Bush for nine hits, one a homer, in the fifth and sixth innings yesterday, to take the final game of their first series of the season with St. Louis Cardinals 5 to 2.

The game started as a pitcher's battle between the young Macon and 32-year-old Milburn Shoffner. The first four innings were scoreless and hits were few. Then in the fifth four hits and a walk gave the Bees three runs. The spree was climaxed by Cooney's double.

The Pirates came to life in a big sixth inning yesterday, shoved over three runs on four hits, and whipped Brooklyn Dodgers 4 to 2 behind Red Lucas's five-hit pitching.

Except for that frame, old Waite Hoyt held his former mates in check. They made only three hits outside of that one inning. Going into the last of the sixth, he held a 2 to 1 edge on the strength of Dolph Camilli's homer with a mate aboard in the first half of the frame.

Reds Beat Giants

Cincinnati Reds took a 5 to 2 decision from New York Giants yesterday and thereby handed the National League champions their first series setback of the year. Today's win gave the Reds the set, two games to one.

Mel Ott's wild peg past first in a tight spot in the eighth inning let the Giants' defenses down enough to permit the Reds to shove three runs across, break a tie, and give Jim Weaver and Ray Benge the decision over Harry Gumbert, who went the route for Terry's Terriers.

The hero was Benge, who was summoned in the eighth when Weaver found himself on a spot with Giants on every base and two balls and no strikes on Lou Chiozza at the plate. Benge took over and fanned Lou to stop the Giants' last threat.

A single and a walk put runners on first and second for the Reds in the eighth with two out. McCormick beat out a slow roller to Ott, and the third-sacker, in trying for the put-out at first, threw wild for a two-base error. Two runs trotted across, and the third came in a moment later on Harry Craft's single.

FISTS ARE FLUNG 'IN LONDON GAME

LONDON, May 6 (CP Cable). — Two fist fights and flashes of brilliant play last night enlivened an otherwise tame hockey game as Montreal Canadiens defeated Detroit Red Wings, 6-3, at Earlscourt Rink. A crowd of 8,500 saw the professionals resume their English series after playing three games at Paris, where Canadiens won two and lost one. The next game will be at Brighton, May 7.

Johnny Gagnon and Toe Blake of Canadiens; Ebbie Goodfellow and Carl Liscombe of Detroit each drew five-minute penalties for fighting, while Hec Kilrea of Detroit received a similar banishment for arguing with the referee.

Paul Haynes's two goals in the third period put Canadiens ahead to stay. Pete Lepine also scored two, and Gagnon and Blake netted one each. The Detroit scorers were Eddie Wares, Marty Barry and Mud Bruneteau. Altogether, since reaching this side, Canadiens have won four games, lost one and tied the other.

Fighting Fox And Bull Lea Replace Stagehand As Kentucky Favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6 (AP).—Having survived the unexpected loss of its highly regarded winter book favorite, the Kentucky Derby will be run tomorrow for the 63rd time since Artistides, the little red horse, romped home a winner in 1875, with prospects of an east-west duel for the $50,000 pot of gold.

Fighting Fox, racing for William Woodward, New York banker, and Bull Lea, foaled in the blue grass but owned by Warren Wright of Chicago, were established the strong choices today as Trainer Earl Sande joined with Owner Maxwell Howard in declaring the ailing Stagehand definitely out of the three-year-old classic.

Stagehand, held as short as 5 to 2 in the future books following his victory over Seabiscuit in the Santa Anita Handicap, apparently was well on his way to recovery from a fever but Sande said he was taking no chances.

Most of the followers of Stagehand quickly jumped on the band wagons of the Fox and Bull Lea. A few, however, stuck with Sande, holding to the belief the popular little trainer still has a powerful threat in the Chief, winner of the mile trial stakes on Tuesday in track-record-equalling time.

New Car For Speed Record Attempt

You just have to be fast if you're a Cobb. Once a byword for speed on the basepaths of the major league diamonds, the name is now becoming a byword for speed . . . just plain speed. John Cobb (in cockpit in centre) plans an attempt on the automobile speed record in August over the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah. His car will be the one shown, designed by Reid Railton in England, and weighing 7,000 pounds. It has two 1,250 horsepower broad arrow type super-charged engines and the lines of the body are only broken by the covers of the tires and the cockpit.

of the Ontario annual meeting.

Not having heard from any of these gentlemen in the meantime, I feel impelled to make a statement myself. I am first vice-president of the Ontario Conservative Association and am responsible to the Conservatives of this Province who elected me.

"Upset and Dissatisfied."

They are entitled to know what plans have been made for the reorganization of the party throughout the Province. I find that Conservatives generally are upset and dissatisfied. Through loyalty to my colleagues, I have remained silent although importuned on every hand to make my personal position clear.

In fairness to Conservatives generally, I make the following statement, which I hope will prove informative, and I will vouch for the accuracy of the facts.

Mr. Argue Martin, K.C., of Hamilton, treasurer of the Ontario Conservative Association, while passing through Lindsay to-day has read this statement and fully approves all the contents.

The last annual meeting of the Ontario Conservative Association was held at the Royal York on the 27th day of May, 1936, being the day immediately before the convention. At that time, the present executive, including Mr. Martin and myself, were elected for a three-year term, the constitution providing that an annual meeting be held in each intervening year for organization purposes.

Temporary Affair.

On the 15th day of July, 1936, the executive gave Hon. Mr. Rowe, as leader, authority to set up a separate campaign organization, which he did. Later on I became a member of this organization, but in fairness to the executive of the Ontario Conservative Association, I think it should be stated that insofar as responsibility for our party's failure on October 6, 1937, is concerned, it should be exonerated, as it ceased to effectually function from the 15th day of July, 1936, and except for one meeting, did not meet until after our defeat in October, 1937.

Immediately after the election, the campaign organization, which was only a temporary affair, dissolved and party reorganization once more became the responsibility of the Leader and the Ontario Association. Accordingly, a meeting of the executive took place on the 29th day of November, 1937, and decided to commence the active reorganization of the Conservative Party in this Province. The executive decided that such reorganization must commence with the Ontario Provincial Association itself and the members of the executive decided unanimously to forego the balance of the three-year period to which they were elected, and to call an annual meeting early in the spring of 1938, and in the meantime to draft a new constitution, democratic in spirit and workable in practice and to present it to such annual meeting.

Committee Appointed.

A drafting committee was appointed and prominent Conservatives throughout the Province were invited to become members thereof, and this drafting committee met from time to time throughout the winter, consulted by mail every riding association in the Province and finally, on March 26, 1938, the drafting committee completed its work and settled unanimously on the terms of a new constitution, to be presented to an annual meeting of Conservatives as soon as same might be called.

On April 2, 1938, the Executive Committee met and received the draft report and settled on May 28 as the date for the general meeting at which the draft constitution would be presented and considered and if carried, new officers would thereupon be elected.

We felt the need of such a meeting to be imperative not only for the reasons above outline, but to provide a means whereby other issues which have been disturbing Conservatives generally might be clarified.

On April 12 I received a telephone call from Mr. Ireland, who had just returned from a National Committee meeting in Ottawa, and he stated that pressure had been exerted upon him in Ottawa to persuade the Ontario Executive to adjourn the general meeting until after the Ottawa convention.

Letter From MacNicol

I disagreed with this suggestion and urged that the general meeting proceed. Later in the same day I telephoned Mr. Ireland to make my position even more emphatic.

The following day I received a letter from Mr. John R. MacNicol, M.P., on the same subject, and I wrote to him under the date of April 14, again expressing my dissent. An executive meeting was then held in Toronto on Saturday afternoon, April 16.

Mr. Ireland and Mr. MacNicol explained that the Federal Leader felt that the importance of the national convention transcended matters of provincial organization and that a large meeting on May 28, would militate against the success of the national convention to be held in July.

Mr. Argue Martin, K.C., and I took the position that, while we wished to respect the Federal leader's wishes and were willing to cooperate in every possible way, that since the annual general meeting had been called for May 28, same could not be postponed without exposing the party to serious risks.

Meeting Postponed

We felt that the motive for postponement would be generally misunderstood. We felt, moreover, that there are many indications that a Federal general election may be held this fall in which event all our energy would be directed in the federal field, and provincial reorganization would of necessity have to stand for another year, which might prove fatal to the success of the party in Ontario.

We felt that a healthy, reorganized provincial party would be the best means to aid the federal party and its new leader. The majority of other members of the executive, however, felt that while they agreed with our contentions, that they could not deny a great federal leader his last request, and, accordingly on a divided vote the annual general meeting was postponed until Oct. 4, 1938; Mr. Martin and myself voting against the postponement.

Mr. Martin and I feel that the reasons we advanced against the postponement of the general meeting are now stronger than ever. We wish, however, to make it clear that there were no sinister motives behind the postponement of the annual meeting and that Mr. Martin and I would welcome the opportunity of facing, now or any time, an annual meeting and asking for its vote of confidence and for re-election to the executive.

Deserves Reply

In Mr. Wood's letter of April 30, two suggested reasons were put forth for the postponement, namely, that the present executive wished to dominate the Dominion convention at Ottawa through the selection of eighty-two delegates-at-large and that the present executive desired to cling to office.

We can assure Mr. Wood and Conservatives generally, that neither of these suggested reasons influenced the postponement of the meeting.

We feel further, that Mr. Wood's letter deserves the courtesy of a reply, as it undoubtedly reflects the view of a large number of Conservatives and Ontario citizens, and Mr. Wood is well within his right in demanding clarificaton of these issues.

We still feel that an annual meeting held not later than the fifteenth day of June next, would do much to solidify and encourage Conservative supporters and sentiment in the Province of Ontario.

Nothing to Add.

TRENTON, Ont., May 6—(CP). — W. H. Ireland, president of the Ontario Conservative Association, said here last night: "I can't add anything" to a statement issued in Lindsay by Cecil G. Frost, Association vice-president, which said Mr. Frost and Treasurer Argue Martin opposed postponement of the Association's annual meeting from May 28 to next fall.

"The statement does not demand any reply," Mr. Ireland said. "Their views were expressed at the last executive meeting (held in Toronto April 16) and they have not changed their opinion."

GOVERNOR

a big, stolid man, a lover of country life, an admirer of the days when men rode like gentlemen in coaches rather than "like crashing cads" in "foul, stinking" motor cars. He was passionately fond of shooting and fishing, and his 180,000 acres were put to full use during the seasons.

The Duke, as Lord Victor Cavendish, entered the House of Commons at the age of 23, and for many years was a junior minister. He rejoined the Government at the outbreak of war, serving with energy as Civil Lord of the Admiralty. He was made a Knight of the Garter in 1916, and after his return from Canada, in 1922, entered the Cabinet as Secretary of State for the Colonies. That was in the days before the Dominions office was created and His Grace therefore had charge of Dominions affairs. He held the post for two years.

Marquess of Hartington Succeeds.

His death creates a vacancy in the House. The new Duke, as the Marquess of Hartington, has been M.P. for West Derbyshire for 15 years and has served as Under-Secretary for the Dominions since 1936. The new Duke, as a member of the House of Lords, will be able to retain office, although it is likely his new responsibilities will demand all his attention.

The Duchess of Devonshire, a daughter of the fifth Marquess of Lansdowne, one time Governor-General of Canada, survives. She is a close friend of Queen Mary and served Her Majesty as Mistress of the Robes. Besides the new Duke, there are five daughters and a younger son, Lord Charles Cavendish, who married Adele Astaire, the dancer.

clared the problem should be referred to the Tariff Board.

Mark Senn (Con. Haldimand) expressed the opinion the implement committee was so constituted that it was not in a position to bring down a "disinterested and unbiased report." Several members of the committee had stated they were interested in the price of farm implements and were in the market for them.

Liberal Propaganda Move?

"In addition to that I believe this whole investigation originated in the Liberal propaganda during the last Federal election campaign. Candidates all over Canada said the prices were too high but blamed the Bennett administration for raising tariffs in 1930.

"So it was not to be wondered at that after the duty was lowered and the price of implements advanced Liberal members of this House and others who had been candidates were very much embarrassed and resentful of what happened. I think I am well justified in saying this was not a disinterested report from either a personal or a political standpoint."

This resentment had shown itself at the committee hearings Mr. Senn said and in the speech last week by Mr. Gardiner. He suggested Mr. Gardiner's criticism of the manufacturers had some connection with the forthcoming election in Saskatchewan, and doubted if the government had any intention of dealing with implement corporations.

More Purchasing Power

"In my opinion," Mr. Senn said, "the remedy for the inequality in prices is two-fold. First steps must be taken to increase the purchasing power of the farmer. Secondly, everything possible should be done to preserve the Canadian market for the Canadian manufacturer of farm implements and to see that as large a proportion as possible of the implements in use on Canadian farms are of Canadian production. It would be a calamity if our factories were forced to close because of undue competition with the mass production and cheap labor of other countries."

Mr. Weir referred to an inquiry recently conducted in the United States and said if its report indicated any abuses in manufacturing or distribution, "the government of Canada should not hesitate to use every means at its command to remedy abuses which may thus be shown."

Bruce McNiven (Lib. Victoria, Ont.) said implement companies charged exorbitant interest rates on credit sales. He contrasted butter and beef prices in 1913 and 1937 with implement prices, to show the big increase in machine prices compared with the farm products.

Separator's on Free List?

Mr. McNiven said there seemed to be merit in the recommendation of the committee that cream separators be placed on the free list.

He was anxious as any person to see unity in Canada, Mr. McNiven said, but he recalled when last year the price of butter went up to 40 cents a pound the women of Toronto banded together in protest. He felt the agricultural producers were justified in bending every effort toward getting and protecting their rights.

Hughes Cleaver (Lib. Halton) said it was unfair that the error should have been broadcast that anly three per cent of the farmer's wealth was invested in farm machinery. The fact was the 1931 census showed $600,000,000 was invested representing between $800 and $900 a farm. Farm machinery was something that had to be replaced regularly.

Inquiries of the nature the Implement committee made were not "persecution," but they should be conducted into all subsidized industries.

In the 10-year period from 1926 to 1935 inclusive the Canadian International Harvester had earned $41,500,000, or 10 per cent.

Due to interpretations put on customs regulations by national revenue officers, profits made from Canadian buyers were retained in the United States because the parent company was compelled by these regulations, to invoice machines to Canadians at a price higher than to its domestic purchasers.

Mr. Cleaver cited comparative prices showing American buyers were billed at less than Canadians.

He urged recommendations of the committee be carried out.

A Queer Situation.

During the period 1931 to 1935 those employed and industry itself got more than they got for their efforts in 1926, R. J. Deachman (Lib. North Huron) told the House. In terms of purchasing power adjusted to changed living costs they had got more than in the peak year but the farming industry, during the five year period, had suffered a $2,000,000,000 shrinkage in its revenues.

When such conditions existed it was impossible to prevent disunity, Mr. Deachman said. It was apparent the member for Greenwood thought more of the interests of the 4,159 people engaged in farm implement making.

"Unity is impossible under these conditions," Mr. Deachman said. "Agriculture is a fundamental industry. While the industrial workers and industry were doing better during the depression years the farmers were taking $2,000,000,000 loss.

"Drought conditions had something to do with that," Opposition Leader Bennett suggested.

Mr. Deachman said he admitted that and also that there were many industrial workers unemployed.

The position of agriculture offered a problem for the people of Canada, Mr. Deachman declared. Unless that problem was solved there would be greater difficulties ahead. It demanded the attention of all in the House and of the manufacturers.

He urged the necessity of removing special privileges enjoyed by the companies and leaving them to take their chances as the farmers were forced to do.

Eugene Decosse, special investigator for the Quebec Attorney-General's Department, has taken charge of the case. He will leave for Buckingham this morning to make a thorough investigation in that district.

Decosse was notified yesterday that the car was found and made several inquiries in the city here.

"He might have gone fishing, and we think there might have been two men with him," Decosse said. "However, we are going up into the Buckingham district and look around the lakes. There are nearly 50 there where they fish."

R.C.M.P. authorities said there was a possibility Mr. Betts was still fishing in the vicinity of Mayo, Que., 15 miles north of Buckingham.

"The only thing queer about the whole case is the finding of the rented roadster near the river," a R.C.M.P. inspector said.

The taxi company garagemen could not remember if Mr. Betts had any fishing equipment with him or not when he rented the car. He paid the usual $5 deposit for the car and did not say how long he would be gone. The taxi company was not alarmed when the car was not returned for the cars are all insured and on some occasions are not returned for a week following the rental.

RIGID RETRENCHMENT ORDERED BY CITY'S RELIEF COMMITTEE

At Present Rate Of Spending Relief Appropriation Will Be Exhausted In August

Last Eleven Days In April Had To Be Entirely Paid By City

That Peterborough's relief costs have averaged over $5,500 a month for the first four months of this year and that if expenditures continue at that rate for the balance of 1938, the relief appropriation will be exceeded by well over $18,000, was the disturbing statement made to the Relief committee Thursday night by Chairman Alderman Dutton.

"At the present rate the relief appropriation will be all gone by the end of August," pointed out Relief Officer Metheral.

So serious was the outlook as given by the figures quoted by the chairman, that the committee was unanimous in the opinion that rigid retrenchment wherever possible must be undertaken. No definite policy was discussed, but Ald. Dutton, chairman of the committee, and Relief Officer Metheral were empowered to exercise economy in every direction possible.

Discussing the situation, Ald. Dutton said that the city's relief expenditures had averaged $5,526.52 per month for the first four months of the year, with a total expenditure to the end of April of $22,106.04, out of an appropriation for the year of $47,500. On that basis the total expenditure for 1938 would exceed the estimate by $18,818.

Government's Share Less

Ald. Dutton said that the government's share during the four months had decreased by $4,035.84, as compared with the same period last year, while the city's share on the other hand had increased by $4,125.27.

Comparing the figures for April with those of last year, he pointed out that there were 438 families on relief last month as against 347 in the same month a year ago, with 1,381 individuals as against 1,117. There were 19 fewer single men and one more single woman.

The per capital expenditure was down a little, $5.80 as compared with $5.96, and that was accounted for by the fact that the relief authorities had been trimming every place they could, the chairman explained.

"I feel that Peterborough is entitled to some special consideration from the government," said Ald. Dutton. "The situation is aggravated by the lay-off in the textile plants and in other factories, and the conditions are liable to last for some time. The thing is all the worse because this increase in the number on relief comes at a season when we usually look for a reduction. This time it is the other way round."

Seven More Added

"I put seven men on the lists on Monday," stated Relief Officer Metheral," and none of them had been on relief before. There were four more added Tuesday, one Wednesday, and three to-day."

Ald. Dutton ponted out that by the 19th of April the amount upon which government paid its share of relief had been expended, and that meant that the whole cost of relief during the remaining 11 days came out of the pockets of the city taxpayers.

The chairman stressed the necessity of economy. It might be necessary to establish lower relief schedules for employables and to cut families where there were no children out of some part of their present assistance.

It was agreed that where farm work was available, relief recipients eligible for that kind of employment should be required to take it.

Alderman Dutton told the committee of the case of one man who had been offered a job on the farm where there was a house available for his family, but his wife had refused to go. "They were cut off the relief lists," said the chairman, and the committee expressed approval.

The chairman and relief officer were instructed to use their own judgment in effecting whatever economies they considered necessary. They will have the support and backing of the committee in whatever they undertake.

"We may make mistakes," said Ald. Dutton, "but I assure you we will not hesitate to rectify them when they come to light."

Present were Chairman Dutton, Alo. Glover, McCannan, Bradburn, Stocker, Juby and Wilson.

Engineers Elect New Executive

At the annual meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. last night of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada the following were elected to the executive for the year 1938-39:

B. I. Burgess, A.M.E.I.C.; G. A. Cunningham, A.M.E.I.C.; R. L. Dobbin, M.E.I.C.; W. T. Fanjoy, A.M.E.I.C., I. F. McRae, A.M.E.I.C.; B. Ottewell, A.M.E.I.C.

RELIEF GARDENS TO BE CONTINUED WITHOUT GRANT

Although the Ontario Government has refused to assist in this work this year and only $275 was placed in the civic estimates to cover the city's cost, the Relief committee of the City Council decided at Thursday night's meeting to carry on the relief garden scheme as far as possible.

It was decided that seeds and plants will be supplied to relief recipients who are willing to dig and cultivate a garden.

Discussion over this question began when a letter was read from the Peterborough Workers' and Unemployed Association, stating that great benefit had been derived from relief gardens in other years, and urging that the policy should be continued.

Chairman Alderman Dutton explained that $275 had been placed in the estimates to cover the city's share of the cost of relief gardens, but that the government had failed to announce that it would contribute the balance as in other years. No reply had been received in answer to a wire sent to Queen's Park by City Relief Officer Metheral, but Government Inspector Fred McNeely, the chairman said, had stated that the government did not intend to contribute anything this year.

Decide to Carry On

The members of the committee were all of one mind as to the desirability of continuing the relief garden proposition as far as was possible, and a resolution to that effect, moved by Ald. Glover and Bradburn, was carried unanimously.

It was agreed that the loss of the late A. B. Cunningham, who had supervised the garden work in other years, would be great.

"I don't think we could carry on without supervision," said Ald. Dutton.

"Is there anything in the estimates to cover the cost of supervision?" asked Ald. Bradburn.

Chairman Dutton replied that nothing had been provided for that expenditure. "We paid Mr. Cunningham last year for the first time," he said, "and then he only received $20."

It was decided to leave the question of supervision in abeyance for the present, and Ald. Glover moved, seconded by Ald. McCannan, that the relief committee furnish seeds and plants to every relief recipient who was prepared to dig and cultivate a garden.

The motion was carried unanimously.

WAYWARD GIRLS ARE TURNED ASIDE RECTOR CHARGES

TORONTO, May 6.—Wayward girls are turned aside from the Church's influence and help, to join the large group of underprivileged being sopped up by Communists, because the Church is not on the job, Canon Dr. W. W. Judd declared last evening at Toronto Anglican Synod.

His charge came during the discussion of the Social Service Council's report that illegitimate births had quadrupled in ratio during the past thirty years, while the general birth rate had decreased.

"About one-third of the cases of this kind in Toronto last year were listed as Anglican unmarried mothers, but only one-third of the so-termed Anglicans were known to the Church. More pastoral care in this problem is necessary," Dr. Judd urged.

He thought it a shame to the Church that more money was not spent on this and other branches of social service. What the home fails to do in training young folk, the clergy must learn to do, he said.

In answer to one suggestion in the report that Anglican theological colleges might not be adequately preparing candidates for the ministry "to help young people in facing these and other sexual problems," Canon R. B. McElheran, Principal of Wycliffe College, declared "efforts are being made."

He explained that a certain amount of instruction for the students was derived from outside lecturers, which was not mentioned in the curriculum of studies.

Archbishop D. T. Owen, in praising the preparation and study behind the social service report, observed that "three angles standing before every parish door" represent, first, the unbeliever; secondly, the outcast, the needy and the prisoner; and thirdly, the child.

"Any parish that closes the door to any one of these three is losing its greatest opportunity for blessings," he said.

The following committees were elected:

Executive: Rev. Canon R. A. Armstrong, Rv. Canon R. B. McElheran, Very Rev. C. E. Riley, Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, Rev. Provost F. H. Cosgrave, Rev. G. S. Despard, Sir Henry Drayton, C. L. Foster, Major E. A. Hetherington, J. M. McWhinney, F. G. Venables, all of Toronto; Canon P. J. Dykes, Cobourg; Ven. C. A. Moulton, Barrie; W. T. H. Boyd, Dr. G. S. Cameron and H. Gover, and the following ex-officio members: Archbihsop Owen, Bishop A. B. Beverley, D. T. Symons, Canon F. J. Sawers, Ven. G. Warren, R. W. Allin and James Nicholson.

M.S.C.C. Board of Management: Canon Armstrong, Canon Woodcock, W. T. H. Boyd and Major Hethrington.

G.B.R.E.: Ven. C. A. Moulton, Ven. William Simpson, A. H. Cuttle and C. P. Muckle.

Social Service Board: Canon P. J. Dykes. Canon T. S. Boyle, Prof. E. A. Dale and Magistrate J. E. Jones.

FALSE PRETENCE CASE DISMISSED

Charges against Mr. and Mrs. James Rush of Whitby of having obtained five gallons of gasoline and $3.75 in cash from Bernard Butcher of Springville under false pretences were dismissed in police court this morning when no evidence was offered by the crown.

The couple were brought back from Port Hope Thursday night by Provincial Constable David Silvester and Detective W. E. Meagher of the city force.

Rush who was first arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty.

"I would like to get bail and a week's remand?" he told the court.

"What has the crown to say about it?" asked the Magistrae.

"On the advice of Crown Attorney McElderry we are offering no evidence said E. W. Borbridge who represented the crown today.

Rush looked somewhat bewildered at this unexpected development. "I don't quite understand," he said.

"There is no use asking for a remand to hear no evidence," remarked the magistrate, informing the accused that the case against him was dismissed.

The charge against Mrs. Rush was also dismissed when no evidence was offered in her case either.

Magistrate Campbell of Port Hope was not ready this morning with his judgment in the charge against Joseph Wheeler of creating a disturbance and his decision in that matter has been deferred indefinitely.

NO ACTION TAKEN.

The relief committee Thursday night merely "received" a communication from St. Catharines city council which asked for greater governmental assistance for single unemployed men. It was felt that the plan followed here had been working out satisfactorily.

PLANNING RECEPTION

Representatives of the Prince of Wales Rangers, public and separate school board and other organizations met with the Reception committee of the city council this afternoon to complete plans for the reception to be tendered the Governor-General here.

CARETAKER APPOINTED.

Ald. Walter Stocker announced Thursday night that Frank Dwyer, well known cricketer has been appointed caretaker of Nicholls Oval. He and his family are now installed in the house in the park and the new caretaker has already commenced his duties.

HELP IS OFFERED.

Ald. R. M. Glover is in charge of a special fund of $60 raised by private subscription to assist men who are not on relief but who have had a hard time keeping off to plant gardens this summer. The money will be used to buy the necessary seeds and plants and those who would appreciate this assistance are asked to get in touch with Ald. Glover.

BUYING MORE WOOD.

The relief committee decided Thursday night to take advantage of opportunity to buy 500 cords of hardwood for $6.50 a cord from Joseph Robertson, Elm street. This is in addition to the 1,000 cords already ordered from W. McQuade, at whose request the committee agreed to transfer the contract to the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company. No more slabwood is to be bought for the present.

TO ADDRESS Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. Percival Foster will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association Wednesday evening, April 11. Mrs. Foster is well known to Peterborough 'Y' Members and friends, as field secretary of the National Council Y.W.C.A. until a few years ago. Mrs. Foster spent last year travelling in Europe visiting nine countries and will speak on "My Impressions of Europe." Mrs. Foster is giving most generously of her time to the Council of Friendship, an organization started by the Y.W.C.A. linking native and new Canadians.

A NEW PROBLEM.

It was thought that the local relief committee had run into about every problem possible but a new one developed at Thursday night's meeting when the committee was asked to assist a local man who had borrowed money under the Home Improvement plan and was having difficulty aout meeting his obligations to the bank. The financial assistance will not be forthcoming so far as the relief authorities are concerned.

SHELTER PROBLEM IS STILL SERIOUS

Finding shelter for relief recipients is still a very serious problem for the relief staff and for the members of the relief committee and the question came in for considerable discussion at Thursday night's meeting. It was the feeling of the committee that tents for sheltering families should only be adopted as a last resort.

Ald. Dutton, chairman of the committee, suggested that something might be done toward urging elderly relief recipients who own houses and to reciprocate for the help they receive by providing accommodation for others in need of shelter.

Ald. Wilson reported that cottages were being offered at Coe Hill at $6 a month and fuel was available there at $2.50 a cord and the committee may look into the situation there with a view to the possible establishment of a colony of families for whom shelter could not be found here.

Plan Induction Of Rev. J. M. Young

Rev. James M. Young, B.A., will be ordained and inducted as the new minister for the combined charge of Lakefield, Lakevale, and Omemee, at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church in Lakefield on Thursday night next.

At a meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery of the Presbyterian church held in Belleville Thursday, a call in favour of the Rev. Mr. Young was presented by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's church, from the combined congregations of Lakefield, Lakevale, and Omemee. The call promised the stipend of $1,600 with manse and one month's holidays. The Presbytery sustained the call and on its acceptance by Mr. Young, who was present, arrangements were completed for the ordination and induction to be held at 8 o'clock next Thursday evening.

The Moderator of the Presbytery, Rev. A. J. Preston of Keene will preside and induct; Rev. D. K. Perrie of Hastings will preach the sermon; Rev. B. S. Black of Campbellford will address the minister, and Rev. J. W. Foote of Port Hope will address the congregation. A social hour is being arranged at the close of the induction.

TWO BROTHERS ARE DROWNED IN POOL AT BOWMANVILLE

BOWMANVILLE, May 6. — Two brothers, James Kane, aged 8, and Donald 7, lost their lives late Thursday in a pool below a mill-race in the west end of the town. The body of the younger boy was found floating near shore and the other was recovered a short time later with the aid of grappling irons. They were the son sof Mr. and Mrs. James Kane of Bowmanville.

At 6 o'clock the boys were seen swimming together. An hour later Walter Johnson, a painter, saw a body face down in the water, while crossing a bridge overlooking the mill-race. He ran down a bank and brought it to shore. Johnson did not know of the second drowning until he found a pile of clothes along the bank. They were taken to the parents who said they belonged to another son, James.

Chief Sidney Fenton obtained grappling hooks and recovered the second body. Both boys were clad in trunks. The scene where the drownings occurred is directly below the mill gates of F. C. Vanstone's flour mill. The depth of the water close in is not more than two feet but in the middle of the pool is about ten feet.

There were no eye-witnesses to the double drowning. It is thought that one of the brothers went in over his depth and that the other tried to rescue him. Donald could not swim and James could swim only a few yards.

Coroner V. H. Storey announced an inquest would be held shortly. The bodies were released for burial.

MAY 29 FAVORED AS DAY OF PRAYER

TORONTO, May 6—(CP).—Executive of the General Council of United Church of Canada has adopted a resolution that no change be made in the basis of union to provide for a pastoral time limit. The resolution was brought in by a committee appointed to deal with problem of settlement of ministers.

The executive also decided yesterday to endorse a suggestion of the Board of Foreign Missions that May 29 be set aside as a day of prayer in the United Church of Canada for those involved in the Sino-Japanese conflict. A resolution also was adopted that the Federal government be asked to declare an embargo on shipment from Canada of all materials of war intended for use by Japan.

McCannan Car Found In Kingston

The local police department was informed from Kingston this morning that the car belonging to Ald. Herb McCannan which was stolen from in front of his Simcoe street office on Tuesday evening has been recovered in the Limestone City and is in good mechanical condition.

Port Hope police sighted the stolen machine the other night but the thief managed to elude them. Later he abandoned the car on a Kingston street and it was recovered there by the police who stored it in a garage to await the arrival of the owner.

Ald. McCannan left for Kingston today to bring back the stolen car.

GAMBLING TO AID CHURCH CENSURED BY ANGLICAN SYNOD

TORONTO, May 5.—Opposition to certain types of Sunday radio programs carried by the CBC and to all forms of gambling "which seek to justify themselves on religious, charitable or philanthropic grounds" was expressed before the Toronto Anglican Synod yesterday.

It was reported that at a recent conference with CBC authorities, in which various denominations joined, the church delegation was informed that the radio authorities at Ottawa expressed accord with suggestion of restricted Sunday advertising, and that they "needed only time and money to work out a permanent policy."

Nothing would be done about the housing problem until all Governments, municipal, federal and provincial, could be persuaded to unite to try and solve it, F. Andrew Brewin of St. Simon's Church suggested.

Social Service Need Seen

While the Diocesan Council for Social Service report stressed the value and great need of more and more social service, it was revealed and commented upon that the salary of Miss Evelyn Jay, sole diocesan social worker, had had to be reduced. This latter situation was traced to the failure of some parishes to pay allotments.

Youth will be accented in the five-day centenary anniversary of the Toronto Diocese in May of 1939, which calls for the raising of $250,000 or more as a special thankoffering. Children will be given a prominent place in the celebraton.

Greater stress on Sunday school work generally was urged as the report on religious education was debated. Lay Delegate S. Wilson said many rural clergymen were so obsessed by the problem of raising money they forgot the young people.

Criticizes Teaching

"In many of our Sunday schools the children are taught fables," Charles Caswell of All Hallow's Church declared. He contended many of the clergy divided the Bible in the middle. Many of them declared they don't believe in the Old Testament, he said.

The recall of family worship in the homes, the teaching of parents "the sacred duty of parenthood," and the education of the congregation as to what was going on in the Sunday school was urged in the report.

Co-operative Elects Six Directors

At a largely attended organization meeting of the Peterborough Consumers' Co-operative Society in the Public Library Thursday night directors were elected and the organization which now has 250 members is ready to proceed, the first activity to be a co-operative bakery.

The directors elected were Dr. Lorna Cotton, A. Birkof, W. Barnes, Frank Daniel, Dr. R. W. Frank, Wm. Johnston, Rev. M. C. Parr and W. Wiggins.

An audit committee consisting of Messrs. Crawford and F. Dainton was elected and a membership committee of 38 members chosen.

Dr. R. W. Frank gave an adddress on Co-operation at the beginning of the meeting and afterward a constitution was adopted and by-laws approved.

Nineteen additional air liners have been ordered for the African Air Circle, Cape-Congo-Kenya.

ARTIFICIAL RINK NOW NECESSITY KIWANIANS TOLD

Peterborough will never be able to assume her proper place as a winter sports centre without an artificial rink, J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce told lunching Kiwanians to-day (Friday). He said the project is under consideratalon by a special committee.

Such a building would cost in the neighborhood of $100,000 and could be used as a banquet hall, agricultural building, and would be capable of seating 3,000 people. Lacrosse could be played there in wet weather, and in winter hockey fans would be assured of good games. Without artificial ice, the city can never hope for a guaranteed succes in their skating carnival if the artists have to depend on natural ice, he said.

Mr. Dorris outlined the part sport has played in advertising Peterborough to the rest of the province, and lauded the work of the Winter Sports Committee. He told of the quick hold that lacrosse has gained in the city, forecast a strong team this year. This summer baseball fans will have a real team to watch, one that will go far, he believed.

Switching to more individual sports, he told of the great attraction the fishing in this district holds for American tourists. "With the American people a holiday is an institution and they will take one in spite of anything," he said. He questioned whether the amount of money spent by tourists this year will reach last year's total, pointing to the economic depression that faces the United States today. But in spite of hard times, Americans will still flock to this region in large numbers, he believed. He told of one tourist who had visited the Chamber of Commerce to tell how much he liked the Deer Bay region. The American travelled the year around, had been as far south as South America, as far north as Alaska, yet he found Deer Bay without superior in all his journeying, Mr. Dorris related.

The meeting was under the direction of the Sports Committee, headed by Hubert Chown, who introduced the speaker. Charles Saunders moved a vote of thanks. Next week's meeting will be addressed by Mel Brooks, president of the Studebaker Corporation of Canada, it was announced by Bill Ovens.

CHAPTER 29

When the others left the swimming pool, Wenda turned to Garry. "Let's be comfortable." She curled up in an easy chair, and pulled her white velvet beach robe around her.

The room was quiet. The green water was as still as a sheet of green frozen ice, now that no one swam in it.

"Garry, you do love me, don't you?" she asked then, with a quick catch in her throaty voice—the catch that made a certain line of Garry's a time to weep in the theater for six nights every week.

"So much that I'd turn a somersault over the moon to prove it if you asked me to." He reached out a strong hand and caught the slender white fingers with their coral-tinted nails. He planted a kiss in the center of the palm and returned the hand to her.

"Mean it?" Wenda asked, and dimpled a little.

"Sure. I'll pull the moon down, if you want it."

She shook her head. "It might be made out of cheese wrapped in silver paper. No, leave the moon in the sky. It's something much more practical I want, Garry dearest."

"And that is?" He was still leaning back leisurely in his chair.

When she spoke again, Wenda's voice was calm and matter-of-fact beneath the layer of softness. "A release from my party in the play, Garry."

Garrys whole body tensed. The easy good humor banished from his face as though one or the two white hands that lay so carelessly in Wenda's lap had wiped it away.

"A release, Wenda? But why?" His voice was quiet, though.

"Garry, we both want to go places. We are going places! We've got to use every chance that comes, don't we?"

He did not help her. He waited for her to continue.

"I can't have the lead in your play. You have Mabel Howard for it—she's a star of the first water and the part suits her. Even if it didn't concern her, it's not my kind of a part. I'm just—just a lesser luminary. And I don't want to be, Garry! I want my name in lights on the marquee. Oh Garry, if you love me you'll want it to be, too!" She could cloud her eyes with tears at will, and she remembered to do so now.

"Yes, I want you to succeed," Garry was answering. "Have you been offered a stellar role? Why didn't you say so? Good grief, Wenda, I'm not going to hold you back. You know that. I'll hate like the world to lose you from the cast—it won't be the same play—but we'll skip that. Wenda, Im not tying a string to bind you."

"I know, Garry." She reached out both hands to him. "Love has to be free, doesn't it That's the glory of it."

"Free—perfectly free," he answered. Odd—another girl had said something like that once upon a time when he had told her he was going away. Funny thing to remember right now. He turned back to Wenda.

"What play is it, Wenda" He was searching his mind for one where the star might be vacating.

Wenda misunderstood the inquiry. "You think I'm not big enough for stardom? "

"No, Wenda. Just not quite ready for it. Most producers want names that have been in lights for a few years. You'll get there—it takes time."

"If you love me, you wouldn't be estimating my ability!"

The brown eyes flashed under the yellow bang and the red lips were sulky.

"Oh, Wenda, sweet, I'd string your name in electric light across the town if I had my way. You'll be a star and you'll do in a play of mine! You know that's what I want, don't you?"

"That's better. She flashed her widest smile at him.

"What play wants you?" Garry tried to be casual as he asked it. 'W'enda, darling ,you don't know

"It hasn't opened yet—I mean, the play is being selected and rehearsals begin in two weeks."

"A play—for you?"

She nodded, waiting for his words.

"Who is producing it?" he asked, at last.

"Jimmy Minton."

The words hung in the air, as though there had been an airplane passing by that did them in skywriting. Even the still green water seemed to tremble under the impact of the name.

"Jimmy Minton?" Garry's voice was a rising question.

"Yes, Garry. He thinks I have talent and he always has wanted to do a play."

"It's one of the few things he hasn't done," Garry said bitterly.

"Don't be jealous, honey. It's a chance for me—"

"Yes! A grand chance to get yourself talked about all over town as one of Jimmy Minton's girls! He doesn't want to star you. He's in this thing to hurt me."

"Oh, Garry!" But the dark eyes were laughing, pleased. "You mean he wants to arouse your jealous?"

Garry was alert, taut now. "You don't understand this mixup, Wenda. I 'covered' a story once when Minton was in a scrape and I had a pretty good insight into the man. I didn't handle him with kid gloves, either. I wouldn't feel right with myself if I hadn't. He's hated me ever since. Then last fall he pulled off a brawl down at Barbara Kingsley's apartment and I had occasion to sock his flabby jaw. He swore then he'd get even. Don't you see—he knows I love you and this is his way of hurting me!"

"'Oh-h-h?" The sound was innocent enough as it came from Wenda's red lips. "Just because he'll think he's getting even with you about that Kingsley person you want to spoil my chance? You would let her stand in my way... Oh, Garry!"

Whatever else she was, Wenda Ayer was a good actress. She had the proper amount of hurt and reproach in her voice.

"Wenda, don't be a nitwit!" Garry was harsher than he meant to be but the situation had come upon him so suddenly. 'Barbara hasn't anything to do with this"

"Oh no?" Wenda slipped out of the velvet robe and stood up, her yellow hair flaming like a crown. "All right then, it's you! You don't want me to go ahead! You're afraid I'll pass you, aren't you?"

She wasn't acting now. She was being real. Garry sensed it, and he, too, discarded all pretense. "But I'll go into that play. I'll show you, Garry Page!" Her voice was not low and modulated any more. It raised itself to the status of a scream.

Garry did not raise his voice, but it was furious with rage. "Wenda, keep quiet! Go to the play, if you will! Go anywhere you want to go! If this is what you call love—" Then he stopped. He had an odd sense that he was moving through a scene of unreality; that he was having a nightmare in which the lovely, glamorous Wenda Ayer, sweetness and light and love and their components, was walking out on his play.

The proud set of his head did not change. He squared his chin more stubbornly. He spoke quietly, though. "It's late for a play to go on. Had you thought of that?"

"Oh, Garry, you needn't think you can stop me! Nothing can stop me. I'm going to the top!"

Garry spoke wearily. "Maybe you are" He hated her and he adored her. She was a scheming woman, and yet she wasa child having a tantrum. He wanted to seize her and hold her until she finished. He wanted to slap that curving white cheek—

He caught his own breath. He never before had wanted to slap a woman .Oh, damn it, he loved her! And in her selfish ignorance she was walking into a gilded trap, whose door wouldn't spring any les painfully because the floor was cushioned. In desperation he spoke: what you are doing! I won't let you!"

Her laughter was taunting. "Won't let me, Garry? Try to stop me! I'm calling the director now! I've made my last appearance in your play. I'm resigning. You can listen while I call." (To Be Continued)

For Saturday, May 7

A particularly lively and interesting day is forecast from the prevailing lunar and mutual configurations. This applies to business and personal affiliations, in which much enterprise and initiative are probable. But all call for deliberation, prudence and forebearance, as there are some peculiar lures, temptations and probable pitfalls. However, there may be some gain, and good news may figure in profitable decisions.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and interesting year, with much stirring in the private, social, emotional and business lives. While speculation and affairs of chance might in the end prove profitable, yet there are pitfalls, intrigues and perils to be handled prudently. Well-meaning friends may lure one to folly and loss.

A child born on this day may be extremely lively and enterprising, reaching for a place in the limelight by bold and brilliant gestures that may entail extravagance, indulgence and unenviable notoriety. Such traits have very early detection in "showoff" children who clamor for attention.

Hands-Off Policy in Rearing Children is Bad, but an Attitude of Strict Discipline May Do More to Ruin the Future of a Child

PARENTHOOD is one of the things that people seldom seem able to take in their stride. Apparently they find it impossible to practice moderation in rearing their children. They overdo it or underdo it and one is just as disastrous in its consequences as the other.

Unfortunately of late years, the hands-off, noninterference method of bringing up children has been the vogue, and this has given us a generation of youngsters who are a law unto themselves, who know more about mixing cocktails than they do about the Ten Commandments, who are a pain in the neck to the general public and a perpetual anxiety and expense to their fathers and mothers.

But, equally unfortunately, these examples of the havoc undisciplined and uncontrolled children can make of their lives have driven many other parents to the opposite extreme and turned them into grinding tyrants who are wrecking their children's lives just as effectually as the neglectful parents have wrecked theirs.

I am thinking, as I write this, of a boy I know. A fine intelligent lad of 18. A big strapping fellow six feet tall, filled with health and energy and high animal spirits, but whose father keeps him a virtual prisoner because he is determined that HIS son shall be kept away from all evil influences as far as possible.

This chap has no more liberty than a ticket-of-leave man. His every minute must be accounted for when he is away from home, even in going to and from school, and if he is a second late he has to furnish an air-tight alibi. He has never been permitted to take part in any school activities or to play on any of the athletic teams ,because that might bring him in contact with boys who are not snow-white.

He has never been given a cent of pocket money for fear he might spend it foolishly. When he is at home he cannot even answer the telephone without giving a full account about who was speaking, and what they said and what he said. He dare not even go to the corner drug store without asking permission. He is forbidden even to speak to girls, for who knows what that might lead to!

This boy is desperate and wildly rebellious, as he naturally would be. He would run away from home except that he has an invalid mother to whom he is devoted. He is beginning to hate his father as an oppressor. And the most pitiful feature of the whole situation is that the father adores the lad and his cruelty to him is just his mistaken belief that he is safeguarding him against the follies of youth.

This father forgets two important things. One is that we are born with a hankering for forbidden fruit, and the more we are denied doing what we want to do, the more we long to do it. Nowhere is so glamorous as the place we cannot go. Nothing so fascinating as the thing we cannot do. We get no particular kick out of thing we can take or leave as we please. It is their being denied us that makes us determined to have them.

Hence the importance of letting a child find out as early as possible the true value of things and to learn to use them in moderation.

The next thing the overstrict father forgets is that however much he may disapprove of the modern world it is a place in which his son has to live, and that the son should be fitted to meet its dangers and not kept in ignorance of them. He can't always be kept locked up in a room at home. He can't always be kept immune from evil influences. He has to encounter bad men and bad women and be subjected to temptation. And the thing to do is to teach him how to meet them and walk warily through the snares that are laid for his feet.

The wise father does not try to protect his children too much. He gives them freedom and teaches them that liberty is not license. He teaches them to handle money by giving them an allowance and making them pay for their mistakes when they waste it. He teaches them selfreliance by letting them make their own decisions and abide by them. And, above all, he makes himself their friend, counselor and guide by showing them sympathy, understanding and helpfulness.

In a word, he practices moderation, which is as great a virtue in rearing children as it is everywhere else in life.

UNCLE WIGGILY SEES HIMSELF

Baby Bunty gave herself a little shake. She twinkled her pink nose. Then the orphan rabbit looked down the woodland path where she saw, running, a boy carrying in his hands a black box.

"Was he a hunter and did he shoot me?" asked Bunty as she looked at the May flowers she had been gathering.

"Yes, Bunty, you were shot, as they call it," said Uncle Wiggily. "And so was I."

"But its so funny—I thought it hurt to get shot," said the orphan rabbit, "but nothing hurts me and you aren't hurt, are you?"

"Not at all," laughed the rabbit gentleman. "I forgot to tell you, Baby Bunty, there are two sorts of hunters, those with guns and those with cameras. This boy hunter had a camera and he 'shot' us, or took our pictures with it."

He Knew

"What did he do with our pictures after he took them?" asked Bunty.

"They are still in his camera," explained Uncle Wiggily. "I suppose he will have them printed or made and show them to his friends."

"Isn't it cute!"

"I wish I could see my picture, and yours too, Unkie Wig."

"Perhaps some day we may," said the rabbit gentleman.

"My!" exclaimed the orphan rabbit. "What a surprising adventure! I never knew I was going to be shot with a camera and have my picture taken. Did you, Unkie Wig?"

"Well," said the rabbit gentleman as he smiled. "I saw the boy hunter of pictures, with a camera instead of a gun, coming toward us here. I thought he was just going to shoot us in a harmless way so I didn't tell you as I wanted you to act natural."

"Did I act natural?" asked the orphan rabbit with a giggle.

"Very natural," answered Mr. Longears with a chuckle which is a grown-up way of giggling. "You might have been in the movies."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Baby Bunty. "Fancy me in the movies!"

"Oh, they use lots of animals like us in the movies," said Mr. Longears. "I was in the movies once." He spoke modest like and shy.

"Were you?" exclaimed Bunty. "I never knew it."

"It was when I was a very young rabbit," said Mr. Longears. "It was then I learned about cameras and how one can be 'shot' with them and come to no harm. So when I saw this jolly little boy with his camera coming toward you and me, I didn't warn you of danger for I knew there were none."

"Oh, what a thrilling adventure!" exclaimed Baby Bunty clapping her little, furry paws. "But I do wish I could see my picture and yours. Unkie Wig."

See Themselves

"Perhaps we may," said Mr. Longears. "But now we must finish picking our May flowers."

"And I shall not forget to put them in water this time," said Bunty.

A few days after this, when Baby Bunty and Uncle Wiggily were again in the woods, they saw the same boy hunter with his camera.

The boy laughed when he saw the rabbits.

"I thought you would be here," he said. "I have brought back the picture I shot of you two jolly bunnies. I'll leave it here on this old stump and run away so you will have no fear."

The boy put something on the stump and ran away with his camera. In a little while Uncle Wiggily and Bunty hopped to the stump. On it was a photograph.

"Oh, Unkie Wig!" cried Bunty in delight. "Look at yourself and look at me! Isn't it cute!"

"Very cute!" laughed Mr. Longears as he looked at himself.

And if the cheese cake doesn't cover itself with powdered sugar to hide away from the cup of coffee, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's sticker bird.

DON'T LOSE CONTROL

LEADING YOUR final trump to drop a defender's last one can be costly business if it involves losing control of the hand. When the opponent has a sure side entry, he may then be able to run the remnants of a setup suit. But using a long suit of your own to knock out his threatening trump may enable you to retain your position in the driver's seat.

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal started with West, who called 1-Club. After passes by North and East, South bid 1-Heart, West 2-Clubs, North 2-No Trump, South 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

West cashed the club K and followed with the club Q, which South ruffed. The heart K was led and followed by the Q, which West won. West continued with the club suit, considering his best defense was to force South to continue ruffing. After winning this trick, South made the mistake of drawing West's last trump. After four diamond leads, West got in with the spade A and cashed his two clubs as well.

After trumping the club J, South should have held his one remaining trump and forced West to use his outstanding trump to ruff a diamond. Then when the lead was gained with the spade A, South would have been able to trump the club return and would have lost only three tricks.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By R. J. Scott

Looking Back On This Date

One hundred and twenty years ago (on May 6, 1818) the Duke of Richmond was appointed Governor-General of British America He had been Lord - Lieutenant of Ireland, but was also a soldier of repute, having been in Flanders with Wellington. Indeed his wife is more recalled in history than is the Duke, for it was she who gave the historic ball at Brussels on the eve of the Battle of Waterloo, which was immortalized by Lord Byron—you know—"There was a sound of revelry by night," and so on.

Fred Williams

The Duke and family arrived at Quebec on July 29 ,and he was sworn. He came largely as a soldier-colonizer. As a Governor he was supreme, with military powers; but he also desired to settle Canada largely with retired soldiers and their families, and he had many big projects of development in his mind, the British Government being then willing to spend money freely for development of Upper Canada. It was to that section that His Grace paid his first attention visiting Niagara and York (Toronto) in September.

When nearing York a storm came up and it is officially recorded that "the effects on the stomachs of the Viceroy and his entourage were as unpleasant as if they had been buffeting the waves of the Atlantic."

Later the Duke became much interested in the settlement of the Rideau district near Bytown (Ottawa), and it was while on a tour of that section that he died on August 29, 1819, from what some historians assert to have been hydrophobia, but which one of His Majesty's Chief Justices declares was a disease much more common in those days. He was buried in Holy Trinity Church, Quebec, where his tombstone, with all its elaborate verbiage, is shown to visitors.

This is also an eventful date in British history, for it was on May 6, 1910, that King Edward VII. died and the accession of George V. was officially proclaimed. The event illustrated the advance that had been made in news transmission within a century. While it had taken weeks for intelligence of the deaths of the Georges and William IV. to reach Canada, the passing of King Edward was known within a few minutes of its happening.

Deny Tariff Policies Centred Industry In Ontario

Dense Population, Cheap Power, Easy Access Real Drawing Cards, Says Province

TORONTO, May 5.—(CP).—Under any trade policy, Canadian industry would have been concentrated in the Lower Lakes-St. Lawrence area, where population was densest, and power and transportation facilities cheapest, the Ontario government contended to-day before the Rowell Commission.

It considered "an unwarranted assumption" the frequent assertion that the tariff had concentrated industrial development in Ontario and Quebec, although it recognized there was general agreement that trade policy "accelerated economic diversification and stimulated the growth of certain types of secondary industries."

"Southern Ontario and Quebec are the inevitable industrial areas of Canada," said Prof. K. W. Taylor, McMaster University, for the Government. "It is even probable that the Canadian tariff policy has actually tended to disperse industry in Canada."

Tariff policy was a Federal matter but had been injected into discussions before the commission as a basis for large claims for compensation. That was why the Ontario Government was dealing with it, he said.

Prof. Taylor submitted tariff policy could not be isolated from other gvernment policy. Trade policy included, in addition to the tax on imports, quotas and embargoes, trade treaties and agreements, and was closely related to railway, shipping and monetary policy.

Uneven Benefits

"Government policy, in a word, must be taken as a whole," he contended. "This is especially true when claims for disability are being presented by a province to the dominion. No policy can ever have equal effect over the whole country. Every policy confers uneven benefits and imposes uneven costs."

He suggested consideration should be given to the benefits accruing to other areas and to the burdens imposed on Ontario, to correct the impression left by some briefs that Central Canada had derived large benefits from the tariff.

Industrialism was not all benefit but also imposed heavy social costs, he said, greatest of which was prolonged wholesale unemployment. He argued that Ontario paid heavy duties on coal, lumber and sugar largely, if not wholly, for the benefit of other regions.

Prof. Taylor suggested the Maritimes had about as large a proportion of Maritime production protected as had Ontario, imposing substantial costs on the rest of Canada. The Prairie producers benefitted from heavy duties on butter, meat, eggs, sugar and grain. British Columbia benefitted from tariff preferences to Canadian ports, from inclusion of its principal products in almost every trade treaty signed by Canada and by direct protection of most of its products.

While the Prairie provinces argued that the wheat grower was at a relative disadvantage in world wheat markets because of the Canadian tariff, he noted the principal wheat competitors, Australia, Argentine and Russia, had much higher protection than had Canada.

Some Large Areas

Against Manitoba's claim of a $50,000,000 annual tariff disability for the Prairies from the tariff, Prof. Taylor said erorrs in comparative American and Canadian prices on three items amounted to $8,328,000.

He argued, too, there was no justification for including purely revenue duties, such as on coffee, prunes, raisins and oranges. This accounted for another $6,380,000 of the $58,000,000.

If disabilities from federal policy were to be considered, total federal policy should be considered, he continued. Among these were railway deficits, debt incurred for canals, transfers of purchasing power from Central Canada to the Maritimes and Prairies through Dominion public finance, and excess cost to Ontario of tariff protected commodities from other provinces.

"We make no attempt to set up a statement of profit and loss because we do not believe that is a logical or possible basis for federal finance. If, however, such statements are to be used, we must insist that they be accurate and complete and if such "accounts" are completed it is quite possible that the balance of advantage will be found to lie outside of Central Canada."

DOURO

Warsaw Women's Institute presented their play, "The Three Pegs," in Harmony Hall, Douro, to a fair-sized audience. The play is unique in the fact that there are no male players. Nine of the fair sex put on a creditable performance. The players were: Mrs. Gerald Payne, as Emily Weston; Mrs. George Weller, as Aunt Euphelia; Miss Merle Bell, as Marguerite; Miss Florence Bolton, as Madge; Mrs. John Morgan, as Peg; Mrs. Charlotte Cooper, as Sarah; Mrs. Harold Payne, as Lizzie; Mrs. Latta, as Mrs. Couti, and Mrs. Gordon Sharpe, as Mrs. Barcley. The play was much enjoyed. Specialties were: Sons, 'Say Goodbye to the Apple Tree," and encore, "An Old Dusty Trunk in the Attic," by Lenore McIlena; also a song, "In the Little Red Caboose Behind the Train," and encore, "Will My Soul Pass Through Old Ireland," by George Bennett, who played his own accompaniment on the guitar, and who possesses a fine voice. Mrs. O. McIlvena played piano accompaniments for her daughter's songs. Lunch was served the Warsaw cast by the cast of Douro's play. A dance followed the play, with Leahy's orchestra supplying the music.

Japanese Offensive Hled Up

The broken line on the ABOVE map shows the 60-mile front occupied by the two forces. The Japanese have been trying to drive to Pihsien, to outflank their foes to the westward, but the Chinese retaliated by starting a flanking move at Tancheng.

THREE-ACT COMEDY 'MARRYING ANNE' IS ABLY PRESENTED

Pretty girls—lovely gowns and an unusual plot featured the three act comedy "Marrying Anne" presented by the Excelsior Bible Class at St. James' United Church Thursday night—to a large and appreciative audience.

Under the capable direction of Miss Jessie Martin, class teacher and Mrs. Wm. Wood, this modern, humorous version of a matrimonial venture held the interest throughout and provoked much merriment. Each member of the well-chosen cast did splendid characterization and put much fine acting into their several parts.

The pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Craik, made a genial chairman introducing the play and the artists who assisted between acts, and favored the audience with some charming Hawaiian guitar numbers as well as a trio including whistling, harmonica and piano responding generously with encores. These versatile performers were the Misses Gladys Blewett, Velma Scott, Jean McIlwain with Miss Frances Wells contributing some fine solo piano numbers.

Written By Canadian

The play was charming in itself, written by a Canadian, especially for church organizations, with a strong appeal for a mixed audience of all ages.

The first scene was shown in an old-fashioned living-room the outstanding object being a picture facing the wall in the home of the Olday family about whom the action centres throughout.

A bomb-shell has been thrown into the family peace with the news that Anne, an orphan, is to become the ward of step-grandfather Oldays "until such time as she reaches a marriageable age." Her arrival stirs up the whole family, (including the family skeleton), but Anne proved to be a good fairy in disguise, restoring the good name of the disgraced son and recalling Aunt Rosie's romance, as well as assuming her own.

The young family doctor also figures largely in the story, and his love affair works out happily too. The family housekeeper, Mrs Chubb provides the key to the Oldays' mystery and helps to work out the solution.

About half the characters represented middle-aged or elderly people making the roles difficult for the cast of all young people, who, however, did exceptionally well.

Typical Modern Girl

The chief character was Anne, a typical modern girl with a healthy outlook on life. She was made most attractive and realistic by the exceedingly fine portrayal of Miss Doreen Elliott.

As a good foil to Anne's dark beauty, was the fair June, a friend and neighbor, who eventually leads off the doctor in marriage. This vivacious maiden was delightfully well played by Miss Jean Rose.

Aunt Rosie and Grandfather Oldays, two of the major roles, were done in their usual good acting by Miss Alberta Frost and [illegible]c Douglas.

Their housekeeper, Mrs. Chubb, was delineated with all the marks of perfection by Miss Marion Wood.

Reuben MacDonald, in his role as family doctor, with his pleasant, professional manner, appeared in most of the scenes as Dr. McCallum, while Marlow Banks, played the part of the hero the once disgraced son Bob Oldays with splendid effect.

The neighborhood gossip, Mrs. Steele, with her daughter Lizzie, who was somewhat dowdy were part of the comedy of the play with their old-time and ridiculous costumes. These two rare characters were splendidly done by Misses Zoe MacDonald and Dorothy Frost.

A very effective and pretty tableau in the wedding scene in which Harold Porter and Norris Williamson assisted, brought to a conclusion this very successful and entertaining production, which will be repeated tonight.

The Excelsior Class of St. James' Sunday School, is to be congratulated upon their choice of a play and upon its fine presentation by so talented a group of young people.

Thanks are due for lighting effects and attention to the curtain to Robert Hardie and W. A. Wood.

GUERILLAS MAKE PEIPING UNEASY

SHANGHAI, May 6 (AP)—Chinese claimed the recapture of approximately half the territory in south Shantung province won by Japanese in a three-weeks offensive from Lini as the conflict ended its 10th month today.

And while the two armies battled doggedly about Tancheng and Taierhchwang, there were significant developments on several other fronts.

Peiping's gates were closed and barred and that ancient city of Chinese culture, occupied by Japanese troops soon after the conflict broke out, spent one of its most anxious days.

Japanese planes yesterday bombed objectives but a few miles west of the city's walls, and there were reports Chinese guerillas and Communists were approaching the city. Police searched houses for irregulars believed to have slipped within the gates.

Peiping's Japanese garrison was greatly reduced by dispatching of reinforcements to Shantung.

A Chinese counter-attack on the Yangtse River was claimed to have occupied Tangtu, severing Japanese railroad communications between Wuhu and Nanking. Tangtu is 16 miles down the river from Wuhu and 50 miles upriver from Nanking.

In the same area, a Japanese column advancing westward into Anhwei province against Hofei, captured Shihkao after a 15-mile battle march along the shore of Lake Chao.

KINGSTON PICKED FOR FASCIST MEET

MONTREAL, May 6 (CP)—Adrien Arcand, Quebec Fascist party chief, confirmed last night the selection of Kingston, Ont., as the scene of the group's national convention during the last week in June. Arcand, speaking to a group of Quebec province delegates which he said numbered 600, asserted definite dates for the convention had not been selected.

The Kingston gathering will choose a Dominion leader. At present, Arcand said, the organization has a provincial leader in each of the nine provinces.

Plans for strengthening the party and widening its organization were discussed last night. About 40 women's section leaders attended.

James C. Carr, Ontario leader, was guest of honor. Carr spoke of the party's progress in his province and predicted advances throughout Canada in the next year.

WATER-REPELLANT CLOTH TREATMENT AMAZES EXPERTS

MONTREAL, May 6. (CP).—The little group looked askance as the demonstrator, with the deliberation of a big-game hunter choosing a rifle, picked up a soda syphon from the bottle-littered table, took careful aim and fired directly at the lady sitting with poised dignity in an armchair.

The blonde lady in the chair, without a trace of surprise, flicked the ashes from her cigarette, rose to her feet as the syphon subsided. She gave a sturdy shake to the skirt of her trailing evening gown and showed that within a few seconds all trace of the water had disappeared.

They upset strong tea on her dress, tossed whiskey and soda upon her sharkskin sports suit, spilled cold coffee and beer on her dress again and then showered a tumbler of water on her green organdie afternoon dress. And the only thing that left a mark was the coffee and tea. But they simply dunked the clothes in clear water, ran over it with an iron, and you couldn't tell but what they were new.

As a matter of fact, R. J. Smith, the London chemist who was demonstrating the material treated for water repellency, will invite you to toss almost anything on any of the scores of material his company treated. And you can't tell by looking or feeling, the treated from the untreated material.

Experts Enthusiastic.

The demonstration, given in a photographer's studio where the tests could be placed on photographic record, was given for style commentators, designers, newspapermen, who termed the show "marvellous."

What attracted most comment were the numerous certificates from cleaners to show the materials had been cleaned several times and that the "treatment' would not lose its effect after cleaning or laundering.

Smith, giving his first demonstration in Canada, displayed gold fish swimming in a water-filled piece of silk. Water was poured into silk stockings, previously washed, and it remained there. Even a piece of curtain mesh held water. Water was poured on panne velvet, organdie, satin, flannel, tweeds, cotton prints. It all ran of fas if from a duck's back.

But the test was not confined to women's clothing. Men's suits showed similar resistance. And they claim it will keep trouser cuffs dry while plodding over damp golf courses.

FREE BABIES

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 6—(AP)—A system of clinics for delivery of "free" babies to families who can't afford proper care for the mother was proposed to-day as a means of reducing Pennsylvania's maternal death rate. Dr. Edith MacBride-Dexter, Secretary of Health, said a program under which state or federal subsidies would provide free medical services to impoverished families in rural or distressed areas would be presented to the Federal Social Security Board.

Famed St. Bernards Are Doomed Will Find New Life In Far Tibet

Marseille, France, May 5 (CP)

PICK of the St. Bernard Monastery's dogs were en route to a new home in the Himalayas today, saved from "imprisonment" by the loyalty and confidence of Brother Cyril, one of their trainers at the Alpine monastery.

The St. Bernard dogs, condemned to perpetual confinement in the monastery for the fatal attack one of them made on a girl last year, sailed from Marseille for Tibet Tuesday under the protection of their aged trainer.

Brother Cyril, who did not lose his faith in the natural gentleness of the animals in spite of the attack, believed they could still render life-saving service in other mountain regions. He won permission to take a selected group of the finest dogs to remote Tibet. They will be stationed at a refuge built by two St. Bernard brothers at Latsa Pass, high up in the Himalayas.

Her Finger Joints Began To Swell

Perfectly Straight at 63 — Thanks to Kruschen.

Nearly twenty years ago, this woman was attacked by severe rheumatism. Now 63, she tells how Kruschen restored her to health, and has kept her free from rheumatism all these years:—

"In 1918, an attack of 'flu' left me with severe rheumatism, and I was in bed three months. When I got up I could only hobble around with difficulty and pain. My finger joints were beginning to swell, and were very painful. I was told that nothing could be done for the swelling. A friend recommended me to try Kruschen Salts, which I did with very satisfactory results. To-day, at 63, my fingers are perfectly straight, I am free from fectly straight. I am free from rheumatism, and can do all my own housework."—(Mrs.) M.W.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen have the power of dissolving the needle-pointed crystals of uric acid which settle in your joints, causing them to swell, ache and inflame. Other ingredients of Kruschen assist Nature to flush out these dissolved crystals through the natural channels.—Advt.

A comprehensive and interesting resume of proceedings at the 18th annual provincial meetings of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire in Hamilton was given by Mrs. F. E. Hooper, member of the provincial executive, Mrs. Hooper quoting for her listeners the words of Mrs. Morrison, the provincial president, "Every faithful 'Daughter of the Empire' must take heed during the coming year." Mention was made of the 306 Chapters in Ontario, with 129 Chapters in the province subscribers to "Echos." Mrs. Hooper also spoke of Dr. Stanley Russell, guest speaker at the large dinner during the meetings, and mentioned with pride, Tom Allen, winner of the I.O.D.E. overseas post graduate scholarship. The Order, said Mrs. Hooper, is standing behind the present flag, which may have to be changed in the future for a purely Canadian flag.

The Otonabee Chapter congratulated Mrs. Hooper on being re-elected to the standing committee of the provincial executive, Mrs. B. Jackson voicing the appreciation of the ladies to the speaker for her courtesy in addressing the Chapter.

The guest speaker of the afternoon was Miss Rachael Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society. Miss Young held the close attention of her audience with a splendid outline of the Society's work in striving to bring the advantages of good homes and environment to numbers of children, and also to motherless homes. Mrs. C. E. Blewett expressed very graciously on behalf of the members their thanks to Miss Young for her valuable information so well given.

The Chapter will hold a rummage sale on Saturday, May 7, and plans are under way for a bridge and tea at the home of Mrs. F. D. Kerr sometime in June, the date to be announced later.

Maudesley, also read an appreciative address and presented Mrs. Jefferson with a leather purse on behalf of the choir. The gifts were acknowledged feelingly by the recipient and all sang "For she's a jolly good fellow."

During the evening Rev. T. S. Gault, of St. George's Church, expressed the regret of the congregation at Mrs. Jefferson's departure. Musical selections by the choir included solos by W. Farr, Mrs. J. Cooper, and Miss B. Curtis, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. R. King. Community singing was enjoyed with A. Kirkcaldy at the piano.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Anglican Young People Present Entertaining Comedy, "Sis Perkins"

"Sis Perkins" was presented by members of All Saints A.Y.P.A. Thursday evening in the Parish Hall, and the young people deserve much credit for their performance, to be repeated this evening, of this three-act comedy packed with entertaining narrative and amusing situations.

The honors go to Edith Abraham, whose portrayal of 'Sis' was magnificent. It is an exceptionally heavy part, and was acted naturally, unfalteringly and with apparent thorough enjoyment throughout. The other characters were all exceedingly well portrayed also, notably Florence Outram as the lively gossipy Lydia La Salle. The costumes were all attractive and appropriate, with "Mrs. Chandler" looking especially charming in her evening gown, and the "Count's" get-up very well done.

The story is light and entertaining. A wealthy New York family, the Chandlers, mother, son and daughter, are in financial difficulties, and it is decided one of the spoiled children must marry for money. The selfish, snobbish daughter, Marcia, (Mildred White) is expecting a friend to visit her, the wealthy eccentric radio star, Violet Astor (Mary Cavalier), and they decide the sleepy son, Baldwin, (Alan Worsencroft) must propose to her. The pessimistic family butler, Carter (Donald Menzies) seen in conversation with Mrs. Chandler (Phyllis Hill) as the play opens, has assurred her that "the worst is yet to come" and continues to do so throughout the action. His entrances and exits were an effectively amusing feature of last night's production.

A gossipy, pushing friend, Lydia LaSalle, (Florence Outram) who is "setting her cap" for Baldwin breaks in on the gloomy family party, and ferrets out the fact that Baldwin hopes to marry Violet Astor. After Lydia's departure a still less welcome visitor arrives, Mrs. Chandler's niece from down on the farm, at "Painted Posts", Missouri, Sue, (or Sis) Perkins herself (Edith Abraham). In an extraordinary costume, with exuberant manners, a complete lack of restraint and also of grammar, and with untidy baggage including a month-old pig, 'Leander' in a carton, she is a dreadful shock to the socially prominent Chandlers. Complete confusion is created by Lydia's re-appearance with Count Gaston de Long (Douglas Weir) supposedly a wealthy foreigner, who with Lydia hails 'Sis' as Violet, whom they pretend to know.

In Act II the lively Sis, answering to the name 'Violet' to please her aunt, and dressed in one of Marcia's evening gowns, helps to bring about her cousin's engagement to the Count by refusing his proposals to herself. An act full of amusing incidents closes in more confusion with Carter (called Liver Pills by Sis) announcing the pig Leander has escaped his bath-tub prison and is at large in the house.

In Act III further panic is caused by the real Violet's arrival, saying she is pursued by police, and "federal men" and must hide. She is followed by a country friend of Sis Perkins', Elvira Sniffkins (Mary Sisson), and the disgusted and terrified Marcia insists they must be got rid of, before more complications arise. The ensuing burst of indignation from Sis at her relatives' cruel behavoir to her, is one of the finest pieces of acting in the whole performance.

Meanwhile Mrs. Chandler and Marcia rejoice over the latter's engagement to the supposed Count, but in the last scene Sis re-appears to denounce him as an imposter and criminal whom Elvira had seen in custody for a bank hold-up. Events then quickly draw to happy climax, with the aunt and cousin expressing gratitude and begging forgiveness from Sis. Violet Astor comes to say she has found a job for Baldwin and will "wait" for him, Lydia is told of the Count's exposure and, confronted with the real Violet, departs hastily. Finally, Jay Schuyler, (Arthur King) owner of a radio station who first appeared in Act I to interview Violet Astor, and meeting Sis fell in love with her, returns with a contract for Sis to sing Hill-Billy songs over his station, and the play ends with her promise to marry him when she is sufficiently "eddicated".

In order of appearance the characters were as follows: Carter, Donald Menzie; Mrs. Elizabeth Chandler, Phyllis Hill; Marcia, Mildred White; Baldwin, Alan Worsencroft; Lydia La Sale, Florence Outram; Sis Perkins, Edith Abraham; Jay Schuyler, Arthur King; Count de Long, Douglas Weir; Elvira Sniffkins, Mary Sisson; Violet Astor, Mary Cavalier. The production was directed by Les Cavalier, president of the A.Y.P.A. and other arrangements were as follows: Properties, Ken Gibson; electrician, Arthur Privett; cue master, Lewis Barry; treasurer, Dorothy White.

Between act, piano selections by Bert Lacey and amusing recitations by J. R. Sharp, entertained the audience. Little packets of homemade candy were also sold.

Enoyable Party Under Auspices Conservative Women's Association

A large crowd of over two hundred attended the card party and dance held by the Conservative Women's Association in the Canadian Legion Hall Thursday night. The hall was decorated in an effective and unusual manner—gay fishes of brilliant hues leaped amongst modernistic sea weed in an ocean of blue and silver waves across the walls and back of the orchestra stand, which was flanked on either side by panels of yellow crepe paper shaded to deep orange. Jack Marshall's talented orchestra entertained the throng of dancers, and a special square dance number was much enjoyed and enthusiastically applauded.

The door prize was won by T. P. Lancaster of Havelock, who held the winning ticket No. 80. Card prizes were as follows: Bridge, first prize, Mrs. N. L. Paterson and Mrs. Roy Pogue, Consolation prize, Miss Maude Perry. Euchre, first prize, W. Hepburn and Mrs. W. Hepburn, Consolation, Miss Dorothy Dennison.

Refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Thos. Skinner, convenor, assisted by the executive of the Ladies Conservative Association.

The guest speakers of the evening, introduced by Chairman G. K. Fraser of Burleigh Falls, were Senator Iva Campbell Fallis and A. Martin, K.C., treasurer of the Conservative Association of Ontario, and president of the Hamilton Conservative Association.

Honored guests present were Senator Iva Campbell Fallis and Mr. Howard Fallis and Mr. and Mrs. A. Martin of Hamilton. Patrons and patronesses included Senator Iva Campbell Fallis and Mr. Howard Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Fraser of Burleigh Falls, Morley Smithson, Otonabee, E. A. Peck, K.C., Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jaunty Reefer

By Central Press

What is smarter or more comfortable for casual sports wear and travel than a jaunty reefer?

Katharine Hepburn is shown wearing one of natural camel's hair, with large disk buttons in double-breasted effect, and a tailored brown velvet collar.

Comfortable pockets, which may be used to hold handkerchief, gloves and compact, at least, wide revers and loose long sleeves are other features of this good looking wrap.

Lakefield Personals

Card party of the season was held by the A.Y.P.A. of St. John the Baptist Church, Lakefield last week in the Parish Hall, Queen St.

The prizes were won as follows: Ladies' first prize, Mrs. H. Crowe; men's first prize, Rev. W. J. Creighton; ladies' consolation, Miss Marion Comrie; men's consolation, Darcy Wilson; lucky chair prize, Miss Mary Davis.

A. B. Windsor made the draw from the lucky tickets sold on a blanket. The blanket was won by Leslie Cavalier of Peterborough.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The duty which no one can disclaim, the test which no one may evade, and the praise which no one will despise, are all included in the homely word of usefulness. Who will pretend that he cannot be useful if only he cares to be, who will say that it is not his duty?"

—Bishop Thorold.

Dear Friends:

This is only part of the Bishop's quotation, the rest will follow. But isn't it true? What more slighting thing can we say of anyone than that he is useless? And what contempt in our voice when we say it.

The youngest child (not an infant) can be useful, and even an infant can divert our minds from their worries, so they too have their useful part. The ultimate in pain and loneliness comes when we feel that we are no longer of use to someone.

But, that only comes when we have centred our usefulness on one or two nearest to us. Their day with us is past, someone else does what we used to do for them. But there are always some who need what we can do, if we don't shut ourselves away from them.

We hear it said often, that "life begins at forty, or fifty, or sixty. Life begins as soon as you make yourself useful, whether it be in earning a living or anything else. The Bishop tells us further: "We admire a man's brilliancy, or we envy his capacity, or we listen to his eloquence; but a man may be all three, and yet the world be not much better for him, possibly the worse."

And we see that on all sides. We see clever people who have helped no one with this cleverness, least of all themselves. We see brilliant students, or brilliant people, but how little does their radiance help anyone. We see those whom we recognize as capable, but who were not capable of using it.

Maybe it is the Scotch side of me which hates to see all this waste, and maybe again I feel how much the world could use all this, if only those who are gifted with it were useful. But no, they seem to think they have done their part by just being like that, without ever putting it to use.

And this is how the Bishop concludes: "But to say that a man is useful—in other words, that he has served God in his generation with such gifts as were at his disposal, and earned when he died the two great rewards of being missed and being regretted—is, after all, the greatest commendation that a human soul can receive."

Not long ago, I heard a remark passed about a man who had died and was being buried. They said, (his friends who knew him) "Oh, he'll never be missed. He was a useless sort of a fellow, clever, but never used it, capable, but did nothing with it. He'll soon be forgotten."

And I thought, what an epitaph he had left for himself, all that ability to be carried unused with him into the grave, yet how many do just as he did, carry it around unused, and what good does it do anyone?

One day a lady came to me in great trouble. She wanted to die, for, she said, I feel so useless. I asked if she were strong, and she was. I asked if she could do this or that, and she could. So I told her to get busy and do them. With all the help needed in the world today, it is a crime for anyone to think they are useless.

But so many seem only to want to be useful where they can get a lot of credit for it. There are lonely orphans whom a person could cheer, there are many lonely ones in hospitals, in sanitariums, in fact you don't have to go to any of these places, for there are lonely ones all around us.

And there are things staring you in the face in your own home if you want to be useful, and if you neglect doing them, you are making a sad mess of your life, and will not be missed when you're gone. Hoping I have been useful to you.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

A Favorite

PINK IS tops in color circles this spring. It may be used merely as an accent in trimmings or jewelry, or it may make a whole dress, suit or coat.

Most of us recall a great fondness for pink in our childhood. It seemed to us a beautiful shade. Most of us have never outgrown our fondness for it, either, whether we admit it or not.

Little Ann Rutherford, screen player, is wearing a shell pink dress for an afternoon at a resort. Schnapps, the dachshund, likes to go for a walk with Ann and her pink dress. The dress is made of rough crepe and has a scalloped split at the hemline of her skirt in front.

The scarf she wears is doubonnet with shell pink dots and the becoming hat is also shell pink with dubonnet binding.

MRS. J. A. BROWN IS ELECTED HEAD OF HASTINGS W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 6. — The Hastings branch of the Women's Institute held its annual meeting in the Council Chambers on Tuesday afternoon, when the president, Mrs. C. M. Baker was in charge of the proceedings. Mrs. J. A. Brown read the correspondence, which included a letter from Mrs. H. Clark, past president of the West Seymour branch, requesting the local branch to sponsor a play presented by their members. The program included a demonstration on the baking of tea biscuits by Mrs. C. M. Baker, and the characteristics of good tea biscuits by Mrs. J. A. Brown.

Mrs. R. King conducted a contest. The prize of a sugar and cream set was won by Mrs. Brown. The president thanked the members for their co-operation and support. Mrs. J. A. Walsh voiced the sentiments of all present when she moved a hearty vote of appreciation to Mrs. Baker, the retiring president, for her faithful services during the two years she capably filled the office.

The secretary, Mrs. J. A. Brown, presented the annual report, showing there were 28 members, nine meetings were held, and one special evening meeting. Fourteen papers and addresses had been given. The activities were many and varied. W.I. sponsored a public celebration in the Hastings Park in May to commemorate the Coronation of the King and Queen. Two red maples were planted.

Mrs. O. Phillips presented the treasurer's report, showing total receipts $108.37. The auditors, Mrs. G. Sine and Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, reported the books examined and found correct. The election of officers for the year 1938-1939 resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. J. A. Brown; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. A. Walsh; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Roy King; secretary, Mrs. G. Fox; assistant secretary, Mrs. C. M. Baker; treasurer, Mrs. O. Phillips; district representative, Mrs. J. A. MacDonald; auditors, Mrs. R. King and Mrs. J. A. MacDonald; pianist, Mrs. E. Richardson; press representative, Mrs. R. King; representatives to the district annual, Mrs. J. A. Brown, Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, Mrs. Gordon Fox, and Mrs. A. V. German.

Following the meeting, Mrs. C. M. Baker provided the luncheon.

Wages of 1,960,000 people in England increased $955,000 in two months of this year.

After Signing British-Eire Pact

London photographers snapped pictures of Eamon de Valera, prime minister of Ireland, as he emerged from No. 10 Downing St., after the signing of the treaty of trade and friendship, between England and Eire. The pact signing marked the end of six-year trade war and the beginning of a period of amity after centuries of bitterness. While details of the accord were not made public, it was understood that Ireland would become Britain's chief war-time "larder" and at the same time agreeing to take more British manufactured goods.

OSHAWA WOMAN TO STAND TRIAL FALSE PRETENCES

OSHAWA, Ont., May 6—(CP).—Mrs. Anastatia Krawchuk was committed for trial on a charge of false pretences when she appeared before Magistrate Frank Ebbs yesterday.

She is charged with obtaining $4,942 from the Workmen's Compensation Board over a period of years.

S. R. Johnston, secretary of the board, testified L. Manilla, first husband of the accused woman, died in 1921, following an accident at the plant where he was employed here. At time of his death there were five children under 16 eligible for compensation. Each was eligible for $10 a month, and the widow to $47 a month, provided she did not remarry.

Payments were made, he said, on this basis until 1923, when the Compensation Act was amended. She was then informed her compensation would amount to $54.17 a month. In the past 17 years she had been paid a total of $8,678.99.

The Crown alleged that in November, 1923, Mrs. Manilla had remarried but had failed to notify the board.

Man Is Being Held For Molesting Girl

STRATFORD, Ont., May 6—(C.P.—A man who gave his name as Brock Bendall (40 Vansittart street) Woodstock, appeared in police court before Mrs. F. Robinson, J.P. today on a nominal charge of vagrancy following complaints from a 12-year-old girl that he attempted to molest her near the Parkview street entrance to Queen's Park last night.

He was not asked to plead and was remanded until tomorrow. The girl complained to her parents at once and police arrested Bendall in that district a few minutes later. The man said he is 21 years old and married.

CASE IN 3RD DAY MUST START OVER AS JURYMAN DIES

TORONTO, May 6—(CP), — A mistrial was directed by Mr. Justice Norman Urquhart today when he was informed a petit juror in the manslaughter trial of James Sweetman had died suddenly.

A sheriff's officer testified Austin Brillinger, an insurance salesman, had been identified as dead at a Toronto hospital and only 11 jurymen were on hand to continue the hearing, now in its third day. The officer could not say what was the cause of death.

The accused man will be tried again at the convenience of crown authorities with a new jury, the judge directed.

Sweetman was being tried in connection with the deaths of Thomas Beedle, blind news vendor, and his wife, struck by Sweetman's automobile on a city street Christmas morning.

"I understand that in cases like this the balance of the jury should be discharged or a new juryman should be chosen to fill the vacant place," said V. O. Gibson, K.C., for the crown. "I'm in the unfortunate position of not knowing if the crown witnesses could be called again on short notice, so I think the jurors should be discharged and the trial recommenced."

Earl Groh, Sweetman's attorney, asked that the trial be resumed with another juror, but the judge interposed with: "I think that the best interests of justice would be served by my directing a mistrial and that the accused be tried again at the convenience of a crown with a new jury."

Mr. Justice Urquhart expressed sympathy for the dead juryman's family.

Mr. Clarence Hubel left on Monday for Toronto to resume his position on one of the Great Lake boats.

Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Russell of Toronto are spending a few days at their Round Lake cottage.

The play from Cordova, "Simple Simon Simple" which was to be put on in the Havelock town hall on Friday May 6, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church, has been postponed until Thursday, May 12.

CAR RUNS AMOK LEAPS IN CANAL NEAR CARDINAL

Diver Locates Youth, 20, Drowned Behind Wheel Under 18 Feet of Water

CARDINAL, Ont., May 7.—(CP).—Bruce Wingard, 20, son of George Wingard of Williamsburg, Ont., was drowned near here early to-day when his automobile plunged from highway into the Galops canal. Cardinal is on the St. Lawrence river, 50 miles south of Ottawa.

Wingard was returning to Williamsburg when the accident occurred on a curve. The body was found in the front seat of the car when the machine was hoisted on to the steamship Knowlton.

Summoned from nearby Morrisburg, a diver descended into 18 feet of water to prepare for the hoisting the car.

Only witness of the accident was an United States tourist, who saw the car leave the curve and catch the canal bank at a 45 degree angle which it went along for more than 200 feet. Leaving the top of the bank at the same angle the car hurled through the air for 150 feet, landing on a stone copping 35 feet below. The car then bounced about 40 feet and plunged into the water.

BABY'S CRIES SAVE FAMILY FROM FIRE

WINDSOR, Ont., May 7.—(CP).—Cries of a three-months-old baby early to-day saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pare and their two children when fire of unknown origin destroyed their four roomed home in Sandwich West Township. Only a few belongings were saved, so fast did the flames sweep through the building.

The human alarm was Baby Ruth Ann who began to cry, wakening her father and mother. They found the kitchen was a mass of flames. Pare snatched up 18-month-old Alexander from his crib, while Mrs. Pare bundled up Ruth Ann. They stumbled through dense smoke to the open air.

Pare called upon his father, Albert Pare, who lives 200 feet away, and together they tossed pails of water on the flames but to no avail. The roof of the one-storey building collapsed a short time later. Loss was estimated at $3,000.

With no local fire-fighting forces available, Pare called the Windsor Fire Department, but was informed they could not go out on the call because they had no guarantee the city would be recompensed for the service. However, they responded a short time later but by that time even the walls of the building had collapsed.

Jap Base Garrison Surrounded, Feared Doomed

Loss of Nantungchow Will Strand Army of 10,000; Chinese Reds Sweep Down on Peiping—City in Panic

SHANGHAI, May 7 (AP).—Three thousand Chinese guerilla troops, fighting recklessly in the streets of Nantungchow, threatened today to annihilate the Japanese garrison of that supply base on the north bank of the Yangtse river, 60 miles north of Shanghai.

Japanese re-inforcements were rushed from Shanghai in a desperate effort to save the decimated garrison and retain possession of the important base town.

Loss of Nantungchow would cut supply and communication lines men operating in north Kiangsu province. This army was last reported 60 miles south of the Lunghai railway, fighting in the vicinity of Powning.

Foreigners arriving from Yangtse ports said scores of Chinese civilians already had been killed and hundreds were hiding in terror while hand-to-hand fighting raged inside the walls of Nantungchow.

The Chinese guerillas infiltrated Nantungchow three days ago and attacked by surprise, inflicting many casualties which numbered only 300 son, which numbered only 300 men at the outset. Remnants of the garrison were last reported fighting for their lives.

Peiping Terrified

PEIPING, May 7 (CP-Havas)—Rumble of distant artillery and reports a powerful, well-equipped force of Chinese "irregulars" was closing in on this north China capital caused near panic here today.

All gates of the walled city were closed and persons entering or leaving were questioned and searched by Japanese military authorities.

Unconfirmed reports said units of Chinese "Communist" guerillas were in the hills only eight miles west and 12½ miles east of the city.

With only a handful of Japanese troops available, the provisional government appointed General Li Fu-Ho to operate against the irregulars as commander of the "first expeditionary force against Communist troops," with a monthly war chest of 120,000 yen $34,800). General Li recently surrendered to the Japanese army with 15,000 men.

Detachments of the pro-Japanese garrison conducted house-to-house searches in various parts of the Chinese district where discontent was reported nearin ga critical stage as a result of mounting food prices and obligatory use of Japanese currency.

GRAPPLING IRONS FIND LONDON M.P. IN QUEBEC RIVER

BUCKINGHAM, Que., May 7.—(CP)—Swift waters of the Blanche river today yielded the body of Fred C. Betts, 42-year-old Conservative member of the House of Commons for London. He drowned in the stream, about 35 miles east of Ottawa, while on a fishing trip Tuesday.

Identification of the body was established by D. C. Betts of Toronto, a cousin, after a grappling party took it from 10 feet of water in a small bay about 20 feet from the slippery, tree-clad shore. Eugene Decosse, special investigator for the Quebec Attorney-General's department and three Mayo residents recovered the body shortly before 8.00 a.m. E.D.T. after grappling since daybreak.

Dr. W. J. Costello of Buckingham was notified and went to the river bank near Mayo in a wild section of Papineau county. Plans called for removal of the body to a Buckingham undertaking establishment and then it will be taken to Ottawa.

Dr. Costello found Mr. Betts suffered a fractured skull and broken nose. He cast aside any suggestion of foul play and the injuries were ascribed to falling either on the rocky shore or the riverbed.

Examination of Mr. Betts' pockets disclosed his money and watch intact. The watch stopped at 8.25 o'clock.

Grapplers found the body about three-quarters of a mile upstream from a rickety bridge near the spot Mr. Betts parked his rented car Tuesday. Discovery of the car on Thursday and a check with an Ottawa auto livery led to the search.

Two Crews At Work

Decosse and Sergeant Paul Miller of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police co-operated in the quest for the missing man. One grappling party conducted an intensive search yesterday and it was augmented by another crew for today's search.

The officers called for grapplers after questioning residents and scouting along the steep shores of the river. The bridge, known as O'Leary's bridge, crosses a swift stretch of rapids. Between these rapids and another area of rough water the body was found.

Upper stretches of the river were searched yesterday after officers concluded Mr. Betts lost his footing

Ontario Prepares For Paralysis

Survey Being Made of Ontario Experts for Advice As Province Fears Return of Dreaded Epidemic

TORONTO, May 7 (CP).—Ontario's Department of Health today prepared its defences against another onslaught of dreaded infantile paralysis. First step was a survey of Ontario experts for advice. This should be completed in two weeks when the department will lay its recommendations before the cabinet for consideration.

Dr. J. T. Phair, Ontario's chief medical officer, announced the survey plans as he forecast probability of another epidemic as serious as last year's 2,650 cases. Aboot 80 out of each 100,000 people in the province were afflicted and 4.8 per cent of those afflicted died.

"We hope we are wrong, but the extent of our medical knowledge today gives every indication there will be a return of poliomyelitis," Dr. Phair said in an interview.

"Last year we guessed beforehand would be a bad year and we were prepared. The extent of the disease was greater than any of us ever expected. We learned last year it was impossible to predict a season of increased incidence."

Cost $250,000 Last Year

Last year the Ontario government spent roughly $250,000 fighting spread of the disease and for the lives of paralysis sufferers. Expenditures this year again will be determined by the government and the situation.

The government has determined on two ways of meeting the situation, further plans wait upon conclusion of the survey, delayed until conclusion of the Ontario Medical Association convention here.

Respirators, improved models of iron lungs will be placed in areas of congestion of cases and the plan of placing expert consultants in key points too will be followed again.

Sidelight in the constant battle against the disease was given by Dr. Phair, who said one reason why further discoveries of the nature of paralysis seemed slow was every time an outbreak developed which would give investigators a chance to do detailed laboratory study, they were so busy with saving lives, they had no time for research.

Promises To Ask Praha Heads Be Reasonable

Hopes Germany Can Solve Problem 'On Own Strength' Pair Talk 4-Power Pact—Rain Spoils Air Show

ROME, May 7. (AP).—Premier Mussolini, according to German sources, has agreed to give Germany a free hand in Czechoslovakia, so far as Italy is concerned.

Mussolini was said to have promised, during a conversation last night with Chancellor Hitler, to bring diplomatic pressure to bear upon the Czechoslovakian government to be "reasonable" in meeting German demands.

The German sources said Mussolini agreed Italy was a disinterested party in Czechoslovakia, and that the Sudeten German problem was on which concerned only the Germans and Czechoslovakia.

Mussolini was reported to have expressed hope Germany would be able to solve the problem "on her own strength.". He also was quoted as having expressed the conviction that a solution of the German problem in Czechoslovakia would contribute to the stabilization of European peace.

After the dictators had talked in private for an hour, the German foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, and Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, were called in and the conversations continued for another hour.

Mussolini's pet project—rejuvenation of the four-power pact scheme—was reported to have been the chief topic. Hitler, according to German sources, indicated willingness to join in such a pact (involving France, Great Britain, Italy and Germany) but left no doubt he considered it essential that Italo-French and Anglo-German understandings preced such an agreement.

Rain washed out the big air and artillery show planned today for Hitler of Germany, making tonight's state dinner at Palazzo Venevia the high spot of the day's round of festivities. Mussolini and Hitler were to speak briefly at the banquet. During the week, the two Nazi-Fascist chieftains have talked in private of the Rome-Berlin axis, in the light of Hitler's annexation of Austria which put German troops at Italy's back door, and Premier Mussolini's pact of friendship with Britain.

Hitler and Mussolini motored to Santa Marinella for the aerial and sham battle manoeuvres, but turned back when it became apparent the 400 planes in the show could not take off from the sodden airfield.

Yesterday, Il Duce paraded 30,000 troops, equipped with every device of modern warfare, before Hitler in Rome. These were a part of the 9,000,000 men Mussolini says he can muster in time of war.

5 CARS OUT OF 93 IN COBOURG TEST PASS FIRST TIME

COBOURG, May 7.—Cobourg motorists started yesterday to beat the unenviable record set up early this week by Port Hope drivers, figures released Friday on Thursday's auto-testing by the Garage Operators' Association reveal. Only five cars of a total of ninety-three were passed as being in good mechanical condition when examined the first time. In all, only twenty-four okay stickers were issued, and nineteen of this number were handed out after one or more deficiencies had been repaired.

A rumor which swept through the town early Thursday morning in which it was whispered that Toronto police would not recognize stickers handed out by the garagemen kept the number of cars driven to the site of the safety station away below expectations. A. E. Lewis, secretary of the association, was informed of this rumor and he immediately checked with Inspector Edward Dunn of the Toronto police. The Toronto officer said that his men would be glad to recognize these stickers, and pointed out that the safety campaign being waged in Cobourg was being conducted with the co-operation of the police of that town.

Suprised That Cars Used

As in the case of the Port Hope figures, which showed that all of the autos examined very few were in safe mechanical condition, Mr. Lewis expresed himself as being surprised that anybody would take out a car in the condition of some of those tested. He said that the service brakes on many of these vehicles were so bad that they were practically useles. In addition to the brake defects, many cars were being driven with none or very poor lights and the windshields of many more were so dirty that visibility was almost impossible.

The safety campaign continues in Cobourg today and then opens in Colborne Monday morning, being conducted in that village until Tuesday evening.

Drive Continues in Toronto

Meanwhile, in Toronto, the biggest safety drive ever held continued without the slightest abatement and 206 cars and trucks got a critical "once-over" at the hands of the squad of fourteen motorcycle officers assigned to this work. Fifty-four vehicles were found to be defec-

AVOID VIOLENCE BRITAIN WARNS BERLIN, PRAHA

France Joins in Caution With "Fingers Crossed" Fearful Plans May Slip

PARIS, May 7.—(AP). — The French and British governments today instructed their ambassadors at Berlin and Praha to deliver notes to Germany and Czechoslovakia, cautioning them against violence in settling the clamor of the German minority in Czechoslovakia for increased political privileges.

The warning, the Associated Press learned, carries the inference that "rough handling" by Germany of the issue of the 3,500,000 German residents of Czechoslovakia almost certainly would cause war.

Sir Neville Henderson, British ambasador in Berlin, was to see Acting Chancellor Herman Goering to-day to convey his government's views.

The Anglo-French effort was two-pointed, with diplomats hoping first to get Czechoslovakia to do everything possible for its German Nazi minority, and second to make clear to both the concern lest there be violence.

An Anglo-French effort was also under way to smooth the path to recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia by the League of Nations Council which meets Monday. With their fingers figuratively crossed against every possible upset of their plans, the French indicated they had persuaded both China and Russia to refrain from opposition to recognition of Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia.

Great Britain in her new pact with Italy agreed to sponsor Italy's cause before the League, where Haile Selassie still is regarded officially as Ethiopia's ruler.

ONTARIO FRIENDLY CONANT INSISTS

TORONTO, May 7 (CP).—Ontario's plea for full control over income taxes and exemption of mining from Dominion corporation taxation was before the Rowell commission today, with the repeated assurance that the province wanted to live on good terms with its provincial neighbors.

The Ontario government's presentation wound up yesterday with Attorney-General Gordon Conant declaring that Canadians had to be not optimistic but determined that current problems would be met, the same way confederation was brought about—by conferences.

Chairman N. W. Rowell gave his hearty endorsation of the idea. The commission's part in the picture was primarily to dig out the real facts of the situation as a basis for conference discussion.

With the government's statement completed, the commission last night were dinner guests of Lieutenant-Governor Albert E. Matthews. Today they are being conducted on a tour of the Niagara Peninsula by the provincial government. Monday they briefly resume work here by receiving remaining submission of provincial and national organizations, before leaving for Quebec Tuesday.

Outpost Hospital Serves 1,000

TORONTO, May 7 (CP).—Report of outpost hospital service at an executive committee meeting of the Ontario Division, Canadian Red Cross Society, told of the opening of a one-nurse outpost hospital in October at Armstrong, an isolated railway town between Nakina and Sioux Lookout.

The report, made at the committee meeting yesterday, said the hospital will serve more than 1,000 persons, including 300 Indians. Plans for a permanent hospital originated, the report said, from the service rendered in the district by the Red Cross railway hospital car stationed at Armstrong from November, 1936, to October, 1937.

Talked Out 3 Times In House Bridge Bill Gets Reading

Tory Opposition To Ontario Scheme Weakens, Debate Lasts Only 20 Minutes

OTTAWA, Ont., May 7.—(CP).—After being "talked out" eight times in the House of Commons' private members' hour, the Ontario Government's bill for authority to build a bridge over the Niagara gorge has at last passed through committee stage. All it needs now, so far as the Commons is concerned, is third reading and that is always a formality. The measure then will go to the Senate. Last night it passed through committee stage in the House.

Conservative opposition, particularly from Ontario members of the party, prevented passage of the bill in the eight hours it was given consideration previously this session. Repeatedly Conservatives spoke on the measure at such length that private members' hour expired before any action could be taken.

Last night it took only 20 minutes for it to be reviewed clause by clause. Conservative Leader Bennett, who had objected to the bill previously and had succeeded in having one amendment to it passed, made objections to some clauses. But there was none of the concerted Conservative attack that had been levelled at the measure before.

The bill would give a company power to build the Canadian end of a bridge to span the gorge in place of the Falls Views bridge which collapsed under ice pressure last January. Before it can be built New York state must pass legislation authorizing building of the American end.

Fishers Use Baskets To Steer Ship

Aberdeen, May 7 (AP)

WHEN his ship lost her rudder, the captain of the Swedish fishing boat Bohusian used fish baskets to steer her 100 miles to port. Worthless Cheques Jail Ex-Banker 'Michigans's Youngest Manager'

Hamilton, May 7 (CP)—

GEORGE AGNEW, Acton, described as "the youngest man ever to manage a bank in Michigan" was sentenced to two months in jail by Magistrate James McKay today, on a charge of false pretences involving the passing of a worthless cheque in payment for gasolene. One other charge was not prosecuted.

Joseph Sullivan, defence counsel, told the court that Agnew entered the employ of a Michigan banking firm while quite young, and in a short time was elevated to manager of a branch. The bank closed during the depression.

Pressing circumstances in the home, where he must support his parents, his wife and children, prompted him to pass the cheque in desperation, defence counsel said.

"I understand the family lost their home and furniture yesterday," he said.

Magistrate McKay held that it was no less an offence because of the circumstances.

Tide Of By-election In Britain Runs Against Government

In Seven Contests Since October Labor Has Won Six, a Gain of Four

LONDON, May 7.—(CP Cable.)—The by-election tide is running against the National Government.

In the House of Commons Prime Minister Chamberlain has scored success after success. The threatened split in Conservative ranks which followed Chancellor Hitler's seizure of Austria disappeared in a brief week-end.

Imposing majorities supported successive developments of Mr. Chamberlain's foreign policy, including the agreements with Italy and Eirie.

But in by-election battles the government has been less fortunate. In seven contested seats since October, the Government met Labor in straight fights. Five of the seats were vacated by government members, two by Labor members.

Labor Gains Four.

Labor not only retained easily its own seats but captured four of the five Government seats. In North Islington a Government majority of 3,385 was converted into a Labor majority of 1,296. In Ipswich a government majority of 7,250 was converted into a labor majority of 3,161.

In West Fulham the Government majority of 3,483 became a Labor majority of 1,421 and in Lichfield this week Labor converted a Government majority of 3,298 into a Labor majority of 826.

In Hastings the Government retained a seat but with its majority reduced by 4,314.

2 Hamilton Students Leave For School, Vanish Carrying Suitcases

Hamilton, May 7 (CP)

SEARCH was redoubled today for two Westdale Collegiate students reported missing Thursday.

Police were informed that William Herbert Morrison, 15, and William Upsdell, 14, had left their homes Thursday at the usual time to attend classes and that they didn't reach the school.

Neither boy had any money but they were believed to have carried two suitcases, according to information gleaned from neighbours.

"Their chums later told us the two boys had spoken of going to Simcoe but we know of no reason why they should go there." Mrs. Morrison said today.

Five Basic Principles Govern Art Of Interior Decorating

Lionel Scott Of Toronto Addresses Audience At St. Andrew's

Lionel Scott of Toronto, well known interior decorator, addressed an audience in St. Andrew's Sunday School Friday afternoon, speaking on his subject to which he applied the five basic principles that govern all fine art, showing how endless are its possibilities in our homes, which are the background of our development. The type of life we enjoy depends largely on our setting he said.

The audience was welcomed by Mrs. Paige Rowell, president of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's on behalf of Mrs. Ivan Lillico's group, under whose auspices the address was given. The lecturer was introduced as one who has studied in Vienna, London, Paris, Munich and Amsterdam, with mention of his radio talks and columns under "The Home Beautiful," and other activities in connection with his work.

"Proportion," governing the shape of a room or object, was the first principle mentioned. Long rooms should be furnished and decorated to appear more square—not like a corridor lined with furniture, and very square rooms arranged to look less so. "Balance" was discussed. There is a formal balance, a table with a chair at each end for instance, or two pictures exactly over a buffet, and there is a synthetic or informal balance which is harder to achieve. This is the balancing of unequal objects in groups, and in this case the large pieces of furniture should be placed nearer the centre.

Next came "scale" which governs the relationship between objects and the space into which they must fit. It is offensive and common to see furniture where it has not right to be, the lecturer declared—a massive table with a small delicate chair beside it, and vice versa, a huge chair with a spindly little table, and lamps are place out of all proportion to what they stand on. "And patterns, a big flowing flamboyant style with nearby a little pattern, picked up some time for a bargain. Oh, those bargains!"

Distributing Color

"Rhythm" is another principle of fine art. As in music so in color there are notes, and color should be distributed about a room so that background, draperies and furniture colors flow together in harmony—not everything popping out individually. Finally, there must be a center of interest, as the focal point in a picture to which the eye is inevitably drawn. A room must be tied up, so to speak, with no loose ends clamoring for attention.

"Not one person in fifty uses the things they own to the best advantage, so that a room gives the three-fold impression of comfort, charm and relaxation with its sense of pleasure," declared Mr. Scott. Nine out of ten rooms have white ceilings which reflect the hardest light. Drop ceilings were also decried by the lecturer, who strongly advised tinted ceilings.

"The average room is abominably lit," he said. "Either too little with dingy lomps, or with a bright and glaring centre light, or with a profusion of orange shades and bulbs, which have the effect of making colors go drab." Fifteen feet candles of light is the nearest to the ideal for the eyes, and the average room has only three and half to five or six. A soft, even light, with a generous number of lamps, will repay a hundredfold in health and enjoyment, he declared.

Look Over Setting

"Look over your personal setting for yourself, see if it suits you and use your intelligence in choosing backgrounds, wallpapers, ceiling tints and woodwork," was the advise given. The outside of a house should suggest security, the inside adventure. Use colors that are rich and gay and look alive. The arrangement of a room is limited to a certain extent by the large pieces of furniture, but the balance may be kept by placing them with the large architectural units, as a large chair by an archway. "If an unbalanced arrangement has to be made, resort room. Old furniture should not be field covered or a piano painted in a slightly darker shade than the wall behind it, Mr. Scott suggested, and spoke of establishing a sense of balance and rhythm with colors. Some color schemes are overdone, as rust and green, taupe and blue, but they may be livened with the introduction of rich accents.

A warning note was sounded to be careful with pictures—not too much still life in the dining room or tob many portraits in the living room. Old fruniture should not be used because it is old, but for its intrinsic merit and combined with a worthy setting. It is important that people use what they have to the best advantage, remembering that a home effects the taste and breeding of an individual through the years. In closing Mr. Scott drew attention to the fact that everything in history has its prototype, and the various periods in furnishing, as Queen Anne, later 18th Century, Henry VIII, still make suitable settings for different individuals.

tive, thirty-six cars and eighteen trucks. Two truck-drivers will be summoned for driving with defective service brakes, while six car operators will also get blue papers for the same reason.

Police again reported that no unsafe vehicles were ordered off the road as they paid tribute to the fine co-operation being extended them by the motoring public. Not one of the fourteen constables reported any difficulties with motorists as they stopped autos and trucks in all parts of the city from early morning until dark.

MARKETING BOARD NOW ORGANIZED READY FOR WORK

OTTAWA, May 7.—(CP)—Organization under the Agriculture Department of an office devoted to the promotion of marketing Canadian foodstuffs on the British market and co-operating with the provinces to keep unsuitable merchandise from going abroad, has been completed.

Description of this fresh effort to improve sales of Canadian goods in Great Britain was given in the House of Commons last night by Agriculture Minister Gardiner. William Allen, formerly of the University of Saskatchewan, has been appointed Dominion Commissioner for the task and started work May 1. His salary is $5,280 a year.

This insight into the department's activities came as a change from relief and farm implement debates which dominated proceedings in the House of Commons all week. Last evening the House took up estimates of the Agriculture Department.

Describing the new marketing efforts Mr. Gardiner said the government had considered prohibiting export to Great Britain of low grade products "but that would work a hardship and there is really a market abroad for them."

A national mark, taking the form of the bust of a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, had been adopted, the minister said, and this would be used to identify the highest quality goods. It would be the focal point of publicity on Canadian products.

Arrangements had been made to ensure export for a definite quantity of fresh killed beef to the London market, and seeds of a new variety of tomatoes had been distributed in the hope of increasing that market in the United Kingdom. While imports from Spain were cut off because of the civil war.

Better Bacon Handling

Experiments were made with improvements in the handling of bacon and some shipments of fresh eggs had been made to England.

Charges and counter-charges continued to fly across the house yesterday afternoon during debate of the report of the committee on farm implements. Liberal speakers dominated the debate. Most of them urging the lowering or abolition of duties but Hugh Plaxton (Lib. Toronto-Trinity) opposed any change

FRANCE, BRITAIN APPEAL TO CZECHS

PARIS, May 7—(AP).—A joint Franco-British appeal to Czechoslovakia to make utmost concessions to her German minority and a warning to Berlin against committing any "action of violence" will be made within the next 24 hours, sources close to the Foreign Office declared to-day.

Representations by the two governments will follow decisions made by the French and British ministers at their meeting in London aweek ago.

Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador at Berlin, will see Acting Chancellor Hermann Goering today, it was said.

The French and British ministers in Prague will call at the same time on the Czech foreign minister.

WHALING IN ANTARCTIC

PLANS COMPLETED FOR RECEPTION OF LORD TWEEDSMUIR

The program for the reception to be tendered the Governor-General when he visits Peterborough on May 31 was practically completed at a meeting held in the city council chamber Friday afternoon, presided over by Ald. G. N. Gordon, K.C., chairman of the legal and reception committee.

Other members of the committee present were Aldermen Walter Stocker and Herb. Bradburn. The Girl Guides were represented by Mrs. Whelan and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion by Mrs. Houghton. Fire Chief George Gimblett, president of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion and Doug. Loomis were present as delegates from that body and others in the audience were Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational school. M. H. Gainey, chairman of the Separate School Board, John Hornsby, District Commissioner of Boy Scouts, and A. L. Killaly, superintendent of the Trent Canal.

Lord Tweedsmuir will be welcomed at the C.P.R. station at 11 o'clock on the morning of May 31 by the Mayor and Council, and a guard of honor composed of five officers and 100 non-commissioned officers and men from the Prince of Wales Rangers.

Placing a Wreath.

It was suggested at yesterday's meeting that the placing of a wreath on the war memorial in Confederation Square by the Governor-General should take place immediately after he has inspeced the guard at the station, the band and guard to escort him to Confederation Square.

The vice-regal party will then drive to Lakefield in accordance with Lord Tweedsmuir's request that he be given an opportunity to visit the Lakefield Preparatory school. There will be a civic reception tendered him by the village of Lakefield.

Then the party will return to Peterborough and the Governor-General will lunch in his private car. At 3 o'clock the civic welcome by the city and county councils will take place at Confederation Square and there the Canadian Legion and the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides will assemble. A platform will be erected in front of the armouries and this will be covered with a marquee. After the address of welcome there will be a reception and all citizens wishing to be presented to His Excellency will have an opportunity.

On the following day Lord Tweedsmuir will be taken on a water trip from Peterborough to Chemong on the Government steamer Bessie Butler and on June 2 the same craft will carry him over a considerable portion of the Trent Waterway to Orillia.

Citizens will be asked to cooperate in making the welcome a success by decorating their homes and places of business.

Lord Tweedsmuir has expressed a wish to visit some of the industrial districts of Peterborough and this will be arranged for the late afternoon of May 31.

Mother's Way

Tender, gentle, brave and true,
Loving us whate'er we do!
Waiting, watching at the gate
For the footsteps that are late,
Sleepless through the hours of night
Till she knows that we're all right,
Pleased with every word we say—
That is ever mother's way.

Others sneer and turn aside
Mother welcomes us with pride;
Overboastful of us, too,
Glorying in all we do,
First to praise and last to blame,
Love that always stays the same
Following us whe'er we stray—
That is ever mother's way.

She would grant us all we seek,
Give her strength where we are weak.
Beauty? She would let it go
For the joy we learn to know.
Life? She'd give it gladly, too,
For the dream that we pursue;
She would toil that we might play—
That is ever mother's way.

Not enough for her are flowers,
Her life is so bent with ours
That in all we dare and do
She is partner, through and through;
Suffering when we suffer pain,
Happy when we smile again,
Living with us night and day,
That is ever mother's way.

—One Who Lost His Mother.

GRAPPLING IRONS

and tumbled into the swift current. A trip through the thick bush by police and newspapermen showed the difficulty of negotiating the trip along the stream even in daylight.

Searchers failed to find Mr. Betts' fishing rod. He wore a sweater, short coat, dark trousers and hip boots. Whereabouts of a brief case the auto livery said he took with him proved a mystery.

Mrs. Betts, staying with friends in Ottawa following her arrival from Hamilton, last night, was grief stricken when informed of her husband's death. A nephew, Clive Betts of London, also was in Ottawa.

The flag high atop the Peace Tower of the parliament buildings was half-masted in tribute to the member, who was a prominent London lawyer and had a fine war record.

Last Man to See Betts

A resident there until mid-week, Isaac Laurin last night supplied police with an account of Mr. Betts' movements up to 10.30 o'clock Tuesday night. Laurin and his son, who lived in a small house on a hilltop above the river, met the Londoner early in the evening.

"I was talkin to him at 8.30 o'clock," Laurin said, after identifying Betts from a picture. "His rod was lying on a rock and he was sitting there smoking. He gave me a cigarette."

That was near the upper rapids beside a small waterfall known as Peggy's Chute. To reach there from the bridge requires a difficult journey through tangled brush and over slippery terrain.

"He went 100 feet down the stream towards the bridge," Laurin continued. "We went down and he was still fishing. We went home about 10.30."

About midnight Laurin heard shouts from the direction of the river, but paid no attention to them. Later he heard two faint cries. "I'm sorry I didn't go down," he said last night.

Sergeant Paul Miller of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; Albert Chartrand, Quebec traffice policeman, and Eugene Decosse, special investigator for the Quebec Attorney-General's Department, found on a test yesterday shouts emanating from the river bank could be heard at the Laurin home, despite the roar of the rapids.

Twice Wounded Overseas

Mr. Betts served in France with the 12th battery of the Canadian Field Artillery. He was commissioned a lieutenant in France and later promoted to captain of the battery. Twice wounded, he was invalided home. After the war he became a major in the battery and commanded it from 1924 to 1929.

Graduate of Ridley College, St. Catharines and Osgoode Hall, Mr. Betts became a member of the London law firm of Cronyn, Betts, Robertson and Harrison, now the firm of Cronyn and Betts.

Member of London City Council from 1928 to 1929, Mr. Betts also attained high rank in legal association. He was a former president of the Middlesex Law Association and a member of the council of the Dominion Bar Association.

He married Catherine Coleman, daughter of Thomas Moore of Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 5, 1936.

An effective debater, Mr. Betts took part in most major discussions in the House of Commons. A. C. Casselman, chief Conservative whip, had him listed as a speaker in the relief debate Wednesday. Colleagues were somewhat puzzled by his absence then and also from a dinner given that night to Hon. H. C. Cahan, veteran Conservative member from Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George.

One of Mr. Bett's latest speeches was in criticism of the military contingent Canada sent to the coronation last May. He argued there were too many officers and not enough men from the ranks included.

BY-ELECTION TIDE

This Council, of which David Lloyd-George is the inspiring spirit, moves independently of regular party organizations. It issues questionnaires to candidates turning largely on their support or otherwise of collective security under the League of Nations.

To candidates whose replies are considered satisfactory the council of action gives support. It enlists the assistance of old local Liberals. Its appeal is mainly to the old Liberal vote.

The result of this has been a sort of unofficial yet effective popular front working against the government.

Air Defence Disturbing

In the House of Commons next Thursday Liberals and Labor plan a joint attack on the government over warplanes. The committee of inquiry which recently investigated civil aviation viewed the position with "grave disquiet."

Critics content that the situation in regard to air defence is no less disturbing. They hold that shadow factory organization is behind schedule, that orders to the regular industry are insufficient, that mass production is ineffective, that an unnecesary number of types clutters up production.

It is argued that although three years have passed since the government first took up air raid precautions there are still no effective plans for air raid shelters or for the evacuation of crowded civilian populations from highly vulnerable areas.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James
Toronto

THE STRONG SON OF GOD.

The centurion, which stood over against Jesus, said: Surely this was the Son of God.—St. Mark 15, 39.

An exclamation of admiration from a fighting man. No man admires courage and true manliness as he who has been a warrior from his youth. The Roman Centurion was the officer in charge of the execution. He would sign the report that the sentence of death had been carried out. He has been watching the Man Whose title is "The King of the Jews." The end has come and the Man died not only as a King but as a Son of God. His heathen teaching taught him that the gods appeared as men from time to time. They were called heroes. It is startling to know, according to a great classical scholar, the Greek idea of a hero. "The hero came into awkward contact with his fellow-men, was suspected, feared, disliked and suffered because he was not entirely a man." It would be very wrong to think that the Centurion believed Jesus Christ is the Son of God in the Christian sense. The margin corrects the translation: "A Son of God."

Perhaps the gravest mistake of modern Christianity is to picture the Lord as a weakling; the Man Who is essentially meek and mild. St. Mark wrote his Gospel for a fighting, ruling race—men who were essentially virile. His whole account, from the story of the desert Prophet, a strong man, to the stronger Jesus of Nazareth, is that of a man Who is essentially virile — a Man Who makes His appeal to men because He is full of power and a strong, outstanding personality, physically, mentally and spiritually.

The earliest Apostles came from the ranks of the disciples of John the Baptist. He appealed to the fiery tempered James and John, the sons of Zebedee. They in turn felt that their new Master was a stronger personality. The Lord looked into the eyes of rough, hardy fishermen and uttered the command: "Follow Me." They obeyed instinctively because His very voice rang with the note of authority.

Little children were attracted to Him. He took them in His arms and they gladly, confidently came to Him because He was not only gentle but they felt the physical strength in His arms.

Moreover He was most sympathetic and compassionate towards women. Splendid women followed and ministered unto Him of their substance because His manliness appealed to them.

Pontius Pilate, the Roman Governor, with years of experience of handling and ruling men, recognized that the Galilean was no ordinary Man. His very insistence on the title: "The King of the Jews" showed that he recognized a strong, outstanding character.

One of Our Lord's Apostles was Simon, the Zealot, a nationalist. He was a fiery, enthusiastic man who had joined the nationalistic party, for only men of courage and fiery zeal were members. They hoped to free their country from the Roman yoke. Such a man would not have followed one who is essentially weak and gentle. The manhood and physical strength of Jesus appealed to him.

Once more look at the dying thief. Very probably he also had joined the nationalistic party and finally drifted into highway robbery. He is watching the dying Sufferer. He marvelled at His refusal of the drugged wine. He listens to His prayer for His murderers. Then suddenly his eyes are opened. He recognizes a King: "Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy Kingdom."

Finally we have the account of Joseph of Aramethea, begging the Body of the Lord. "Pilate marvelled if He were already dead." He had ordered a strong, virile countryman to the Cross. He expected Him to spend long hours on it.

Above all, we have Our Lord's own appeal to men to follow Him. He offers them poverty, hardship, suffering and death. A strong Man appealing to strong men. "And they left all and followed Him."

Is this your mental image of the Lord Christ? Hearken to His last words in the Upper Room. How they ring with courage: "In the world ye shall have tribulation but be of good courage, I have overcome the world."

The Son of God goes forth to war,
A kingly crown to gain;
His blood-red banner streams afar,
Who follows in His train?
A noble army—men and boys,
The matron and the maid;
Around the Saviour's throne rejoice,
In robes of light arrayed.
They climbed the steep ascent of heaven
Through peril, toil and pain;
O God, to us may grace be given
To follow in their train.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

The chief value of belief lies in the degree that our beliefs modify our thoughts and actions. Mere believing is not, nor can it be, an act that in itself raises us, as if by magic, to our true spiritual stature, for in the Divine Justice there is no setting aside of the eternal law of compensation. Nevertheless, belief is a necessary preliminary, an opening of the door, as it were. The law of cause and effect is universal in its scope and action. By it are the heavens formed, and by it everything, from the mightiest galaxy of stars down to the lowest and humblest form of microscopic life is not only brought into being but also sustained in existence. Like causes produce like effects, therefore does hate create hate, indifference beget indifference, and love always find its beloved. Thus we create and mould our destinies according to Eternal Law. We create in the spiritual world and the effect manifests not only in that realm of life but also here in this life. No one else can aid or injure us but we ourselves, for our fate is in our own hands, for we alone set causes into action and we alone experience their resulting effects. We must also recognize the fact that much of what we, in our ignorance, term evil is not evil at all except from our lower viewpoint. Take, for instance, so-called "death." The average man, thinking only in terms of this life, regards its ending as the worst thing that can befall him or his loved ones, but from the Cosmic standpoint this is, by no means, the case, as Cosmically, "death" and "life" are but two viewpoints of one and the same thing. To the mystic it is a far more serious thing to be born than it is to die. At death, the account is closed, the past cannot be remedied, but at birth, the incarnating soul and personality has, the blank page of a new earth life before it, virgin and unsullied to write on as it will. Perhaps it will be a fair and goodly page, perhaps it will be full of errors, covered in blots, no one knows. No one knows what lesson has to be learned, what faults will show, what degree of growth will be attained or how much the pattern will be marred. It is indeed a serious thing to be born. Only the Master Workman beholds in His Mind the ultimate perfection of the eternal design. Let us not then bungle the work He has given us to do, and so be forced to undo our faulty handiwork and start anew, over and over again.

Great Revivals Sermon Subject

Some great revivals of history will be the subject of the address in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday night. These great spiritual movements have been a subject of interest to Christian people in every generation. Some critics have mocked at them on account of the emotionalism which generally accompanied them. Some scientists have studied them from the standpoint of psychology and striven to analyse the instincts and motives which were at work. Most Christian people however have appreciated them at a high value, even though they could not enter sympathetically into all the manifestations that took place in the movements.

A revival generally awakens people from the materialism that engrosses them and fills their hearts with love for God and their fellow men. An outline of the following memorable revivals will be given on Sunday night. A revivial through song is an apt description of the spiritual work of St. Francis of Assisi in Italy in the 12th century which resulted in the founding of the Franciscan order. A revival through prayer describes Tauler's marvellous leadership in Germany, a century later than Francis.

A revivial through thought opens up the discussion of Johnathan Edwards, and the Great Awakening in the New England States in the early 18th Century. A revival through preaching introduces us to George Whitfield who made 13 tours through the United States in the middle 18th Century.

A revival through a sense of duty describes the modest C. G. Finney and his earnest labors on this continent in the early 19th century.

All who pray for a revivial in Canada are cordially invited to attend.

Unusual Service At St. James

Arrangements have been made by the session of St. James Church to honor the life and work of Florence Nightingale in a special service to be held on Sunday evening, May 8, at 7.00.

Florence Nightingale was born in Florence, Italy, on May 12, 1820. Miss Nightingale had the advantage of ideal surroundings and intellectual preference. At the early age of seventeen Florence Nightingale found the round of social pleasures and domestic joys by no means adequate for her awakening soul. Her life was always one of deep spirituality. Her spirit may be likened to that of St. Francis of Assisi. On February 7, 1837, at the age of seventeen she said: "This is the day God called me to His service." A queen once said: "The heroic efforts of Florence Nightingale will be recognized and admired by all ages as long as the world lasts."

For her heroic work as a Christian nurse she was given the "Freedom of the City of London," and the king conferred upon her "The Order of Merit." Her work was permanent and fundamental. At the age of ninety years the light of her lamp went out. The spirit of her whole life is observed in a statement she made when she entered upon her life work: "I stand at the altar of these suffering men, and while I live I will fight for them."

Appropriate music will be rendered by a choir of nurses from Nicholl's Hospital. The superintendent of the hospital, Mrs. E. M. Leeson will, outline the meaning of "The Florence Nightingale Pledge," and Rev. Fred Craik will tell the story of the "Lady With the Lamp"—Queen of Nurses.

A copy of Longfellow's poem, "To Florence Nightingale," will be given to those who attend the service.

Mother's Day

You may give your Mother,
Some flowers—a rose,
It may be some candy,
A book or new clothes.

I'm sure she'll be happy
With something—not bought
It might be a smile,
A kind word or thought.

Whatever you give her,
A great gift or small,
If it's given with love
It's the best gift of all.

A National Message

(By the late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard. LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.)

The Throne of David is one of the organizations within the Israel peoples.

It stands upon its own specific charters. It rules by the authority of its own commission. It is endowed with its own inheritance. It is occupied exclusively by its own line, in the line of the House of David. It is established for ever by the oft-repeated Divine decree.

Issuing out of the Tribal House of Judah, it is established as a separate House, separated from the House of Judah for ages, and only renewing its relationship therewith as its ruler and king.

Interwoven through the post-Davidic Scriptures the position and permanence of the House of David, its history and prophecy are recorded.

It is necessary only to refer to the House of David section of the Book of Isaiah, which comprises chapter vii-xii, as an illustration of the way in which the story of the return of the Lord is told from the standpoint of the House of David, and to point to the face that the New Testament opens with the declaration, "God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David" (Luke 1,32).

The section of Isaiah addressed to and dealing with the continuance of the House of David begins with God's message to Ahaz, continues onward to the birth of the Lord. "For unto us a child is born," and onward still to the establishment of the righteous branch, and the final song of His return in the twelfth chapter of Isaiah, ending "Cry out and shout thou inhabitant of Zion, for great is the Holy One of Israel in the midst of thee."

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 8 is Mark 9:30-41, the Golden Text beng Mark 9:40, "For he that is not against us is for us.")

What is it that is turning the world, not just the other side of the Atlantic and Pacific, but on our side as well, into a mad-house with hordes of men ready to spring at one another with worse than maniacal destructiveness? Is it not selfishness, either in the form of pride or greed?

Antidote to Selfishness

Where shall we find an antidote to this madness that is threatening civilization? Only in the spirit of Christ and of the cross, as Jesus taught it to His disciples, saying, "The Son of man is delivered up into the hands of men and they shall kill; and when He is killed, after three days He shall rise again." But they understood not the saying, and were afraid to ask Him." Like folk who know they should consult a physician or surgeon, but fear to do so because they do not want to face the necessities of their case, so these disciples dreaded the disclosure of the stern necessity of the cross. It was not entirely clear to them, but it was clear enough that they feared to have it made any more clear.

Cross Versus Crown

The reason they dreaded the cross for their Master was that they were unwilling to share the cross themselves. Even as He was telling them of His cross and sufferings they were disputing among themselves as to which of them was to be the greatest. They preferred to angle for crowns rather than to dangle from crosses. Instead of entering into sympathy with their Master in the impending crisis of the cross they were figuring on how they could turn this crisis, whatever it was to be, to their own selfish advantage. So, to teach them the lesson they needed on unselfishness and humility, He said, "If any man would be first, he shall be last of all, and servant of all." "And He took a little child and set him in the midst of them; and taking him in His arms He said unto them, Whosoever shall receive one of such little children in My name, receiveth Me; and whosover receiveth Me, receiveth not Me, but Him that sent Me."

Intolerance Rebuked

How self-centered their thoughts were, is shown in John's confession: "Teacher, we saw one casting out demons in Thy name; and we forbad him, because he followed not us." But Jesus rebuked this effort of John's fora "closed shop" in religion, saying, "Forbid him not: for there is no man who shall do a mighty work in My name and be able quickly to speak evil of Me. For he that is not against us is for us. For whosover shall give you a cup of water to drink, because ye are Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward." Not "Do they follow us," but "Do they follow Christ" is the test of religious workers. He must ever be the centre of gravity in spiritual work. If he includes a worker, who are we to exclude whom he includes, even though that one be able to do no greater service than the giving of a cup of water for Jesus' sake?

STRIKE CALLED OFF

LOUISVILLE, Que., May 7—(CP)—A strike of 950 workers of the Associated Textile of Canada, Limited, was called off early to-day at a meeting of strikers.

The members of the United Textile Workers decided to go back to work with the opening of to-day's shift, ending a walkout that lasted about 48 hours. They had claimed the company violated a wage agreement signed after a strike last fall.

Co-operating in Service — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 9:30-41.

As Jesus journeyed with his disciples he told them more plainly of his approaching sufferings. "The Son of man is delivered up into the hands of men and they shall kill him."

But as he thought of sacrifice his disciples were quarreling among themselves as to which of them was to be the greatest. They thought of only themselves.

So Jesus set a little child in their midst, saying, "Whosoever shall receive one of such little children in my name, receiveth me." "The greatest is the humblest servant of the least."

Because a certain man doing good in Jesus' name was not of their group John forbade the man to continue. But Jesus rebuked this intolerance.

Silence Would Be Better

The Examiner publishes a good deal of material taken from the pages of the daily unrevised official report of debates in the House of Commons. There is a wide range of material from which to make a selection. At times the material used is taken because it is informative and touches on some subject of immediate public concern. Other days we feel moved to print something to illustrate the utter uselessness of having a debate at all because those who participate have either temporarily lost or have never actually possessed an adequate idea of why they have been elected to the House of Commons. As an example of loose talk which is not debating at all, we select this:

Mr. E. J. POOLE (S.C., Red Deer): I want to be quite candid with the Government I think it is the dumbest Government that ever was elected in this country.

Mr. J. A. BRADETTE (Lib., Cochrane): The hon. member should know about "dumbness."

Mr. POOLE: I would not have to be very smart to know that. All Canada should know it.

Mr. E. C. ST. PERE (Lib., Hochelaga): How long has the hon. member been in this country?

Mr. POOLE. I have been here long enough to know how dumb the Liberal party is.

Mr. ST. PERE: The hon. member should go back where he belongs.

Mr. POOLE: I belong in this country just as much as the hon. member does.

Mr. ST. PERE: No, sir. My ancestors came to Canada in 1642.

Mr. POOLE: Well that was not the hon. member's fault.

An hon. MEMBER: This hon. gentleman is one of those fellows who want to live without working.

Mr. POOLE: I may be a better Canadian than the hon. member, because I chose this country and adopted it. The hon. member did not choose Canada.

Mr. ST. PERE: We certainly made a bad bargain when we let in the hon. member.

Mr. POOLE: Yes, a bad bargain for the Liberal party.

It is not difficult to believe that a group of lads on the way home from school might possibly get into an argument of that sort, but it is unthinkable that such stuff—just verbal rubbish—should find utterance among men to whom has been entrusted the serious business of managing the affairs of the Dominion of Canada. If those who participate in such utterance are not aware of it being entirely unacceptable to the people of the Dominion then it would seem Mr. Speaker would be performing a kindly service if he would use the powers with which he is vested to inform the gentlemen that silence on their part would be the most acceptable contribution they could make to the debates of the day.

They Need the Church

Canon Dr. W. W. Judd talked plainly when he addressed members of the Toronto Anglican Synod. He claimed that wayward girls were being turned away from the church today, and we believe he is correct. The same thing holds good for young men and older men and for older women. It includes the class of people generally who get into trouble one way or another, and after that they are apt to be classed as not very respectable. We are apt to view them with suspicion and feel it would be much better and safer if we were to keep away from them.

If we found them sitting in the family pew on Sunday morning and evening we doubt much whether we would tell them frankly they were welcome or give them an invitation to return. Possibly we might have heard all about them previously; judgment had already been passed on them and they would be classed as among those with whom it would be better not to associate if we had any regard for our standing in the community.

If such people find themselves not wanted in the church it is because the people in the church do not want them. And yet people who stumble and fall, who have the marks of mistakes upon them are the very ones who need the services which the church should be able to give, and if the church ever comes to the point where it is not willingly to show loving kindness to such folk then the church right there has forfeited one of the reasons for its continued existence.

When Christ was on earth He was not much concerned about those who had decided they were a pretty fair lot of people; the phrases He applied to them were neither comforting nor soothing; they cut like a scalpel. But He was nightly concerned about the people who were poor and sick and sinful. Truth is He was much in the company of sinners. He seemed to find in them the task for which He came.

There is a feeling that the church should be kept what some folk refer to as "respectable," and that people who want to go there and be made welcome should first of all qualify for that classification. We admit that is very nice as a theory but it is sure way to produce a self-satisfied lot of people. Against that is the plain fact that when people who do go wrong, people who sin (and that includes us all,) people who do not know where to turn for help and comfort, find the church ready and anxious to point the solution to their troubles, and when it does not seek to wash its hands of responsibility for them—right then will the church become a living and a powerful body.

He Used a Gun

Parks Board of Stratford will pay over some money if they can find the individual who shot six of their swans. This is the nesting season and the swans do not go far ashore to find a place for operations. Nor do they go in much for architectural beauty in the building of a nest. It looks like a collection of sticks with a bit of grass, the purpose of which might be to keep the eggs from rolling away and giving direction to the swans in just where to sit. The male takes his turn at sitting on the eggs, and swans have not been known to mate again if one of them is killed.

In Stratford every person in the place and the district around it would be able to identify the swans; they are part and parcel of the parks system and of the city itself. Shooting swans there would be just about the same as going to a zoo and shooting an animal or a bird which was on exhibition.

Of course the first thing people think of in such a situation is the offering of a reward, but that will not be apt to produce results. It is said the shooting was done with a .22 rifle, and why people should be permitted to have these weapons and go about the country shooting is more than we can state. The people who have developed the parks system in Stratford have worked on it for years; they have taken what was a bit of a stream and so dredged the land that they have a lake a mile in length; in that they have built islands with rustic bridges in between. It is in that scheme of improvement that the flock of swans add their touch of beauty, and each year after nesting time there comes another little flock of cygnets. The birds become as tame as house animals; picnic parties feed them and they know no fear. And then comes some individual with a rifle and shoots down six of them. And possibly the dumbell who did that congratulated himself on having a good aim as he walked home.

Goose In Her 55th Year

W. G. Trestain, writing in the London Free Press, tells of a goose which died recently on the farm of W. G. Armstrong, who lives near Newbury, in Middlesex county. This particular goose was said to be in her 55th year. She had been eating wheat in the morning but in the afternoon she was dead. For several years the old goose—a right enough phrase here—had often required help to get back to the barn particularly if she was out and the weather was cold.

R. T. Armstrong was born on the farm where he is living, and has operated the property for 34 years, and the goose was 20 years old then. For 40 years she raised a larger flock of goslings than do most geese. She quit laying 12 years ago.

We never heard of a goose before that lived to such an age. It may be a good many of them could if they had a chance although 50 years is generally regarded as the limit of age for the goose. The age to which several birds and animals common enough in this country can be expected to live is given:

Goose	50	Rabbit	5
Hen	14	Sheep	12
Pigeon	20	Cat	13
		Dog	15
Sparrow	40	Cow	25
Crow	100	Pig	25
Swan	100	Horse	32

The cat, dog and horse have as a rule better opportunity for length of years than any other form of animal life on the farm.

The Battle Never Ends

J. D. McLeod of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, was addressing the annual meeting of the weed inspectors in the county of Lambton where they were planning the year's work.

Mr. McLeod said the annual loss in Ontario due to weeds was between 15 and 22 million dollars. In the Dominion the annual weed loss is $150,000,000. Just how they arrive at those totals we do not know because the Dominion figure is equal to about $15 for every man, woman and child in the entire country.

A weed can be described as a plant which interferes with the growth of the crop to which the field is temporarily devoted. The loss from weeds may be hard to compute or realize, but it is real. Weeds absorb the moisture which plant life needs. When pasture is dry from lack of rain it will be seen the weeds continue to grow.

An average mustard plant pumps from the soil about 14 ounces, or 7-10ths of a pint of moisture per day.

Weeds use up the plant food in the soil, and one may be certain if the weeds are getting the food the crop is being robbed to that extent, and it does not need a convention of weed inspectors to make that plain.

A good many weeds mature their seeds in advance of the field crop with which they are growing. They draw heavily on the land and when the field crop is ready to bring its seeds to maturity much of the land strength has gone.

Weeds are a constant source of expense. They increase the cost of every operation—preparation of land, seeding, cultivation, harvesting and marketing. There have been plenty of cases where weeds have been so bad that it has been necessary to let a field remain empty and lose a crop.

The chances of having a clean farming section are none too good unless the business of weed fighting becomes general. One man with a dirty farm can play hob with others around who want to clean up their land. Some of the weeds growing in Ontario are capable of producing as high as 120,000 seeds from one plant in a year. What's more a battle against weeds can never be called ended. The weed invasion operates with the certainty of the tax collector. It will be here this year and next year. The farmer may quit fighting the weeds, but the weeds will never quit fighting the farmer.

Japan Far From Victory

One can allow for a good deal of margin in the reports which come from the war scene in China and still arrive at the safe conclusion that the Japanese are not winning their battle.

It must be remembered that Japan went to China as the superior power; went there as the aggressor; started as the party which was going to do a great deal of capturing and do it quickly. The campaign had been well and adequately mapped in advance, and the Japanese at home were assured it would be all over quickly, and then it would be merely a matter of consolidating the gains and proceeding at once with selling Japanese goods to those in the newly-taken territory.

The most impartial observers prefer to go between the claims of Japan and the claims of China, and by so doing they come to the conclusion that Japan has not done what she hoped to do. She is far away today from what can be called victory. At the outset her advance was terrific and ruthless; her territorial gains were measured in long distances. Today the Chinese are retaking territory which was considered lost. They are fighting in bands a sort of guerilla warfare which is difficult to deal with because there is no way of knowing where or when these bands are going to strike. With a superior knowledge of their own country, and with a courage born of desperation the Chinese are attacking today as they never have done before. They have found they can meet the Japanese soldiers as equals, and added to this the troops of China realize they are fighting for their homes, their own people and their continued existence as a national unit. The truth, seems to be that the Japanese have found they are unable to do what they had planned.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Ontario is planning a drive against hay fever and that is a movement that is not to be sneezed at.

Port Hope's record of 310 defective cars out of 359 machines examined looks as if the "prettiest town in Canada" has broken the record for the course.

A German police chief has barred swing dancing as a public menace. The goose step, then, cannot be regarded as a sort of military swinging.

German nationals in Canada have been ordered to register for military service. In their case Germany is preparing a sort of Old Boys' Reunion.

St. Catharines Standard says that the lawn bowling season is here so the first straw hat cannot be far behind. Right. It's in the attic in a paper bag waiting for a chance.

The Globe and Mail says the House of Commons cannot play the ostrich act with the railway problem much longer. The trouble of course is that Parliament's head is not merely in the sand, it is in the quicksand.

A preacher in Springfield, Vermont, is likely to get into trouble because he secured a substitute and went fishing on Sunday. The church trustees are holding a meeting on Sunday to see what they will do about it, and that opens the fine question if it is worse to hold a meeting of that sort on Sunday than it to fish on that day.

HE WORKED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I read the cure for all our ills, the reading gave me sudden chills, it said one must not shirk; for all the problems of today, would quickly move and go away, if we but went to work.

¶ More work, more work on every page, for young and those advanced in age, and that is nothing new; being lazy was a crime I read, folk wasted many hours in bed, when there was work to do.

¶ My Cousin Jake once found a spot, where he could work like how he ought, they wanted boxes made; the stuff was all where he could reach, Jake was to get a nickel each, he started unafraid.

¶ Jake started early in the day, so he could fatten up his pay, with noise he filled the air; just like a trooper did he go, nor did he move sedate and slow, he got on pretty fair.

¶ When pay day came Jake was glad, he really hadn't done so bad, the future had no fear; he did just like the book has said, and he was steaming straight ahead, his happy days were near.

¶ And Jake had boxes high and low, more boxes everywhere you'd go, there wasn't room to cough; in search of ways to buy his bread, my cousin got so far ahead—they came and laid him off.

This Seems To Prove Nothing

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. BENNETT: This government is in a position to make its choice. It has behind it a majority that enables it to make any choice it pleases and to give effect to that choice. It has made its choice. It has balanced the probabilities. It has selected one particular way of dealing with the matter. What has been the result? This is not the time, or the place perhaps, to deal with it in detail. There has been this result. The national railways for three months of this year have not been earning sufficient money to pay the cost of operation. There has been no lessening of employment in the large sense so far as they are concerned, and yet to earn a dollar, to earn one hundred cents on that great system for the last three months, has cost more than one hundred cents, more than a dollar. Mark you; that is without interest on the capital invested. It is merely the cost of operating, fuel and labour and upkeep.

Mr. DUNNING: That has happened frequently in the past.

Mr. BENNETT: It has not happened frequently in the past.

Mr. DUNNING: In the early months.

Mr. BENNSTT: It has not happened frequently in the past.

Mr. DUNNING: We differ.

Mr. BENNETT: I have not the figures with me, but it has not happened frequently in the past. It has happened in the past, but not frequently. During the dark days of the depression from 1930 to 1935, bad as conditions were, I ask hon. members to compare the results then with those of the last three months. Remember, there is not a cent for interest. Let that thought come into our minds and see what it means. Let us ask ourselves, Why? I shall be prepared, when another debate is precipitated, to deal with that in greater detail. I shall deal with it in detail then, not now. These are palliatives; that is all they are. What is the sense of trying to call them anything else? Why not be frank about them?

Mr. ROGERS: Who is calling them anything else?

Mr. BENNETT: I have heard the adulations of the warm and loyal friends of the minister on the other side describe them as something else. I have read in the public press of this heaven-born vision of the minister, of his looking out upon the troubled world and bringing peace and happiness to all the unemployed. There was the great vision that came to him during his academic life which enabled him thus to deal with the matter. Then I contemplate the patronage in Frontenac and Kingston. After all, the results of an academic life do not fit a man for public life any better than would life in a sawmill. It has been said that the solution is to be found in a housing program.

Mr. ROGERS: Expansion of trade.

Mr. BENNETT: "Expansion of trade." Well, I thank thee, Roderick, for the word, to quote Sir Walter Scott. If there was one term calculated to make ridiculous the whole peformance in connection with this matter, it is just that statement, "expansion of trade."

Mr. ROGERS: Is my right hon. friend opposed to it?

Mr. BENNETT: He has a record of effort in that direction which will compare favourably with that of the minister. That is all he has to say. That is the record in connection with which every Liberal, except the Liberal who sits behind the minister, the Minister of National Revenue, (Mr. Ilsley), rose in his place to vote against empire preference. He also knows that the minister in his eulogy of his leader vindicated his position. Now he sweetly talks about expansion of trade.

Mr. ROGERS: My right hon. friend favours it, then?

Mr. BENNETT: That anyone with the attainments of the minister should find it possible to ask such a question indicates the extent to which politics can destroy the vigour of an intellect.

Mr. GARDINER: The right hon. gentleman has been in them since 1898.

Mr. BENNETT: Has the Saskatchewan oracle spoken?

Mr. GARDINER: Probably the explanation of the right hon. gentleman's attitude toward public questions is the fact that he has been in politics since 1898.

Mr. BENNETT: I have been in politics since 1898 with the exception of ten or twelve years, when I was not. But I have not yet found it necessary to follow other than a consistent course with respect to the matters to which I have referred.

Mr. Gardiner: It is the same on this side.

Mr. BENNETT: I have never prostituted such talents as I have for place or power.

Mr. ROGERS: Against whom is that aimed?

Mr. BENNETT: I referred a moment ago to the observations that were made in this house with respect to a housing program offering a solution of these difficulties. I do not intend to do more at this time than merely point out what a strange thing public opinion is. One would think that everyone in this chamber believed that all one had to do was to engage in the housing business and the matter would be settled.

PEERS SET A PROBLEM.

(Glasgow Bulletin)

PEERS WERE seen as members of the working class by Lord Saltoun when speaking in the House of Lords on the Housing (Agricultural Population) (Scotland) Bill from the Commons.

Lord Saltoun said the Bill was revolutionary. They were told in Clause 20 that the Bill was to be confined to the working classes.

"What can you call the working class?" he asked. "Are not some of the members of your Lordships' House of the working class? I know of none who work so hard as some of your Lordships.

"If this Bill goes through you must have a definition of working classes, and once you have a definition you are going to bring about a revolution the like of which has not taken place since King Edward was driven out of Scotland."

FORGETFUL

Solicitor: "Did you call him a rogue, a liar, a highway robber and a vagabond?"

Defendent: "I did."

Solicitor: "And did you call him a double-dyed twister?"

"Defendent: "No. I forgot that."

Ye Ed Will Woo Them To Health

(St. Thomas Times Journal)

THE FOLLOWING appeared the other day on the editorial page of the Peterborough Examiner:

As a rule questions which come up for discussion at the annual meeting of the Canadian Press Association are not published, and the reason is plain enough. There is really nothing in the discussions which would interest people in general, as the gathering has to do with the gathering and distribution of news and the costs of such services.

At the meeting in Toronto there was one little discussion in the hall outside the meeting room. Senator Buchanan, of the Lethbridge (Alberta) Herald, an old Peterborough boy, was having a chat with L. H. Dingman of The St. Thomas Times-Journal, and L. H. was telling of the extent of the new mental hospital which Mr. Hepburn has caused to be erected within two miles of St. Thomas. The Times-Journal man spoke of the size of the place, and also of the number of folk who might be housed in such an institution.

Senator Buchanan was impressed. So much so that he suggested, "I suppose such a population as that will enable your paper to get quite a good increase in circulation." And with that the little discussion in the hall broke up, leaving the western publisher with at least one hit to his credit.

It is all perfectly simple. The Ontario Government made a survey of the provincial newspapers and concluded that The Times-Journal was the sanest of the lot. Where else, then, could they have located the greatest mental institution of the day but in St. Thomas? It is expected that after perusing the same articles in this great family journal the reason of each and every patient will quickly be restored. Senator Buchanan's surmise that the circulation of The Times-Journal will be increased by reason of the location of the hospital in the environs of St. Thomas is fully warranted.

Furthermore, the outcome of this survey into the sanity of the Fourth Estate, and the wise decision to locate the new institution for the treatment of mantal diseases hereabouts in all likelihood will be that a new medium of suggestive treatment will be advanced by the learned psychiatrists—provided, of course, the increased circulation of The Times-Journal warrants it.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Moreover Job continued his parable and said: My righteousness I hold fast, and will not let it go: my heart shall not reproach me so long as I live. Let mine enemy be as the wicked, and he that riseth up against me as the unrighteous. For what is the hope of the hypocrite, though he hath gained, when God taketh away his soul? . . . This is the portion of a wicked man with God, and the heritage of oppressors, which they shall receive of the Almighty. If his children be multiplied, it is for the sword: and his offspring shall not be satisfied with bread. . . . Though he heap up silver as the dust, and prepare raiment as the clay; he may prepare it, but the just shall put it on, and the innocent shall divide the silver.—Job xxvii, 1, 6-8, 13, 14, 16, 17.

CITY HALLS

(St. Catharines Standard)

"THERE IS NOTHING urgent about a city hall. In fact we are doing very nicely without one." So declares The Ottawa Journal, in comment on the advice of the Mayor for 142,000 people to put $5 each in the pot and build one. It is a live issue in the Capital.

An interesting sidelight on City Halls, comes from The Woodstock Sentinel-Review. That paper reprints what the Editor said 58 years ago, in the year of grace 1880:

"Woodstock's Town Hall is not fit to hold respectable entertainments in. A new place for such must be had sooner or later. There can be no doubt but an opera house would pay a handsome dividend upon the capital invested. When will we get the building?"

And then the paper goes on to report that the same old Town Hall is doing business at the same old stand, and for entertainment "they are still packing them in."

It all goes to show that communities are like individuals, they can do without new things if they have to. Perhaps The Ottawa Journal is right in saying that they are doing very nicely in Ottawa without a City Hall.

For all that, citizens of St. Catharines do show pride in the new structure opened here last year. It's imposing front, lawns, shrubs and flowers are a credit to the Garden City of Canada. And it was built economically.

Goebbels Shuns Lunch When Jews Invited

Rome, May 7 (U.P.). ITALIAN newspapermen said to-night that a luncheon for Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German Minister of Propaganda, at Rome's cinema city was cancelled when Goebbels objected because several Italian Jews were on the guest list.

The luncheon was to have been given by Dino Alfieri, Press Chief of the Italian Government.

German Nazi quarters insisted that "the luncheon never was definitely scheduled" and it was reported that it would be held to-day with a revised guest list.

Toronto Teachers May Talk On Army But Recruiting Is Tabooed

Toronto, May 6 (CP) TEACHERS may "explain" to Toronto children about the Canadian militia but must not recruit actively for any unit, the Board of Education decided by a 12 to six vote early today after prolonged debate.

The decision followed a request from the Canadian Signal Corps that teachers be allowed to talk to interested students about enlisting. A sheaf of protests was read and deputations from various organizations discussed the question before the board.

"We were told we were to fight for a land that would be fit for heroes to live in," said Harry Young, spokesman for a group of war veterans. "We came back to Canada to find ourselves on the border line of starvation and without work. We protest against our children being imbued with militaristic ideas.

"Instead of making recruits, take them up to Christie Street Hospital to see the limbless men, and then bring them back to see their fathers on the breadline," he added.

PRE-WAR HISTORY PRESENT SET-UP RUN IN PARALLEL

LONDON, May 7. — (AP). — A strange parallel between pre-war and current diplomatic history is revealed in newly-published documents of the foreign office.

They show that 1912-14 negotiations between Great Britain and Italy, to respect each other's territory and spheres of influence, were similar in spirit to the recently concluded Anglo-Italian agreement.

Sir Eyre Crowe, a former assistant under-secretary in the Foreign Office, wrote of the pre-war negotiations that:

"Italy wants to square the circle. Without exposing herself to the charge of a breach of faith, she wants to remain in the triple alliance (Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy) and yet not go to war with France in accordance with its stipulations.

"No Anglo-Italian 'formula' can solve this ethical problem."

The idea of a pact was abandoned and with start of the war Italy first remained neutral, then joined Great Britain and France.

The documents reveal late King George V warned Germany two years before the war that Great Britain would aid France and Russia against attack.

There was, however, some concern on the part of Britain and France on what would be Russia's part. From the Foreign Office, Sir Arthur Nicilson, Permanent Under-Secretary, observed that "I do fear, and I know the French are haunted with the same apprehension, that if we do not try to tighten up the ties with Russia she may become weary of us and throw us overboard."

A letter King George V. wrote to Sir Edward (later Earl) Grey, then British Foreign Secretary, in December, 1912, told of the warning to Germany. It informed Sir Edward the King told Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of the then German Kaiser, that "in the event of Germany and Austria going to war with Russia and France," Great Britain "undoubtedly" would aid the attacked nations.

German colonial aspirations also are dealt with in Sir Edward's writings about a secret treaty between Great Britain and Germany for partition of Portuguese colonies in Africa concluded in 1898. The agreement was never ratified because—as the various documents explained—Germany would not permit its publication.

"MAKE WHAT YOU WANT DONE SEEM EASY"

SAYS DALE CARNEGIE

Author of the famous book: "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

● "Many people never attempt to test their ability in new ways because to do so looks difficult. They lack self-confidence.

"For years I was certain I could never learn to play bridge. Then I spent a week-end with some friends and, after dinner, bridge was proposed. I declined to play. Bridge, I said, was a mystery to me."

● "'Why', my friend exclaimed, 'it's no trick at all. There is nothing to bridge except memory and judgment. You once wrote a chapter on memory. Bridge would be dead easy for you!'

"And before I knew it, I found myself playing bridge."

● "Tell a child, an employee or an associate that he is stupid about a certain thing and has no gift for it; and you are almost certain to destroy every incentive for him to try to improve.

FOUR CANADIAN TITLES RESTING WEST OF ONTARIO BORDER.

WEST'S BIG GAIN HAS EAST ASKING WHAT'S GOING ON

TORONTO, May 7 — (CP). — On the prairies and in British Columbia there must be many a chortle directed eastward. The east is taking a licking on the major events of the 1938 sport calendar.

There's hardly an out. The record is plan and there's no arguing against cold figures which speaks of a series of western triumphs in every major inter-sectional clash of the year. And 1938 is not yet six months old.

The west has always had its share of victories, but seldom before have they swept national titles with such consistency as within the last month or so. Four Canadian championships have moved west of the Ontario-Manitoba border.

Hockey and basketball long have been among the sport championships within reach of western athletes. Their dominance is spreading. Take boxing for an example of what the west is doing this year to eastern idols. Out of Toronto's poorest west-central district came young Baby Yack, a newsboy who clubbed his way to the Canadian bantamweight boxing championship in 14 months. They spoke highly of the Baby throughout the city and fervently of him in his own district. The Baby perhaps was a world champion in the making — then Johnny Gaudes came along.

What Gaudes did to Yack is history. A chunky bit of fighting machinery from St. Boniface, Man., Gaudes won two decision over Yack and stopped a lot of world championship talk about the Baby. Neither bout was for the championship —minor consolation — but Gaudes says that's next, and who's to dispute him.

That was a lot stranger than what the west did in hockey and basketball, sports cradled by children of the west in which they have been the east's equals for years. But it still stung when the Memorial and Allan Cups—amateur hockey's highest trophies—and the men's and women's basketball championships were all won by the west.

St. Boniface Seals retained the junior hockey championship for Manitoba in five games from Oshawa Generals at Toronto. Trail Smoke Eaters won back the Allan Cup of senior supremacy in four games at Calgary against Cornwall Flyers. Sudbury captured the Allan Cup in 1937.

Girls Bright Spot

If the east wants hockey consolation there's the victory of Preston Rivulettes over Winnipeg for the women's hockey championship. But women's hockey hardly compares with the others in importance. Against this, however, was the presence of a half-dozen westerns on the Chicago Black Hawk team which won the world hockey championship and the Stanley Cup.

Basketball victories practically were routine for the west. Edmonton Grads, perennial queens of the game, swamped Toronto Consols three straight and Vancouver Westerns took three in a row from Ottawa Glebe Grads for the men's title. Westerns were extended for the first two games, winning only by two-point margins, but in the third game they ran away with a 20-point decision.

There isn't a great deal more for the west to grab off this year. The Canadian open and amateur golf tourneys will be decided in the summer with neither east nor west expected to take the open against crack United States opposition. It's a toss-up from where the amateur champion will come, though Sandy Somerville is quite likely to knock off this one for London, Ont.

Football and lacrosse come in the fall. The east holds the football championship; the west the lacrosse and both may change hands. Western football has come up to eastern calibre in recent years and the Pacific Coast rivals Orillia, Ont., as the hotbed of lacrosse.

The situation perhaps is not as alarming as it sounds, but it might be a good time for formation of a Committee to Uphold Eastern Sport Prestige. There's still six months to regain what's been lost so far in 1938.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, the Central Ontario loop is only going to be a 3-team affair but at that this summer oughta supply a lot of good ball. Personally I would rather see the Petes battling with the Ponies and Oshawa every other day than hooked up with a weak fourth team.

Take Walt Gerow's Napanee outfit last year. They didn't attract the customers in at the gate because somehow they lacked color and they was a bunch of good fellows what the fans couldn't take no kick out of seeing getting licked.

Always Like It

On the other hand they never would get tired of seeing the Ponies taking it on the chin or of watching Peg Hurst get madder and madder when things wasn't breaking none too good for GM-men. And so every home game in the loop this year should be full of fireworks and they won't be no lame ducks in the schedule. The Petes is shaping up nice in practice, they're well fortified in every position and they should make it plenty hot for all and sundry right from May 24th when they open here with Oshawa on down through to the stretch drive.

The Cubs Tough Luck

They has been plenty happening under the big tent since my last epistle. Perhaps the most important is the discovery the Chicago Cubs has been handed a lemon in the shape of a Dizzy Dean with a lame wing. Mister Dean after staggering through 3 games has developed a bad heaving arm and the result is he is lost to Chicago for a month at least and mebbe for good. With that mishap it looks like the Cubs' pennant chances has been hit right on the solar plexus for the way them Giants has been breezing along the Cubs is going to need all the pitching strength then kin get.

It is gradually beginning to sink in that this Mister Bill Terry, while not the most popular pilot in baseball, aint the dumbest by a long shot either. He has his team in there fighting all the time and the Giants doing some lusty clouting behind steady pitching has been making every one sit up and take notice.

The Yanks Are Coming

In the American loop, Mac, you will notice my other selection, the Yanks, has shook theirselfs out of their slump and they been moving up fast through the field. Mister DiMaggio has started in where he left off last year, and some of the other folk in the McCarthy toggery has started to find their batting eye. They couldn't hope for instance to keep this here Mister Lou Gehrig handcuffed for a whole season and from now on the pitchers better duck quick after they cut one loose at Columbia Lou as I call the big fellow.

Jimmy Busting Them

Incidentally Mac, have you took a gander at the way that other grand ball player what aint never got the credit or the money either he deserved, Mister Jimmy Foxx, has been hitting so far this season. Mister Foxx, saving his leather crushing for the clutches has already drove in 23 runs which puts him well out in front of every other player in either league in the department of timely hitting. The double X-ed Bostonian is sure cuffing that old maple when there is folks on the cushions and that is the time to toss in the dynamite.

Well that seems to be plenty for the week-end goulash, so take it away, Mac.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

GLANCING at the prospects of the local lacrosse team coyly through the webbing of one of their war weapons, we see where Manager Frank Randle has a pretty fair collection of gutted-stick wielders to pick his Peterborough lineup from. When he gets a grouping. Just about all of last year's good intermediate team—which went to Provincial semi-finals—are available again. Dunno for sure about Andy Anderson, the Indian forward. But these other chappies are out limbering up once more: Red Creighton, Rowan Chute, Ossie Sloan, Ira Dundas, Pete King, Red Dallin, Cliff Cadd, Ned Vitarelli, Doug Miller, Emmett Creighton, Jerry Creighton, Mick Magee. Don Crowe, Loucks, Pammett and a few more. Buster is likely to be back, too.

* * * * * *

THERE ARE a few newcomers, as well, who should aid muchly. One Norm Worthy, formerly of the Brampton Excelsiors, is as sure of being with the Petes this summer as the law is to catch up with us poor poll tax evaders! And Jack Westonfelt, husky junior in Orillia a year ago, looks like a natural boxla find. Owen Hendy, formerly of Campbellford and Kirkland Lake, is looking good in local practices, too. And Puffer and Rogers of Norwood have been working out here lately. Yeah, there is no local scarcity of good lacrosse prospects this season.

* * * * * *

WESTCLOX will operate again in the Men's City Softball League. Last year's champs, who did okay in O.A.S.A. playdowns, will return to the wars this coming warm spell with Pat Hayden—who skippered our Colts in the junior O.H.A. last winter—as manager. Jim Ellis will not run a team, but is likely to line up with Westclox once more. Which still leaves three teams in the City Loop. Motorists, Young Petes and Westclox. They have an agreement with the Southend Circuit, whereby each of those teams play uptown against City League squads once through the season. But there still should be one more entry in the City Softball League. But we are glad to see the Clockmen back again. And they will field a strong squad, we imagine.

* * * * * *

A DOZEN or more gees took in the City Baseball League meeting last night at Duffus', which is twice what the attendance has been in recent years. Ask Jack Deannard! Bill Prindible conducted the session and several teams were represented. Art Padgett has a bantam team ready for action, in fact playing exhibition games now with school teams. The Parnell St. gang were on hand with a junior entry, and Dinny Armstrong was on deck to enter a junior team. Jack Condon would put in a juvenile gang, if the boys couldn't get their baseball in the schools. And Jack McCarney and Cec. Wolff were on hand, as members of the Separate School Board.

* * * * * *

BOTH these latter gents had some good suggestions. In fact, they expect to organize a Separate School Baseball League shortly with six teams, three in the senior section and three in the junior. And they hope St. Peter's high school will put a team in the City Loop and maybe P.C.I. will also. Another meeting of the City Baseball League will be held next Tuesday night at eight in Duffus' to close entries and elect officers. In the meantime, the gang will get busy. They hope to run a junior section, under 20 years, and get three or four teams. And they expect a juvenile section, under 18 by the first of May, to get three or four. They decided to leave the bantams (under 15) alone while school is going on, but to meet around the end of June and get four bantam teams to operate all summer. We call this good work by these ball-minded chaps and expect that this league will operate—independent for this year—in fine fashion. We might even have an intermediate team or two yet this summer. Yeah, baseball is on the way back here. But more again on this subject.

THIS ITEM comes from Kingston: "It has been announced that Bob Elliot will replace Joe Daly as coach of the Ponies but that does not mean the veteran pilot has dropped out and will not be around when the season starts. Bob Elliot is actually the new boss but, like a retired warrior, Joe is on hand to help if needed. Joe retired on previous occasions but he always came back. This time he claims he has had enough ball, but there is atwinkle in his Irish eyes when he makes the statement. Which probably indicates he'll be fighting just as hard for the Ponies even if he is not the head boss now, and the club will get the benefit of his many years experience. The color that Daley instilled in the Ponies was appreciated by treasurers in rival parks who admit that Kingston is the best attraction in the circuit. Fans went to games to tease Joe on a rampage as much as to see the home team. Joe may be gone as manager but he will not be forgotten for a long time."

* * * * * *

OSHAWA will trot out a lacrosse team again, probably in the same grouping as Peterborough. They have dug up a sponsor and hope to get a good turnout of players next week. The recent lacrosse meeting in Port Hope petered out due to a mixup in time and lack of interest. Hubert Legros, Alex Fitzgerald and Jim Lehane were on hand from here, and a couple of Port Hope guys. Harry Moore and Slim Burdes of Trenton had been present earlier. Looks like Belleville is definitely out, and Port Hopers can't field a team. Seems that way with Norwood, also. While the Airport could but are not likely to return. Leaving none of last year's grouping but Oshawa and the Petes. There is an O.L.A. committee meeting in Toronto on Monday and Pete King will be present—and may bring back some definite word on a group.

* * * * * *

LOT OF FOLKS here and throughout the district will recall Art Blade, harness horse racing officer and starter. We received this item, published in Ottawa, this a.m. in the mail: "Art W. Blade, one of the keenest of harness horse enthusiasts, has been given a signal honor. In succession to the late Chas. McCaffrey of Russell, he has been made a director for the eastern part of Ontario of the Canadian National Trotting and Pacing Harness Association. It is believed that this is the first time an Ottawan has held such an office." Good going, Art.

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Company is to start making the picture here about June 1. Jean Hersholt, who will play the role of doctor, plans to leave Hollywood for Callander May 15.

WOULD PLAY CRICKET

LONDON—(CP). — "Had Hitler and Mussolini been cricketers, I don't think we should have had the trouble now going on in Europe," observed Sir Francis Lacey at the annual meeting of Wiltshire County Cricket Club.

VAN MUNGO DEAL WITH CARDINALS FALLS THROUGH

NEW YORK, May 7 (CP).—The boys had a deal all smoked up. Van Mungo's arm was going to St. Louis and Ducky Medwick's big bat would come to Brooklyn. The thing was supposed to be the biggest ivory swap in years. All details were about ironed out and completed. Then something happened. It was Van's arm.

If there was ever anthing to the deal—and it's known now it did get as far as the talking stage — the whole thing was cold today because Van's fireballing salary wing has been a regular "cousin" among National batters.

Branch Rickey breathed a sigh of relief that he still has Mauler Medwick and doesn't have to worry about the ifs and whens of Mungo's flinging.

Yesterday was the day the deal was supposed to reach its head, but when Van dropped his third straight decision, losing a 10-3 affair to Cincinnati Reds, you didn't need a crystal ball to tell you how matters stood.

He gave up eight runs in his four-inning trick on the mound, and, although all were unearned, you couldn't miss seeing those four hits in the first inning whistle past his ears.

Carl Hubbell Remains.

From what he has shown up to now this season, Mungo, like Dean, can no longer be ranged with Carl Hubbell on the pitching "big three." In four starts, Van has gone the route only once. He has yet to win his first game. He has been clubbed for 30 hits and 16 runs in 24 innings.

Meanwhile, since his lumbago let up, Medwick has been moving right along with the big stick, although he had a comparatively poor day yesterday. However, his rookie teammate, Enos Slaughter, made up for it by whacking a triple that drove home the run that gave the Cardinals a 4-3 victory over the Phillies. This win boosted the Cards into sixth place and dropped the Dodgers down to seventh.

New York Giants found their Pittsburg stooges the same obliging outfit as ever, and waltzed away with an 11-7 win over the Bucs as Cliff (Ears) Melton pitched his fifth straight victory.

Cubs Knock Off Bees.

Chicago Cubs won, too, knocking off the Bees 13-9 in a comedy of Boston errors that laid 'em in the aisles in Wrigley Field and left the Giants still 2½ games in front in the league race.

Cleveland's Indians picked up half a game on their American League lead by topping the Athletics 4-1 on rookie Ken Keltner's fifth homer. The second place Yankees and the Detroit Tigers were rained out.

Old Jimmy Dykes, who's been forced back to the wars because of his second base problem, collected four hits in six chances, but his White Sox couldn"t hold out and dropped a 4-3 decision to Washington in 13 innings. It was the Nats' second 13-inning win of the week. Buck Newsom's undefeated pitching record was broken by the Boston Red Sox, who clubbed him and St. Louis Brownies for a 7-3 win.

BACHELORS IN COUNTY MEATH

Refuting claims associating overcrowding with a high marriage rate or the custom of marrying young, Dr. T. F. O'Higgins, of County Meath, in his annual report, declares that while housing conditions there are bad the county has the highest percentage of aged bachelors in Ireland.

Sports Spice

NEW YORK, May 7 — (AP) — Francis Ouimet, who is supposed to be only a non-playing captain of the United States Walker Cup team, may do a real comeback abroad this summer . . . Eddie Murphy, Ouimet's golfing partner, says Francis is taking his game more seriously and is "red hot"... Pitcher Luke Hanlin, who already had one big row with Manager Burleigh Grimes, is succeeding Van Mungo as the Dodger cut-up . . . Mungo has been entirely too tame lately to be true . . . Looks like Fighting Fox will be the favorite when they give 'em the "scram" sign at Louisville this afternoon.

They now have Lou Gehrig hitting in sixth place—lowest since he joined the Yankees—which means the Yankee iron man is only an accessory after the fact of Murderers' Row . . . Old Tom Clarke, Giants coach got that old feeling when the Giants arrived in Cincinnati and they assigned him the same locker he had used 20 years ago when he was first string catcher. Boston baseball writers say young Don Ross at third base is the spark plug of Detroit Tigers.

COMMENT FROM THE COACH

Grasp The Fundamentals Before Adding The Frills

By Lloyd A. Percival

To become an athlete is no simple matter, but the average person makes the job a great deal more difficult than it really is. Many people think that you must have some special type of physique, and mentality. Many others believe all you need is a strong body and a thick head. The average fellow makes the job altogether too tough, and most likely dreams at night about complicated plays and mystic rituals. Although there is no doubt that certain mental and physical developments are a great help, the fact remains that success in sport is a comparatively simple matter.

Your Worst Enemy.

It has often been said that a man's worst enemy is himself. This is particularly true in sport. The factors of success are simple enough; it is making people realize this that is so difficult. I don't mean that all you have to do is to convince yourself success is simple, because if you do, you might end up by picking your head up from someone's lap in the third row.

Little things like watching the ball don't seem important enough no matter how much, and you look around for something more difficult. I once heard a fellow say to his tennis coach: "All you do is tell me to watch the ball. I want to be good. How about some of the big stuff?" As he (the coach) was being well paid, he merely shrugged his shoulders and went into some guff about tri-angular cross-shots with Australian top-spin, which did his pupil no more good than a cherry sundae. It sounded like big stuff so he was satisfied. He still doesn't watch the ball and the coach has a steady income.

Flourishes Don't Bring Success

Since the majority of people labor under the same delusion as that lad, the fundamentals don't get enough attention. Get smart, and do the simple thing. A beautiful flourish at the end of a stroke isn't going to get the ball over the net. You could tell an eight-year-old girl to do what the "nice man was doing," the "nice man" being say, Fred Perry, and she would most likely mimic him perfectly. But if you asked a grown man to do the same thing, he would at once start figuring it was all so difficult because Perry did it, and accordingly get himself all tangled up. As an English professor once said: "Big words don't make great stories." It is the same in sport. Obey the fundamental laws and get to work minus flourishes.

Get into shape, concentrate and obey the fundamentals, i.e., watching the ball, and you will meet with better than average success. Because a thing seems simple, don't neglect it. When these apparently simple but important fundamenals are well-digested, you can explore the realm of the "fadeaway" 'and the "Fitzsimmons' shift." Any time you are in doubt, ask the kid sister to do it—that will cure you!"

Relax, and realize the importance of the simple things.

BOB SEEDS MAKES BASEBALL HISTORY IN BEARS' 22-9 WIN

Lanky Texan Clouts 4 Homers In Four Successive Frames To Swamp Buffalo Pitchers

Toronto Leafs Shutout Jersey Giants For Fifth Straight Win

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 7 (CP).—Bob Seeds, the rangy 30-year-old outfielder of Newark Bears, sent the "figger filberts" of the International League deep in the storm cellars today after his explosion on a load of bating marks in Buffalo.

A pitching duel was in progress between the Bears and the Bisons yesterday until Seeds stepped up to the plate in the fourth inning. He clouted a homer over the left field wall with a man on base, and after that things happened.

Before the official scorer could catch his breath, Seeds belted out four successive homers in four consecutive innings, a feat that even the graybeards in the stands admitted they hadn't heard or seen of before. All told he drove in twelve runs, 10 of them with his homers and two with singles, which gave him a perfect day at the plate.

Seeds set the tempo for the rest of the Bears who responded nobly with 15 more hits off five Buffalo pitchers to earn a 22-9 victory for the league-leaders.

The proud major leagues can't boast of any performance like that. The big-time mark is held by Lou Gehrig of the Yankees with four homers in consecutive times at bat, but not in successive innings, and Jimmy Foxx, with four in successive times at bat, but spread over two games.

Malone Blasted Out.

Just one home run proved the undoing of Old Pat (Blubber) Malone, the former Yankee hurler. Malone, making his first relief job for Baltimore Orioles, was the victim of Jack Sturdy's four-baser in the 11th inning which gave Rochester Red Wings an 8-7 win.

Montreal Royals sent Syracuse down to its seventh straight defeat by 10-7 in a dizzy ball game that saw eight pitchers in action for both sides. Among them they issued 14 walks, hit three batsmen, and uncorked three wild pitches.

In striking contrast to the other games, Toronto Maple Leafs blanked Jersey City Giants 5-0 to win for the second straight day with only one hurler used for each side. Joe Sullivan allowed the Jerseys seven hits, but had more control than Tommy Baker, who gave six.

CENTRAL WINS 6-3 OVER KING EDWARD

Central defeated King Edward last evening by a 6-3 score in a School Baseball League fixture. A big third inning gave the uptown boys an edge with three runs in a good contest. Both teams dished up some good baseball in spots. Central had a 2-1 margin in the first frame but King Edward tied the count in the second. Central shoved three runs across the plate in the third and added one in the fifth. The losers scored their last marker in the sixth chukker. The teams:

Cricket Results

LONDON, May 7 (CP Cable). — Displaying decided superiority in batting and bowling strength, the touring Australian cricket team overwhelmed Oxford University by an innings and 487 runs Friday for its second successive victory on English soil. In their opening match the visitors defeated Worcestershire by an innings and 77 runs.

Aided by centuries scored by A. L. Hassett, J. H. Fingleton and Stanley McCabe, the Antipodeans declared with 679 runs for seven wickets. The University players made only a feeble attempt in reply being dismissed for totals of 117 and 7.

Scores:

Australians 679 for six wickets, declared; Oxford University 117 and 75 (Fleetwood-Smith four for 31, Werd three for 16); at Oxford.

Big League Sluggers Finding New Ball As Lively As Ever

Old Loop Continues Topping American League In Homerun Hitting Honors

NEW YORK, May 7. — Chuck Klein ankles around with his chest out...a greatly relieved man. The Phillies' slugger now knows that the day of the lively ball in the National League has not passed. When Klein hit the new National League sphere in that clinic at Oriole Park, Baltimore, last winter, he was frightened.

"Down there is sounded dull," explains the Hoosier Hammerer, "and it didn't go very far or very fast. I said that at the time. So did Jimmy Foxx and all the others who were there.

"As I remember it, the ball used in Baltimore had blue seams. It now has red seams. It can't be the same ball. The damp weather conditions may have had something to do with it, but I can't get over the differently colored seams. Maybe they mixed up the balls in the confusion.

Magnificent Distances

"I've seen some terrific wallops out of the ball now in use in the National League. Jack Winsett hit one in Philadelphia that went a mile out of the park into Broad Street. Dolph Camilli caught hold of one that went off his bat like a shot. But when we moved to Boston, and no one hit the ball far. Nobody ever seems to hit the ball far in the Bees' park with those winds sweeping in.

"I have an idea that some of the difference in the balls is due to storage. If they are put in warm quarters, they're bound to be livelier. If they're cold, they'll be dull.

"You must consider where the ball is hit. The raised stitches will absorb a good part of the shock. Otherwise, the present ball will go as far as did the one of last year.

"At no time has the ball sounded as it did in Baltimore. Of that I'm certain. I never heard balls sound as soggy as those we hit at Oriole Park."

Old Loop Leads In Homers

The National League to date has a neat margin on the American in home runs. Among those taking advantage of the situation are Hank Leiber of the Giants and Jimmy Collins of the Cubs, facts that are highly important to their respective organizations. Leiber, felled by a ball thrown by Bob Feller last spring, is giving the Polo Grounders badly needed distance hitting.

The Cubs fell apart when Collins broke his leg toward the fag end of the 1937 campaign. This year, the Ripper threatens to compile a fancy total base figure, such as those turned in for the Cardinals in 1934 and '35. By this time it is clear that there was no reason for all the fear and trembling by macemen of the older loop during the training season, when many of them said that smacking the new ball solidly left them with no more sensation than whacking a bean bag.

New M.C.C. Head

At its annual meeting the Marylebone Cricket club, ruling body of the cricket world, elected Stanley Baldwin (ABOVE), president. The new head of cricket's "parliament" was formerly leader of England's parliament. He succeeds Hon. J. J. Astor.

CRICKET TOURS NOT ALL HONEY

LONDON, May 7 (CP)—At first glance the Australian cricket tour of the United Kingdom might appear as a glorious jaunt for the 16 players chosen to make the trip, but in reality it is an arduous affair requiring strong muscles and iron constitutions.

A little figuring proves informative. From April 30 to Sept. 15 the Antipodeans will play 35 matches, including five tests against England. Thus 105 days or about 630 hours are scheduled to play with 33 off days, including Sundays.

It is true some of the matches probably will be finished ahead of scheduled time and only 11 players are called on in each match, but even after allowances are made for this, it is still a pretty rigorous program. There is always the chance of injuries and the Aussies, this summer, will play for six or eight weeks without Sidney Barnes who fractured a wrist on the way over.

Then again Australian cricketers on tour toe the line in the matter of discipline. They subscribe to a prodigious list of "don'ts" and "musts."

Wives and relatives are not allowed on the trip. The players must live together in hotels selected by the manager; they must attend all functions designated "official" and are required to return to Australia with the team.

Newspaper-writing and broadcasting are not permitted and only Captain Don Bradman, with approval of the manager, is allowed to communicate with the press or give any information concerning matters connected with the tour. Players are not permitted to sell autographs or make stage appearances at theatres. Neither must they make records or films or give lectures.

Breaches of any of these conditions render a player liable to suspension from the team and an order to return home, besides having to forfeit all claims to payment for the tour.

All things considered the visiting cricketer enjoys himself. He is entitled to receive £600 ($3,000) for the trip. An addition £50 ($250) is allowed for taxi charges and other incidentals.

Funds Sought For Producing New Race Of Supermen

Eugenics Society Would Enable High-Grade Youths Having All Babies They Want

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Wanted: By the American Eugenics Society, a few millions of dollars to enable "high grade young people" to have all the babies they want.

The idea is a scientific, social test, proposed to the society at the annual meeting yesterday by its president, Dr. Ellsworth Huntington.

Eugenics, the science which aims at producing better humans, has definite knowledge, he said, that the parents from whom the improvement must come, are not limited to one class of society. They are in all classes, rich and poor, and some need help.

The time is ripe, he added, for a great experiment. Birth control is reducing the numbers of children born to the heretofore prolific parents of "lower grade," parents of frail physique, poor heredity, uncertain menality and economic handicaps.

Chance For Supermen

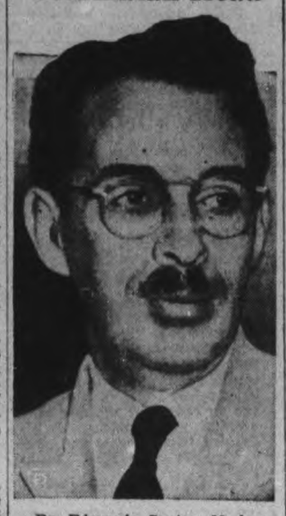
This fact reduces the competition of the "unfit," which has been the usual rule in the birth rate, and gives a chance for a race of supermen, if there is such a thing, to get started. The problem is how to know who is "high grade." A test is possible, said Dr. Huntingdon.

"If two young parents have two small children, for example," he said, "it is possible to test the intellectual, physical and temperamental qualities not only of the parents and their immediate relatives, but also of the children.

"It is likewise possible to apply a number of well established methods of measuring the suitability of home training of children. Thus in particular cases it is possible to decide that in a certain family the chances are large that further children will be on high quality.

"In the great majority of such families, however, parents hesitate to have more than three children. This is too small a number to provide as many parents as there are in the present generation. Many of them would gladly have five or six if there were some system which made them feel sure the children would be well cared for and well educated, no matter what misfortune overtook the parents."

Colombian Head



Dr. Edouardo Santos, 50, lawyer and editor, was chosen president of Colombia, South America, without opposition. As a League of Nations delegate in 1933, he obtained the league's intervention in Colombia's controversy with Peru over the Amazon port of Leticia.

APSLEY CHILDREN PLANT 75 TREES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, May 6. — On Monday an interesting ceremony of tree planting took place in Apsley School grounds. Each of the 25 pupils planted three trees under the supervision of their teacher, Bert Munro, assisted by Reeve Roy Brown chairman of the School Board, Rev. C. A. G. Spence, secretary-treasurer, and the Revs. F. C. McMulkin and R. M. McMullin. The trees were the gift of the chairman, each pupil receiving a red pine, white pine, and spruce. Before the planting took place a short program was heard in the school building, short addresses being given by each of the above-mentioned gentlemen and Mrs. George Kilborn rendering a vocal solo, the well-known and appropriate song for the occasion, "Trees." The pupils also sang "The Maple Leaf For Ever." At the conclusion of the planting Rev. R. M. McMullin made a dedicatory prayer and Mr. Spence gave the benediction.

WHERE YOU FIND THEM

WATERLOO, Ont., May 6.—(CP)—All residents today chuckled over an incident yesterday that reminded them of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn.

A curly headed four-year-old boy was noticed fishing down a manhole, not with a tree pole and string and cork, with with an expensive casting rod and line and trout fly attached.

Asked by an amused motorist what he was doing the reply was "fishing." Told he wouldn't likely catch anything there, the lad replied philosophically, "you never know where the fish are."

CONANT OPPOSES CENTRALIZATION AS REVERSE STEP

TORONTO, May 7—(CP). — The necessity of maintaining the balance between centralization and decentralization of authority in the Canadian federation is as vital now as it was in 1867 "when the provinces agreed to adopt the new form of government," Attorney-General Gordon Conant of Ontario said today.

Dealing with the constitutional aspects of the provincial government's presentation before the Rowell Commission, Mr. Conant suggested centralization would "not only destroy the essence of federalism but would not conduce to social efficiency."

The proposals for centralization made by Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia would convert the provinces into "mere names upon a map" and their legislature into little more than county councils."

Mr. Conant cited Prof. J. A. Maxwell's warning that "premature centralization might bring about a less rather than a more stable political organization, because it might aggrevate the disharmonies inherent in a federation." Canada being large and homogeneous neither in race nor in economic development.

General Parley Necessary.

The question of whether a remedy was needed, and what remedy, could be determined satisfactorily after all the facts were found "only by the time-honored British custom of conference and discussion by the parties concerned, namely the provinces and the Dominion," he suggested.

He emphasized that the "union of the provinces as a Canadian Federation" was the result of agreement between them, the terms of which were st out in the British North America Act.

Canada presented a paradox of unity and diversity and the necessary political counterpart of that paradox was Federalism, he said.

"These diversities are very real and important but their existence is not inconsistent with an underlying economic and political unity which, however temporarily obscured, has always conspicuously reasserted itself in times of crisis and its compelling power is present even when temporary differences seem most acute," the Attorney-General contended.

The basic unity of Canada was not merely economic but also political and cultural. "A common allegiance to the British Crown, that symbol of the free unity of a great group of democratic people, a common inheritance of similar political institutions, a common pride in our history and belief in our future, conspire to make the term 'Canadian' a living inspiring reality from coast to coast. Canada definitely is not a mere geographical expression."

Economic diversity, difference of race and culture and sheer size made regional self-government necessary, while common allegiance and underlying unity demanded a national government.

Differences Go Away Back

He felt there was undoubtedly wide difference of opinion among the framers of the Quebec resolutions, which led to confederation, as to whether the underlying principle should place the largest powers in the local or central government.

"Whatever may have been the real aim of the proponents of the union, the Privy Council has in general held that the interpretation of this part of our constitution must be from the point of view of a statute, so that the views of the fathers of confederation as to the terminology to be applied in describing the basis of union or as to what they considered was the real basis of union, have no bearing on the matter of interpretation," he submitted.

It was particularly desirable, if possible, to find some way of clarifying the situation as far as a definition of direct and indirect taxation was concerned, he said, although the courts had been called on many times to rule on the matter.

"The problem is basically a financial one rather than a constitutional one and the increasing attention paid to it is due to the financial difficulties of the provinces and the necessity of supplying additional social services," Mr. Conant suggested.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Shearer, each member to assist with the lunch. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Just 39 more school-days till the holidays....There are still a few extra copies of the Echoes available and there is a great deal of cash out. The executive would like to have both these items cleaned up next week...Some of the girls of the school have introduced a novel idea. SUGGEST STRAW FOR NEWSPRINT

SASKATOON, May 7 (CP).—Use of straw to produce newsprint is advocated here by A. J. Roden of Toronto, president of the Canadian Jewellers' Association.

Speaking last night to a group of Saskatoon jewellers, Mr. Roden said: "The time has come when the West, from a national standpoint, has got to protect the forests of Canada by producing newsprint, to be made from the straw that is burned each year on the farms."

"Science is so far advanced that it is possible to commercially and satisfactorily produce newsprint from straw, O. H Moore, outstanding Eastern Canada paper engineer, has produced paper from this source in Trenton, Ont."

REBELS CLEARING MOUNTAIN PEAKS

HENDAYE, France, May 7. — (AP).—General Franco's veteran Castillians fought their way steadily through driving rain toward the main Teruel - Sagunto - Valencia highway to-day.

Government dispatches said General Jose Miaja's militiamen were withdrawing slowly from their fortified mountain peaks before the insurgent offensive.

The veteran mountain fighters, however, reported they were selling each yard of ground at a high cost of insurgent life. Rainstorms which hampered the insurgent campaign all last week once again were making military operations difficult.

Dispatches from Valencia reported an insurgetn air raid which resulted in a hit upon the French freighter Djem yesterday. The vessel was set afire but casualties in the raid were said to have been few.

Old Starvation Diet System Frowned On For Ulcers

Doctor Advises Frequent Feedings On Varied Menu With Planty Of Rest

TORONTO, May 7—(CP)—Radical changes in the treatment of duodenal ulcers are advoted by Dr. Joseph Daly of Toronto who rejects the practice now generally followed by putting sufferers from that disease on a starvation diet.

Starvation of a patient suffering from this type of ulcer no longer is thought necessary, Dr. Daly said in a paper prepared for delivery before the concluding session of the Ontario Medical Association's annual convention here to-day.

Generally frequent feeding on a full and varied diet are better than eliminating supposedly injurious foodstuffs, he said. Ulcers in the 12-inch-long part of the small intestine next to the stomach previously were treated by means of a restricted diet, alkalis and surgery.

Adjustment of the patient to his environment and his disease is essential for treatment," Dr. Daly added. "Bed rest is the most useful therapy in acute cases and this can be supplemented if necessary with anti-spasmodic sedatives.

Moderation At All Times

"General measures include adequate rest, avoidance of fatigue, loss of sleep and sudden exertion. Alcohol in any form must not be taken and moderation must be adhered to at all times."

Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, former lieutenant-governor of Ontario and a noted surgeon, told the convention last night he believed osteopathy "has made out its claim as a method of treatment in a limited number of conditions."

Dr. Bruce's evidence largely was responsible for the rejection by a committee of the Ontario Legislature at its last session of a bill which, is enacted, would give drugless practitioners the title of doctor.

"I should like to say that in my opinion osteopathy has made out its claim as a method of treatment in a limited number of conditions," he said. "Also that there are undoubtedly many splendid men practicing manipulative methods who honestly believe in the value of this form of treatment.

"If these men would only be content to limit their work to what they are qualified to do, with proper safeguards, they would give useful service. Patients, before receiving manipulative treatment, should be required to present a certificate from a medical practitioner that is a suitable case for such treatment."

Why Use A "Sissy" Laxative?

Chronic constipation has to do with the colon or large intestine. Unless the large bowel is thoroughly emptied from time to time you become a victim of chronic constipation and poisoning of the system which results in colitis or other serious diseases.

Mild or "sissy" laxatives merely cause a movement of the bowels without effecting a thorough cleaning out of the colon or large bowel. For this reason you are misled into thinking that you are doing all you can to overcome a constipated and poisoned condition of the system.

Those who know Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills appreciate the value of a real medicine which not only effects a thorough cleansing of the colon or large bowel but also arouses the liver and kidneys to activity in filtering poisons from the blood.

Once you have proven the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will never return to the use of "sissy" laxatives. Used regularly once a week this medicine ensures pure blood and freedom from constipation and the pains, aches and serious diseases which accompany it.

ANGLICAN SYNOD HOISTS PRE-MARRIAGE HEALTH TESTS MOTION

Dr. H. G. Carleton Of Norwood Moves Marriage Applicants Provide Medical Certificate

Consideration Of Plan Is Delayed Until Next Meeting Of Body

TORONTO, May 7.—An eleventh-hour attempt Friday afternoon to have Toronto Synod of the Anglican Church ask the Ontario Government to legislate to require applicants for marriage licenses to produce a medical certificate was shelved for another year.

The motion proposed by Dr. H. G. Carleton, of Norwood, urged the necessity of a medical certificate before marriage "showing freedom from the social diseases, active tuberculosis or mental disease including epilepsy."

Diocesan Chancellor D. T. Symons, K.C., thought the matter too important to be hastily discussed just before closing time. Bishop A. R. Beverley suggested the motion be referred to the Social Service Committee for a report at next year's Synod, and this was approved, with Dr. M. Carleton's consent.

Synod passed a resolution by J. R. Roaf, of St. Paul's, Bloor Street East, "dean" of the diocesan "parliament," which calls for a special committee to be appointed by Archbishop Owen to investigate salaries of the clergy, allowances for wives and children, parsonages, endowments, tenure of office and pensions.

Opposes Fermented Wine.

By amendment, a motion by Rev. J. R. S. Boyd, asking "that the use of unfermented communion wine be permitted," was sent on for consideration by the House of Bishops.

Fermented wine at communion sometimes has led to drink, Mr. Boyd charged. He knew of one church warden and his wife who were led to drink to excess in their own home because of it, he said. He thought it was a temptation.

At the request of Archbishop Owen, J. M. McWhinney, of St. Paul's, Bloor Street East, in presenting the report of the Investment Committee, explained the $4,475,368 under the charge of the committee did not belong to Synod as a Synod. It was a trust fund administered for various parishes, boards and funds and interest or principal could not be touched for any other purpose.

Although denounced as pro-Russian, a resolution urging "legislation whereby the social order be reformed in a pattern more in accord with standards of Christian brotherhood" was passed unanimously. The resolution, also noting "with approval, the evidence of a deeper understanding of Christian stewardship in the use of material wealth," was an amendment to a motion calling for "a more equitable distribution of wealth" proposed by Rev. G. O. Lightbourne, of Aurora.

Expresses Protest.

"This makes a fine climax to the Synod's request for a referendum on beer parlors, a very un-British undertaking, and Synod's disapproval of my motion with regard to British rearmament," Rev. N. Clarke Wallace contended. "It would be a fitting climax, then, to endorse this proposal by Mr. Lightbourne, who is well-known for his pro-Russian leanings."

Appointment of a young man who would give his life to the direction of chaplaincy work was urged by Rev. John Bushell, senior chaplain. It should not be looked on as an inferior work, he said, suggesting the man picked for the position should be "as near like Bishop Renison of St. Paul's Church as possible, a man with the ability to study his work and paint word pictures for his subjects."

Archbishop Owen was thanked by Synod for the conception of the "Quiet Hour" in the Cathedral and asked to arrange for its continuance in future years. Principal H. J. Cody was thanked for his service of 30 years on the Toronto Rectory Commission and Rev. F. H. Cosgrave, provost of Trinity College, for "good work" and particularly his part in raising $200,000 for the new St. Hilda's residence for women.

OBITUARY

THOMAS PERDUE.

Thomas Perdue, lifelong resident of Ennismore township, died suddenly at his home, Lot 3, Con. 2, on Friday afternoon. He was 84 years old.

Born in Ennismore Township, only two miles from his present home, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Perdue, and was one of the district's most widely known residents. He was a member of St. Martin's church all his life. A man who had a host of friends, he was highly esteemed. He never sought public honours although often approached to do so, preferring to centre his interest on his home and family.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife, formerly Catharine Garvey, and seven children, Simon, Kathleen and Lillian Perdue of Ennismore, John of Glasgow, Scotland, Patrick of Wolfe Island, and Julia and Dennis Perdue of Toronto, and two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Murray and Mrs. John Gannon of Ennismore; and one brother, William Perdue of Ennismore.

The funeral will be held on Monday morning at 9 a.m. from the family residence to St. Martin's church for Requiem Mass. Interment will be made at St. Martin's Cemetery.

Two Boys Cling To Upset Canoe

BELLEVILLE, May 7.—(Special).—When their canoe upset near the bay bridge on Friday, Bert Noakes and John Knott narrowly escaped death by drowning. The boys, out for their first canoe ride of the season, upset near the bay bridge. Too far from shore to cry for help or to swim in the cold water, they clung to their light craft until it had drifted near the Government dock, about a mile distant.

Upon nearing the dock they had sufficient strength to manoeuvre their canoe close enough for Frank Pepper to catch hold of them and pull them out.

CYCLIST FIGURES IN TWO ACCIDENTS

Bicycles and roller-skates figured in three traffic accidents in Peterborough Friday afternoon.

Victor Chate, 11, of 64 Hunter street, west, had his right hand and arm cut when he rode down the incline at the east end of Charlotte street on roller-skates and collided with an automobile being driven south off the extension of Queen street. The boys arm struck one of the headlights of the motor car and smashed it and his own injuries were caused by the glass. The motor car was driven by James Pammett, 242 Euclid avenue who drove the injured youngster to the Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic where he received treatment and afterward took him to his home.

Ralph Braund had his left leg bruised when the bicycle on which he was riding north on Aylmer street collided with a car being driven west on Hunter street by Thomas Brown, 375 Downie street. The accident happened shortly after 4 o'clock. Braund's bicycle was not damaged.

Another bicycle-automobile collision occurred at about the same time on the market square and strangely enough the driver of this motor car was another Brown—Ray Brown of 309 Mark street. He was driving across the market square and opposite the entrance to the Market Hall, collided with a bicycle being riden north by Norman Bugg, 179 Adaline avenue. The front of the bicycle was damaged to some extent but the rider escaped unhurt.

Canadian Legion Notes

On May 9th, 1915 one of the worst disasters in Britain's railway history took place at Gretna Green near the English and Scottish border. The 1st, Battalion, Royal Scots, known in the British army as "Pontius Pilates Bodyguard" were proceeding on the first leg of their journey to Gallipoli in two sections of the Glasgow and London express when the first train jumped the track near Gretna. The 12 coaches were telescoped and to make the horror more complete two other trains from opposite directions piled into the wreckage and all took fire. Of the 500 men of the Royal Scots there were only seventy-two survivors who with the two companies in the second section went on their way to the landing at Gallipoli. Among the seventy-two surivivors was Sgt. Wm. Gracie caretaker of the Legion Hall. Some of them lie in graves on the peninsula and in the intervening years the others have passed on till now Bill Gracie is the only living survivor of that disaster.

Thanks to Ald. Stocker and the summer-like weather the attendance at the hall these days are rather slim, a good many of the members preferring to take advantage of the seats in the park.

The cribbage tournament has reached the semi-finals ant Comrades Hardie, Bridger and Hawthorne will have to fight it out.

The city carpetball league, of which the Legion team is a part, is holding its annual banquet on Wednesday at the Legion Hall and our Ladies' Auxiliary is suppying the eats.

Comrade R. G. Long has returned from an extended stay in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, where he had a rather serious operation. He is progressing and will soon be his old self again.

FOUR GLASSES—TEN DAYS

There was only one case before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. at police court this morning, an elderly man pleading guilty to being intoxicated on Charlotte street. He told the court that he did not think he had been very drunk. "My feet are bad and that makes me walk unsteadily," he said. The accused added that he had had only four glasses of beer although he admitted they were big ones. Magistrate Langley imposed a fine of $10 and 75 cents costs but the man elected to take the alternative ten days in jail.

YOUTH HIT FARMER WITH FLOWER POT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, May 7.—An assault case in which a youth got two years suspended sentence, was disposed in police court today. The youth, who was employed on probation from Bowmanville Industrial School on the farm of George Copeland, of Mariposa, appeared before Magistrate Gee. Together with the assault charge, the farmer accused the youth of threatening him with serious harm. He hit him in the head with a flower pot, threw dishes at him and finally threatened him with a butcher knife.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the big Boy Scout Jamboree to be held in Lindsay on May 24th—the twenty-first anniversary of the formation of a Scout Troop in Lindsay. Some three hundred Scouts from all parts of the district will gather in Lindsay. John Hornsby, of Peterborough, Commissioner of the Boy Scouts for the Kawartha District, and who was Scout Master of the First Lindsay Troop, is working on the big event with the Lindsay Boy Scout Association. A parade will be held with a sports program at the Fair Grounds in the afternoon and a camp fire at night.

The sudden death took place at Haliburton on Wednesday of one of the most widely known residents of the northland, in the person of John Brohm. The deceased, who was a farmer nearly all his life and a lover of cattle and horses, and up to the time of his death had extensive interests in cattle. He is survived by his wife, a son and daughter and one brother.

Whole Countryside Presents Beautiful Panorama Of Spring

Everything Is Looking Just About As Good As It Could Look

Farmers' doubts about the wintering of their fall wheat vanished long before today when even the dweller in the city, although he may not be certain about his grasses, can see for himself that the grain planted last fall promises to be an excellent crop.

The Peterborough countryside has all the fresh, green vigor of young things growing, and presents a beautiful panorama of Springtime, Frank Paterson, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, told the Examiner today that the whole province is making a splendid beginning as the new season rapidly develops.

"I have been all over this county in the last week or ten days," Mr. Paterson said, "and everything is looking just about as good as it could be. There is no such thing, I suppose, as a 100 per cent. grain crop, but that is what it looks like. There are some patches where it was winter killed, but they are not numerous.

Three-quarters of the seeding on Peterborough farms is completed, and I should think it is ten days to two weeks earlier than the average spring. The ground worked up well, the weather has been favorable, and farmers have been getting a good start. If the rest of the year keeps on like that it would be perfect.

Pasturage is earlier, and the cattle have been getting quite a lot of good picking. Cheese factories are opening, and the only disappointing spot in the picture is the drop in butter prices."

The Rambling REPORTERS

CAR GOES UP IN SMOKE

It was the car: fire department officials were firm about that angle.

At eighteen minutes to one o'clock this morning firemen received a hurry call to the banks of the canal, near the Government sheds, where they found an automobile going up in flames. People who know say that one is apt to find almost any kind of car parked along the canal banks at that hour of night, but the appearance of a roaring fire engine must have been startling to some; a car burning up, to others.

The car was almost a total wreck, the fire department reported. They said the driver told them he was turning around when the car went into the ditch, burst into flames. A considerable amount of chemical was necessary to extinguish the fire. The car was owned by G. A. Stevenson, 227 Armour Road.—J.F.P.

CALL IS WITHHELD UNTIL CHURCHES INCREASE STIPEND

KINGSTON, May 7.—The Kingston Presbytery of the United Church, meeting in Kingston on Tuesday, went on record as opposed to sustaining the call extended by the charge of Frankville and Toledo to Rev. A. B. Keyes, Sharbot Lake, unless the people of the charge guarantee the minister a definite salary. The resolution stated that the congregations would have to guarantee the new minister $1,150 the first year and $1,200 the second year.

The presbytery was told that the present minister, Rev. A. H. McConnachie, M.A., who is going on superannuation, was formerly minister at Centreville and at Springville, near Peterborough, was paid only $890 in 1937, and this was not considered sufficient. During the discussion it was stated that the charge had told the Sharbot Lake minister they would make an effort to raise $1,000.

"It is a ridiculous situation," said one of the ministers. "There are 112 families on the circuit and they could certainly pay the minister a living wage."

"This sum is certainly little enough when the minister has to maintain a car," said another minister.

"If the people will not pay for the service why should they get it?" asked another speaker.

"People don't tell the tax collector that they will pay him as much as they can," said another delegate.

The retiring minister said he thought the people would do better if they had a minister who could work hard on the circuit.

"Men must feel their responsibility to the minister, and I certainly will not support the idea of letting men go on the circuits and take whatever they can get," declared Elmer Davis.

CARS DAMAGED HASTINGS CRASH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 7—Half a rear fender of a local car was torn off and thrown a distance of fifteen feet when it was in a collision with a truck driven by a Campbellford man. The collision occurred at the main intersection Friday afternoon. Both drivers arranged settlement between themselves.

Eighty-five per cent. of pupils attending public school here took advantage of free dental inspection Friday morning. Dr. D. C. Hay, an examiner, stated he was much surprised to find the average child's teeth in "excellent condition."

Albert Venters, Tim Scriver and Albert Wellman, three local boys, officially opened the swimming season Friday afternoon. They report the water is just a bit too cool for pleasure yet.

Properly equalized brakes—particularly if they are of the four wheel type—are essential for safe emergency stops. Unequalized braking pressure will cause your car to swerve and possibly get out of control—easily resulting in a serious accident.

Weaver Tester Immediately Shows Relative Braking Power

Make this test yourself. Drive on the Tester—it lies flat on the floor—and apply your foot brakes. The relative braking power on each of the four wheels is immediately shown by the rise of colored liquid in the four gauges in the pedestal head, positioned to correspond to the wheels. CHAPTER 30

Two people's voice were talking on the telephone, when she picked up the receiver in the living room, beyond the pool, while Garry stood waiting. She heard a woman saying: "Barbara, I'm going to get to Jimmy Minton tonight. He's at the Lodge and I'm going to be there, too!"

WENDA DID not hang up the receiver, when she heard voices speaking. She listened. Garry would think she wasw aiting for the operator.

"Julia, you're being absurd," Barbara was saying. "Whatever your quarrel is with Jimmy Minton, you can't bring it here. Be sensible and go back to New York."

"Oh, no, my sweet cousin, I'm coming out to your party!"

Barbara spoke quickly, her voice low and frigtened. "Julia, someone's on the line. Snap out of this, and go home. I'll come to you, just as soon as Ray gets here. We'll talk then—"

"I'm coming to the Lodge!"

Wenda heard the decisive click that told that the stranger had hung up. Julia—oh, yes, the model who had been one of Jimmy Minton's casual interests. So the young lady thought she could make trouble. And she was a cousin of Barbara's. She would remember that for future use.

She called long distance, got the director and as beginning to speak when Garry caught her hands . . . "Wenda, for the last time, I ask you—"

She wrenched away, spoke her piece, argued with the director.

". . . Garry Page? Yes, he knows what I'm doing. He's right here." She handed the telephone to Garry."

"Page, is this on the level?" the director asked.

"Wait until morning," Garry began, but a shout from Wenda was a punctuation mark for his words. She had regained the telephone.

"This in final. I—am—through. Get it?"

She hung up.

* * *

Barbara, dismayed because she was sure there had been an eavesdropper on the telephone when Julia called, decided to hunt up Natalie right away and tell her about the whole situation. She was just outside the living room door, when she heard Wenda shouting her resignation and Garry trying to make her take it back. Too stunned to hurry on, she waited.

She heard the telephone click and drew back into the shadows. Garry and Wenda would move away and she could go on. But Wenda came out of the door, passed her, caught a glimpse of someone standing still, and paused.

"Oh, you spying, small town, meddling . . . " The rest of the words were lost as Wenda went running up the wide stairway. Garry did not follow, so after a moment Barbara passed the door. He had gone out by the entrance that led back to the swimming pool. He had not heard.

She could not find Natalie. Anyway, Julia probably would not come. If she did, she would arrive in time to find Jimmy Minton talking to Wenda.

Had Garry taken Wenda to task about Jimmy Minton, and was that the cause of the scene? Or did it have something to do with the message which Wenda had promised to convey to Garry?

"Since it happens to be none of my business, I'd better forget it," she cautioned herself. "It's a lovers' quarrel—tomorrow it will be forgotten. She'll be back on the stage tomorrow night."

Therefore, Barbara went back to her room to read until tea time. She liked the room I.t was long and low, and its windows looked out on the blue glass of the skating pond which was used not only by the house guests at Natalie's but by people from other lodges and an adjoining club. Later this evening the whole house party would move over to that club for dancing, Natalie had said.

The walls of Barbara's room were blue and the deep carpet matched them. The chairs were cushioned in rose-sprinkled chintz that matched the draperies and bed cover. Low shelves of books, rose-sprigged lamp shades and blue bowls of pink flowers added charm. Downstairs the place was masculine and athletic. Up here, is was distinctly feminine. It was quiet and restful. Barbara felt sleepy.

The book that Barbara had been reading was not on her table. She remembered that she had been reading it in Basil's den the preceding afternoon. She had forgotten it. The small, rosy clock on the mantel above the fire showed that it was not yet time for Wenda to keep her tryst with Jimmy Minton in the den. She could get her book safely.

Large velvet curtains shut the den away from the great baronial living room. The latter was surrounded on three sides by a wide balcony, off of which most of the bedrooms opened. Barbara stood for a second admiring the serenity and strength of the silent house. Then she slipped down the stairs. People must be taking naps before dinner. No one seemed to be anywhere. She had one hand on the curtain when she heard voices in the den. She would have withdrawn but Bobbie's tones, clear and inquiring, came to her, and she stepped into the room.

"You mean you push this and that makes the bullet come?" he was asking.

Bobbie and a man had their backs to Barbara. When the man spoke, she recognized Jimmy Minton's voice. "Now, you've got it! Let's have some fun, you and I!"

"But somebody might get hurt!"

"Hurt nothing! There's nothing in there but a blank cartridge. Now listen to me, Bobbie. There's somebody coming pretty soon, and when I wing at you, you aim and we'll scare him. It will make a big noise, that's all. How about it?"

"No, sir!" There was something close to fear in the little boy's voice.

Before Barbara had decided what she should do, the man turned and saw her. Bobbie followed the playboy's gaze.

"Barbara!" There was such relief in Bobbie's voice that the girl instinctively opened her arms to him. "Oh, I'm glad you're here." Then, growing braver, because he wasn't alone, he added: "If you shoot that gun, nobody will get hurt and people will get scared."

"I hardly believe that Miss Kingsley would be interested in any games that you and I might play, Bobbie," Minton observed. "Suppose we put the toy away — until later."

"You mean you'll play the game alone if I'm not here?" Bobbie questioned from the shelter of Barbara's arm.

"Maybe we'll let it go until some other time,' the man replied. "You look scared, Miss Kingsley. I take it you aren't accustomed to firearms. But you wanted something in this room?"

"Just a book. It's here on the couch. Coming with me, Bobbie?"

"Yes, by all means take him with you," the man sneered. "Your magazine doesn't recommend such play for children, I'm sure. Something like drop-the-handkerchief or tree-tag would be more in line, I should judge."

Barbara's temper flamed. This man, despicable as she held him, could make her feel ignorant, ill-at-ease, belligerent. She moved away from Bobbie.

"Better stay and be amused, Bobbie. I'm going to read a book, anyway."

"Is—is it all right for me to play the game where you shoot and just get a noise?" the little boy persisted, his eyes drawn fascinatedly to the gun which also frightened him.

Above the child's head Jimmy Minton's eyes leered mockingly at Barbara. She met the gaze steadily, then said:

"No, Bobbie. You can't trust guns."

Then Barbara walked away, forcing her steps to follow a measured tread until she had passed too far to be heard. One thought was going around and around in her head like a spinning top. There was somebody Jimmy Minton wanted killed. He was expecting Wenda in a few more moments. But it couldn't be Wenda. She was his pawn—his pawn to get even with Garry. Then it must be Garry! Oh, it was all becoming plain now. Wenda had told Garry something which would make him so infuriated that he would go straight to Jimmy Minton about it—at least, that is what Jimmy thought would happen—and when he came...

She shuddered, remembering the way Bobbie's round eyes had listened to the story of the new game.

There was one thing she had to do—had to do it at once! She must get to Garry. She must warn him. Maybe she should have taken Bobbie with her. But no, that would have made Minton think she held suspicions. Now he wouldn't know. But he wouldn't use Bobbie as his instrument, that was certain. He would find something else. Garry would be in his room. He had been in his swimming suit when she had seen him in the living room such a few minutes before. But suppose he had dressed in a hurry—

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I was a widow and I married a man whose wife had been dead two years. Before marriage we discussed our former marriages to the fullest extent and agreed that we were beginning a new life together and that we would not expect each other to be like our lost mates. In spite of this, however, in less than two months after we were married my husband found that he was not reconciled to his wife's death and that, although he had no fault to find with me, I could not take her place. I was well enough as I was, but I was just not like she was. His disappointment brought on a nervous breakdown and he requested me to leave him, which I did. I love him very much, but he says that our marriage was a sad mistake and that he does not want to go on with it. There is to be a meeting soon for us to come to terms and I don't know how to prepare myself for it. What can I do?

MRS. L. W.

Answer:

It seems to me that the best thing that you can do is to spar for time. Do not consent to an immediate divorce. Tell him that you want to wait for a couple of years before making a final decision on the subject. Perhaps if you give him a chance to get good and lonesome and to miss the ministrations of a wife, he will come to his senses and realize that a live woman who loves him is better than mooning over the memory of a dead one.

Your husband has certainly put you in a very embarrassing position, but if you hope to win out you must meet the situation with poise and dignity. Don't try to force yourself on him and make him keep his marriage vows. It will only make him hate you, for there is nothing that a man resents in a woman as much as her holding him up. Be independent.

Tell him you will be no man's unwanted wife. But that you want him to be sure of himself before he makes a final decision that is unjust to you. Don't reproach him. Show him that you can understand his feelings and are sorry for him. Don't write him beseeching letters. Don't tell him that you still love him and are pining for him. Just let him alone and let the lonesomeness sink in, while he remembers what a sensible, considerate woman you are. And unless he is absolutely obsessed by the ghost of his first wife you will get him back.

Your husband has an unusually bad case of the dear-departed-Marie complex, but most widowers have it in one form or another and it is one of the afflictions with which nearly all second wives have to contend. And it is a queer and inexplicable thing, too, for the very man who are always flinging No. 1 in No. 2's teeth didn't regard her as such a paragon while she was alive. It was only after she had passed on that she became the model of perfection upon which thy expect No. 2 to found herself.

There are very few second wives who are not called upon to listen to a panegyric about Maria's bread and Maria's thrift and home-staying qualities, and how she always wore a hat two seasons and never dreamed of stepping out anywhere except to church, until Mrs. Number 2 feels like bursting into tears and crying out: "Say no more. No one else could possibly regret her death as much as I do."

Of course, it is a lovely thing for a husband to forget all of his wife's faults and remember only her virtues after she is dead, but it is mighty hard on the second wife who can't be a duplicate of the loved and lost and wouldn't be if she could, and who is filled with a bitter jealousy of her than she could be of any siren. For she could do battle with a live woman, but she is helpless to contend with the image a man builds up of a woman who never existed.

A second marriage can be far happier than a first marriage, because mature men and women are more capable of picking out suitable mates than boys and girls are, and age and experience have taught them the art of living with people without friction. But a second marriage can only be a successful one when a man and woman bury their memories in the graves of their dead, and hold no post-mortems.

* * * * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—What are the dangers of child-marriage?

CAROLINE D.

Answer:

First, impermanence. Child-marriages rarely last. Boys and girls who marry in their teens are generally divorced in their twenties. It is the young who mostly clutter up the divorce courts with their mistakes. Adolescents lack the knowledge of life, the experience and the maturity of judgment that fit them to pick out their mates, and it is a disgrace to civilization that at an age when boys and girls are not legally responsible for any other act they can take out a marriage license.

Very young marriages are seldom happy ones. The tastes of boys and girls are continually changing. The thing they are crazy about today, they tire of tomorrow. And that is just as true about marriage as it is about bicycles or hats or dancing. Many a boy husband and girl wife are sick of each other three weeks after marriage. The husband has seen a perfect peach of a girl whom he likes better than he does his wife; the wife has met a perfectly w-o-n-d-e-r-f-u-l boy who has the most beautiful eyes and dances divinely whom she likes better than she does her husband, and they are both tired of staying at home and want to play around with the other youngsters.

When a youthful couple grow up and develops along the same lines it is sheer luck and it doesn't happen once in a thousand times. Usually one goes ahead and the other stays put, and we have either divorce or one of the tragic marriages where one or the other drags the corpse of a mistake through life, bound to his or her side.

When boys and girls marry they throw the burden of their support upon their parents, and that is a cruel injustice to the men and women who have worked and sacrificed to rear one family and who have looked forward to having some rest and ease when their children were grown and to save up something for their old age. It is a yellow and dastardly thing for any boy to marry who cannot support his own family.

These are only a few objections to child-marriage. There are a million others, not the least of which is that those who are nothing but children themselves are not fit to rear other children.

DOROTHY DIX.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S STICKER BIRD

Very jolly were all the animal children in Woodland near the Orange Ice Mountains where Uncle Wiggily lived in his hollow stump bungalow. They had seen the photograph of Mr. Longears and Baby Bunty taken, or 'shot,' by the jolly boy with his camera.

"Let's all take turns going to the woods with Daddy," said Jingle, "and we may get our pictures taken."

"Oh, yes, let's!" shouted all the other bunny boys and girls so they sounded like a college cheer at a football game, though, of course, they weren't exactly that.

But when Uncle Wiggily heard this he said:

"I do not think the boy will come back with his camera right away, to take more rabbit pictures. He may want to get some pictures of Johnny and Billie Bushytail, the squirrels, or Charlie and Arabella, the chicken children. But what I will do is this: I will take one of you to the woods with me today to have an adventure as may happen," said Uncle Wiggily spoke something like a moving picture.

"Look, there is Billie Wagtail"

Count Out

"Whom will you take?" asked Baby Bunty, feeling quite sure Uncle Wiggily would not take her as she had just been to the woods.

"Count out, as if you were going to play tag, and then I can tell whom I will take with me" said the rabbit gentleman.

So the rabbit children counted:

"Oshkosh, iskosh askosh izzle,
Whirling around will make you dizzy;
Put on a stocking, then a shoe,
Uncle Wiggily will take you."

The count came to Jingle and she hopped up and down for joy.

"You will never get to the woods with hopping up and down that way," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "You must hop straight along."

So Jingle hopped along with her daddy and the other rabbit children, playing games, knew their turn would come soon.

If Jingle thought she was going to have her picture taken in the woods with Uncle Wiggily she was disappointed, but not very much. For they had a jolly time picking flowers.

Then, all of a sudden, Jingle looking over the top of a bush called to her daddy, saying:

"Look, there is Billie Wagtail, the boy goat. I see his horns."

"No, that isn't Billie," said Uncle Wiggily. "That is the sticker bird, as I call him. I call him the sticker bird because he has horns like those of Billie to stick you with. Only the bird's stickers, or horn, are made of feathers."

A Lark

"What an odd bird," said Jingle. "What is it, really?"

"Well, the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Tree School would call him Octocoris Alpestris, which is Latin for horned lark," said Uncle Wiggily. "We may call him that."

"And I always come when I'm called," sang the bird with feather horns on his head. With that he soared into the sky, singing as he went and then he came scooting down like a diving airplane. "How was that?" he asked.

"Fine," said Jingle, looking at the odd feather horns on the bird's head. "You are a lovely singer."

"Yes," was the answer. "It runs in the lark family to sing."

Uncle Wiggily and Jingle saw the bird soar and heard him sing again. Then, as the bunnies were about to hop home, the Bob Cat came slinking along to get them. But the lark thrust his head above the bushes and when the Bob Cat saw the horns, thinking they would stick him, away he scooted as fast as he could go. So all ended happily.

And if the yeast cake doesn't cover itself with rice pudding and call itself a pie, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily's snapper.

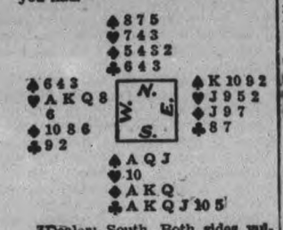
"The Authority on Authorities"

GO FOR THEM ALL

WHEN YOUR contract is impossible of fulfillment unless several factors break exactly as you wish, the only thing to do is press your luck. Try for all of the breaks you need, even if they involve exactly even divisions of the missing cards in a couple of suits, plus a successful finesse. If one of your hopes misses out, at least you can give yourself credit for having adhered to whatever slight chance you had.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

When North responded to South's 2-Club bid with a call of 2-No Trumps, South decided to bid 6-Clubs, as he figured nothing could deter him from making a slam with these cards, regardless of what his partner held.

The gods smiled on this rash decision when they presented him with one entry to what seemed like an entryless dummy. His correct ruff of the second heart trick with the club 10, as well as the drop of the opponents' trumps in two rounds, made the club 6 an entrance to dummy.

After cashing the diamonds A, K and Q, he went over to dummy with a trump and cashed his thirteenth diamond, on which he discarded a spade. His good fortune held out to the extent of the spade finesse working for him, with the result that the slam was made.

Tomorrow's Problem

How should South play to make 7-No Trumps after the lead of the diamond Q?

BRIGHTON, England—(CP).—C. W. Hart, 73, veteran athlete, will demonstrate his athletic condition next month by waltzing and fox trotting from Worthing Pier to Brighton, 11 miles, partnered by two young girls.

So Bad With Nerves Would Lie Down and Cry

It is generally admitted that nerve troubles are more frequent than formerly and growing more so every day.

Wherever there are people whose health is poor, and their nerves shattered, they will find in Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills a tonic that will help to restore the deranged centres, and bring the nervous system back to its old time condition.

MRS. K. M. HARVEY, Bramber, N.S., writes:—"I got so bad with my nerves I would lie down on the bed and cry. Most of the time it just seemed I could not help it and would not know what I was crying for. I used to feel as if I would go crazy I was so bad.

I tried several different medicines, but received no relief. I then took Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills, four boxes of them, and started to feel better after the first few doses. Now I feel better in every way."

Mills—Chambo

The marriage of Alberta Marie, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chambo of Peterborough, to Alfred Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Mills of Parkhill Road, was solemnized at half-past one o'clock this Saturday afternoon in the Salvation Army Quarters, King Street. Adjutant Neil Warrander officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was charming in a graceful princess gown of forget-me-not blue sheer over taffeta, the little bolero having short puffed sleeves and finished with a large blue flower at the neck. She wore a matching blue turban with short veil, blue silk gloves and white slippers, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

The bride's sister, Miss Helen Chambo of Toronto attended as bridesmaid. She wore a lovely jacket gown of pink net over tafeta, a small pink hat with matching veil, pink gloves and pink slippers, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The best man was the bride's brother, Fred Chambo.

Following the ceremony a reception attended by about sixty guests was held at 191 Brock street, where Mrs. Ken Hogg, aunt of the bride, received the guests wearing a gown of wine sheer, with wine hat and accessories and a corsage of spring flowers. The groom's mother, Mrs. Mills, was gowned in navy sheer with matching hat and accessories and also a corsage of spring flowers. The rooms were artistically decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers, and on the bride's table was the three-tiered wedding cake surrounded with white tulle. Pink and white tulips were arranged in a silver basket and pink candles in silver holders.

The happy couple left later for a short honeymoon, the bride wearing a grey coat over a green frock, with grey hat and other accessories. They will reside at 67 Sophia street when they return to the city.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Confidence in another man's virtue is no slight evidence of a man's own."—Montaigne.

And Schiller tells us: "Every man stamps his value on himself. The price we challenge for ourselves is given us by others.—Man is made great or little by his own will."

Dear Friends:

How do people treat you? Are they giving the impression you are inferior and away beneath them when they talk to you? Do they do things to you that they would not dare do to some of your friends? Are they careless of your comfort, your opinions, your point of view, inconsiderate in many ways?

Then they are reading the stamp you placed on yourself. They are treating you as you have expected to be treated. Maybe you have set this stamp on yourself because of the way you think of others, because if you think there is no virtue to be found in your friends or your family, your workmates or your employer, how is it to be found in you?

All of us set our own value on ourselves, and it is on this value, big or little, as to how others treat us. Now, when I say value I do not mean conceit. Let us see what the dictionary says of conceit. Conceit: "An idea: an overestimate of one's own abilities or powers: vanity: a quaint fancy." So if you have a quaint fancy you are better looking, or dress better, or do anything and everything better than others, that is not a proper value you are placing on yourself, but silly vanity.

I remember once, when I was private secretary to a very irascible man who flew into a rage at the least provocation, he came to me one day in one of his towering rages. They were enough to put the fear of death into one, and there was always the danger that he would say "og to the cashier and get your money. You're fired!" Bad words these last two.

I was about five foot two, slender as a rail. (98 pounds in weight) and he was about six foot four. Yet when he towered above me, bellowing words and swearing, something rose inside of me which would not let me take it, and I rose to my full five feet two, and said, "Are you talking to me?"

The man was stunned. A shrimp like me standing up to him. He said "well, you spunky little devil." I was trembling so that I could hardly stand, I had visions of being thrown out of work, but I could not let him think I was so much of a worm that he could talk to me like that. So I said, when you talk to me decently I will answer, and before you say any more, I am not to blame for what has made you angry. Well, I was not discharged, in fact he always respected me after that and never raised his voice, but always spoke like a gentleman, and when I left to go to Boston, he told me if ever I came back, in one year or twenty, to come back and work for him.

Now I have not told you this to make you think I am the big I am, but to let you know when I learned to place a right value on myself. Had I let that man get away with it, I might have gone through life cringing if ever anyone raised their voice to me.

And when you do place a true value on yourself, everyone will see the stamp and treat you accordingly. If you are ever wrong, be sorry enough to apologize, but don't cringe. You are a human being just as the other one is, not a worm.

And remember, the very thing you fear may come to you, because you fear it too much to put a proper value on yourself. Believe in your own self, believe in others too, for if you can be decent, so can they, if you are honest, so are they. Believe no man evil until you have the evidence, and be a person with a proper value on yourself as a person. Hoping I have helped you, and that you will write to your friend,

ROBERTA.

PARENTS WAVER ON LIFE OR DEATH FOR THEIR BABY

CHICAGO, May 7.—(AP)—Baby Helaine Colan lay gurgling in a hospital crib today while her distraught parents wavered on a decision that medical experts said meant life or death for her.

Should they permit an operation that probably would save their five-weeks-old daughter's life but leave her blind forever, or should they forego the operation and accept death as the inevitable result? The answer rested with Dr. Herman Colan, 30, a dentist, and his wife, Estelle, 23.

Dr. Morris Hershman, the child's maternal grandfather, said yesterday the young parents had reached the fateful decision to "let nature take its course." But today the father said no final decision had been made.

Baby Colan is afflicted with glioma in both eyes. Physicians said the cancerous growth would spread to her brain and cause death if an operation were not performed. Both eyes would be removed in an operation.

The parents turned to friends, relatives, brain surgeons and a spiritual advisor for help. They received conflicting advice. Physicians generally were agreed that no operation could save the child's sight and that death would ensue, probably within two months, if no operation were performed.

Until two weeks ago the baby was believed normal in every respect. Then Dr. Hershman noticed a flaw in the left eye. Specialists subsequently confirmed his diagnosis—glioma of the retina in both eyes. Physicians declared they knew of no certain cure.

TALKED OUT

tives claimed the bill would permit a real estate boom by the company while New York state authority for building was being awaited. Mr. Bennett's amendment providing that such real estate operations could not be carried on disposed of this objection.

It was declared by Liberal proponents of the bill that incorporators of the company had assigned their rights to the Ontario Government which will build and supervise the bridge in collaboration with an American authority. When the bridge bonds have been retired the structure will be toll free. Because of constitutional difficulties it was impossible for the Ontario Government to apply itself for authority to build.

New York State's Legislature recently turned down enabling legislation and it will be necessary for the New York bill to be passed in the state assembly before the bridge can be built.

Opponents of the bill based one of their arguments on the belief that it represented a direct attempt of the Ontario Government to destroy the vested rights of the International Railway Company, which owned the Falls View bridge, to build and maintain a bridge over the gorge.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, May 8.

Sunday's horoscope holds testimony of very unusual adventures or experiences, with possible change, travel, or explorations of a scientific or educational nature. Disputes, loss, litigation and concern about papers and documents may afflict both the private and business lives.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which very sudden and surprising things make their appearance. These may bring travel, removal, new environs and meeting of strangers.

A child born on this day may be adventurous, ingenious, original and independent, and will have a romantic career. However, it may be subject to litigation, strife and disagreements brought about by carelessness with writings or documents. Its gay and witty nature may add to its social prestige.

For Monday, May 9.

Monday's astrological forecast is a particularly intriguing one, with several factors of a secret, curious and undercover character developing to lend conspicuous color to the day's activities. These seem to combine to work miracles in employment or in the good graces of superiors or those in places of power and position.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very signal advancement in their positions, possibly brought about by a subtle or peculiar influence or intrigue. There should be surprising signs of preferment, promotion, honors, or favors from superiors or those in high places, but be alert to the hidden enmity and attacks of underlings or inferiors. Be tactful with these.

A child born on this day may be peculiarly gifted, ambitious and aspirational, with idealistic, altruistic and democratic leanings that may advance it to honored position in realms of human service and advancement. However, it may encounter the mistrust and enmity of those it seeks to aid.

Gladden Their Hearts On Mother's Day

From the day we are born we exercise a sometimes cruel rule over our mothers. Her every action, mood and sensation is guided indirectly by us. She laughs with us, cries with us and dedicates her life that our pathway through life may be smooth. These three are just a few of the millions of mothers throughout the world who are waiting and praying that their children may some day safely return to them. A simple token on Mother's Day will bring joy and gladness to them.

RAIN STORM FAILS TO STOP REBELS

HENDAYE, France, May 7.—(AP).—Galician and Italian troops broke through Spanish government defences to-day at a dozen points along the zig-zagging line running eastward from Teruel to the Mediterranean.

General Miguel Aranda, commander of the insurgent army driving on Valencia, started a general offensive all along the front. His orders were to "fight, rain or no rain."

Insurgent despatches said the initial advance penetrated government defences to a depth of more than six miles in some sectors. The greatest gains were made on the Aliagamorella front, where General Aranda has been making particular efforts to remove the "hump" from the Teruel-Alcala De Chivert line. Galicians forded the Seca River and captured the village of Cinctorres.

that might "cast a further blight" upon the industrial workers of his riding.

No progress was made on the implement report and the debate will be resumed when the house meets Monday. It is expected Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former minister of agriculture, will be the next speaker.

Some progress was made on private bills last night but that of Tom Reid (Lib. New Westminster), a perrenial measure seeking lowered rates on domestic grain from the prairies to the Pacific, was talked out. A. A. Heaps (CCF Winnipeg North) declared the task of rate-making was one for the board of railway commissioners and if they were not doing their work properly they should be replaced.

On behalf of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Justice Minister Lapointe told a questioner it was expected Mr. King's promised statement on foreign affairs would be made some time next week.

Features of the debate on farm implements included the suggestion a bonded warehouse be established at Churchill so that prairie provinces could import their requirements from European countries through that Hudson Bay port.

Malcolm McLean (Lib. Melfort) suggested a board similar to the board of railway commissioners be set up to control the production, distribution and sales of farm implements to ensure it was being done efficiently.

Before beginning the day's proceedings Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Opposition Leader Bennett united in expressing tribute to the Duke of Devonshire, former governor general of Canada, whose death had been announced earlier in the day.

George Wood (Lib. Brant) opened the implement debate with a suggestion the government continue to "follow the middle of the road course," reducing tariffs where it was wise and necessary in the interests of the people. He agreed tariff for revenue was necessary but was against protection.

Application of high protection by the Bennett Government had been "a splendid contribution to the national life of this country" Mr. Wood said, because "he was successful at least in showing the Canadian people that that is not the road to recovery."

Duffus Urges No Duty.

J. J. Duffus (Lib. Peterborough West) urged the government to put farm implement parts and material for the manufacture of implements on the free list.

If it were true that more protection would lower the price to the farmer then there was good ground for suspecting the existence of a combine, in the opinion of H. W. Winkler (Lib. Lisgar). If a combine existed the government should take steps to expose it and deal with it.

While he was most sympathetic toward the farmers and their problems he represented a riding containing thousands of industrial workers and he was sent to Parliament to protect their interests, said Mr. Plaxton.

"In my opinion the blight of the recent depression fell upon the homes of the working men just as well as on the farms and I intend to oppose any move which proposes to cast another blight upon the homes of literally hundreds in my constituency.

Makers of farm implements "contribute just as much to the production of wheat in Canada as does the farmer himself. To-day the work on the farm is shared between factory and field."

Estimating that some 11,000 were actually engaged in manufacturing farm implements and several times that number engaged indirectly in the industry, Mr. Plaxton declared their needs should be considered along with those of the farmer.

WHEATLAND RAIN CUTS PRICE DOWN

WINNIPEG, May 7 (CP)—Rain which brightened crop prospects in Western Canada farms backfired in world wheat pits this week. For the third successive week Winnipeg wheat futures edged lower because of lack of demand.

So long as the weatherman continues his generosity in other world wheat growing areas, exporters apparently are content to await for abundant supplies and cheap prices before taking stocks. They purchased only hand-to-mouth needs.

As the rains provided the three prairie provinces with the best spring moisture in a decade, Winnipeg grain dealers merely marked time with other wheat markets. At the close of the five sessions values were 3⅝ to ½ cent lower. May dropped more than 10 cents since mid-April, to close Friday at $1.15¾. July finished at $1.08⅜-½ and October 87⅝-¾ cents.

With a forecast of the best crop in the southwest winter wheat belt since 1931, and bright prospects in northwestern states, present indications are for ample supplies of flour-making ingredients.

CANADIAN STOCKS IMPROVE SLIGHTLY

TORONTO, May 7.—(CP)—Trading quietly but with a firm to strong price tone, Canadian stocks improved their position in the first week of May and at the close yesterday were crowding the top range registered in April.

Although trading was only slightly heavier than normal in the big gold group, the leaders, Lake Shore, Dome and McIntyre, showed net gains of $1.35 to $2.90 in the week.

Expansion of credit in the United States under the revised plan for the handling of gold reserve, is reflected in stiffer bond and share prices and interlisted Canadian issues are inclined to trail along. In the base metal group Noranda shows a net gain for the week of $3.50 and it is now within $1 of its top price for the year. International Nickel has $2.25 to the good for the period. Consolidate Mining and Smelting $2 and Hudson Bay 50 cents.

Industrials were much less buoyant than the mines, due to the lighter demand. Dominion Steel and Coal B was prominent with an advance of $1.75 and some of the other heavy industrials tightened up moderately on the news that one Canadian manufacturer has been awarded a large contract for machine guns. Utilities, foods and beverages made some headway on the up side.

On the Toronto exchange the industrial list registered an index gain of 1.46 compared with 2.69 for the golds, 2.23 for the base metals and 2.17 for the western oils.

The news that a new well was brought in on Thursday by National Petroleums a mile south of the established field in Turner Valley, touched off good buying action in the oil group on Friday. Royalite pushed up to $44.50 for a net gain of $2.50 in the week.

SUSPECT MURDER IN JAIL GOVERNOR'S SHOOTING

VIOLENCE TAKES TOLL OF 17 DEAD ACROSS CANADA

Ontario Leads With 6, Train Wreck in Quebec Kills 3 With 8 Missing

TORONTO, May 9 (CP)—Seventeen deaths by violence was toll in Canada today, aftermath of a week-end in which railway trains and lethal weapons took the heaviest toll of life. Ten persons died in eastern Canada—six of them in Ontario—while a slide on a hillside trail in British Columbia took one life.

At least 3 men, 1 an unidentified transient, was killed when 19 cars of a fast, Canadian National Railways freight train tumbled from the tracks 41 miles west of Ottawa early Sunday. Six others were injured. Survivors said it was possible from eight to 13 other men were trapped in the debris as only five of from 20 to 25 transients were seen to escape.

Father Auguste Lapalme, Montreal priest, and his nephew, Pierre Beaudoin, were killed when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway express train at a crossing 13 miles east of Montreal last night. The demolished motor-car was dragged more than a mile.

Guns were used in three of Ontario's violent deaths and two drownings were reported from northern sections of that province. One fatality was productive of a manslaughter charge while police investigation of the shooting of 57-year-old Ralph A. Cook, governor of a county jail in Cornwall was under way.

Victim His Friend

Charles L. Munroe, 45, died during an altercation near Kirkland Lake Saturday night. William MacDonald, 51, alleged to have struck Munroe, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter. In jail, MacDonald said: "When I punched him, he fell on his face and I walked off. I didn't know I killed him. We were the best of friends."

Vernon Brown was drowned in the Fraser River at New Westminster. Michael Holbus was found dead, his body mangled, on railway tracks at Tregawa, Saskatchewan, and at Edson, Alta., H. F. Habel was killed when his car got out of control. Thirteen-year-old Laverne Lepp died from a bullet-wound received while hunting at Waldheim, Sask.

The body of Ernest Black, Pittsburgh, Pa., was found Sunday in a bedroom in his summer home in Cobourg, Ont. a .22-calibre revolver lay upon the bed. The body of James Nicholls, 46-year-old farmer, was found hanging from a tree

Saves Enough To Quit Dies On Way Home

Kitchener, Ont., May 9 (CP)

TWENTY-SEVEN years ago, William Foster, a Scottish immigrant, came to Canada with high hopes, a little money and vigorous youth, prepared to wrest a livelihood from the soil of Canada. For 27 years, he worked and saved his money toward that day when he might go back to Scotland.

He realized his life's ambition when he stepped aboard the liner Antonia at Halifax last Friday. On Saturday, his son, James Foster of Kitchener, received a wireless message from the liner. His father had been found dead in his cabin. The body was buried at sea.

CANADA STOCKING SUPPLY OF ARMS FOR EMERGENCY

OTTAWA, May 8 —(CP)— The government desires to create in Canada as far as may be possible, a national self-sufficiency in armaments against the emergency of war, officials here state. However, this does not mean the beginning of an extensive armament industry to supply Canada's requirements.

Beyond providing for the current needs of the defence forces, the government does not propose to embark on any large expenditures in armaments, it is said. So far as the placements in Canada of munitions orders for the British goverment is concerned, all the information possessed by the defence department relating to the capacity and character of this country's heavy industries has always been available to the war office.

At present three Canadian concerns are understood to be working on British contracts—National Steel Car, Hamilton, manufacturing a comparatively small quantity of 3.45-inch shell casings, the John T. Hepburn Company, Toronto, which is engaged in the manufacture of shell-making machines, and the John Inglis Company, Ltd., Toronto, recipients this week of an order for 5,000 Bren guns.

Coincident with the British contract is one for the Canadian government involving 7,000 of these light machine guns. That, however, will be staggered over a period of years. Arrangements which resulted in the John Inglis Company being constituted the first manufacturer of the Bren gun in Canada were designed to achieve economic production, with a general saving to all concerned.

Want Plane Orders

The eight Canadian companies working on aircraft production for the defence department are submitting plans to Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie with a view to their presentation to the British mission, under Commander J. G. Weir, which will visit Canada in the next few weeks. The Canadians are anxious to obtain orders for British aircraft. By ordinary commericial arrangements, most of them already have the various rights to British standards and patents, and they are equipped to turn out planes exactly duplicating those used by the Royal Air Force.

CLAIMS OF LAD 16 TO CHEAP RADIUM SAID PROMISING

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—Dr. E. A. Smith, who said he was associated with the late Mme. Currie in her isolation of radium, declared Saturday 16-year-old Wallace L. Minto of Jersey City, "has something" in his claim of a safer, more economical artificial radium.

Dr. Smith, who has laboratories at North Bergen and Newark, N.J., witnessed a demonstration of the youth's finding at the annual meeting of the Eastern Electronic Research Association.

Minto, a high school student, showed, with the aid of a Geiger tube, what he described as the greater strength of his product as compared with the genuine radium.

"Young Minto definitely has made great strides," Dr. Smith said. "I predict a great future for him."

Minto said his artificial radium was less dangerous than the genuine article due to fewer Alpha rays and more Beta and Gamma rays. It also is more economical, he said, because it was made from ore found near his home town, whereas genuine radium comes from the Canadian north and several other distant points.

Minto, who also claims to have found and named four new elements in the last two years—since he was 14 years old—said his artificial radium could be manufactured for about $250 a gram in small quantities, more economically in increased output. Genuine radium sells for about $25,000 a gram.

League Swaying On Ethiopia

Only 5 of 13 Nations Are Reported "On the Fence" As Britain Urges Duce's Conquest Be Recognized

GENEVA, May 9. (AP).—A majority in the League of Nations council was represented today as favorable to granting France and Great Britain freedom to recognize the Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

"Realistic" diplomacy appeared to have swayed the League council, at its opening session, against Emperor Haile Selassie. Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, and Georges Bonnet, French foreign minister, drafted a plan which could be voted down only by a majority of the council. And only five of the 13 nations were "on the fence" when Lord Halifax and M. Bonnet sent the plan around for consideration before its formal presentation at the council's closed meeting late today.

These five nations were Iran (Persia), Russia, China, New Zealand and Bolivia. (New Zealand's Socialist government has long been outspoken champion of the League brand of collective security.)

If the Franco-British plan carries, it means the council will pass either a recommendation or make a mere "statement of fact," giving all League members their freedom to recognize Italian conquest of Ethiopia if they choose.

Selassie Coming In Person

Hailie Selassie is coming to Geneva with legal experts to fight his case personally. The odds, however, are overwhelmingly against him. Both the French and British delegations expressed the belief nothing could upset their carefully-planned resolution.

The Rumanian foreign minister, Nicholas Petrescu-Comnen, will present the petition to the council, League sources said.

Observers were interested in the reaction of Wellington Koo of China and Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign commissar. Dr. Koo, according to informed sources, will vote for the Franco-British plan at a price—help for China. Russia's position, as usual, remained obscure up to the last moment, but the Soviets are bitterly against any recognition of "Fascist aggression."

KING USES PLANE TO TOUR 'DROMES

NORTHOLT AIRDROME, England, May 9.—CP—The King, in a scarlet and blue plane, started an aerial tour of four Royal Air Force stations.

At Northolt airdrome, a base for fighting planes, His Majesty saw Hawker hurricanes—reputedly the world's fastest combat ships.

Other stops on the King's itinerary were the Harwell bomber station, the Upavon training command, and Thorney Island, a coastal command near Portsmouth.

Wing-Commander E. H. Fielden, captain of the King's flight, piloted the royal plane.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Cyril Newall greeted the King when he arrived at Northolt. His Majesty showed keen interest in the grey and maroon Hawker hurricane ships and discussed their performances with Squadron-Leader John W. Gillan and other officers.

Squadron-Leader Gillan on Feb. 10 broke the world's speed record for land planes by flying one of the ships from Turnhouse airdrome, Edinburgh, to Northolt field in 48 minutes, covering the 327 miles at an average speed of 408.75 miles an hour.

Learns Defence Plans

Later the King visited the so-called "operations rooms" where officers gave him detailed information on secret plans for the defence of London in the event it is attacked.

Twelve Hawker hurricanes took off and effected a series of battle evolutions for the King after his visit to the "operations room."

The King, accompanied by Sir Cyril, then flew to Harwell airdrome. He was greeted ther by Air Chief Marshal Sir Edgar Ludlow-Hewitt, air force commander-in-chief the bomber command.

His Majesty inspected the interior of a single-motored "battle" bomber which is one of the craft on the air office's "secret list." Mechanical details which at present are only known to special departments of the air ministry, the air general staff and a few mechanics and pilots were explained to the King.

Stormont Official Shot Twice, $200 Is Missing

Wallett Known to Contain Large Sum is Located 100 Feet Off With Only Two $1 Bills; New Rifle, All Marks Filed Off, Lies Nearby

CORNWALL, Ont., May 9. (CP).—Discovery of a wallet habitually carried by Ralph A. Cook added weight today to suspicions of foul play in the death of the 57-year-old Governor of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry counties jail here, Police Chief Seymour said today.

Members of his family said Cook, whose body was found with two bullet wounds in the chest early yesterday, was carrying a sum of about $200 shortly before his death. His wallet held only two $1 bills and an identification card when found today by turnkey Bernard Maloney as he supervised garden work being done by prisoners.

The wallet lay 100 feet behind the garage in which the governor's body was found, when a son, Dalton, came on the body in the early morning hours, a shining new .22-calibre rifle nearby with all identification marks filed off.

Two bullets had been shot into the governor's chest. Post mortem examination disclosed one had pierced his heart and the other missed it by a fraction. The slugs had entered his body in a downward direction.

Cook, an active farmer, was completing a two-week's vacation from his duties at the jail when he died. On Saturday afternoon he had travelled to Farrans Point to make arrangements for repairing a garage he owned there. He had been home only a few hours when he went outside to put his car in the garage and failed to return.

Members of his family, becoming anxious at his prolonged absence, went outside to look for him and found him dead. They say they heard no shot after he left the house about 11 o'clock Saturday night. Officers and inmates of the nearby jail also failed to hear any shots.

Police believed the rifle found at his feet was used only a few times. A check-up of stores in the district revealed no rifles of that type had been purchased in the last month. Fyle marks that erased identification marks from the weapon were clean and sharp, police said, and apparently only a few days old.

Investigators found three extra cartridges for the rifle in the garage about eight feet from the body. They were wrapped in a newspaper. One discharged shell was also on the garage floor and another remained in the rifle.

Cook was known to have been in the habit of carrying large sums of money on his person. A pocket of his suit was inside out when the body was found. His family declared the pocket was not the one in which he carried his wallet.

A native of Osnabruck township, Cook farmer there until his appointment as jail governor. He was prominent in local politics and had served 12 terms on the township council as councillor, deputy-reeve and reeve.

TURGEON UPHOLDS WHEAT FUTURES TRADING SYSTEM

OTTAWA, May 9.—Development of producer's co-operative societies for the marketing of wheat combined with continuance of the futures trading system of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange are key recommendations in Mr. Justice W. F. A. Turgeon's report on grain and grain marketing, tabled in the House of Commons today by Trade Minister Euler.

The report is the result of the judge's investigation as a royal commission extending over more than a year. It is a lengthy document of 350 typewritten pages.

Findings in the report include the following:

A compulsory government wheat board is not practical .

The futures trading system at Winnipeg should be continued subject to supervision of the grain exchange by a competent officer under the board of grain commissioners.

Voluntary flexible wheat pools, selling in line with world conditions and with, not against the trade, should be encouraged.

The present Canadian wheat board should be continued because of uncertain world factors.

From now on with a reasonable selling policy, Canada should receive the share of the overseas market the quality of Canadian wheat deserved.

A London Representative

Canada should have a representative in London, England, whose duty would be to investigate complaints arising out of grain shipments and to report direct to the board of grain commissioners.

Buyers looked on the idea of a government monopoly in a producing country with more disfavor than anything else.

Under normal conditions Canada's future marketing policy, the judge believed, should be to continue futures trading and encourage the building up of producers' co-operatives after the pattern of the Australian pools.

(The Australian pools are voluntary organizations in which members promised to deliver 50 per cent of their wheat to the co-operative. There is no penalty for failure to deliver 50 per cent except loss of membership. Pool organiza-

GERMANY, ITALY OUT TO CORNER BALKAN TRADE

Hitler Winds Up Visit At Great State Dinner In Beautiful Florence

ROME, May 9—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler of Germany carried away from Rome today fresh assurances of Italian friendship, and high Fascists indicated this included a pledge by Premier Mussolini to let him have a free hand in Czechoslovakia, so far as Italy is concerned.

After six days of military display, princely entertainment and intensive talks with Premier Mussolini, the Fuehrer's program allowed him 10 hours to taste the rich, mediaeval culture of Florence.

The day was a national holiday, second anniversary of the foundation of the Italo-Ethiopian empire, helping to swell the crowds along his route to the Tuscany capital.

It appeared the major result of the Hitler visit was a strengthening of friendship by application of grease to possible trouble points in the Rome-Berlin axis.

Hitler's gains were believed to be the pledge by Premier Mussolini to give him the freedom he may want in Czechoslovakia, where reside a German minority population of 3,500,000 of which Hitler considers himself the protector; postponement of Mussolini's plan for a four-power pact between Italy, Germany, France and Great Britain, and an assurance that neither the new Italo-British accord nor conversations with France would affect solidity of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Trade for Trieste

Mussolini was believed to have received from Hitler recognition of Italy's economic and political interest in Central Europe and a promise the Italian port of Trieste would not lose all its Austrian traffic as a consequence of Austria's absorption by Germany.

Hitler, in addition, and to the disappointment of some of his followers, renounced any design on the German population of the Italian South Tyrol, before the war a part of Austria.

The German Fuehrer made his guarantee of the present frontier between Germany and Italy at Saturday night's state dinner, a highlight of his visit.

The supposed agreement on division of Central Europe and the Balkans into Italian and German spheres of influence would probably involve Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania.

With the Fuehrer's departure from Rome, the stage was cleared for the delayed Italian-French talks on a peace accord to go along with the Italo-British pact. Negotiations probably will be resumed tomorrow.

DECIDE OPERATION ON BABY'S EYE

CHICAGO, May 9. — (AP) — A council of medical specialists decided today an immediate operation should be performed on Baby Helaine Colan whose parents faced the dilemma of letting her live in at least partial blindness or die eventually of a cancerous tumor.

The decision was announced by Attorney Samuel Hoffman, spokesman for the family, after the medical experts met in secret conference with the infant's father, Dr. Herman Colan, 30, a dentist.

Attorney Hoffman said the council recommended the operation be performed on the left eye to arrest the glioma threatening Helaine's life.

The eye, brain and x-ray specialists had gathered to relieve the parents of the responsibility of deciding the wisest course for their child.

Two rabbis were present in advisory capacities, at the insistence of the mother.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of The American Medical Association, said similar cases of glioma have occurred "all over the United States and for many years." One hospital alone in New York had 40 such cases, he said.

He termed the assemblying of specialists and rabbis "ridiculous and indecent" from a medical viewpoint.

Fight Widens Over Salvaging Of Sunken Log Treasure

Essex Promoter 80, Disputes With His Opponent, a Grandmother Of 65

LEAMINGTON, Ont., May 9.—(CP)—Fight for salvage rights to a sunken treasure in walnut and oak logs which have laid in the hold of a wreck in Lake Erie for more than 70 years spread today with entrance of 80-year-old Joe Ley of this Essex county town into the fray.

Ley, promoter of past attempts to reach the timber, contended he had a contract with Mrs. Goodman dating back to 1918.

Mrs. Goodman announced last week that she expected to begin salvage operations on the boat within a few weeks. She said she held a contract with the original owners of the schooner—the New Brunswick. The boat, which sank during a storm, is said to be lying in 40 feet of water off Wheatley, 10 miles northeast of here.

"Her going out there isn't bothering me a bit because I know she ain't going to find it," Ley said. "She signed a contract with me and if she did find it, wouldn't I jump on her in a hurry. The contract's burned up now, but I could easily prove she signed it."

Worth $800,000

Ley also disputed estimate of a quarter million dollars for the sunken treasure's worth. It would cost that much to salvage the timber he believes.

"If it's worth a cent, it's worth $800,000," he said.

He said he had sought legal aid and was sure of his salvaging rights. He added he had permission from the Canadian government to salvage the wood. The octogenarian

Toronto, May 9 (CP)

MAYOR RALPH DAY announced today he would ask Prime Minister Mackenzie King to set Monday, May 23, for the observance of Victoria Day regularly observed May 24.

A request that the holiday be brought forward from Tuesday to Monday was contained in a letter sent to Toronto and other municipalities by St. Catharines City Council, which recently passed a resolution setting its observance for Monday. The resolution said that "public holidays being observed on any day but a Monday causes considerable inconvenience" and "if public holidays were observed on Monday in the week in which they fall, considerable public benefit would ensue."

Writer Kills Wife, Daughters To End Pangs Of Hunger

Suicide Pact Goes Awry As River Water Brings Him To After Taking Chloroform

TAMPA, Fla., May 9.—(AP)—A former German sailor and free lance writer who, officers said, confessed slaying his wife and two young daughters in an incompleted murder and suicide pact was held in jail today for grand jury action.

Detective Chief W. D. Bush said Paul F. Bunge, 52, admitted killing his wife, Mrs. Marie Bunge, 47, and two of his children, Edith, nine, and Nina, six, because they were hungry and without funds.

Bunge cut his throat with a knife as patrolmen took him in custody, Bush said, but succeeded only in inflicting a superficial wound.

Busch said Bunge confessed he slashed the throat of his wife and chloroformed the two girls last Sunday. The detective quoted Bunge as telling how he and the slain mother planned the deaths "and all was carried out except as to myself."

"The little girls were asleep and they never knew what happened. I worked on the little one and then the older one. They passed into death in their sleep. It was a merciful death," Bush quoted him as saying.

First Try Failed on Wife

The detective chief said Bunge related how he first administered chloroform to his wife but that she regained consciousness after several hours and "scolded" him for not killing her.

Bush said Bunge did not relate details of how he finally slit his wift's throat with a razor blade.

Bush said Bunge, in his confession to officers, told how he left his apartment, avowedly to take his own life, carrying with him what was left of a bottle of chloroform.

"I found a spot between two concrete pilings and I walked into the water up to my neck. I tied my handkerchief around my face and poured chloroform on it. I have a dull recollection of how I passed under the water, but I woke up on the shore and the moon was shining."

The Australian Government expects a surplus of $10,000,000 this year.

Pastor Forgiven For Deserting Pulpit To Go Trout Fishing On Sunday

Springfield, Vt., May 9 (AP)

A TROUT FISHING Vermont Methodist minister, who left a supply preacher in his pulpit while he went fly-casting on the Sabbath, has been forgiven.

In addition, the Rev. Lawrence Larrowe, 34-year-old pastor of the Springfield Methodist Church knows he was not the only member of the congregation who pursued the Waltonian pastime on the opening day of the trout season.

When the chairman of a special trustees' meeting considering the pastor's conduct asked what other communicants did a week ago Sunday, several replied they also were snaring wily trout. Their admissions drew a round of chuckles.

A 37 to 1 vote of the trustees, absolving the pastor of misconduct was applauded by the congregation yesterday. More than half of the trustees are women.

The pastor struck a sympathetic note when, called upon for an explanation, he said:

"I plead guilty to negligence possibly in leaving my church to a supply pastor, but I claim that my fishing trip was a Christian observance of Sunday."

ROOSEVELT HEARS CALL TO LIFT BAN ON ARMS TO SPAIN

WASHINGTON, May 9 —(AP)— President Roosevelt, home from the high seas, sought a personal report from State Secretary Hull today on international developments — especially on the demands for lifting the Spanish arms embargo.

The senate foreign relations committee is awaiting an expression from the state department on a resolution for ending the ban on munitions shipments.

Senator Nye (Rep.-North Dakota), author of the proposal, said he expected the department would neither approve nor disapprove. He predicted nevertheless, that the Senate committee would endorse his resolution.

Some committee members expressed doubt any action would be taken during this session of Congress. The year-old neutrality act provides that export of arms to belligerents must stop as soon as the president finds a state of war exists. It has been applied, so far, only to the war in Spain.

The total for Canada, when this year's estimates are approved by parliament, is 177, representing 102 aircraft ordered under last year's appropriations, and 75 during the current year.

WHEN ROME SHOWS

ROME—(CP).—Another international exposition—its to be held in Rome, opening April 21, 1942, and commemorating the anniversary of the citys birth.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 9. — (CP). — Butcher cows, most active group on the cattle division of the Toronto Livestock Market to-day, sold at steady to strong prices. Other cattle were slow and generally steady. Calves were steady to firm and lambs moved 25 to 50 cents higher with sheep strong. No hog price was set by early afternoon, but market feeling was weak.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 4,180; calves, 1,020; hogs, 1,860; sheep and lambs, 1,020.

Good butcher cattle sold at $8.25 to $8.50, common as low as $5. There were no sales of any account of weighty steers. Good butcher cows brought $5 to $5.25 with a few as high as $5.50. Canners and cutters were $2.50 to $3.50.

Butcher bulls traded at $4.50 to $5.25, with bolognas at $4 to $4.25. Choice fed calves were $7 to $7.50; medium downward to $6. A few stockers brought $4.50 to $5.25.

Choice veal calves ranged from $8 to $8.50; common light vealers downward to $4.

Previous close on off-truck bacon hogs was $10 to $10.10.

Good western lambs were priced at $11, with Ontario feed-lot lambs between $7 and $10.75. Sheep made $3 to $6 cwt. Spring lambs sold from $6 to $11 each.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Continued lack of export demand for wheat and general favorable North American moisture conditions prompted light selling on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Wheat futures closed 1¼ to ⅜ cent lower. May $1.16⅝, July $1.07⅞, and October 87¼ cents.

Business for the most part was stagnant. Investors curbed their dealings until they could scan the Turgeon Royal Grain Commission report, which was to be brought down in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Reports that frosts in the United States winter wheat belt during the week-end had caused little damage was an additional bearish influence at Winnipeg, Chicago, Minneapolis, Liverpool and Buenos Aires.

BRITAIN EXTENDS INSURANCE OVER EXTRA 18 MILLION

By Pat Usher
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, May 9 (C.P.). — Plans under which medical services provided under national health insurance would be extended to an additional 18,000,000 to 20,000,000 people have been announced by the British Medical Association.

The Association's national plan for a co-ordinated health policy also envisages a vast increase in the scope of the services provided. Its proposals, briefly, are as follows:

Inclusion of every member of every family within an income limit of £250 ($1,250) a year in the health insurance system;

Extension of the system to provide the services not only of a family doctor, but of every type of medical consultant and specialist, as the needs of the patient might dictate;

Extension of the system to include full dental and ophthalmic services;

Provision of a precisely similar service for those in receipt of public assistance;

Establishment of a complete maternity service based on the provision of a family doctor and a certified midwife in every case, with "home helps" to relieve the mother of household troubles during the lying-in period, and a gynaecological specialist in reserve to deal with complicated cases.

Would Group Hospitals.

The B.M.A. also recommends grouping of hospitals on a regional basis to prevent overlapping and to enable gaps in existing provision to be filled economically, and important changes in local Government administration to assist the smooth working of the scheme.

Public health functions would be removed from all county district councils serving a population of less than 100,000 in the case of urban areas and 75,000 in rural areas. A statutory committee would be set up in each public health area to which all questions relating to medical and allied services would be referred. Medical advisory committees would be formed in each area to maintain liaison between the Local doctors and the local authority.

The B.M.A. feels there should be available for every individual a family doctor of his own choice. Necessity of this is emphasized on the grounds of confidence as between doctor and patient.

Nutrition, overcrowding, preventing of infectious disease, atmospheric pollution and the provision of extensive facilities for recreation are listed as matters on which further action is needed.

With The Boy Scouts

Scouters, Attention.—A meeting of the Scouters Club will be held in the new headquarters on Thursday next, May 12, at 8 p.m. It is requested that all officers of the three groups will make it their business to be on hand. It is nearly three months since the last Scouters' Club meeting was held. So let us make this worth while.

The St. John's Rover Crew put the "out" in scouting last Tuesday, when they rambled out Nassau way, holding a camp fire on the river bank. They enjoyed several good songs. On the way back to town, tea and tuck was enjoyed at the home of Jack Collis.

At St. Andrew's the cub pack is being reorganized, in preparing of enlarging the group at some future date. To this end, Miss Whalon will be in charge of the cubs under 12 years; the group meeting at 6.30 as usual. Then, at 7.45, the older boys will meet under Akela Ingham.

Owing to a play being held at All Saints', the scouts could not hold their regular meeting.

Harold Dunford and Bob Burns were invested at the last meeting and several tests were passed.

Vincent Duffus was accepted in the Sacred Heart Scout group from the cub pack at a going up ceremony on Friday last.

Vincent will be missed by his friends in the pack, but will find his new friends of the Crow patrol under Jack Welsh, ready to assist him along the scout trail. Baseball practises will be held in the near future. The Scouter will notify the boys of same.

The system of Akela George Brooks in holding instructional periods for the boys at his home every Monday night, is proving highly successful. Every Monday between 7.15 and 8.15 Akela George and Kaa Rose meet any cub who desires to take instruction. The following tests were passed this week: Bill Brooks, Norman Booth, Jim Smith and Bob Kennedy passed Union Jack; Tommy Griffen, time telling; Clare McDougall and Jack White, book balancing; Stanley Alexander and Ernest Darling, leap frog.

On Friday night two boys were invested into the great brotherhood of scouts, when Bill Brooks and Irwin Clapham took the Wolf Cub promise. Cub Mistress Miss Whalen of St. Andrew's paid the pack a visit, and gave knot-tying instructions to a group of tenderpads.

It is with regret the pack learns that Baloo Miss Tomkins will not be on hand for several meetings owing to work.

The St. George's Cubs turned out in good strength at their last meeting. Mr. Moscrop being on hand. Adrian Langhorne, Bob Siddall, Jim Hainsley and Ken Downer completed their first star work and will be presented with their awards next week.

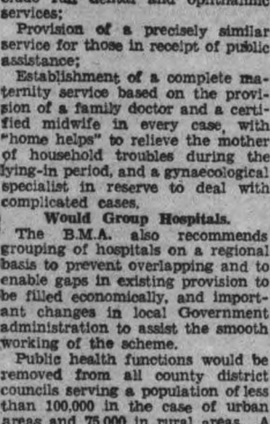
It was the pack's loss and the troop's gain when Jack White passed out of the Jungle onto the Scout trail in a going-up ceremony. Jack will be honored with the Leaping Wolf badge on his uniform, having gained his second star when cubbing.

S.M. Houghton was on hand and took the troop through various scout drills.

The Mothers' Auxiliary are holding a meeting in the church at 3 p.m. on Thursday; and all scout and cub mothers are cordially invited to atetnd.

Troops are reminded to prepare for their own transportation to Lindsay Jamboree on May 24. Troop Committeemen and dads are asked to give all the co-operation and assistance they can.—The Skipper.

Bishop Must Go



Wilhelm Murr, ABOVE, Nazi governor of Wuerttemburg, has publicly demanded the resignation of Bishop Johann Baptist Sproll, of Rottenburg, head of the Catholic Church in Wuerttemburg, because he failed to vote in the Anschluss plebiscite and Reichstag elections. Secret political police have informed Bishop Sproll that if he remains in Wuerttemburg they will not "be responsible for his security."

HAMILTON WOMAN FOUND WOUNDED

HAMILTON, May 9.—(CP)—Hospital authorities said today the condition of Mrs. Alice Taylor, 39, admitted last night for treatment of a bullet wound over the heart, was fair. She is suffering from intense shock, however.

Early investigation by Detectives Howard Moreau, Ernest Barrett and Herbert Witthun satisfied police authorities the wound was self-inflicted, they said.

Neighbors summoned police to the woman's apartment when they heard groans, police said. Mrs. Taylor, still conscious, told them she had taken some medicine and become ill but when they rushed her to the General hospital, staff doctors discovered the bullet wound.

An emergency operation was performed but surgeons did not remove the slug, lodged in the muscles of the black, having missed the vital organs.

A revolver, with one bullet fired, was found in the woman's trunk, police say. A box of shells was on a table in the room where she was found.

TORSO OF A LAMB

DUNKIRK, N.Y., May 9—(AP)—Happy today were city police over the solving of a "torso mystery." Fishermen reported the torso was floating on Lake Erie. Four patrolmen commandeered a boat and brought it ashore. Opined an awed policeman, "Betcha it floated from Cleveland. It's part of one of their bodies." Replied a surgeon attracted to the scene by the crowd, "It's a torso, all right. A torso of a lamb!"

HOUSE AWAITING FOREIGN POLICY

OTTAWA, May 9.—(CP—International affairs will be discussed in the House of Commons this week when Prime Minister Mackenzie King makes a statement of Canada's foreign policy. It is expected to come in consideration of estimates for the Department of External Affairs of which Mr. King is chief.

Before the Easter recess Mr. King was pressed repeatedly by Co-operative Comonwealth Federation members to make a statement on foreign policy, particularly on what Canada should do in the event of the United Kingdom becoming involved in war.

His reply was there was little change in the government's policy since his statement last session but he proposed to make a statement at the earliest opportunity. Friday night Justice Minister Lapointe told the House it would probably come this week.

In the past Mr. King has defined Canadian foreign policy generally as seeking to cultivate friendly relations with all countries, to encourage the settlement of disputes by arbitration and conciliation and to support the League of Nations.

Private members during the present session have unsuccessfully sought to draw from the government comments on recent developments in British foreign relations, such as the negotiation of the Anglo-Italian agreement.

Whether Mr. King will say anything to satisfy curiosity on such points remains to be seen but it is thought probable he will follow the line he has taken in the past and say Canada can best contribute to world peace by attending to its own affairs and refraining from expressions of opinion which might aggravate tense situations in other parts of the world.

The wheat problem will come before the House today with the presentation of Mr. Justice W. F. A. Turgeon's report on grain and grain marketing.

CROP PROSPECTS CHEER INDUSTRY

TORONTO, May 9— (CP)—Recognition that Canadian economy had counter-balancing factors, in the form of "greatly-improved" crop prospects, to external depressants, caused a change for the better in industrial operations in the Dominion toward the end of April according to the monthly commercial letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Farm implement manufacturers were among the first to benefit from a comparatively good crop outlook brought about by favorable moisture conditions, while other industrial units later found a rising demand from the prairie provinces, the letter says.

It is noted that the heavy precipitation throughout most of the prairie provinces toward the end of March was well conserved by slow drying of the soil. April rains delayed planting but corrected a moisture deficiency, some of the heaviest precipitation being in the dried areas.

As a result, the report states that southern and western Saskatchewan new crops are now assured of a good start.

The new agricultural season elsewhere in Canada also opened under "exceptionally favorable" circumstances, the report stated. Subsoil moisture reserves in Ontario are the best for some years past, while the over-winter crops, the meadows and the orchards in Ontario, as well as in Eastern Canada and British Columbia, show much less injury than usual and promise heavy yields if the weather is normal during the next few months.

FIRST BLIND PENSIONS

EDMONTON, May 9—(CP)—First pensions for the blind issued in Alberta, 20 cheques were mailed yesterday by the Provincial Government. The cheques, all for the maximum rate of $20 a month, were for April. Under an agreement ratified by the Alberta Legislature at the last session, the Province pays the pension and is reimbursed by the Dominion Government with 75 per cent. of the amount.

JAPS BOMB ENEMY SUPPLY RAILWAY

SHANGHAI, May 9 (AP).—Japanese bombing planes raided extensively along the Lunghai Railway today, trying to check the supply of munitions and equipment to Chinese troops blocking the Japanese offensive in Central China.

The bombardment was particularly heavy between Suchow and Yunho, where the planes concentrated on trains and munitions dumps only a few miles south of the Shantung battlefront. The bombers also ranged southward from Suchow along the Tientsin-Pukow line.

The armies were still deadlocked on the Shantung front, where the invaders were employing tanks, screened by smoke, in an effort to break through the Chinese defences.

In Central Anhwei Province, Chinese admitted the Japanese were fighting outside the walls of Mencheng. Capture of this town would be an important gain for the Japanese and stimulate their campaign against Suchow from the south.

Japanese said they defeated a Chinese guerilla force which had threatened to deciminate the Japanese garrison at Nantung-Chow, supply base 60 miles up from the Yangtse from Shanghai.

Reinforcements sent out from Shanghai relieved the garrison, Japanese said, and prevented a supply line serving 10,000 Japanese to the north from being cut.

WAKE UP LIKE A CAVE MAN

Feel Full of Life—No More Tired, Dull, Heavy Mornings

Keep your liver healthy and you'll feel great every morning. When you wake up feeling "rotten" your liver is out of order. Your liver clears the blood of poisons, separates the nourishing part of your food from the waste. Supplies energy to muscles, tissues and glands—gives out bile, the body's laxative, helps stomach, kidneys and intestines to work properly. A mere bowel movement isn't enough. "Fruit-a-tives" made from fruits and herbs, will strengthen and build up your liver like nothing else will. You'll be amazed how well you are every morning. Try Fruit-a-tives. All druggists.

FRUIT-A-TIVES LIVER TABLETS

She Looks So Young

Is a tribute to health

"Keep happy—Keep the mind young—don't worry". This is the recipe of a famous actress. Worry, Irritability and exhausted nerves are the greatest enemies to feminine beauty. They bring wrinkles and care lines and make you feel tired and discouraged.

There is nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore pep and vigor to mind and body, to give you control of yourself and to bring the color back to faded cheeks. Charm and personality are based on health. The cheerfulness and vivacity, which add so greatly to woman's attractiveness, can only exist when you are feeling well.

Women everywhere know and appreciate this fine restorative of blood and nerves.

The same law . . .

Clubs form a valuable part of our social structure.

They encourage co-operation and mutual understanding. They promote activities that benefit our social life.

Many of these clubs are granted authority by the Liquor Control Board to serve beer to their members.

To many of them, especially Veteran and Labour Clubs, this provides useful assistance in improving the accommodation in their premises and increasing the scope of their good work.

The opportunity which these clubs provide for relaxation is provided also in hotel beverage rooms to those not fortunate enough to be members of a club—but to whom relaxation is as essential.

The same law provides for both.

The present law permitting Veterans' Clubs to sell beer to their members has been of great assistance in maintaining suitable club rooms and has enabled them to expand their efforts to assist ex-service men and overcome their economic difficulties and physical handicaps. In the past the bootlegger received a large part of this revenue, which now is used in the interests of groups of patriotic citizens bound together by their service for their King and Country. Veterans' Clubs are a great asset to any community as they stand as veritable Gibraltars of patriotism in the midst of unsettled conditions and foreign "isms."

Spending the People's Money

Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue, advanced an interesting theory when speaking before the Kitchener Board of Trade. In brief it was this—that sectional pressure to secure the expenditure of money by the Dominion government should be discouraged and condemned.

The Minister was actually bringing up a very old argument which we have never seen settled. That is, are government expenditures the result of the deliberate policy of a government to spend more money, or do these expenditures come because people in various parts of the country go and ask for them?

Mr. Ilsley would probably be inclined to the belief that expenditures come often enough because deputations keep on making their trips to Ottawa to insist that money shall be spent. When the Government nods its head in an affirmative sort of way it does so believing it is doing what the people desire to have done. Or it may be the Government feels it is good political policy to order the expenditure of money in certain localities for schemes which are of no use whatever to the country at large.

We have never been able to see the strength of that argument. A government is placed in office to govern; that is, to govern for all the people including those who voted for the Government and those who voted against it. It is charged also with the collecting of money from all the people, and it should spend the money in the same way. It should as far as possible seek to depart from the custom of taking money from all the people and then spending it for the advantage of a few.

There have been plenty of occasions when through persistent effort a community has been able to secure Government expenditure of such a nature that it is of no use whatever outside that community. That custom is the natural and logical outcome of the belief that "government money" is something separate and apart from any other kind of money. Those who think that way have probably never stopped to reason it out that securing "government money" is just another way of taxing themselves.

A government functions best when it shakes its head at the insistence of deputations. A government is not in office to please the people; it is not in office to use public funds to better and strengthen its own political fortunes. It might be well as Mr. Ilsley suggests that people should cease to ask for the spending of money. Better still if the Government after receiving such requests would shake its head as a token of negation. The responsibility for making the expenditure is plainly one for the Government to determine, and it cannot shift that responsibility to the people by merely stating they asked that the expenditure should be made.

Regulating the Cheers

No good purpose would be served by trying to minimize the extent of the military parade which Benito Mussolini staged for the benefit of his guest, Adolf Hitler of Germany. As such things go it must have been impressive. It had been long planned and carefully detailed.

Likewise there was a crowd of 50,000 to do the cheering, but in that particular something seems to have gone slightly haywire. Appearing with Hitler was the King of Italy, a gentleman who has a family tree of 1,000 years. Also there were princes and important dignitaries. Upon their appearance there was cheering, but we learn it lacked that something which is considered so necessary. Later Mussolini appeared and the cheering was tremendous. The Italian dictator was moved to acknowledge the plaudits and also to wave a stern sort of hand or arm toward his guest for the day —the gentleman from Berlin. That gesture was intended to convey the message to the crowd that cheers should go to him in greater degree.

Perhaps the fact that the crowd cheered at 100 per cent. for Mussolini and at but 63¾ per cent. for Hitler means nothing at all. Perhaps after Adolf has gone home the Italian Benito may even smile to himself to think the big man from the neighboring state did not crack out a home run with the bases full when appearing on the home-town field.

We have no desire whatever to create any international discord, but merely venture the opinion that the people in Rome did not care very much about cheering for Hitler. They had been told to do it, they had been schooled and instructed, but it may be they did not want to cheer. Instead of a great whoop they emitted but a tiny noise which politicians in our country describe as damning a man with faint praise. Dictators like to be cheered and saluted; never do they appear to reach the point where they absorb no more of such attention. So it may be when Hitler returns to his own bailiwick he may be yearning for such a degree of popular acclaim that the regimented folk at home will be hard pressed to satisfy the demand without doing serious damage to their vocal mechanism.

Afraid To Touch It?

The claim is made that the only way to legislate Canada out of its present railway situation is by resorting to Union government. Under the present set-up each week sees us paying $1,000,000 toward the C. N. R.

It is also reported that even when the Senate completes its present inquiry into railway matters and submits a report there will be nothing done about it. That Senate probe has already made it apparent that the two railway companies have taken a remarkably long time in arriving at the form to be adopted for eliminating duplication of service.

The reason why nothing will be done is all set forth in an Ottawa despatch by E. George Smith of the Globe and Mail. He says the members of the House of Commons are afraid of the railway vote. If a feasible plan were suggested which would call for unification of the railway services in Canada the party sponsoring such a programme would have small chance of winning the election. Mr. Smith says employees of the C. N. R. would all vote against the plan and he estimates they and their friends could muster a vote of three or four hundred thousand. To offset that it would be reasonable enough to suppose that the C. P. R. men and their friends would vote for the plan, so that one railway vote would be set against the other.

Any thinking person knows well enough this country cannot possibly continue indefinitely with its present railway situation. It is far too great for the amount of business which we can possibly give to the railways. There is no country in the world which has such railway mileage as we have with so few people to make use of it.

And yet we are told we must continue as at present because the railway vote is too great an obstacle for any political party to face when dealing with the issue. It is quite possible that a plan for unification would mean fewer people working for each of our lines, but such a situation would be more secure for the railway employees than the present system which keeps more employed on a desperately uncertain basis.

And His Name Is Bob!

Perhaps you never heard of Bob Seeds. With a plain name like that you would hardly pick him for a professional baseball player. But he is; an outfielder for the Newark team.

Playing against Buffalo he made baseball history by knocking four home runs in successive times at the plate, and in the same game he also had two singles to his credit. In all he drove in 12 runs in that one game, and we believe that is an all-time record.

It seems strange that such a player retains just the ordinary name of Bob. It might be easier to place him if he were known as "Babe", "Nick", "Dizzy" or some such handle. But for a plain Bob —full name Robert—to be whacking a ball about at that rate and causing team maters to go galloping around the bases like a procession—well it is just a little difficult to understand.

One Correct Method

Dr. Smirle Lawson, Chiefg Coroner of Toronto, and Supervising Coroner for the province, has submitted a report in which he says "a blood test is a conclusive evidence of whether a person has consumed alcohol, and along with clinical symptoms, a reasonably accurate indication as to whether he has consumed sufficient to affect his ability to drive a car safely."

Dr. Lawson has not stated anything which has not been known before, but he has stated something which Ontario has so far officially refused to believe and act upon. A number of countries have already found the benefit of the blood test. It is the most accurate method so far employed.

Smelling the breath of an individual means little or nothing. It does not determine the degree of intoxication, and it is possible to use a number of materials after taking a drink which will do away with the smell of the liquor.

For years police have been trying to find some way to tell when a man is drunk, and the blood test will do that very thing, and it will do it accurately. It is not a difficult operation, and there is no danger to the person on whom the test is made. Plenty of people who have never been drunk have had blood tests made and suffered no inconvenience. Dr. Lawson's report should not be put away for future reference. Our provincial authorities should study it with a view of giving it general approval for use in Ontario.

Teaching a Calf to Drink

We were at a farm the other afternoon; just dropped in when passing to see what was going on. There were three men and a woman out in the barn, and two of the men were neighbors. It did look for the moment as though there were some sort of a meeting under way to which an outsider might not be welcomed. But the meeting was in the cow barn, and there in the corner of a stall was a calf not more than two or three days old. It had as usual the long legs of a calf; it was well born and robust, and when one got around to the front of the thing it did appear as though there was the light of battle in its eyes.

It did not take long to see what was going on. That calf was getting lessons in how to drink out of a tin pail. The neighbors had been saying something about knowing just how to do the thing and the owner of the farm had suggested they might come over and demonstrate their new methods. The farmer himself looked as though he had been soused in milk, and so did the neighbors. They were just having a little council of war then and the calf was having a little relaxation. Some person had already named the calf Satan. That name was given after one of the lessons.

One of the neighbors was certain there was too much milk in the pail. Previously the farmer had been straddling the calf trying to shove its head down and at the same time holding one hand in the milk pail with a couple of fingers turned up to induce Satan to take hold and start drinking. He had a good supply of milk in the pail and his policy in a general way was "drink or drown". He was showing off his injured fingers which Satan had taken. He was sure as could be the calf had taken some of the milk but when the head came out of the pail the animal had either spewed or spouted and milk went in the eyes and ears and down the neck. In fact generally all over except inside of Satan.

So the theory of just two quarts of milk in the pail was tried, and Satan was cajoled or dealt with kindly by way of a change. The theory was to appeal to his better instincts. But Satan appeared to be rather short on better instincts, and rather long on bad ones. He wanted to keep on nursing the way Nature had intended him to, but he was not aware that the farmer expected to sell the cream from the cow. That's why the battle was on. If any one wants to know where there is a great deal of strength, we suggest that the searcher investigate the neck of a calf. We suspect it must be constructed of the same basic material from which whalebone is made. The neighbor who tried the two quarts of milk plus kindness and patience looked for a moment as though he were going to persuade Satan that the proper way to take nourishment was out of the tin pail. He did not straddle the calf at first; such a method was too severe and aroused the calf to antagonism. But by the time the two quarts of milk had been swished around on the neighbor and the sides of the stall the kindly disposed neighbor was ready to suggest he'd like to make veal out of Satan. Either that or he'd let Satan starve until he was ready to drink. When we left Satan was away ahead and the end of the ninth innings was almost at hand

Strange how many things have changed around a farm, but they are teaching a calf to drink out of a pail today just the same as they used to do it on the Tenth Concession. Grandfather used to say a calf was the orneriest thing ever made; some of them had a little common sense but most of them had none at all. Teaching a calf to drink was one job that he always turned over to the hired man. If there was anything in the government bulletins or the new books of rules that the hired man was always reading about how to make a calf drink then grandfather was ready to have the thing tried out.

But it does seem a bit strange that with all the age of invention has done for the farm they have no new or better way for giving a calf scientific instruction on how to drink from a tin pail. They are still bending that stiff neck, still holding fingers up from the bottom of the milk, and the calf is still knocking the pail over and dousing the instructors.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Most families celebrated Mother's Day by letting mother wash all the dishes as usual.

Man serving time in Sarnia jail is now charged with having stolen a canary from the turnkey. Perhaps that would be a case of one jail bird stealing another jailed bird.

Erring motorists in Toronto are being invited to attend a police school where movies showing reckless driving are displayed. If they still err after that they take a post graduate course in the police court.

MUSIC

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I read it just the other day, about a chap who earned good pay, from singing in some choir; he'd studied for a year of two, and then when he was fairly through, then he went out for hire.

¶ Eight hundred berries for a year, is what he's getting so I hear, it may be even higher; they gladly pay to him that sum, so they can get their singing done, when he is in the choir.

¶ When I sat in the choir with Joe, and that was many years ago, there was no paying done; the church was rather poorly thatched, there was no salary attached, in fact we wanted none.

¶ When I sat there long side of Joe, he struck the notes that ran down low, at every one he'd try; I took a different part all through, and made a noble effort too, to catch the ones up high.

¶ And Joe and I had pride and poise, we always made a joyful noise, when we stood up to sing; we weren't subdued not me and Joe, we just pumped up and let her go, and made the rafters ring.

¶ That man who's getting paid today, no doubt is good enough his way, a lot of things he'll know; but if they pay for volume now, I can't help thinking on somehow—he can't beat me and Joe.

Farm Wages and Other Figures

(From Parliamentary Debates)

An hon. MEMBER: What did industry pay in taxes during the same period?

Mr. DEACHMAN: What does the farmer pay in taxes from the sale of his products? With what is he to pay taxes? That is the point I shall next consider.

In 1926 the gross farm income of the dominion amounted to $1,088,000,000. The average for the five years of depression, which I am sure the hon. member who has just spoken will be pleased to hear, amounted to $689,000,000. In other words, the manufacturer got more, but the farmer got an average of $399,000,000 less, or almost $2,000,000,000 less in the five year period than the comparative position would have been if he had received the standard which prevailed in 1926.

I appeal to the hon. member for Greenwood (Mr. Massey).

An hon. MEMBER: Useless.

Mr. DEACHMAN: Useless? No, I do not agree with that. I admit I cannot appeal to his economic sense, but I can appeal to his sympathy. He told us he was strongly in favour of giving justice, a square deal and a fair wage to the worker in Canada.

Mr. MASSEY: And the same for the farmer.

Mr. DEACHMAN: All right, my friend. But the conditions which we had in that period did not produce justice for the farmer, because the manufacturer got an increase, the labourer got an increase and, on the basis of the story I have presented—which is accurate—the farmer got approximately $2,000,000,000 less.

Mr. BENNETT: The drought had something to do with that.

Mr. DEACHMAN: Part of that was an act of God. Sometimes I have heard that an act of God is anything which happens for which a lawyer cannot collect a fee.

During that period there was a decline by $2,000,000,000 in what the farmer received. Now, cut that in two, if you will, for the drought, or for any other disaster which may have happened. A great deal of the decline in the value of what the farmer received was due to the restriction of markets and to the raising of tariffs not only here but abroad. But if you cut it in two, then I suppose you may cut it in two again—and then what have you left? You have the decline in earnings expressed in terms of purchasing power, after being divided by four, of $500,000,000. The hon. member for Greenwood who, I am sorry to say, has been compelled to leave the chamber—

Mr. MASSEY: Here he is.

Mr. DEACHMAN: I thought the hon. member had gone to revise his speech.

Mr. MASSEY: It needs no revising.

Mr. DEACHMAN: The hon member gave us some advice—and I am always glad to have it. He said there was danger of driving a wedge between one section of Canada and another. Can anything in the world prevent the driving of a wedge between agriculture and manufacturing, between agriculture and labour, if we are going to accept the dogma in this country that labour must have its share—

Mr. MASSEY: Is the hon. member asking a question, and does he want an answer?

Mr. DEACHMAN: I will answer it myself; but for the benefit of the hon. member—

Mr. SPENCE: You may do it accurately.

Mr. DEACHMAN: —we have a position in which labour gets its share in which the manufacturer gets his share, with a larger amount in a period of depression than he did in a time of prosperity, while the farmer has to accept $400,000,000 less throughout the year. It is creating a cleavage engendered by fundamental circumstances. What ought to be the attitude of this house? What ought to be the attitude of the hon. member for Greenwood? He should revise his speech; he should present a speech to us which would be a plea to the house and the country to consider the adoption of measures which would improve the condition of the farmer.

Mr. MASSEY: That speech is up in my office prepared and ready for delivery at the proper time.

Mr. DEACHMAN: I shall welcome it when it comes, if it contains anything worth welcoming. My hon. friend is interested in the workers provided they are not on the farm. According to the statement made by him this afternoon, he is more interested in the 4,159 workers—

Mr. MASSEY: Oh, no.

Mr. DEACHMAN: —in the agricultural implement industry than he is in those who work on the farm.

Mr. MASSEY: I rise to a point of order. I have a high regard for the ability of the hon. member who is speaking, but he must not misstate or misinterpret my remarks. I read an excerpt from the speech of the minister made on Friday evening. The minister referred to those 4,159 workers, and I asked if the jobs of those men were to be jeopardized, when it meant a saving to the farmer of only forty-five cents a year.

TRIAL OF YE ED.

(Coleman (Alta.) Journal)

WALTER WINCHELL gets away with his keyhole reporting in a big city, and is well paid for it. The same stuff in a small town would bring him to fist fights very quickly. We nick-named an ardent fisherman "The grasshopper king," and he came round and gave us his opinion, which wasn't complimentary. Other little references of humorous nature have caused a near fight at times, simply because we are so convenient to be got at that almost before the ink on the paper is dry someoone comes around with revenge gleaming in his eye and threatens to clean up the whole gang in the print shop. We usually keep the type mallet within range so that if the callers become too threatening we can take up arms in defence of the liberty of the press.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

APPROVES

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The Examiner serves Canada in that editorial call for the fullest measure of co-operation between East and West, in pulling through to happier days.

These words richly deserve re-printing, on the offchance they may induce leading Canadians to see through their respective provincial boundaries to the wide land that is our common heritage:

"There was a time in the history of the West when the factories of the East were glad enough to have the business which was coming from that section. If that same volume of trade were coming today, it is not likely there would be much unemployment in Ontario or Quebec."

It is revealing also to note that, while 81 per cent of Canadians in 1871 were "living on the land", in 1931 there only 31 per cent. "actually living on the farm".

I know thousands of urban folk who seldom see a farm, who operate away up in tall buildings, who are "living on the land" by a species of remote control—and hardly realize it, until something happens to the buying power of the 31 per cent. "actually living on the farm".

Old Man Depression thrives on a diet of low wages in the city and less-than-production-cost prices in the country!

RECRUITING COLLEGIATE STUDENTS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: As a parent of a Collegiate student; I would like you to print this letter, with the hope that some measure will be taken to put an end to recruiting young students.

Surely students have all they can do to study for a sound education, which in giving them parents have to make many sacrifices, without spending two or three nights at the armouries each week, learning the rudiments of war.

If there are not enough recruits available out of the collegiate, I think the Board of Education should do something to prevent recruiting students under 18 at least.

The Air Force requires a matriculation paper before they accept a recruit. What chance have our boys to get that paper if at the impressionable age of 15 their minds are constantly diverted to machine guns and rifles?

Officers in charge at the Armouries seem to have made their way in civil life and I feel it would be fairer to leave our sons alone to gain a better education to be worthy citizens.

Caring For 170,000 Homeless Chinese

(From The War Cry, London, Eng.)

THERE ARE two types of refugee in Shanghai. The first class has been in our Camps since the outbreak of hostilities, and the second consists of those who have arrived as hostilities have developed in and beyond Shanghai. There are 170,000 of them all told in over 160 Camps.

Their homes are destroyed; all communal life in the towns and villages from which they have fled is uprooted; the crops are rotting in the ground; cattle have been taken away and spring seed and farm implements are entirely absent.

I have made extensive investigations in devastated areas, with Major Begley and Captain McIlvenny, and we have come to the conclusion tht it is impossible for the refugees to return to their farms in the country and to areas near the settlement.

In Honkew, Chapei and Nantao, for instance, practically all the houses are destroyed, shops are all closed and no business of any kind is going on. Factories have been ruined and all machinery taken out. The refugee problem is, therefore, bound to last for months to come.

The number of refugees under The Army's care is slightly less than a few months ago, there being a slight trickle back to their homes, but there are still over 16,000 in our care. The work done has given gratification to the authorities, as witness by the request from the International Red Cross that we should take over the general superintending of all the camps in Shanghai.

In order to get grants from the International Red Cross all Camps must conform to the model which we have established. In addition, a request has been made that our Camp in the French Concession be turned into a training school for Camp workers. Adjutant Tu, a Chinese Officer, has been asked to prepare a set of lectures on how to run a refugee camp.

Additional work which we have undertaken includes the care of T.B. sufferers. Five hundred T.B. patients are accommodated at the Ferry Road Camp. This work is winning great esteem. Dr. Alfred Sze, late Ambassador to the United States, has taken a personal interest in this work. We also have our first Eventide Home in China, where aged folk among the refugees are gathered in. One old lady, after she had been there a day or so, said to me, 'I have reached Heaven.'

Our anxieties have been increased by an outbreak of meningitis in the Chiao Tung University Camp.

From the No. 2 Camp (Route de Sieyes) we are distributing soya bean milk, catering in all for about 5,000 undernourished children as well as many adult refugees. We are co-operating with a local organization which is making the milk. Handwork is being conducted at this Camp, which has been chosen by the amalgamated charities of Shanghai as a training centre for Camp managers.

Much relief work in Tientsin, including distribution of cod-liver oil donated through the Lord Mayor's Fund. Corps Officers are conducting clinics.

Shelters for the homeless are a great boon in Peking. The Women's Shelter, not greatly needed in other years, much used now owing to unsettled and homeless condition of many.

The vigilance called for from supervising Officers is indicated by references in dispatches to outbreaks of illness among occupants of Shelters and Camps, and in one case to the deliberate poisoning of food prepared for distribution.

Prolonged absence of news regarding Mrs. Major Hou Tsun-te and Captain and Mrs. Shih T'i-to and children, of Nanking, is causing anxiety.

The Army's Hospital at Tingsien is situated in the midst of country without any settled authority. Bandits roam the country-side in search of food; and may terrible tortures are inflicted in attempts to extract money from the inhabitants.

It is suggested that even the ordinary farmer is turning bandit so that he may have sufficient to 'pass the days.'

Patronage Provides Party Funds

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

A CONSIDERABLE amount of time is spent these days in Parliament by partisan bickering over the methods employed in distributing government jobs. The sum and substance of the challenges are that when a government is in power, anyone who holds allegiance to the opposition party has a poor chance of obtaining a government job.

Not even a child could be misled by the assertions that such is not the case, and it would seem that it is an insult to the intelligence of the public to try to establish by debate in Parliament that any other course is pursued.

No one party is responsible for that situation. When Liberals are in power, the obs, contracts and patronage go to supporters of that Party and when Conservatives are in charge, the same applies to their followers. "To the victor belongs the spoils" has been a definite maxim of government in this country throughout its history and no amount of disavowal in the House of Commons will cause anyone with the slightest gift of observation to believe otherwise.

The extent to which patronage is utilized by governments in Canada has contributed to a wasteful and immoral type of administration. It has tended to put Canada into the distressing economic condition prevailing today, and judging by the charges and counter-charges made recently in Parliament, the abuse is just as prevalent as ever.

Awarding government contracts with the covert understanding that the successful tenderer will be allowed extras out of which he must make a contribution to the party's campaign fund is a vicious expedient that ought to be obliterated.

STRANGE GREETINGS.

WHEN WE MEET a friend we say "How do you do?" or "How are you?" In other countries there are different kinds of greetings, some of which sound very strange.

In some parts of India the greeting is "Praise God, is your nose fat?" to which the reply is "Thank God, my nose is fat." After this the questioner says, "Then, may you live a thousand years."

In Persia when a person meets a friend he says, "May your shadow never grow less." In Egypt people say, "How do you perspire?" The Chinese and Japanese remark is, "How is your stomach? Have you eaten your rice?"

Russian people inquire "How do you live?"; in Poland the question is "How do you keep yourself." French folk politely ask, "How do you carry yourself?" While in Holland a correct greeting would be, "How do you fare?" When the Italians meet they say, "How do you stand?"

Many U.S. prisons now have monthly newspapers or magazines, written and published by inmates.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND WHEN he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger! I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.—Luke xv, 17-19.

✧ ✧ ✧

For when ye were the servants of sin, ye were free from righteousness. What fruit had ye then in those things whereof ye are now ashamed? for the end of those things is death. But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life.—Romans vi, 20-22.

✧ ✧ ✧

Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light and darkness? . . . And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God: as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them: and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.—II Corinthians vi, 14, 16-18.

ASK ANY MOTHER.

(New York World-Telegram)

MOST FARMER'S daughters between the ages of 16 and 30 in the States of Washington and Oregon spend more for clothes than their mothers do. So the Department of Agriculture informs us, reporting on the 1935-36 survey of clothing expenditures just tabulated by its bureau of Home Economics.

It took the bureau two years, apparently, to obtain this important information. To save the government the time and trouble of further research in the other 46 States, we hereby announce without fear of successful contradiction that most daughters between 16 and 30, on the farms and in the cities of every State in the Union, spend more for clothes than their mothers do.

LEWIS AS SHYLOCK

(Los Angeles Times)

THAT THE president made a bad bargain when he permitted John L. Lewis to think he had bought the administration with a campaign contribution is increasingly apparent. Lewis has been making demands, in a truculent tone, ever since, and his latest denunciation of the chief executive for not insisting on a wage-hour bill, though Congress has twice refused to pass such a measure, still intimates that the administration sold out and is welshing.

Shylock came a cropper by insisting on the terms of his bargain and Lewis should profit by the example. To save the shreds of his own self-respect, the president will have to blast Lewis presently, be the consequences what they may, and that may be the end of the already tottering C. I. O.

UNEASY SLUMBER.

(Canadian Magazine)

ANGUS Kellaway, Vancouver, is cured of rumble seats. Riding in one, he was gently lulled to sleep and slumped down to the floor. The driver, when he came to park was mildly surprised not to see Mr. Kellaway, whom he was sure had been riding with him, but like a cautious man, he closed down the seat. Mr. Kellaway is obviously a good sleeper, but that was a bit thick. After a while the confinement began to pall on him. He started a hearty tattoo that startled the passersby. They called the police. Mr. Kellaway will have a good nap before he goes riding again.

CROPS IN BRITAIN WITHERING PAST FOR NEED OF RAIN

LONDON, May 9.—(CP Cable)—England wants rain, lots of rain. Field crops are parched, livestock is thirsting for green grass, gardens are withering, and fruit crops have been damaged by the frost which descends each night and by lack of rain.

The ministry of agriculture, fearing a black prospect for the harvest, today ordered inspectors in every county to make a detailed report within 10 days.

The year's yield of wheat, barley, oats, potatoes, and root crops will be away below average owing to the droughts, while the frosts of the last fortnight, which followed sunny weeks, have extensively damaged fruit crops.

In some distrcits the land is so much spring-sown corn has not germinated. East coast barley growers have not sown many acres and there is rust on plants in the north. Wireworm is attacking Midland crops and the sail is so dry that no roll can keep the pest underneath.

Turnips Not Sown

Mangolds, turnips, and Swedes have not been sown in many areas and where the farmer has sown in the dry areas there is often but one plant up in 500 yards. Many market gardeners have been reduced 50 per cent in activity.

Yorkshire farmers are selling sheep because of lack of food owing to the drought. Nearly all are in the same plight. Fields usually carrying full flocks are offering only dry stubble and farmers are selling hundreds of head at losing prices. One lot went for exactly four shillings ($1) per head less than the purchase price last October. Last year at this time ewes with lambs were selling for five pounds ($25). Now they fetch 59 shillings $12.50).

Dairy farmers are badly hit. In Manchester 766,000 people have been asked to cut down their domestic water supplies by 6,000,000 gallons.

BISHOP FLEMING SPEAKS IN LINDSAY

A. L. Fleming, Anglican Bishop of the Arctic, in an address to a rally of members of the Women's Auxiliary branches of the Deaner yof Victoria here on Friday

The Bishop pleaded for a greater spirit of fellowship and unit in the Church and between different communions, in order "that the Church may present a worthy and respected bulwark against the many isms which are insidiously creeping into the Dominion."

Bowen, at odds with the provincial government over his refusal to give royal assent to three stringent bank and press control bills passed by the legislature, declared that he would stay in his official residence until provincial authorities showed him "proper respect" by presenting an order-in-council duly passed and signed.

Do You Suffer From Headaches?

Headache is a source of great suffering and often leads to serious derangements of health.

Headache is nearly always symptomatic of some diseased condition, rather than a disease itself, but in most cases comes from a disordered stomach, or poor circulation of the blood, and the cause must be removed before relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters helps remove the cause of headache by acting on different organs of the body to regulate, strengthen and purify the system.

MRS. ARTHUR J. WILLIAMS, Lac Ste. Anne, Alta., writes:—"I suffered for years with dizzy headaches, and sometimes they were so bad I could not get any sleep.

My neighbour told me about Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking several bottles my headaches had disappeared.

My husband was troubled with pimples on his face, causing him great discomfort when shaving, but after he had taken two bottles of B.B.B. he got rid of the pimples."

MILLBROOK

PETERBORO' Y.P.U. WINS DEBATE CUP

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, May 9.—The finals in the series of debates sponsored by the Young People's Union of the Peterborough Presbytery were held at Millbrook on Wednesday at 8.00 p.m., with the newly-elected Presbyterial president, Robert Spence, of Lakefield, in the chair.

Knox Church, Peterboro' Y.P.U., through its representatives, Gladys Girard and John Londerville, were the winners of the silver cup, through superior arguments advanced for the affirmative side on the subject: Resolved, That the pioneer woman contributed more to home and community welfare than has the modern woman. The local society made a very good showing in defending the negative, the two debaters being Gwen Staples and Gordon Muspratt; the latter had only two or three days for preparation, having unexpectedly to substitute for Henry Gray, who has gone to Campbellford in the employ of the Ontario Hydro Commission.

The judges were Rev. Mr. Kelly of Lakefield, Mr. A. B. Burrows of Peterborough, and Miss D. H. Bannister, B.A., of the local Continuation School staff.

The welcome to the visiting debaters, and the many others who accompanied them from Peterborough to give support by hearty applause, was extended by B. B. Dawson, president of the Millbrook Y.P.U., and the chair for the opening period was taken by Jean L. Burnham, who read the poem, "O Brother Man."

Four girls, Leitha Edworthy, Edna McKnight, Barbara Argue, and Bea McDowell, sang "Take time to be Holy," William Ridge read the lesson, and Bea closed with prayer. Rev. A. L. Sisco acted as timekeeper for the debate, and Marie Douglas presided at the piano for the evening.

For the May meetings the "Interest Groups" are to feature the weekly gathering, one taking "The Worship Committee in Action," with Phyllis Kidd, Della Mae Siscoe, and Mr. Dawson as leaders, and the other, "How to win friends and to influence others," being in charge of Jean Burnham. This is a new undertaking, and it is hoped to make it both instructive and interesting.

The Mizpah benediction in unison closed Wednesday's meeting.

A TUNNEL CHANNEL

LONDON, May 9 (A.P.). — A Labor member of Parliament to-day revived the centuries-old talk of building a tunnel under the English Channel to link Great Britain with the Continent.

Harry Day announced he would ask Prime Minister Chamberlain in the House of Commons on Wednesday if he would consider appointing a committee on the question in view of the menace to shipping food supplies by the development of modern aviation. Napoleon once favored a tunnel scheme as a means of conquering England.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

RELIEFERS WANT WORKS PROGRAM

LAKEVIEW, Ont., May 9.—(CP)—Substitution of a "constructive works program" for relief was asked Saturday by striking Toronto Township relief recipients in a letter to residents of the municipality.

Issued by the Toronto Township Workers' Union, the letter said that under present payments the food allowance for two people totals $2.45 weekly or $49.44 a person yearly. This allows an expenditure of 4½ cents a person for each meal.

Four members of the union executive, arrested in Premier Hepburn's office when the yled a 14 mile march from this village to the Ontario legislature in Toronto last week, are awaiting trial on charges of creating a disturbance and assault. The trek was one of a series of demonstrations following the relief recipients' walkout from road jobs on the claim the relief project payments were inadequate.

"We all had jobs, we all paid taxes," the letter says. "Now the burden is increasing on our shoulders, crippling you and your business.

"As long as we, the present unemployed, continue to accept relief, though inadequate, we shall never get a constructive works program. Join us, because you can never exist on this schedule allowance as we have been trying to do."

THE DANGERS OF WAR

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 9 (A.P.). — The Rev. Herbert Morgan's sermon on the evils of war ended with the minister, himself, a casualty. Holding aloft a bayonet yesterday, he compared it to the Gospel, saying: "This sword, just like the Gospel, is two-edged. At that he tripped on a rug and the bayonet passed through his left leg above the knee.

TRINITY COLLEGE CADETS LAUDED

PORT HOPE, May 9 (CP).—Air Commander G. M. Croil, senior air officer of Canada, commended Trinity College School Cadets for smartness and efficiency at the conclusion of gym exercises which followed the annual inspection of the corps at the school here Saturday.

"I am extremely pleased with the smartness and general turnout of the cadets," he stated; "they did remarkably well." Cheers greeted his promise to request P. A. C. Ketchum, headmaster, to grant the boys a half holiday in recognition of the efficiency of the corps.

Inspection of the corps, only cadet unit affiliated with the R.C.A.F., was held Saturday morning while planes from Trenton air base circled and stunted over the school campus. Air Commander Croil took the salute and Brigadier-General H. G. H. Hertzberg of Kingston, commanding Military District No. 3, was the inspecting officer.

Officers Attend.

Other officers in attendance were Colonel S. A. Lee, Division of Signals, Kingston; Squadron Leader W. A. Curtis, commanding No. 110, City of Toronto Squadron, R.C.A.F.; Squadron Leader Hume of Trenton; Flight Lieutenant A. H. K. Russell of the Toronto squadron; and Flight Lieutenant A. D. Ross of Ottawa.

Ceremonial drill followed the actual inspection, and was in turn followed by a squadron drill competition won by No. 3 Squadron under Cadet Squadron Leader P. M. Russell.

The corps, trained by Second Lieutenant S. J. Batt, Royal Fusiliers, is commanded by Cadet Wing Commander G. E. Renison.

After luncheon at the school, guests witnessed a physical training and gymnasium display in which a drill on roller skates was an unusual number. Horizontal and parallel bar work and tumbling exercises were outstanding.

"The R.C.A.F. is proud of the affiliation with it of the Trinity College School Cadet Corps," Air Commander Croil told the gathering of parents and friends at the conclusion of the gym display, in pointing out that affiliation of other cadet units with the R.C.A.F. has been made possible by the Department of Defence. "Your corps was the first to be so affiliated, however," he stated, "and we cannot but be the more interested in you because of this."

OSHAWA AROUSED BY CRIME WAVE

OSHAWA, May 9.—Eastern Ontario is experiencing a crime wave similar to that which recently troubled Western Ontario authorities, the local Police Commission was informed Saturday. Alarmed by an increase in crime in Oshawa and the Eastern part of the Province generally, the Commission met with Chief of Police Owen D. Friend, who declared many young men who have never held steady jobs, "will do anything for excitement and pocket money."

In discussing the increase in criminal acts locally, Chief Friend declared Oshawa had been fortunate in the past, and the series of breakins and car thefts, while causing much concern in Oshawa, would not have been taken so seriously in other cities of Oshawa's size. The condition was seasonable and at present general in the Eastern portion of the Province.

Centreville W.M.S. To Visit Millbrook

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, May 9.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid of Centreville Presbyterian Church was held in the Sunday School Hall on Wednesday night. The president of the W.M.S., Mrs. Dawson Rutherford, opened the meeting with hymn and prayer, after which Mrs. Thomas Skitch gave the Bible reading.

Following the report of the treasurer, Mrs. James Whittington gave an interesting and helpful paper on "She hath done what she could."

The society accepted two cordial invitations, one to attend an address in Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, by Fred Scott, who will describe his visit to Florida, the other from the Women's Missionary Society of Bensfort United Church on June 7th.

It was decided that as many as possible of the members attend the Peterborough Presbyterial, which will be held in Cobourg on May 19.

A delightful piano selection was given by Miss Grace Johnson.

Mrs. John Gainer, president of the Ladies' Aid, presided for the business meeting, when several items were considered. The society decided to hold a hostess tea in the Sunday School Hall on May 26.

The meeting was closed with prayer.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

WHILE THE WEATHER was rather tricky Saturday—blowing hot and cold as the sun ducked in and out of clouds—there was a big turnout of baseball prospects at the senior workout in Riverside. With a gang of those railbirds who can't wait for May 24th to see the diamondeers slinging the apple around. Two sides were selected and they had a game, getting in a lot of batting and fielding practice, with some base-running. The umping was so-so, to say the best! A flock of juniors were on hand and all of last year's seniors, who are still in town, but Bill Calladine and Eddie Starr. Bill will be back but Eddie is a doubtful starter. It was an excellent drill and the team is coming along okay. This Deadey looks all right in centre. We should have a good outfield, if they hit as they should, and a smart infield. While the battery will be oke, with oodles of heavers.

* * * * * *

FIRST BASE is a question mark just yet, but will no doubt be filled properly. Bun Kingdon and Eddie Murphy are available for second, the latter after June 4th. Al Clark will hold down shortstop fine once more, and Bill Calladine is the ideal third sacker. Looks like Burton, Deadey, Kearns and Len Hollingsworth for the outfield berths. Cy Whatley and Doug Mowry are on deck for catching, and Starr may change his mind about retiring. We have four righthand hurlers, Russ Kitchen, Gunner Whitehill, Joe Jakafby and Spook Scriver (if he gets a transfer) and we may even have a southpaw. Manager Eddie Murphy should trot out a strong team this season, with possibly a few others on hand besides those we've mentioned. The Ponies and GM-men will find a powerful Petes' team this summer.

* * * * * *

DUNNO just what's what with Eddie Starr. Haven't seen him personally lately but the boys say he will not play baseball this year. Maybe a bit of softball and some golf, but no baseball. Too bad, as he is a good catcher and hitter. Batted .347 last year, though he couldn't get away from work to take part in all the games. He won't let baseball interfere with his job—and we don't blame him—and the club officers figure that, much as they'd like Starr on hand, they will not urge him to play when it comes to choosing between work and sport. Eddie had a lot of ginger in there back of the batters, a good peg to the bases and a fine hitting stance. He may yet figure a way out to get into this game—and baseball is Starr's game even more than hockey—but 'tis doubtful.

* * * * * *

CY WHATLEY can't be kept off the team. He may be first-string catcher or he may be in the infield. Or pitching or outfielding! He is a manager's ball player. Cy will play any position on the team, except pitching, and make a pretty good job of it, too. He slumped a bit in his batting last year, conking the spheroid at a .271 pace—but don't forget he led the C.O.B.L. hitters one year and he and Foley fought it out later for the club batting championship—plus a wristwatch. Whatley is blamed by some for grandstanding, but this same trait (which is knocked by a lot of conservative Canadians) is what made Babe Ruth and Dizzy Dean—to name but two—famous in the States. We want color on our clubs, provided they play smart ball, and Cy Whatley has both. He is a cinch for a berth.

* * * * * *

WESTCLOX MEN softballers had a workout Saturday at the Bowl. And Manager Pat Hayden will round up another good team, we expect. Has Bateman, Parsons and Fleming for pitchers, with Castle—and maybe Pat Calladine—for catching. Looks like Ellis, Stanger, Watson, Gainey and Dormer in the infield, and Bill Calladine might come out, also. With a good outfield undecided as yet. These names are only guesses on our part, but wait and see their starting lineup. Yeah, last year's champs will be strong again this semester.

Executive meeting is tonight at 7.30 in the "Y", and all entries and player lists must be in at this time. Schedules will be drawn up and published tomorrow. Teams cannot afford to delay any longer. Don't forget games should be started smack on the dot these nights if seven innings are to be completed.

* * * * * *

THE O.A.S.A. has finally followed the footsteps of lacrosse, hockey, basketball and baseball—pulling away from the Amateur Union to take up with the Sports Federation. And allowing pros and amateurs to mingle. Not more than three pros to a team, and none at all in junior ranks. There is still a bit of inconsistency shown by the Softball Association inasmuch as it continues to carry the term "amateur" in its title and has stated that it "will continue to conduct the association as an amateur organization." Can't be strictly amateur when pros are allowed to mix with amateurs, can it? The A.A.U. of C. is decidedly a back number nowadays.

* * * * * *

LEADERS CORPS of the Y.M.C.A. here will be hosts tomorrow e'en at a banquet in the "Y" to three basketball teams. The senior gym team, the C.G.E. and St. Paul's. The latter gang won local Church Cage Loop honors the past winter and then went through to cop the Ontario Church Basketball Association intermediate title. They will receive the trophy and crests at this spread. The Electrics took the championship of the City League during the season just past. Close to 50 are expected to sit down to the feed at 6.30 o'clock tomorrow in the gloaming. And that'll close the cage season definitely till next winter.

SURVEY CHIEF HONORED

LEVIS, Que., May 9.—(CP)—Lieut.-Col. J. R. Guenette, leader of 14 surveyors rescued early this year after spending six weeks of near starvation in Northern Quebec's barren muskeg country, was awarded medals of the Quebec Safety League and the Safety Engineers' Society last night in recognition of his bravery during the period of hardship.

Lost while conducting a four-month survey in the isolated Quebec territory, Guenette's party lived close to 40 days on the flesh of 14 rabbits after a food cache had been missed.

COMMENT FROM THE COACH

No Matter How Trivial Don't Neglect Injuries

By Lloyd A. Percival

Neglected injuries have been the downfall of many athletes and have made the road a lot rougher than necessary for as many others. A bruised or sore muscle may not seem important when it happens, but unless care is taken serious complications may develop. Taking care of yourself is not a sign of weakness, but rather an indication of intelligence. To say with a forced smile, "Oh, it's nothing," when asked about an injury during a game is not brave—it's silly and not fair to yourself, the team or anyone concerned. Care given an injury right away can often save a long period of bench warming.

Don't Carry It Too Far

In taking care of yourself there is no need to develop a complex and act too fussy like a lad I know. This fellow has almost made himself a social outcast. He practically walks around with a cloud of liniment vapor encircling his worried brow. Needless to say, most liniments are not noted for their delicate odor. This chap puts care for his hurts above all else and carries the thing too far. There's another chap who played at heroics until one day after a game, in which he had laughed off an injury, he was coming home with his girl. She noticed he was wincing and asked him if he was hurt. Replying with a brave smile that he was fine he fainted. Though she was sympathetic the young lady was sensible and when she found out the true state of things she gave him plenty.

In addition to the danger of hurting your own chances you must realize the responsibility to the team and your parents. When an injury occurs see that it gets quick and proper attention. Included in the classification of injuries are chills and drinking and eating at the wrong time. Standing around after you have been perspiring is bad. If you must stand around, make sure you have an extra sweater or coat to put on. This might cause you some inconvenience in the form of kidding, but it's well worth a few cracks.

Watch Your Victuals!

Drinking and eating heavily just before or after a game not ony cuts down your efficiency but is dangerous. It is wise to wait until your heart gets back to normal and you stop perspiring before you drink. Wash out your mouth but don't swallow. You've heard that before—and it's still very important. It is best to wait until you are well rested before you eat. If you don't, indigestion may result. The condition of an athlete's stomach is very important—so watch your step.

Keep your eye peeled for the sign of an injury and see that it gets good care. Kidding won't help your body or your ambitions. Fainting or developing colds are no ways to build an athletic reputation or climb the ladder to success. Watch your injuries!

PREPARE PLANS FOR SPORTS DAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 9.—Preparations for the annual May 24th celebration of the Havelock Albion Club are again under way, a committee composed of Harry Ferguson, Fred Hill, Paul Voyer, Clarence Spencer, Harold Hunter, Nell Sarginson, and Jerome Voyer being in charge of arrangements.

Feature item on the afternoon's program will be the inter-scholastic sports competition between representatives of Norwood, Campbellford and Havelock High schools. A shield will be awarded to the school obtaining the largest total number of points from a series of chosen events of track and field.

A softball tournament is also scheduled for that afternoon with teams expected from Hastings, Norwood, Campbellford, Keene, Marmora, Peterborough and Havelock.

Bicycle races for both boys and girls will be held, as well as children's sports.

The big day will start off with a parade made up of comic and fancy floats, decorated cars, representatives of the different organizations, the band and school children. Valuable prizes will be awarded for best floats and cars in their respective classes.

Some thirty-five prizes have been donated by the village merchants to be presented to the winners and runners-up in the minor sports.

GOLF FACTS by Alex Morrison

Number 12

My good friend Charley Moskowitz took me to see some jai alai games in Miami recently. It was my first visit to these games and I was thrilled by them. I get a big kick out of any performance wherein co-ordination plays a part, and it certainly plays a big part in jai alai.

The speed and dexterity with which the players catch and throw the ball is indeed impressive, but the thing that captures my eye is the way the better players use their bodies and arms. When catching the ball on the side the player turns his body around just like a golfer and in hurling the ball forward, sometimes the full length of the court at terrific speed, the body and arms unwind as they do for the expert golfer.

In other words, what I got out of the game was an excellent example of the body and arms working in harmony to produce a whirling motion which sent the ball forward at great speed. And where this co-ordination was better with some players, so the accuracy of their shots improved.

Golfers could learn a great deal about their own game simply by watching this imported sport should the chance present itself. It is a great spectator's game, affording plenty of thrills.

Boxing History In This Grand Quintet

A nifty line-up of boxers is this one caught at a dinner held by the Veteran Boxers' association in Philadelphia. The present king of the lightweight division is shown with four of his illustrious predecessors. LEFT to RIGHT: Rocky Kansas, ex-champ; Lou Ambers, present holder of the crown, scheduled to meet the winner of the Henry Armstrong-Barney Ross battle; Tony Canzoneri, ex-champ; Benny Leonard, holder of the crown at the start of the glamorous '20's, who retired undefeated; and finally one of the greatest ring warriors ever, Battling Nelson.

Moguls Make Ruling Change At Guelph Committee Meet

Lone Restriction Allows Three Pros To a Team—A.A.U. Of C. Condemned

GUELPH, May 9 — (Special). — Barriers which prevented professional athletes from mingling with amateurs in organized softball have been lifted in Ontario as a result of a decision made by the subcommittee of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Saturday.

Presed for definite action on the question which was left undecided at the annual meeting of the O.A.S.A. in Sarnia on Good Friday, the subcommittee debated the matter at considerable length and finally agreed to life the restrictions of the "pros." Failure of the A.A.U. of C. to send a representative to the meeting and alleged neglect of the Amateur Union to reply to correspondence dealing with the professional-amateur proposition came in for condemnation from the softball executives.

Only One Restriction.

Only restrictions placed on the professionals under the revised O.A.S.A. regulations are that not more than three may play on any one team, and each professional player must make application to the O.A.S.A. Secretary through his local association, giving place of residence and other particulars. The ruing affecting the professionals applies only to series above junior.

The Ontario softball body will affiliate with the newly formed Ontario Sports Federataion and will continue to conduct the association Sarnia meeting, delegates straddled the fence on the professional quesas an amateur organization. At the tion and voted to retain affiliation with the A.A.U. of C.

Grant Transfers.

The sub-committee sanctioned a softball tournament to be held in Simcoe May 24 for charitable purposes and granted permission to a team of Kitchener professionals to participate.

Suspensions placed on three Toronto players, Gordon Savoy, Peter Titanic and William Pawlak in January, 1937, were lifted, and transfers granted the following players: H. J. Turner, Kirkland Lake, to Toronto; Len Mason, to Simcoe, under the student rule; Leo M. Deadey, Toronto to Peterborough. The application of John Tanas for a transfer from Long Branch to Toronto was laid over for further consideration.

HAVELOCK BEATS HASTINGS 4 TO 3

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 9.—The Havelock softball season opened Saturday afternoon with the "Wreckers" getting off to a good start, defeating the Hastings crew by a 4 to 3 score, in an exhibition tilt. The game started quite lat and was called at the end of the fourth innings on account of darkness.

Hastings started the scoring with two runs in the first innings, but Havelock at their turn to bat hammered in three runs to take the lead. The visitors tied the score in the third with the locals getting their winning run in the same stanza. Brunton, pitching for the Wreckers, showed some of his old time form, with ten strikeouts to his credit. Blackburn on the Hastings mound had five.

The teams:

Hastings—Phillips, c; Puffer, s.s.; Radford, 1b.; Stickles, 2b; McCoy, l.f.; Faux, 3b; Blackburn, p; Scriver, c.f.; Kennedy, r.f.

GIANTS ADD 4-2 VICTORY OVER CUBS TO VICTORY STRING

Carl Hubbell, Ott And Ripple Are Big Guns In Giants' Win Red Sox Pin Loss On Feller

Chicago White Sox Lose First Baseman Joe Kuhel Through Injury

NEW YORK, May 9 (CP).—Safely past the first barrier that threatened difficulties, Bill Terry's New York Giants appear today to be riding high along the National League pennant road—if they can escape the injury plague that has been affecting a large number of the other major baseball league clubs.

When the Giants were winning those 11 straight from eastern rivals, they were warned: "Wait until you meet those Cubs. It won't be so easy then."

They met the Cubs yesterday and beat them just like everybody else 4-2 with a neat three-man performance. Carl Hubbell took care of Chicago batters, scattering nine hits, fanning seven and pulling out of his one bad inning, while Mel Ott and Jimmy Ripple handled the job of scoring four times on six hits off Larry French. Ott hit two home runs, each with Ripple on base, and that was all there was to increasing New York's lead to 3½ games.

While they got past that first and hardest game in Chicago safely, the Giants haven't come through entirely unscathed. Hal Schumacher got in front of a line drive in Pittsburg Saturday and was badly bruised, and yesterday Catcher Harry Danning split a finger.

Joe Kuhel Injured.

They got off easy compared to Chicago White Sox and a few other teams, however. The Pale Hose lost First Baseman Joe Kuhel for a week or so in addition to losing a 7-3 game to New York Yankees yesterday. Kuhel caught his spikes on the bag sliding to second and was carried off with a badly wrenched foot. Saturday Clint Brown, veteran relief pitcher, discovered a chipped bone in his elbow, while Shortstop Luke Appling has been out with a broken leg since the training season.

With a makeshift lineup, the Sox couldn't do much when Red Ruffing fanned nine of them and Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich belted homers.

The Yanks, however, failed to break their tie with Washington for second place as Cecil Travis knocked in five runs with a homer and two singles to pace the Senators to a 9-7 victory over St. Louis Browns. These two teams, with Boston's aid, cut Cleveland Indians' lead to a half game. With Jack Wilson pitching four-hit ball and fanning 12, the Red Sox blanked Cleveland 5-0. A triple by Jimmie Foxx with two on and Manager Joe Cronin's homer were too much for Bob Feller.

Home runs and hurt players marked the day's other games as well. Bill Werber, who had homered earlier, hit a single with the bases full in the 10th to give Philadelphia's Athletics two runs and a 7-6 decision over Detroit after Hank Greenberg had hit for the circuit in the same frame.

Beats Boston 2-1

Al Todd, of Pittsburgh, belted Lou Fette's first pitch of the 12th inning out of the park and beat Boston Bees 2-1. Johnny Mize, with two homers and a double, and Lon Warneke, who pitched seven-hit ball, accounted for St. Louis Cardinals' 4-2 triumph over Brooklyn. Warneke was hit on the hip by Cookie Lavagetto's liner in the sixth but continued to pitch.

Without the aid of homers, the Phillies downed Cincinnati Reds 2-0 as Bucky Walters bested Johnny Vandermeer in a mound duel. But to keep the record intact, Ernie Lombardi, Cincinnati catcher, went out with a split finger in the first inning.

Eight Are Named To British Team

ST. ANDREW'S Scotland, May 9.—(AP)—Eight players, including the sensational 17-year-old Irishman, Jim Bruen, were named during the week-end to the British Walker Cup golf team which meets the United States here June 3-4.

Named with Bruen were Harry Bentley, Leonard Crawley, A. T. Kyle, Frank Pennink and Charles Stowe, all of England; Hector Thomson and Gordon Peters of Scotland.

J. B. Beck was named captain of the team. One more place will be filled after the British amateur championship is played late this month.

Clint Brown Will Undergo Operation

CHICAGO, May 9—(AP)—Harry Grabiner, vice president of Chicago White Sox, said Relief Pitcher Clint Brown would enter a hospital today for an operation to remove a bone chip in his right elbow. The relief ace, who set a major league record last year by finishing 48 games, probably will be out for the season, Grabiner said.

BELGIUM GAINS THIRD ROUND OF DAVIS CUP PLAY

LONDON, May 9.—Belgium led the way Sunday into the third round of the European zone Davis Cup competition, as Poland, Italy and Jugoslavia won their place in the second round and Great Britain's clash with Rumania awaited resumption of play Monday.

Belgium, which drew a first-round bye, won its third straight match from Greece and clinched the series as Andre Lecroix and L. de Borman beat L. Stalios and J. Michailides, 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 at Athens. Lacroix whipped Stalios on one of Saturday's singles matches, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1, while Charles Naeyaert downed Michailides, 6-1, 6-4, 9-7, in the other. The final singles games will be played today.

India in Third Round

India, which plays Belgium, and Hungary also have reached the third round. India advanced automatically when Austria was absorbed by Germany, and New Zealand defaulted to Hungary.

Italy completed a 4-to-1 victory over Eire at Dublin Saturday, while Poland swept its five matches with Denmark. Italy and Poland will meet in the next round.

Jugoslavia won a 3-2 decision over Czechoslovakia when the final match went by default. After Ferenc Puncec defeated Roderick Menzel, Czechoslovakia, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2, to even the series at 2-2, Demeter Metic of Jugoslavia won over Cejnar by default when the latter refused to complete the fifth set.

With the score standing at 3-6, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1, 2-1 for Metic, his opponent asked the umpire to adjourn play overnight due to darkness. The umpire ruled play must continue, and when Cejnar refused to play awarded the match to Metic. The series was staged at Zagreb, Jugoslavia.

In doubles Saturday Menzel and Cejnar downed Puncec and Metic, 11-9, 3-6, 9-7, 6-2.

Britain Divides

The Netherlands unexpectedly took a 2-1 lead over France at Scheveningen, Holland. The Dutch pair of H. van Swol and T. Hughan rallied to conquer Yvon Petra and Henri Bolelli, 6-8, 1-6, 6-1, 7-5, 6-2. Saturday's singles were divided when can Swol defeated Bernard Destremau and Petra beat Hughan.

Great Britain's young team divided the opening single with Rumania at Harrowgate, England, on Saturday. Cristea Caralulius defeated C. M. Jones, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, 8-6, in the first match, but R. A. Shayes put Britain back in the running by defeating C. Schmidt, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, May 9 — The annual meeting of the Keene Men's Softball Club was held last week. A good number were in attendance to elect the officers for the coming year.

It was decided to again place an entry in the Southend League of Peterborough. The possibility of entering a team in the rural playdowns (Intermediate C) was also discussed.

Veteran Hurlers Share Major League Spotlight

It's usually the rookies that bloom in the major league spring, tra-la, but it doesn't always take a few weeks for the oldsters to warm up to their task, as is testified by the feats thus far in the season of the trio above. On the LEFT is Paul Derringer, ace of the Cincinatti Reds' mound corps, who turned in victory No. 3 when he stopped the Giants, 10-2, at the same time putting a halt to the 11 game victory streak the New Yorkers had amassed. Red Ruffing, who just breezes along winning games in an unostentatious way for the world champion New York Yankees, is the moundsman on the RIGHT. Red has garnered three triumphs in easy fashion for Colonel Jake's team in this, his 15th major league season. The other slab artist, and a real one, is Lefty Grove of the Boston Red Sox, outstanding hurler in the American League over the past 15 years. Lefty struck out six when he defeated the Tigers, 4-3, in ten innings recently, thus boosting his strike-out total to 2,002 for his career and making him the sixth pitcher in history to pass the 2,000 mark in this department.

LEAFS LOSE OUT TO WINGMEN 7-4 ROCHESTER GAME

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 9.—Uncle Dan Howley brought his Maple Leafs to Rochester for the first of a series of those peculiar Sunday jumps which marked Toronto's part in the International League schedule and the Leafs dropped an unusual ball game to the Red Wings 7-4.

The Leafs did some lusty hitting getting eleven blows to only four for the Wings, but mixed two costly errors which helped spot the homesters to a four-run advantage in the first inning.

Joe Mulligan, who started on the mound for the Leafs, might have staggered through to victory, save for Al Smith's first inning boot and Porter's wild throw to the plate which made a disastrous finish on the same play.

Hopp Hits Homer

Mulligan had given only three hits, the last of which was Hopp's homer with one on, when he was relieved by Johnny Wilson in the third inning. Wilson gave up only one blow in the next five innings and Klivak who pitched the eighth kept the Wings from scoring.

After the Reds had been handed a four-run lead in the first frame the Leafs started on Ken Raffensberger, a young left hander, and drove him out in the second inning with a shower of base hits.

Ted Petoskey, who carried the batting torch for the Leafs, opened the second with a double. Porter, Al Smith and Reiber singled in succession and these blows, mixed with Ogrodowski's wild throw, gave the Leafs 3 runs. Mulligan walked and Mayo Smith's infield single, which filled the bases with only one out, sent Raffensberger to the showers and brought in Oscar Judd, a left-hander from Ingersoll, Ont. Judd struck out Gantenbein and Burns hit into a force play to end Toronto's best chance for a perfect inning.

Leafs Catchers Ailing

The Leafs scored their last run in the fourth, when Burns singled and Petoskey's second double provided the power.

Three double plays by Rochester helped Judd get through the late innings, despite his wildness which is indicated by the seven bases on balls he issued.

The Toronto catching staff is in tough shape. Walter Klimczak developed an ulcerated tooth and was not in uniform today. Frank Reiber caught despite a lame shoulder. If Reiber had been unable to work, Howley would have been forced to use Coach Johnny Heving as his catcher.

BISONS SPLIT SUNDAY DOUBLE

BUFFALO, May 9.—(CP)—Those Buffalo Bisons are standing up pretty well under the strain of what has been happening to them in the past few days—in fact they're up there in second place in the International League standings—but unless they can figure out some way to belt a few more drives over their own fences and keep the opposition from doing that trick, there's trouble just ahead.

They finally got rid of Newark's Bob Seeds yesterday after he had lofted seven shots over the left field wall in two days and showed all comers just how to beat the Bisons with a minimum of effort. Bob broke about every record in sight with four straight homers and a couple of singles Friday and three more Saturday.

Herd Splits Pair

The Bisons, by the way of showing their relief, stepped out and clouted Baltimore Orioles for a 12-6 decision in the first game of yesterday's doubel bill. But then George (Pooch) Puccinelli of Baltimore's rollicking crew came back at them with a pair of circuit swats and Baltimore won 6-4.

The sum total of their efforts was to leave the clubs virtually tied, although the Bisons hold an edge in the percentages, and move them both past Jersey Giants, who dropped a couple of tough ones to the Montreal Royals, 5-4 in 11 innings and 3-2 in seven.

Newark's doubleheader at Syracuse was called off because of cold and threatening weather, so Montreal moved out of the cellar and Syracuse dropped in. Rochester's Red Wings maintained a half-game margin over the Royals by beating Toronto 7-4 in the day's other game.

WOOLF'S LAWRIN SURPRISE WINNER KENTUCKY DERBY

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP)—Despite the unexpected victory of Herbert M. Woolf's Lawrin in the Kentucky Derby Saturday, the United States three-year-old turf situation remained far from settled today.

The lanky, Kansas City-owned son of Inso-Margaret Lawrence is not eligible for another important stake until the $30,000 Arlington Classic July 23. And then, too, there still is the ailing Stagehand with which to be reckoned.

Stagehand, were he sufficiently recovered from the sore throat that forced his withdrawal from the Derby two days before the race would start in the renewal of the $75,000 Preakness at Pimlico next Saturday. But even the star trained by Earle Sande is not in the $50,000 Belmont Stakes June 4.

All of this means that as far as the three-year-old situation is concerned, the Preakness and Belmont will be just two more rich stakes. The Arlington Classic figures to be the race to settle matters.

Lawrin was clocked in 2:04 4-5 for the 1¼ derby mile as he came from behind, took the lead in the stretch and then turned back the challenge of William Dupont Jr's Dauber to register by a length. Lawrin, fourth choice behind Fighting Fox, Bull Lea and Menow, returned $19.20 on a $2 straight ticket.

Can't Wait, a midget alongside Lawrin, and five lengths behind Dauber in thrid place, was just holding on at the end. The Fox, 7 to 5 choice, finished a disappointed sixth as Menow took fourth and The Chief fifth.

CHURCH ORGANIST RECEIVES HONORS LAKEFIELD PARTY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, May 9. — An event of last week which was of unusual interest to a large number of residents of Lakefield and the district was a presentation made to Mrs. J. W. Todd, Lakefield, who for a period of forty-three years has been organist and choir leader of St. John the Baptist Church here. Mrs. Todd (formerly Miss Atwood) succeeded her eldest sister, Mrs. Lingwood as orgainst. Mrs. Lingwood had held the position for six years previously, so that the duty of providing music for the religious services in St. John's Church, Lakefield, has rested with members of the Atwood family for almost fifty years up until Mrs. Todd's retirement early this year.

Of Pioneer Stock.

Mrs. Todd is a granddaughter of Mrs. Catherine Parr Traill, one of Lakefield's earliest settlers. Mrs. Traill was a member of St. John's Church from the time it was founded in 1854 until her death, and Mrs. Todd's parents (Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Atwood) were the secnd couple to be married in the little old stone church which is used by the present congregation of St. John's as a Parish Hall.

It was very fitting that the special meeting of the members of the congregation of St. John's Church, held for the purpose of honoring Mrs. Todd, should take place in the Parish Hall where Mrs. Todd's grandmother was one of the first worshippers and where her mother and father were married exactly 80 years ago.

A large and representative attendance filled the hall. Kenneth Mackenzie asked Mrs. Todd to accept a purse on behalf of the congregation and Mrs. George Hutt (formerly Ida Webster), who has been in the choir longer than any other member, presented Mrs. Todd with a black silk purse, embroidered with needlepoint and containing a substantial sum, the gift of the congregation.

Mrs. Todd thanked the congregation for their kindness, said she had always enjoyed her work with the choir, and extended to the choir best wishes for the future.

Mr. DelaFosse of Peterborough, who was formerly a member of St. John's congregation, added words of appreciation to those voiced by Mr. Creighton and Mr. Mackenzie. Magistrate O. A. Langley spoke of Mrs. Todd's regular and faithful work, of her untiring efforts throughout forty-three years of service, and of how she never missed a service, rain or shine.

At the conclusion of the speeches the crowd joined in singing "For she's a jolly good fellow," after which delicious refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

During the social part of the evening, Mrs. Todd received an interesting gift from two former choir members, Mrs. I. M. Grant (nee Verna Payne) and Miss Winnie Payne. The gift was a dainty silk handkerchief case, which came from Southwold, Suffolk, England, where was located the ancestral home of Mrs. Todd's grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Parr Traill.

Both spinsters and wives are taxed in Nyasaland, according to an official report just published, which comments: "It is extremely difficult to justify an annual tax of $4.50 on a native who happens to have three wives."

What a relief to settle down to a real night's rest, and awake fully refreshed, ready for the day's duties. I was tortured by fretful nights—tossing, turning — never comfortable. DR. DAFOE PAYS MARMORA VISIT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, May 9. — One of Ontario's celebrities whisked into Marmora and out again on Sunday without a dozen people being aware of the fact until later in the day. Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe of Callander, accompanied by Fred Davis, official photographer of the quints, arrived at the Royal Hotel in the noon hour breaking the long return trip to Callander to dine.

"This is certainly a swell place," said the genial doctor referring to the hotel "The appearance and service are excellent," he added. He mentioned that the roads were somewhat bumpy and jokingly said, "That's because Hastings County was rather hard on a good Government, I suppose."

Asked by Stan Lowe how his precious charges were, he replied, "Oh, they are doing fine."

The conversation drifted to Mother's Day. "Now you have been treated so good," said the doctor's companion, "don't you think you had better stay over and give one of your talks here to-night?"

"Oh, no," said Dr. Dafoe. "We must get bac kto Callander. Best of luck to you, and tell the other folks I've been here," he said to the proprietor as he gave him a hearty parting handshake.

Deserted Wives To Get More Aid

OSHAWA, Ont., May 9—(CP). — Ontario will put "teeth" in its Deserted Wives' and Children's Maintenance Act and in other legislation dealing with child welfare after a decision by the Supreme Court of Canada is handed down, Attorney-General Gordon Conant told the Ontario County Children's Aid Society Saturday.

"When the court's decision has been handed down, which I expect will be late this fall, it will be necessary for us to meet the situation with legislation," the Attorney-General said.

There are too many "slackers" evading the Act and passing the burden of care of wives and children to the municipalities, Mr. Conant said.

Council Favors Enforcement Of Wednesday Half-Holiday

Village Constable Wellman Given Authority Re Closing Bylaw

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 9.—Local municipal council was unanimous that the bylaw regarding Wednesday half holiday be strictly enforced at their regular monthly session Friday night. Four shopkeepers were present, the largest attendance at a council meeting this year.

Reeve L. E. Kelly pointed out that it was in the hands of the council whether it was enforced or rescinded, according to information the Council had received from the Attorney-General's Department. "We can't let a man defy a bylaw of the town," he declared. On a motion of S. Stevenson and C. Lynch, the constable was authorized to enforce the bylaw. The constable will also keep his eye on restaurants regarding the sale of groceries on Wednesday afternoons.

The local branch of the Women's Institute forwarded a request to the Council and read by the clerk, to have a bylaw passed prohibiting bathing suits, halters and other scanty attire from being worn on the main streets of this village. Members of the council seemed to feel that a Provincial law was in force and covered the details contained in the request. No further action was taken in this respect.

Walter Dodd was appointed caretaker of the water-front at a salary of $7 per season.

Report Accepted.

On a motion of I. Bond and C. Lynch, the auditor's report of town Hydro books for 1937 was accepted as correct. The report showed a surplus of over $900.

On a motion of S. Stevenson and W. McEachnie, it was passed authorizing W. Wellman, police officer, to act under the Liquor Control Act.

Court of Revision will be held in the council chambers Friday, May 27, at 10.30 a.m., on a motion of C. Lynch and I. Bond.

The tax collector's time was extended to the next regular meeting. A license fee of $5 will be rebated to J. R. Thomas. A check up on peddlers will be made.

Reeve Kelly stated that through an oversight, this village does not form part of the Provincial highway between Cobourg and Norwood. The council is making plans to have an interview with H. N. Carr, M.P.P., Northumberland, and endeavor to have this error rectified.

105th Anniversary Observed By St. Paul's Congregation

Rev. D. T. L. McKerroll, D.D., Of Niagara-on-the-Lake Is Special Preacher

St. Paul's Presbyterian church on Sunday celebrated its 105th anniversary with the Rev. D. T. L. McKerroll, D.D., of Niagara-on-the-Lake and a former Moderator of the General Assembly, as the special preacher. Large congregations attended both morning and evening.

At the evening service Dr. McKerroll took his text from Hebrews 8:5, "See that thou make all things according to pattern shewed to thee in the Mount." The minister opened his sermon by telling of Moses and the 70 elders going up into the mount as told in Deuteuronomy and it was there where God revealed unto Moses His plan of the tabernacle. This plan was so impressed upon the mind of Moses that he was able to return to the Children of Israel and carry out that plan as God had admonished him to do.

"We today are building a tabernacle and Jesus Christ is the plan. We all are travelling up the mount of life and if our life is worthwhile it is only by the translation of Christ into that plan," Dr. McKerroll declared.

Have No Pattern

Many people today go through life without a pattern while others say they can put it off for ten or twenty years and then adopt Christ as their pattern but "no man can live one day rightly unless it is according to the pattern revealed to us by Jesus Christ," Dr. McKerroll declared.

He spoke of the looseness which seemed to be creeping into modern humanity and asked what is the future going to contain for everyone. Yet today it is often heard that Christianity is stern, is severe, but it is only according to every day life. A man starting to work in a factory will not last long if he does not follow the plan set forth for him. He is told by his employer to see that he makes things according to pattern. Hence it is just the same with life for if any life is going to be a success it must be followed according to the pattern laid down by Jesus Christ.

Daniel refuses to follow man's instructions and was thrown into the den of lions for he placed God before man. However God protected him when he was big enough to make all things according to the plan. "Take God's plan and follow it and you will find He will never let you down," Dr. McKerroll urged.

Loose Philosophy

Our life today is one of loose philosophy. People are floating around trying different ways of living. But there is only one way and that is to follow the pattern as laid down by Jesus Christ. And if we do our best Christ will do the rest.

At the morning service George Coleman, Jr. sang "Fear Not Ye, O Israel" and the choir sang the anthem by Sullivan, "I Will Sing of Thy Power, O God" while in the evening Miss Jessie Pattison sang Little's "Abide With Me" and the choir Field's "O God, Our Help In Ages Past."

This evening the choir assisted by four soloists from Toronto and John Duncan, the famous harpist, will present the cantata, The Rose Maiden.

CHOIR TO PRESENT THE ROSE MAIDEN

History will repeat itself tonight when, appearing with the soloists taking part in Frederic Cowen's, "The Rose Maiden", Edna Reid Carrow will again be soprano soloist. In 1922 this composition was presented by the then choir of St. Paul's Church, with the conductor who next week will wave the baton to a body of choristers, with only a few exceptions, completely changed. With her will be such well-known radio stars as Heber M. Mulock, tenor; Helen Raine McHugh, contralto, and Peterborough's favorite, Frank Oldfield, baritone. John Duncan, a harpist of rare ability, also known and heard in this city, will add distinction to an ensemble of artistic standing.

Press notices of Heber Mulock are enthusiastic in their praise of his vocal ability. He has a radio, as well as concert reputation for clear enunciation, vocal control, interpretive and versatile powers, is soloist in Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto. Helen McHugh and Edna Carrow have made many radio and concert appearances, with pleasure to their listeners. Frank Oldfield is so well known that his appearance here will mean only one thing—an added pleasure to hear him once more.

With the brilliant choruses, will be heard many beautiful solos, duets, arias, and trios by these artists, with harp accompaniment.

SUNDAY DINNER STOLEN

The emptiness of Mother Hubbard's cupboard was called to mind by a southend husband and wife Saturday night when on returning to their automobile from a second buying trip they found their parcels of meat, vegetables, other Sunday victuals, a windbreaker and assorted parcels gone. The sneak thieves missed an armful of fishing tackle, but at that they got a load of household stuff, and probably didn't choke on the stolen eatables over the week-end. The car was left unlocked, and was easy picking for some persons who perhaps make a round of the Saturday night parking places.—T.

SOIL SURVEY WORK GETS UNDER WAY THREE MEN BUSY

Frank Norwick of the Ontario Agricultural College and his two assistants comprising the party engaged in making a soil survey of Peterborough County, have completed the preliminary stage of their work. They have been all over the county, and in the meantime a thorough study has been made of the maps and other information received from the Federal Departments of Mines, Interior and Defence.

Frank A. Paterson, agricultural representative, said to-day that farmers should not pay any attention to a group of men looking like Mr. Norwick and his companions if they are seen tramping across fields They have their work all mapped out, and in getting down to the details of obtaining soi lsamples, it is not their intention to consult any land owners or tenants in regard to their opinions of the soil content. They are friendly and sociable chaps and although they are not avoiding farmers it is not part of their duties to have interviews with them and get local opinion which would not be scientific and probably of very little value. The survey is being made of the county soils as they are sampled by Mr. Norwick, the work being carried on from Mr. Paterson's office.

CLEAR LAKE CAMP IS DESCRIBED

An outline of Rotary's camp at Clear Lake was heard at the club's weekly luncheon on Monday, when Dr. R. W. Frank was called on by President James Dutton to take charge of the meeting.

Fred Roy and Claude Rogers did much of the work of establishing the camp for underprivileged boys in 1921, according to A. L. Killaly, who outlined the history of the first camp. The purchase price of the land was lowered from $500 to $250 when its owner learned Rotary's aim in making the purchase. Mr. Killaly paid tribute to the work of Rotarians in building up the organization.

Boys Take Part

The musical portion of the program was presented by boys who had been camp counsellors at Clear Lake. Bill Moorhead played a violin solo; Bob Graham, accompanied on the piano by John Hooper, played a clarinet solo. Bill Moorhead was in charge of music appreciation at the camp last year, Dr. Frank said. Music was as much a part of camp life at Clear Lake as was swimming, he said.

"These camp counsellors give their time to the camp, and not only that, they do most of the work besides," said Dr. Frank. "We owe them a great deal."

Jim McClenaghan of the Y.M.C.A. staff told of educational phases of camping.

Part Of Education

Organized camping for children has become a vital force in education today, he said. More than 100 million dollars are spent yearly in fees to camps each year, he related. The movement is now in its 77th year. The first camp was organized in New Haven in 1861 by one Frederick William Gunn, he said.

Camp life gives children more poise, a better social sense, a more intelligent grasp of the fundamentals of life, he pointed out. He found camp to be a pleasant way for a child to make his first break from home life. The work necessary to keep a camp in operation, will help a youth when he has to make a permanent home.

The timid boy learns to assert himself, the aggressive boy is taught control, the selfish boy to share his equipment. The boy with leadership tendencies has much greater scope for his activity. These are things that camp life is responsible for, he said.

Educational results at a two-months' camping trip are as great as a year's work in public school, the speaker said. Camp routine, trip planning, necessary self reliance, are educational phases of camp life, he said.

"We have always been very fortunate in our leaders," said Dr. Frank. He paid tribute to the work of Doug Loomis and the Y.M.C.A., and urged support by our members of the club, for the camp, one of Rotary's chief projects

VETERAN BARBER IS FOUND GUILTY OF VIOLATING CODE

Arthur C. Mitchell, veteran barber, was found guilty in police court this morning of violating the barbers' code as laid down under the Industrial Standards Act, by charging less than 40 cent price named by the code for cutting the hair of an adult.

Magistrate Langley fined him $5 and $2.50 costs, and Mitchell who repeatedly declared that he could not make a living under the code as set forth, asserted that he would take the jail sentence.

On a second charge of having worked at the barbering trade on a Wednesday afternoon, contrary to the code, judgment was reserved by Magistrate Langley.

Mitchell, who operates a barber shop single-handed, was charged as an employee in regard to the first alleged offence.

John DeCarlo testified that on Wednesday, February 9, he had visited Mitchell's shop and accused had cut his hair. Afterward he had asked Mitchell what the charge was, and he had paid the accused the 25 cents that was asked. Leonard O'Toole, who accompanied DeCarlo, corroborated his evidence.

George L. Fenwick, inspector of the Department of Labor, was called to prove the consent to prosecute issued by the Industry and Labor Board.

Weekly Income Dropped.

Taking the witness-box in his own behalf, Mitchell said that before the code was adopted he had been earning from $20 to $25 a week. When the price of haircuts was raised to 40 cents, his weekly income had dropped as low as $11.80 a week, and he could not live on that amount.

Crown Attorney McElderry did not address the court, but Mitchell in his argument submitted that under the barbers' code, if he had a journeyman barber working for him, he would have to pay the latter $25 a week even if he did not take in that much. "Whom am I going to sue for the balance of my wages when they drop to $11.80 a week—myself?" he asked the court.

The veteran barber said that when he had read that a high court judge had declared that the Act did not apply to a one-man barber shop he had immediately put out his sign advertising 25 cent hair cuts. "I have never seen where that judgment has been appealed," he said.

"I have got to make my living in Peterborough, and I have got to do it in the barbering business, and I can't do it at 40 cents for haircuts," Mitchell added.

Magistrate Langley pointed out that much of what the accused had been saying should not be directed to the court but to the legislators. "The courts do not make the laws," he said "You elect men to parliament to do that and the courts merely interpret them."

"It does not matter how absurd you may think the law is or even how absurd I may think it is, my duty is to enforce it. Even if the law said you had to charge $10 a haircut or wear a red coat or anything else there would be nothing for me to do but to see that the law was carried out.

Magistrate Langley then registered a conviction, after allowing DeCarlo to be recalled to testify that he was not a minor.

The evidence in the second charge, of working on Wednesday afternoon, contrary to the barbers' code was the same as in the previous case, DeCarlo and O'Toole being called.

In cross-examination the accused asked them if they had not been sent to his place on the day in question for the purpose of "getting him" but both witnesses denied hat such had been the case.

Mitchell did not give evidence in his own behalf, but he pointed out that the section governing the hours of labor under the code did not forbid work being done on Wednesday afternoon.

Magistrate Langley agreed with the accused in that respect, declaring that the act did not expressly state that the work should not be carried on on Wednesday afternoon. It sought in a left-handed sort of way to say so but it could have said it directly and in his opinion there was a distinct weakness in the act, because of the failure to make a direct statement forbidding work on Wednesday afternoons. The Magistrate declared that he would reserve judgment for a week on this charge.

The fine was later paid in Mr. Mitchell's behalf.

Robin Builds Her Nest Under Catwalk On Side Of C.P.R. Yard Engine

A DAUNTLESS little robin in this city is fighting a hard battle in her attempt to rear a family under almost intolerable housing conditions.

One day recently while engine 840, which shunts cars all day and every day, was resting on a siding at the C.P.R. station, the unsuspecting bird built herself a nest under a catwalk on the side of the engine. There she sat until the train crew came back. Mightily amazed at the terrific roar that ensued, she was shaken from her perch when the engine clattered away on its day's work.

Because her nest was well built, it remained firm in its place, together with the three eggs that had found their way there in such short time. Sympathetic trainmen watched the mother bird with great interest as she followed the engine's movements, carrying with it her hopes of motherhood. When the engine halted once more, she flew to the nest and stayed until work commenced once more. Each day since, she has remained on vigil, flying down to her home whenever the engine stops. An admiring train crew, amazed at her audacity, are taking keen interest in the outcome of the difficult struggle, and have hopes her two children will be well and strong.

But the robin is fighting a hopeless battle, according to The Examiner's robin authority. The eggs must be kept warm during the entire period it takes to hatch and because the mother robin has to leave her nest while the engine is in operation, the eggs will not be hatched, he says.

PEDESTRIAN IS STRUCK BY TRUCK

Knocked down on Highway No. 7 near Downer's Corners on Saturday night by a light truck, Anthony Crebar, 16, of Otonabee, escaped with shock and a few bruises, although he spent Sunday in St. Joseph's Hospital for observation.

Crebar with several companions was walking on the right hand side of the road when he was struck by a truck travelling in the same direction and driven by J. M. Neish of Keene. Mr. Neish says that he was dazzled by the lights of three cars travelling close together and approaching his machine, so that he did not see the youths in time to avert a mishap. The accident was investigated by Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton.

It is pointed out by the highway authorities that pedestrians for their own safety should walk on the left hand side of the highway, facing the on-coming traffic.

Three Days In Jail For Assaulting Wife

Found guilty of common assault, Pierce Nicholson of Union Street was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to three days in jail.

Nicholson had been charged with beating his wife and causing serious bodily harm, but Magistrate Langley after hearing Mrs. Nicholson's evidence reduced the charge to common assault.

The accused pleaded not guilty.

"I am willing to plead guilty to hitting her one swipe on the shoulder," he told the court.

"I can't take a plea like that," said the Magistrate. "You will have to plead to the charge as read.

Nicholson then decided to make it a plea of not guilty.

Mrs. Nicholson testified that her husband had struck her in the face but she was not sure whether it was his fist or not that hit her. The blow injured her left eye, and there was a black patch beneath the optic.

Nicholson told the magistrate that he thought he had had good cause for what he did.

He asked his wife in cross-examination if the discoloration beneath her eye had not been there permanently, and she replied in the negative.

Magistrate Langley said there was no evidence to support the more serious charge but there had been an assault and he accordingly sentenced Nicholson to three days' imprisonment. "You will get out on Wednesday morning," he told the accused.

Florence Nightingale Service Is Held At St. James' Church

Nurses From Nicholls Hospital Occupy Choir Loft At Evening Service

In Isaiah we read "Lift up a standard for the people" and in February, 1837, Florence Nightingale fittingly and wisely applied this scripture to the nursing profession by offering her services for the benefit of mankind, and in memory of one who gave her all to this noble work, the evening service at St. James' United Church was devoted.

Assisting the pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik in this unique service were Mrs. A. M. Leeson, superintendent, and the choir of nurses from Nicholls Hospital.

Representing St. James' United Church on the Hospital Board, Frank Kitney welcomed Mrs. Leeson and her fine choir, as well as other members of the board who were present.

That this service was of interest to many throughout the city was evidenced by the large congregation in attendance. Very special music was contributed by the nurses' choir, assisted by the ladies of St. James' choir, who sang most appropriately, a favorite hymn of Florence Nightingale, "The Son of God Goes Forth to War." The solo "My Task" sung by Mrs. G. R. Butcher, also fitted into the theme as did the duet "Nearer Still Nearer," by Mesdames Gerald Cuff and E. Dorrington.

Tells About The Pledge

In introducing the service Mrs. Leeson spoke briefly on the Florence Nightingale pledge and traced its form down through the years. "Verily I say unto you inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto me." was the text on which Rev. Mr. Craik based his excellent discourse on "The Lady of Mercy."

"When God needs a man or woman for special service in His Kingdom, He knows where to find the faithful soul and how to prepare them," said the speaker, who continued to show that Florence Nightingale's life was one of deep spirituality. She attended the Deaconess Institute of Kaiserwerth on the Rhine in Germany.

She had some difficulty in adjusting herself to the restrictions of the nursing profession but by prayer and devotion to the will of God she gained the victory.

Most of her life was spent among those who were sick and poor and sad. Her name will forever be linked with the Crimean War, to which Florence Nightingale pledged her life, taking with her thirty-eight other nurses, staying at her post until four months after peace terms were signed.

Incidents In Her Work

Many incidents of her work as a ministering angel were cited and it was noted that the lamp which became the symbolic attribute of Florence Nightingale, was but an ordinary camp lantern. At the age of ninety, the light of her lamp went out, beloved by all who had followed her work with interest.

This queen of nurses set an example of integrity of purpose in the service of the people which has never been excelled, perhaps never equalled. Let us in this service remember the great army of noble women who have faithfully followed in her footsteps and have thereby raised the nursing profession to the place it now occupies, and who maintain it therein above the dust of commercialism.

Coming to more modern experience the life of Edith Cavell was briefly outlined as one who had caught the spirit of her "sister in mercy."

In closing Rev. Mr. Craik declared "civilization will stand so long as we have in our midst this type of heroic womanhood." He made a strong plea for the dedication of life to worthy service to those in need.

At the conclusion of this special service, a copy of Longfellow's poem "To Florence Nightingale" was given to each member of the congregation.

Gardhouse Buys Whittington's Bull

George Whittington and Son of South Monaghan recently sold their shorthorn herd bull "Roland" to Stanley Gardhouse and Son of Weston who is completing his show herd for exhibition purposes on the western fair circuit. The Whittington bull was reserve grand champion at Peterborough last year, and was entered in the class with the Gardhouse stock. Shorthorn breeders of the district will be interested in the future of "Roland" especially for comparison with the record of "Mystic Prince" the Shorthorn bought from the Whittington herd by Duncan Campbell of Moffat who won a series of grand championships all through the west last year.

GIVEN 18 MONTHS FOR BREAKING INTO HUDSON GROCERY

Eighteen months definite and six months indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on Arthur Wilson, who pleaded guilty a week ago to breaking and entering the store of Gordon Hudson, Lock and Lansdowne streets, in the early morning of Sunday, May 1.

Wilson is the man who was arrested by Sergeant Jack Thompson, who found him hiding in the cellar of the Hudson store after the glass in the front door had been smashed with a large stone.

Crown Attorney W. J. McElderry, K.C., told the court the circumstances of the case, pointing out that Wilson had the key of the cash register on his person when arrested. The prisoner had a record, he informed the magistrate, including a previous conviction here and another at Trenton, involving three charges, all being for breaking and entering.

"You seem to have developed into a criminal career," remarked Magistrate Langley.

"I was drunk when I did it," Wilson remarked. "I am all right until I get drinking that wine."

Remarking that intoxicating was no defence, Magistrate Langley imposed sentence as stated.

CHAPTER 31

WHEN WENDA AYER ran up the wide stairway, along the balcony, to her own door, her cheeks were flaming color and her eyes were flashing her anger with Garry Page who had tried to oppose her in her wish to leave his play. The rage reached out like a circle and drew Barbara into it—sucked her as though a whirlpool had been formed.

So this was the girl for whose sake Garry had aroused Jimmy Minton's displeasure! Wenda had known that Garry once was fond of Barbara. She had known, too, that Garry heartily disliked Minton and had mistrusted him ever since the findings in a case in which Minton was once involved. What case, she wondered now?

Well, she would ask Jimmy and find out.

Wenda liked white. Now she pulled a white woollen frock over her golden hair, brushed and rearranged her hair so the ellow bang curled provocatively above the immense dark eyes that shone behind long, dark eyelashes, and snapped some gold bracelets around her wrists.

She stood before the mirror, breathing deeply, coaxing her mouth and eyes to lines of peace. When she was satisfied, she opened her door quietly and started down the stairs.

Jimmy Minton was alone in the den. The logs were burning steadily in the fireplace, and a reading lamp shone on a small table near his chair. Otherwise, the den, the big book-lined room where Basil Worthington enjoyed his privacy when he wanted it, was in shadow.

Bobbie called from a game room, just beyond.

"Mr. Minton? How soon will you be ready?"

"Bobbie?" Wenda asked, in surprise.

"We've a date for ping pong. Bobbie's warming up." He raised his voice to call to the child. "About 10 minutes, Bobbie."

They heard the thud of the racquet against the ball, and a little squeal of delight from the child as he batted balls against the wall.

"Sit down, Wenda," the man said. "You look very beautiful tonight."

"Thank you, Jimmy."

"You told Garry Page about the new play that we are putting on for you?"

She nodded. "Yes, I told him. He doesn't like it. But it's all right, of course. I'm through with his play."

"Through? What about the customary notice?"

"I called the director and resigned."

"Can you do that?" His eyes were narrowed.

"It's done. Garry got rather—unpleasant and, well, it would have been disloyal to you to have remained in that play." The dark eyes were wistful and adoring. "I'm out of the cast. How soon do we find a play and begin? Oh, you're wonderful, Jimmy, to do this for me!"

"You are still engaged to Page, I take it?" the man pursued his own line of thought.

"We didn't talk about that"

"It wouldn't do to have you engaged to him and leaving his play. The publicity given you would be beneficial to him, too, as your fiance. I'm afraid, Wenda, if this is to be arranged you will have to make a few personal sacrifices. One does, for a great career, my dear!

"You can't divide your thoughts between a role and a man when the role and man belong to separate shows. And you can't pull another up to glory on your own strength. One hundred thousand dollars is a lot of money to put in a play, Wenda..."

He paused, and his eyes seemed to focus on some far away point, as though they had entered a financial world where the man tried to balance the advantages of the possession of a tenth of a million of dollars against a Broadway production.

Wenda did not know if he paused to judge her reaction, or if the hesitation were genuine. She did not dare risk her new play!

"I'm through with Garry Page," she said calmly. "I thought that of course you knew that." She made the simple words a glowing tribute to the man she faced. She raised his stature to knighthood, and gave him a romantic accolade for having severed the other man's charms.

Jimmy Minton stood up and came nearer. He reached down and drew the girl to her feet. "Wenda, my beautiful, you and I are going to have a glorious time together. I think I could love you very much."

Jimmy Minton—money for productions in which she would shine with the tried and true; yachts, private trains, boxes at the opera, penthouse apartments and estates at Newport and Miami, and a villa in France. For all of these the man stood. They tripped through Wenda's mind, in miniature, like a stream of toy trains and boats and houses falling from a Santa Claus sack to land in a jumble under a Christmas tree.

Jimmy Minton was stooping to kiss her and she closed her eyes.

"I beg your pardon!"

The words that made Wenda spring away from Jimmy Minton and caused the playboy's bushy eyebrows to go up in swift anger and surprise were uttered in a voice as cool and as hard as steel.

It was Garry who had pulled aside the portieres and stood looking at them. He continued. "I was hunting for you, Minton."

"What was it you wished, Page?" Minton's voice and eyes were mocking. He had Garry where he wanted him, they said.

"Nothing at all — now," Garry answered. There was such deep scorn in his own voice and in the blue eyes that even Wenda felt the impact of it. She threw her golden head higher.

"I neglected to tell you, Garry, that I can't very well be engaged to anyone any longer because of my career."

"So I gathered. But let me give you a tip, Wenda. Don't trust that blackguard. Ask him where he was the night Ted Kellogg was murdered and what sort of alibi he put up to get out. I covered that case..."

Minton was a heavy man. There was an oath on his lips as he took a step toward Garry but Garry did not cringe. That angered the millionaire and he made a lunge, hurling more invectives as he came.

"Stop!"

The shrill penetration of Bobbie's voice made the woman and men look towards the direction from which he had come. In his hand he was clutching the gun which Minton had been showing him earlier in the evening.

Before the three people in the room had a chance to take the gun from him, Barbara came rushing through the door from the game room. Her face was white and her eyes were so dark that they were frightening.

"Drop it, Bobbie, drop it!" she commanded, and the gun clattered to the floor. She whirled like a gray cloud on Jimmy Minton. "You had a hunch you could get the child to shoot Garry, didn't you? Don't think I was so dumb I didn't understand! All that talk about the gun being unloaded and how it would make a big noise when you signaled him, if he pressed the trigger. Oh you, you—viper! And he was going to let you have it instead! If it hadn't been for using an innocent little child that way, it would have been a good thing for the world if he had!"

Barbara's words came so fast that the child, the actress, the playboy and Garry stood motionless, caught in their web.

"You might have some difficulty proving such an accusation, Miss Kingsley," Jimmy Minton said. "Murder is a serious charge, you know—even purported murder."

"Yes, I know. Didn't you?" Barbara wondered where she was getting the courage to talk like this to the owner of those sinister eyes.

Wenda's voice, low and modulated and soft as a stream of silver in the tenseness of the room, followed Barbara's.

"My dear, if you are so agitated because you thought I was taking Garry from you, please don't disturb yourself. I've quite released him."

The loathing that she felt for Wenda smoldered in the gray-green eyes, but Barbara kept her own tones as low as the other girl's.

"Garry is just an old friend of mine, Miss Ayer. I have no intention whatsoever of ever marrying him!" Then, her shining head held proudly but her eyes glistening with teams, she stooped over, picked up the gun, and walked from the room.

She knew that Garry followed her. "Barbara, what are you going to do with that?" he asked.

Before she could answer, a gay shout came from the lining room.

"Hello, Barbara! Hi, Garry! I'm just in time for tea and how good it's going to taste!" Ray Lipton had arrived.

Maybe it was better that there was no time now to talk to Garry, Barbara mused, as she held out a welcoming hand and concealed the gun behind her. As soon as she could, she would slip away and take it to Natalie. She was afraid of it.

Parents May Think They Are Being Modern by Keeping Pace With Their Children, but the Latter Prefer That Mother and Dad Be and Act Their Ages

IT MUST be a disheartening and discouraging business to be parents in these days, for no matter which line of conduct they pursue, they fail to give satisfaction to their hypercritical offspring.

If father and mother still adhere to the Ten Commandments and the general moral code therein set forth, their children complain that they are old-fashioned. On the other hand, if they go modern, drink, smoke, pet and swap partners, their youngsters are shocked and horrified at their behavior, and complain that they are not the kind of mammas and papas they want. What they crave is somebody to hear their bedside prayers, not rounders they will have to put to bed when they come home soused. So what are poor Mom and Pop to do?

A girl of 19 expressed the feeling of, perhaps, most of her generation on this subject when she said to me the other day: "I've a modern mother and, believe me, there is no one I envy so much as the girls who have old-fashioned mothers. My mother dyes her hair, counts her calories, dresses like a flapper, smokes and drinks too much, and nothing pleases her so much as for people to tell her that she and I look like sisters.

"Indeed, her main line is discouraging about how, when her first baby was born, she determined never to grow old, but keep young so her children would always feel that she was their friend and companion; just one of themselves, not a horrid, fussy old parent they were afraid of.

"So she has always played with us, gone where we have gone, done the things we have done and kept a girl herself until really now her daughters chaperon her more than she does them, and Mother thinks that she has been a grand mother.

"But that isn't the kind of mother I want. I don't want a mother who is a pal. I want one whom I can reverence. I don't want a mother who is on a level with me. I want one to whom I can look up, one who is wiser and stronger than I am, who will know how to keep me from doing foolish things and hold me steady when I am tempted to do wrong ones. I don't want a mother who hennas her bobbed hair and pretends to be young. I want a sweet-faced, gray-headed old woman who isn't ashamed to be her age and who won't make wisecracks when I try to tell her what is deep down in my heart.

"How can I confide in Mother when she would be blowing smoke rings in my face all the time I was talking to her and thinking more about the highball she was sipping than my problem And how can I think her advice is worth taking when it is just the selfish, sophisticated, cynical answers to the big problems of life that I hear every day from people who have made messes of their lives? I don't want to go the way that leads to destruction. I want my Mother to guide me into the safe road. But when I reach out my hand for hers she isn't there. She is off dancing the Big Apple somewhere.

"I am not blaming my mother, you understand. She is just a victim of the propaganda that teaches that a mother should keep as young as her children; that she should be a chum, a good sport, in order to influence her youngsters and make them confide in her. Never was there a greater mistake. Children don't want their parents to be young. They don't want to chum with them. They don't want to play with them. They want somebody to look up to, somebody who is strong and upon whom they can depend; somebody who has authority, somebody who has lived a long time and who has seen many phases of life and whose opinion they respect.

"How can a mother who is flirting around with gigolos or some other woman's husband steady her daughter who is tempted to run off with some good-looking boy? How can a bleary-eyed philanderer expect his son to listen to him when he warns against wine and women?

"I tell you it is these professionally young fathers and mothers who are giddier than their children who are responsible for half of the excesses of the wild girls and boys of today. Our parents have left us nothing to respect, nothing to lean upon, and so we fall.

"And that is why I wish I had an old-fashioned mother, who would be content to be my mother instead of just one of the girls."

DEAR MISS DIX—I am in the sophomore year in college and have very poor grades and have so far failed on my record. Am having to work my way through college. Do you think I should drop out of school and go to work or try to graduate? I fear I am lacking in either brains or initiative in not being able to make my grades. R. S. M.

Answer:

Not every boy is college material. Perhaps you would suceed better in business than you do at school. Talk it over with your dean of men and take his advice.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNAPPER

"Just a moment, Uncle Wiggily, if you please," spoke Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy to the rabbit gentleman one morning. He was on the front porch ready to hop away adventuring.

"What is it, Janie?" asked Mr. Longears. "Do you want to come adventuring with me?" he asked. "Or perhaps my rabbit lady wife does also," he added. "I hear her calling."

"That's why I want you to wait," said the muskrat lady housekeeper. "She wants to speak to you."

"Oh, Wiggy! Wigg!" called Mrs. Longears from the front hall.

"What is it?" inquired the rabbit gentleman.

"Will you please lift my large rubber plant outside on the porch?"

asked Mrs. Longears. "I think it will grow faster out of doors than in the house. Mrs. twistytail, the lady pig, gave it to me, and I want it to grow well."

Heavy

"Surely I will lift out the rubber plant for you," said Mr. Longears. And he did. He had to grunt and puff a bit as he did so for the rubber plant, of large, long green leaves, was tall and big. It grew in an old butter tub. It was heavy.

Finally Uncle Wiggily got it out on the porch. His wife thanked him. The rabbit gentleman dusted his paws and, with a twinkle of his pink nose, shook some dirt from the tub off his brown, fur coat and hopped away adventuring.

Soon he met Mr. Twistytail, the gentleman pig.

"You seem all out of breath, Wiggy," grunted the pig.

"I am, a bit," admitted Mr. Longears. "I moved my wife's snapper out on the porch for Spring."

"I didn't know your wife had a snapper," grunted the jolly, fat pig gentleman. "oD you mean a snapping turtle?"

"No, I mean a rubber plant," said Uncle Wiggily. "I call it a snapper because, being a rubber plant, you see, if you pulled the leaves they would snap back, like a rubber band."

"Would they?" asked the pig.

"I don't know. I never tried it," answered Mr. Longears. "But it stands to reason it wouldn't be called a rubber plant unless it would stretch, do you think?"

"Yes, I think," said the pig. "Maybe you are right to call your wife's rubber plant a snapper. Try it some time."

"I shall," promised Uncle Wiggily. "It will be fun to pull the leaves of the rubber plant and watch them bounce back."

Worst Fellow

Uncle Wiggily had a chance to do this sooner than he expected. He hopped on through the woods, Mr. Twistytail waddled to the store to get his wife some sour milk and, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily had an adventure. Out of the bushes popped the Weasel.

The Weasel is one of the worst Bad Chaps a rabbit can meet. So as soon as Uncle Wiggily saw the Weasel, the bunny turned and hopped back to his bungalow.

"Oh, I can easily catch you!" sneered the weasel.

He chased and he chased and he chased Uncle Wiggily. Right to the bungalow front steps the Weasel chased the rabbit. Then Mr. Longears saw his wife's rubber plant on the porch.

"Here's my chance to see if it will snap at the Weasel," said Mr. Longears. He waited until the Weasel was close. Then Uncle Wiggily pulled back a leaf of the rubber plant. It stretched and stretched and stretched out very long. Then Uncle Wiggily let go of it.

'SNAP!" and the leaf clipped the Weasel on his nose, knoced him over in a peppersault and when he got up Mr. Longears was in the bungalow. So the Bad Chap didn't get him because of the snapper rubber plant.

And if soap doesn't put milk in the water pistol to make it turn to cheese when it shoots at the rye bread, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's imitator.

"The Authority on Authorities"

KEEP ADDING THIRTEEN

GOOD CARD reading is largely a matter of adding up to thirteen in one suit after another, until you have the hidden hands completely tabulated. Whenever one hand ceases to follow in a certain suit, you can immediately figure the number of that suit left in the other hand, by merely subtracting the known cards from 13. By repeating the process, you can point the way to all sorts of plays, including squeezes and lead throwers.

After an opening bid of 2-Spades by South on this deal, North responded with 3-Hearts. South then bid 4-Clubs, North 4-Spades, South 5-Hearts, North 6-Hearts and South 6-No Trumps.

The diamond Q was led by West and won by South with the A. A club was led to dummy's J to take a spade finesse. When West showed out, declarer decided to find out a little more about the distribution of the other suits, before conceding a spade trick. He cashed his clubs A, K and Q and followed with the hearts A and Q. It was now evident that West held six clubs and that East held five hearts. At this point, East held in spades the K-9-5 and the hearts J-10. When a diamond was led to the K, East had to unguard one suit or the other. He actually let go a spade, so that South cashed the heart K and then finessed a spade. The A then dropped East's K, so that the remaining tricks were South's.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, May 10.

The planetary configurations dominating this day are rather conflicting. A serious, studious and perplexed mood may prevail on this day and may attract the notice and substantial support of elders, but there are several signs of things working at cross-purposes, with difficulties, delays, and disappointments. However, these are not of major importance.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which some problems may come up for serious thought and wise adjustment. In meeting delays, postponements, or anxiety, it is advisable to seek the advice and support of elders, trusted friends or relatives, all of whom should be synapthetic and trustworthy. Personal affiliations should be happy, but secret things may call for adjustment.

A child born on this day may be studious, profound and inclined to the serious things of life, with tendencies to aloofness or soliture, although not lacking in affection or kindliness. It may win support of elders and superiors.

BOOST FOR HASTINGS

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 9.—(CP)—Arthur Jones of Belleville has returned from a tour of the United States with a trailer advertising Belleville attached to his car, and he reports thousands of Americans enquired about Belleville and Hastings county. Jones said that on his five thousand mile trip he found driving conditions were worst in Toronto, "where there are too many crazy drivers."

U.S. PLANES FOR FRANCE?

PARIS, May 9.—(AP).—French aviation sources said yesterday the air ministry had asked the French embassy at Washington to investigate the possibility of American manufacture and delivery of warplanes for France.

If a favorable reply is received, the sources said, the ministry will send a delegation to the United States to open negotiations for purchase of the planes. The delegation's duties would be similar to those of the British mission now exploring the North American market.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT, if you are cross, lifeless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties, they want girls along who are full of pep.

Most Successful Tea Girls' Work Board and Council

A well attended and successful tea, under the auspices of the Local Girls' Work Board and the Girls' Council, was held Saturday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room, which was lovely with spring flowers and fragrant with Hawthorne blossoms.

Miss Marilyn Munro, President of the Girls' Council, and Miss Elizabeth Walker, Treasurer of the Girls' Work Board, welcomed the guests.

The tea table, with its lovely gleaming silver Tea Services at either end, was covered with a cloth of lace, and centred by a graceful bouquet of sunny Daffodils, Narcissus and Snapdragons, their beauty heightened by the glow from slender green candles. Pouring tea in the early afternoon were Mrs. W. P. Robertson from St. John's and Mrs. J. H. Sutcliffe from Murray Street Baptist, later relieved by Mrs. A. T. Barr from St. Paul's and Mrs. E. W. Young from St. Andrew's. Assisting in the serving were: Ruth Barns, Isabel Weddell, Margaret Wood, Betty Cooper, Merrill Miles, Lenore Skitch, Majorie Benson and Joan Moore.

During the afternoon little Jean Millard, in Scotch costume, danced the Highland Fling, accompanied by Mrs. Foster at the piano. All Saints' teen-age girls group delighted their audience with songs, and Miss Isabel Weddell sang two lovely numbers, skillfully accompanied by Miss Musa Cox.

The tables, in charge of teen-age groups of girls representing every Protestant denomination in the city, were daintily and individually decorated and arranged by the girls themselves. Murray Street table, featuring home-made cakes and cookies, was attractively decorated with crepe paper streamers of purple and mauve, and presided over by Barbara Scott, Norma Smedmore, Lois Whatley, St. John's table, decorated in mauve and pink, at which home-made candy was sold, was in charge of Joan Melton and Betty Richardson. The Knox Church table had as its colour scheme mauve and yellow, where Helen Ward and Elva Darling sold pies and tarts to eager customers. Park Street table, where daintily dressed dolls were sold by Beatrice Brierly and Marian Bartley, was decorated in green and pink. St. Paul's table, in colours of maize and mauve, was in charge of Betty Barr and Glen Allen, who had no difficulty in clearing their stock of home-made jams, jellies and pickles. The George street table, which had as its colours blue and pink, displayed interesting novelties, all made, of course, by the girls themselves, and sold by Ruby Scott and Vera Patterson. St. Andrew's and Trinity featured a "Touch and Take" table in pink and blue, at which the amused guests bought whatever prettily wrapped novelty their fingers first touched. This table was under the direction of Isabel Pogue, Doris Hutchinson and Zoe Stayzer.

A pretty little flower girl (Geraldine Melton) with long golden braids and blue ribbon hair bows, was thrilled with her appointment, and very easily disposed of her tray full of tiny nosegays of violets, yellow, white, and purple, which would probably be worn on someone's lapel to a Mother's Day service Sunday morning.

The girls are to be congratulated upon their enthusiasm and co-operation, which was necessary to make this tea, their only drive for funds during the entire year, the decided success it undoubtedly was. The girls were ably assisted by Mrs. J. A. McKone, head of the Girls' Council, Mrs. L. J. Pettit, Mrs. F. M. Somerville, who acted as treasurer for the day, and many others.

French—Grieves

Music was a lovely feature of a wedding of much interest in the Salvation Army Temple on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, when Elizabeth, daughter of Mrs. J. Grieves of Rubidge Street and the late James Grieves, was married to Herbert French, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. French of Third Avenue. The ceremony was performed by Adjutant Neil Warrender below a beautiful arch in pink and white color scheme, with large white bell and carnations in the same colors.

The wedding march for the bride's entrance was played by Mrs. G. Routly, and before the ceremony commenced, the Junior Choir, of which the bride is assistant leader, sang "The Voice That Brethed O'er Eden." The opening song, "Lord We Ask Thy Richest Blessing," was played by the Junior Band, of which the bridegroom is bandmaster. Very lovely was the singing of the Lord's Prayer by the Senior Choir during the ceremony, and while the register was being signed the Senior Band of the Salvation Army played.

Given in marriage by her brother, James Grieves of Cleveland, the bride wore the conventional navy uniform of the Army, with the effective and charming small addition of a white satin stripe chiffon scarf that crossed from one shoulder to her waist, falling in long streamers at the side. She carried a bouquet of red roses tied with wide white ribbons.

Dressed also in her uniform and carrying a bouquet of pink roses, Miss Dorothy French, sister of the groom, attended as bridesmaid. The best man was Arthur Smith, and the ushers included Les French, brother of the groom, William Scott, Alec Cummings and Gordon Holnbeck.

Following the ceremony over one hundred and fifty guests attended the reception held in the Sunday School Hall, where pink and white decorations were charmingly carried out. Daffodils and pink and white candles in silver holders decorated the tables, and on the bride's table was the handsome three-tiered wedding cake.

The happy couple left later for a short honeymoon, and on their return will reside on Third Avenue.

A fine program was rendered by the following members: Agnes Pogue, piano solo, "Glow Worm," splendidly played and drawing much applause; Douglas Ferguson, violin solo, "Air with Variations," by Dancla, a much appreciated number; Yvonne and Doreen Naples, piano duets, "Cherry Blossoms" (Friml), "Mountain Twilight Valse" (Friml), both numbers being played with fine tone and precision.

The program was closed with a fine talk, humorous and descriptive, by the president, Colin Jack, who spoke of the value and appreciation Music has been proved to be as a mental and physical factor in our lives. The subject was intently followed and much applauded. Refreshments were served later.

Phillips—Grills

CAMPBELLFORD, May 9. — A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Grills on Saturday when their only daughter Bessie was united in marriage to Everett Franklin Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Phillips of Toronto. Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick performed the ceremony beneath an arch of evergreens and spring flowers.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white satin with white taffeta sash. She wore a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and maidenhair fern. She entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by her cousin, Miss May Stotts.

The bride and groom were unattended, and following the ceremony a number of guests assembled in the dining-room, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Phillips left on a wedding trip through Western Ontario. For travelling the bride more a grey tailored suit with navy accessories. They will reside in Toronto.

'WORLD PEACE' IS MAY SUBJECT LAKEFIELD M.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, May 9. — "The Church and World Peace" was the theme of the regular May meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Lakefield United Church which was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Charlton, Regent street. There was a large attendance.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. G. F. Kelly and Mrs. W. W. Leonard was in charge. In explaining why there is a peace program in the Women's Missionary Society, Mrs. Leonard said in part: "The question of world peace is of vital importance in every nation. History has proven that peace cannot be won by rustling of swords but only by goodwill and friendly intercourse. Governments have failed in time past but the common people are now alive to national issues. Everywhere interest is keen."

Noel Baker in a recent paper says: "I believe world public opinion is going to force our governments, our ruling classes to impose peace on the world," and Lord Cecil agrees. "The time has come," he says, "when the history of the world actually lies in the hands of the average man and woman. Theirs is the responsibility; the people can do it if they will. The people must wake up and think."

"It is known that 100,000 adult members are enrolled in the Women's Missionary Society," Mrs. Leonard continued, "What a power they could exert in the causes of temperance, social welfare, racial brotherhood and world peace. Dr. Fosdich states: "If some one says, 'how can the church stop war,' I say quite candidly that I am not sure the church can stop war, but what I am sure of is that without the church we cannot stop war. If we cannot align the Christians of the church in favor of peace then we cannot align the rest of the world.

A poem entitled, "Peace" by John Oxenham was read in unison. Miss Cora Charlton sang a most pleasing vocal solo.

Mrs. Kelly presided for the business and reviewed the last half of chapter V of the study book entitled, "The Light of the Mind."

$100.25 Thankoffering

The minutes were read by Mrs. Renwick, and Miss Sanderson gave the treasurer's report. The report stated that the Easter thankoffering amounted to $100.25.

It was decided that a special work meeting for the W.M.S. would be held in the Sunday school room on Tuesday, May 10 at 2.30 p.m. On May 18 there is to be official meeting of officers of Peterborough Presbyterial in George Street Church, Peterborough at 2.30 p.m.

Mrs. McKerchar presided at the piano and after the closing hymn Mrs. Kelly dismissed with prayer. A social half hour followed, at the conclusion of which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Charlton for her hospitality.

JAPS TO RELEASE YOUNG CANADIAN

TOKYO, May 9 — (CP). — Joseph Gilbertson, young Canadian seaman, was expected to be released from Japanese custody today after payment of what the Canadian Legation here said would be "a small fine" for illegal possession of harbor photographs.

The 24-year-old Vancouver man was placed in custody in an hotel in the Japanese port of Osaka after being taken from the freighter Heathcote on which he was fourth engineer.

The Canadian Legation here said it was expected a small fine would be levied but advices to H. Nemichi, Japanese Consul-General in Vancouver, said Gilbertson was fined 30 yen (about $8.73) in Osaka Police Court.

(In Vancouver Friday night Nemichi said if Gilbertson had paid the "very, very light" fine, he likely was a free man).

The Tokyo Legation of the Canadian Government was asked to probe the arrest of Gilbertson after members of the crew of the British steamship Heathcote, returning to Vancouver by trans-Pacific liner when their ship was sold to Japanese interests, said Gilbertson had been detained.

In Gilbertson's luggage, it was said, were photographs of Japanese warships and street scene in Osaka.

(Gilbertson's shipmates, in Montreal, termed the Vancouver engineer "just unlucky" in being arrested. They said they all had taken photographs but Customs officers who passed them had not been so alert apparently, as the one Gilbertson met.

(Lachlan McFayden, third engineer and son of the skipper of Gilbertson's ship, said he himself had taken some of the snapshots found in Gilbertson's album when he was arrested. He said one of them showed something of fortified areas of the inland sea but added the pictures were taken merely as souvenirs.

Don't Be Fooled About Constipation!

Many people, when constipation hits them, just reach for the medicine shelf, dose up with a physic, and try to forget it—till the trouble comes back. And come back it usually does—more and more often—till you get at its cause.

If you eat what most people do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are just this fact causes your trouble: lack of "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.

If that's the reason for your trouble, what you need is a good dish of crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars." Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

FELDSPAR PLEA IS REJECTED BY COMMITTEE

Peterborough Nepheline Will Continue To Flow to United States

The flow of Peterborough county nepheline into the United States will continue unimpeded according to the decision of the Senate finance committee at Washington in rejecting the application of the feldspar industry across the border to increase the duty on the Canadian product to a prohibitive rate.

This information was included in a letter which Mayor Hamilton received to-day from J. J. Duffus, M.P., at Ottawa. The feldspar interests in the United States asked for a duty of $6 a ton on importations from the Lakefield area, but at that time it was learned that powerful groups in the glass and ceramic industries in the United States greatly preferred nepheline to feldspar for their own manufacturing purposes.

Only Important Source.

Deposits of feldspar are rather numerous in the United States, but the estimated millions of tons of nepheline in the Methuen hills at the east end of Stoney Lake are said to be the only import source of this non-metallic mineral.

Mayor Hamilton stated to The Examiner that the news from Washington, relayed by Mr. Duffus, was of as much interest to the people of the city as to those of Lakefield and the rest of the country. The Canadian Nepheline Company on its defensive behalf applied to the United States' department for a reduction of the duty from 30 to 15 per cent. It is felt that there will be no interference with the exports of nepheline from Ontario during the term of the Democratic administration, and it is thought that even with a Republican government would not seriously alter the present tariff scale.

SIX R.A.F. FLIERS DIE IN 3 CRASHES

LONDON, May 10 (CP Havas)—Six Royal Air Force fliers were killed and two injured today in three airplane crackups near Lincoln, in a field close to Hilton, Huntingdonshire, and at the Wyron aviation school airdrome.

The worst accident was at the Wyron airdrome where a Blenheim bomber crashed at the take-off and burst into flames. Pilot Officer Douglas Perry was hurled out of the plane and killed. Aircraftsmen John J. G. Rice and Frederick Grimes, respectively observer and wireless operator in the ship, were burned to death.

A biplane attached to the Wyron Aviation School plummeted to earth in a field near Hilton. Pilot Officer Ivor J. Fawdry and Pilot Officer Colin J. C. Lee of Aircraft Squadron 139 were killed.

Pilot Officer Richard D. H. Maxwell was killed and Corporal David R. Wissett and Aircraftsman Whitefield Dodds were injured in the crash of a ship attached to the 144th Squadron near Lincoln.

ENGINEERS GAUGE SPEED

Studies of aeronautical engineers indicate that a man falling from an aeroplane with a parachute strapped on his back does not exceed a speed of 118 miles an hour.

LYON, France—Five French army fliers were killed when a military plane crashed near here today.

Farmer's Tow Job Saves A Town

BEVERAGE ROOMS BLIGHTING YOUTH BISHOP CHARGES

KINGSTON, Ont., May 10 (CP).—Ontario's beverage rooms are "casting a blight upon the promise of youth," and are "menace to the virility of our nation," Bishop John Lyons told the Ontario Synod of the Church of England today in his annual charge.

"The present-day beverage room is but a modernized bar-room," Bishop Lyons said. "It is an attempt not only to legalize, but to cover with the cloak of respectability the sale and use of spirituous liquors."

The liquor problem has become the "plaything of party politics, a powerful weapon in an election appeal," he said. "The church must necessarily move with all the more caution lest she be accused of partisanship."

Bishop Lyons said he had made a policy of refraining from rushing into print or embarking on a course of action likely to be misconstrued by some persons serving the "so-called" temperance cause. The church always had taught that true temperance betokened a "normal personality."

Major Social Problem.

But "the liquor question must be recognized as one of our major social problems."

Had the system of liquor control preceding prohibition days "continued to function along the lines of gradually increasing restraint, we might be today nearer a solution of this far-reaching problem," Bishop Lyons believed. "The beverage room must go in the interests of society."

The charge deplored secularism, saying: "The sooner we face frankly the facts of human experience, the better for the church, ourselves and the world at large." Time would show the fallacy of a "philosophy of pronounced secularism."

Bishop Lyons referred to the appointments of Rev. A. O. Cooke of Barriefield, and Rev. C. E. S. Radcliffe of Deseronto as cannons of the Diocesan Cathedral, and to the consecration of churches at Sydenham and Merrickville during the year.

Police Start Drive On Poor Car Brakes

When you see Traffic Officer Menzies holding up his hand like this (TOP) as you drive down the street, you will likely wish you had your brakes tightened a few days ago.

On Monday afternoon the police department started a drive to make driving more safe in this city. All week Constable Menzies will stop drivers to see whether they can stop their cars in the regulation distance. The little gadget in the bottom picture is the tester which Constable Menzies fastens to the side of the cars. It records the distance travelled by the auto from the time the driver puts his foot on the brakes until it comes to a halt. At 20 miles an hour a motorist is allowed to travel 50 feet with the brake on. Travelling 30 m.p.h. he is allowed to go 75 feet using the emergency alone.

Out of seven cars tested on Monday afternoon, Constable Menzies found two had defective brakes. One car took 80 feet to stop after the foot brake had been applied at 20 m.p.h.
